One of our town ladies, of some class avoirdupois, walking over a cistern, a few day ago, broke through the covering and plunged feet first into the water, hich came up to her chin. Willing and anxious friends after some difficulty, succeeded in rescuing the unfortunate lady from her reluctant bath and we trust she will experience no evil results. She was not a candidate for immersion, having strong adherence to the faith of John Wesley.—Omemee Mirror.

HON. MR. HANNA IS VERY WRATHY

Special to the Review.

Toronto, Sept. 10.—Hon. W. J. Hanna, Provincial Secretary, returned this morning from Cobalt, with some harsh opinions of the way the mining town has taken care of its sanitation. Ninety-seven cases of typhoid fever are now in the local hospitals, with forty more about the town.

"Not only were sanitation laws absolutely disregarded," he said, "but common decency was not valued. Landlords who bought factory-made houses of two rooms costing $280, rented them for $360 a year, and laughed at all measures to force them to provide decent sanitary arrangements."

Saw Canada's Exhibit

Mrs. Learmouth, Stewart street, has returned home after spending a most enjoyable two months' visit with friends at the Pacific Coast. She also attended the A.Y.P. exposition, and was very much pleased with Canada's exhibit, also showing a panoramic view of the different animals and the great wheat fields of the Northwest.

SPORTING NEWS

RUGBY IS GOING TO BOOM IN PETERBOROUGH THIS FALL

Decided to Have City League, With Senior and Junior Series—Junior Division to Start at Once—Executive Had Meeting Last Night.

Peterborough is to have a city Rugby league with a senior and junior series. It is expected that there will be three teams in the senior division and four in the junior section. The junior series is to be started at once, the first game to be played at Riverside Park a week from to-morrow.

A meeting of the executive of the Rugby Club was held in orderly room at the Armouries last night, when the arrangements for the city league were pretty well completed. President D. Walker was in the chair and the others present were Mr. F. D. Craig, sec.-treas.; Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, hon. president; Dr. A. W. McPherson, coach; Mr. C. E. Pisson, second vice-president, and Messrs. George Lundy and George Armstrong, members of the executive. It was decided to form a city rugby league and the executive of the Peterborough Rugby Club were appointed to take charge of it. A meeting will be held in the orderly room next Tuesday evening at eight o'clock for the purpose of considering applications for membership and completing the work of organization. The membership fee was placed at two dollars for each team.

The president, secretary and Dr. McPherson were appointed a committee to interview those in control of Riverside Park to make arrangements for having lights installed, securing practice hours, etc.

The question of placing a team in the O.R.F.U. was discussed and while no definite action was taken it is practically certain that this city will have a team in the senior series of the provincial organization. It is also possible that there will be a junior team from Peterborough in the Ontario body. From present indications there will be an abundance of good material for two teams.

There will be four teams in the junior series, the T.A.S., Collegiate, Y.M.C.A. and Rough Riders. There are three prospective teams for the senior division. Entries should be made to the secretary before Tuesday night in order that everything will be in shape for the meeting that evening.

STILL WAITING AT HAVELOCK FOR CHAMPIONSHIP GAMES

Special to the Review.

Havelock, Sept. 9.—The local football team journeyed to Bethany on Labor Day and defeated the team of that town by the score of 1—0. Bethany had on an Omemee goal tender, and Staton, Bowmanville's fast wing man, who was responsible for the good showing of that town in the western part of the Midland district. The following was the line-up of the local team;—

Goal—W. J. Rose.
Backs—H. T. Andrews, K. McKay.
Halves—W. McMullen, R. H. Hitchins, H. Kindred.
Centre—Wm. Rose.
Right—R. McPherson, Geo. Mathison.

The locals made a good showing considering that they have had very little practice lately.

NO WORD YET.

No word has been received yet as to when the finals in the Ontario championship will take place. Green River tied Brussels at the latter place in their last game, thus winning the round by 2 to 1 but Brussels has protested the last goal, and it has not been decided yet in the matter of the protest.

GOOD LIST OF SPORTS AT RIVERSIDE TO-MORROW

All arrangements have been completed for the holding of the competition for the Howden-Eastwood trophies at Riverside Park to-morrow afternoon. Up to noon to-day five entries had been received at the Y.M.C.A. for each trophy, and the T.A.S. have intimated that the Athletic Club of that society will be represented by a good strong team. Good prizes will be given to those securing second and third places in both these events. Two extra races will be put on, one mile and a quarter respectively, for which prizes will be given for first and second place.

The competition is under the auspices of the local Y.M.C.A., and the extra good list of events which will be pulled off should be witnessed by a large crowd.

HANS HOLMER LOWERS WORLD'S MARATHON RECORD

Lowell, Mass., Sept. 9.—Hans Holmer of Quebec, a dark-skinned, lithe young athlete, romped away with the national Marathon road race over the Merrimac Valley course this afternoon.

Holmer won because he was the best runner in the race. Not only did he win the Marathon championship of America, but he lowered all world's records for 26 miles 385 yards over the road. His time was 2 hours 42 minutes 37 seconds, 18 seconds better than Bob Fowler's world's amateur record of 2 hours 43 minutes 55 seconds, made from Ashland to Boston on January 2, last.

Never before in the history of the Marathon race has a man covered the distance in such fast time and to the 20,000 persons who watched the race it was apparent that the wonderful youth from Canada could have clipped minutes off his time had he been forced during the last few miles of the journey.

Pat Dineen of South Boston, slight in stature and grey-haired—he is 38 years old—finished second, two minutes and three seconds behind Holmer.

John J. Hayes, of New York, winner of the Olympic Marathon, was third, almost a lap behind Dineen.

Fourth prize went to Tom Morrissey, of Boston; while fifth money went to William Prouty, of Hyde Park. Forty-two ran in all.

LINES ON SPORT

On a charge of assault and battery, Fred Clarke, manager of the Pittsburg National League baseball club, was arrested yesterday. He later furnished bail for a hearing before Justice Rissell, of Bridgeville, Pa., next Thursday evening. The information was made by Casper P. Meyer, of Bridgeville, a brick manufacturer, who alleges Clarke pushed him down a concrete stairway at Forbes field, Monday afternoon.

Alfred Griffo, known in sporting circles as "Young Griffo," whose cleverness and speed electrified Chicago's sporting public when prize fighting was one of its pastimes, to-morrow will be given a hearing in the court for the insane at the detention hospital. Saturday's hearing was the twentieth in the Harrison street precinct station court. Dr. Alfred D. Lewy informed the court that he believed Griffo was insane.

Barney Oldfield established a new record for one mile from a standing start in his Benz car yesterday by covering the distance in 51 1-5 seconds.

R. A. Murrain, one of the best known racing men in the country died Tuesday at his home in the lodge at Overland park in Denver, Col., from a complication of diseases. He had been ill for several weeks. Murrain trained and drove the great trotter, Cresceus.

According to the present plans of the Cleveland Club, Rhoades, Berger and Sitton, pitchers; Clarke and Bemis, catchers; Bradley, Turner and Ball, infielders; Flick, outfielder, will be dropped at the close of this season or before the next season opens.

Some of these men will go to the minors and others will be traded to some other big league club.

Claude Rossman, the former Detroit first sacker, who was traded St. Louis, has returned to Detroit, after playing only one game. He complains of the players criticizing his work.

And now we have the sporting editor of the Lindsay Warder chewing the alfalfa about the decisions of umpire McCabe in the Labor Day game here. We do not feel like showing the S. E. up, for he has his good points, but let it be known for the benefit of those who might be deceived by the random talk in the Warder's sporting department, that the sporting editor of that paper did not see the game, and what he knows about it is derived from hearsay. We doubt if the Warder had a representative at the game. There was a Lindsay youth there keeping tab on what occurred, but he was not able to "score" the game in the correct sense. The Lindsay Post says that the umpire gave Lindsay a square deal. We would advise the Warder's sporting man to back up the ferry for it is plain that he is in the wrong slip.

It is practically agreed that Ben Simpson will captain the Tigers this fall; in fact, a couple of the old players have announced that they will only play with Ben in charge of the team. The first practice will be held on Saturday afternoon.

Woodstock College, two teams from London and one from Petrolea will form a new junior series in the O.R.F.U. There will also be two Toronto sections, a Peterborough-Lindsay group and an eastern group.

Murray Kennedy, the former Varsity and Rough Rider half-back, has joined the staff of the Bank of Commerce and will be stationed at Collingwood. This means that he will not be in the game this season.

Referee Smith refused to give a decision after Jack Johnson and Al. Kauffman had battled ten rounds in a no-decision contest. Johnson, however, had a clear lead in every round and easily earned the unofficial decision of the newspapermen.

The colored fighter smiled at Kauffmann's efforts, and chopped the latter all over the ring and against the ropes. Kauffmann landed less than half a dozen good punches.

JACK CORKERY IS IN DEMAND

There will be some hustling by local teams to get Corkery, the Peterborough boy, who was a sensation at Ottawa College last year. The Argos are after him, and also expect to have Coryell, Heuther and Duncanson, formerly of Varsity; Harper, Van Buskirk, an American player; Russell, Tommy Hay, Mart Kent, Barber, Maxwell and Jeff Taylor, who will be back from the north in a few days.—Toronto Globe.

GIRL WAS TAKEN BACK TO HAVELOCK

Had Been Placed in Shelter by Agent for Children's Aid Society

Mr. G. N. Gordon, acting for the father of the young girl who was taken from her home in Havelock by County Constable Cochrane on Tuesday, had the girl removed from the shelter and taken to her home to-day. The case is to be heard at Havelock next Tuesday, and the girl will be produced on that date.

HOWELL GIVEN TWO MONTHS WILSON OUT

The trial of Wesley Howell and Robert Wilson was held at the County Court this morning. Judge Huycke presided and Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the two accused men. Crown Attorney Wood acted in the interests of the Crown. Howell received an additional two months in Central Prison, and Wilson was allowed off on suspended sentence.

It will be remembered how Howell was sentenced to Central Prison for six months a short time ago for a charge of assaulting P.C. Newhall, and was committed for trial on the charge of breaking from custody, and Robert Wilson was likewise committed for trial for aiding Howell in his escape.

P.C.'s. Newhall, McGinty and Meharry were the witnesses this morning and the evidence was similar to that which was given at the police court before Magistrate Dumble.

Arrested at S. A. Meeting.

Toronto, Sept. 10.—Mary Baker, 16 years, employed as a domestic at 143 John street, was arrested last night by Detective Murray while attending the Salvation Army services at the James street Temple. She is wanted for stealing a watch, a ring, and a sum of money from the matron of the Children's Aid Society of Berlin, from whose charge she escaped August 28. Inspector Miller of the society will come from Berlin for the girl, who is now in the shelter.

Vacancies For Two Senators.

Halifax, Sept. 10.—Senator Ross has begun a campaign for the appointment of Senators to fill the two vacancies caused by the death of Senator Carmichael and the resignation of Senator Curry. One of these seats had been vacant for two years and the other since January of this year. He claims that it is not fair to Nova Scotia and has begun a newspaper campaign for immediate appointments.

Berlin Wants to Be a City.

Berlin, Sept. 10.—The council will apply to the Legislature for a city charter. This is the direct outcome of the quarter million extra assessment levied on the town by the County Council this year. The town will save $2,500 a year by being a city, under present conditions, which means a mill in the assessment.

Edmonton Has Airship.

Edmonton, Alta., Sept. 10.—Residents of Edmonton were startled yesterday to see flying high over the houses an airship carrying a full-grown man. It developed that Reginald Hunt has been working for three years to perfect an airship. He is a carpenter by occupation and is of a mechanical turn of mind and has already designed several useful labor-saving devices. About three years ago he became deeply interested in the problem of aerial navigation.

Shot His Brother-In-Law.

Buffalo, N.Y., Sept. 10.—Charles Roth, 23 years old, of Blasdell, Erie County, heard some one trying to raise a rear window of his sister's home shortly after midnight yesterday morning. He fired through the window. When he went outside, he found his brother-in-law, Geo. Pyne, stretched on the ground with a bullet hole in his temple. Pyne had recently been released from the penitentiary and had made life miserable for his wife and the neighbors.

Nothing Too Good

WE have had over ten years experience in supplying Toric Lenses to our most particular patrons. This form of lens is increasingly popular in all the large cities of America and especially in the United States, where the manufacturers have large capital and the best facilities for turning out accurate work. We are particular to have only the best, and judging from the increased number which we now supply, we deem our care in this regard is appreciated. There is nothing too good for the eye.

PLAINTIFF GIVEN DAMAGES AGAINST AUTOMOBILE OWNER

Claimed Horse Was Frightened by Negligence of the Owner of Automobile—Case Lasted All Afternoon and Part of Evening—Judgment Given for $60.00 and Costs.

A case following an accident to a driver of a horse and buggy, and which it was claimed, was caused by the negligence of the owner of an automobile, occupied the attention of Judge Huycke and a jury in the Division Court Tuesday afternoon and part of the evening. A verdict was returned by the jury in favor of the plaintiff for the full amount sued for. The judge then gave judgment against the defendant for $60 and costs, this being the highest amount which can be claimed in this court in a case of this kind.

Mr. F. D. Kerr acted for the plaintiff and S. T. Medd for the defendant.

The particulars of the case are as follows:—

On June 19th Henry Moore, of Dummer, ex-reeve and ex-councillor, was driving from Peterborough to Warsaw on the Lakefield road when he met with an accident. His horse became frightened and the buggy was overturned into the ditch and the occupant received injuries which included a broken finger on the left hand. Mr. Moore began an action, claiming that an automobile belonging to Mr. A. H. Stratton which was conveying a party of ladies from Lakefield to Peterborough was the cause of the accident. The complainant alleged that the automobile was running at an excessive rate of speed and crowded him into the ditch.

The evidence of each side was absolutely contradictory to the other, but it was pointed out by plaintiff's counsel that the law respecting accidents caused by automobiles compelled the owner of the machine to explain and satisfy the court that the injury was not caused by the negligence of the owner, and where there was an accident caused on the highway by an automobile it was for the defendant to explain and justify the accident. This view of the law was upheld by the judge.

The law requires that the owner of an automobile must use every reasonable precaution to prevent accidents and further requires that no automobile shall pass a horse on the highway at a higher rate of speed than seven miles an hour, and in the event of the horse being frightened, to bring the machine to a stop one hundred yards away, and also to stop the engine or motor.

PRESBYTERIAL CAMPAIGN FOR PETERBORO' PRESBYTERY

Toronto, Sept. 10.—Rev. F. A. Robinson, of Stirling, Ont., has accepted the engagement to assist in the work of evangelism for a year as assistant secretary of that department under the Presbyterian General Assembly's Committee, and Kingston Presbytery has released him so that he will begin his duties on November 1. Mr. Robinson was introduced to the committee at its annual meeting yesterday, and was cordially welcomed. The meeting was presided over by Rev. Charles W. Gordon, of Winnipeg (Ralph Connor) and members were present from all parts of the Dominion.

The committee decided to publish an evangelistic hymn book of its own, and if possible to have a preliminary issue ready for the work of this year. They also have in view the publication of a text book on evangelism, with the assistance of some college professor, for use among the congregations.

The various theological colleges will be approached with the suggestion that training be given students in evangelism, Knox College, Toronto, and Westminster Hall, Vancouver, having already arranged for this. In this connection an address from Principal Gandier on "Evangelism in the Colleges" was much enjoyed.

It was decided to secure the services of a limited number of evangelistic singers, and to invite ministers and others who have musical gifts to assist the committee in the conduct of evangelistic campaigns.

The request from the Kootenay Presbytery to visit them with a second campaign in the autumn of 1910 was agreed to.

Arrangements are well under way for simultaneous Presbyterial campaigns in the Presbyteries of Orangeville, Peterborough and Owen Sound in October and November of this year.

ORDAINED TO PRIESTHOOD AT ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL

Young Student, Who Recently Arrived in City From Ireland, Will be Connected With the Staff at St. Peter's Cathedral—Will Sing High Mass on Sunday Morning.

An interesting and impressive ceremony was performed at St. Peter's cathedral this morning at eight o'clock when William Meagher, a young student, who has recently arrived from Ireland, was ordained to the priesthood. His Lordship R. A. O'Connor, Bishop of Peterborough, officiated, Father McColl, of this city, and Father Phelan, of Lakefield, assisted as deacons of honor, and Rev. M. J. O'Brien, D.D., acted as master of ceremonies, assisted by Father P. J. Kelly. The following clergy were in the sanctuary:—Rev. W. J. McColl, rector of St. Peter's Cathedral; Rev. M. J. O'Brien, D.D., St. Peter's Cathedral; Rev. P. J. Kelly, St. Peter's Cathedral; Rev. Joseph Phelan, P.P., Lakefield; Rev. J. O'Sullivan, P.P., Kirkfield; Rev. P. J. Galvin, P.P., Kinmount; Rev. C. S. Bretherton, P.P., Hastings; Rev. Thos. Crowley, P.P., Warren, and Rev. Thos. Trainer, P.P., Coche Bay.

At the conclusion of the ceremony his Lordship Bishop O'Connor, addressed the congregation and in a few well chosen words emphasized the importance of the ceremony, and the great opportunities for good before a young man ordained to the priesthood. The congregation then received the blessing of the young priest.

Father Meagher is a pleasant person to meet and is sure to be popular with the community at large. He possesses the necessary characteristics to achieve success and his work at St. Peter's Cathedral will no doubt have good results.

Father Meagher was born in Emly, in the County of Tiperary, Ireland, and studied the classics in his native town at the famous St. Ailbe's Seminary. Later he studied philosophy at Mount Melleray Seminary, and then went to Dublin, where he studied theology at All Hallow's College for four years. He arrived in the city three weeks ago. At the celebration of the Feast of the Nativity of the Blessed Virgin, at the convent at Mount St. Joseph on Wednesday, he received the office of deaconship. Father Meagher will act as curate at St. Peter's Cathedral and will say his first mass in the convent of Mount St. Joseph to-morrow morning at 7.30 o'clock. On Sunday he will sing High Mass at St. Peter's Cathedral at 10.30 a.m.

PERTH COURIER'S COMMENT ON VISIT OF THE RANGERS

Speaking of the visit of the 57th regiment to Perth, the "Courier" has the following paragraphs in its interesting "write-up";—

"The occasion of the visit of the Peterborough Rangers to Perth on Labor Day is one that will always recall many pleasant recollections of a jolly outing. The Rangers of the 57th, as they are known numerically, take [illegible] trip away from home, and at the eleventh hour asked to come here. They were assured that the town would treat them right, and all conditions being satisfactory, the arrangements were completed for their arrival here on Sunday morning. The special train left Peterborough about midnight Saturday and pulled into the Perth depot between three and four Sunday morning. The regiment then paraded to the Agricultural grounds, where the advance guard had erected all the tents the day before."

MONDAY A BIG DAY.

Monday was the big day with the regiment and the town. A parade through the town was held in the morning, headed by the brass and bugle bands, and while this was the only order of the day, there was something doing all the time. Both parades were led by Cols. Stevenson and Balderson.

The rank and file held a cooks' parade in the afternoon with the bugle band making a continuous noise. The Cooks' parade was new to most of Perth's people and was a novel sight. There were all sorts and conditions; the famous Coxey army was beaten to frazzle, and it was conceded by all that the 'giraffe' 'rubbered' a good deal, and the raccoon thoroughly enjoyed itself.

The steamers St. Louis and Arrah Wanna took the boys down the river and out on the lake for a few hours' delightful sail, and the officers were entertained by Captain and Mrs. F. W. Hall at "The Grange."

SOJERS HAVE GOOD TIME.

The regiment were out for a good time, they had the freedom of the town and certainly made use of it. They were [illegible] all kinds of good-natured amusement, and again some of their pranks ran pretty close to the danger line. But that was only here and there and was outweighed by the laughable things they did. One good joke was played on Chief White. While he was looking up a drunk, two soldiers slipped in after him, and turned the key on him and kept him there for a time. The chief took it all in good part.

NOTES OF THE VISIT.

Chief White will not forget them.

A push cart was thrown into the little river.

The Rangers certainly enjoyed themselves.

Several companies dined at the different hotels.

The regiment entrained for home about eleven.

Two big bon-fires gave a camp-like effect to the visit.

Our bachelors came in for a considerable lot of criticism.

The Perth girls were not long in learning the city goose step.

The soldiers could not have been given much more freedom.

Canon Davidson preached in St James' church Sunday evening.

Both Peterborough papers were represented here for the occasion.

Several funny incidents happened, which would make good reading.

The accident to Mr. G. T. Kerr put a damper on the fun of many of the "sojer" boys.

Everybody in town should know how to spell Peterborough now—get the ugh to it, please.

W. T. Dockrill, travelling passenger agent of the C.P.R., accompanied the regiment to Perth.

It was "home, sweet home" for Mat Drysdale. All his old girl friends still unmarried knew him.

The subject of Canon Muckleston's sermon to the regiment Sunday morning was "A soldier of Jesus Christ."

Mat Drysdale, (an old Perth boy, belonged to the band. His old friends were all glad to see him once more.

An officer remained over to settle for all damages—very decent, eh. The damages were light—two broken windows.

Major Bennett could hardly tear himself away from the garden party, but he says "Boys, might as well break away first as last."

One group hitched up the Hicks House bus and rode a bunch of their comrades around town, looking for the Rideau Ferry Junction.

The visiting officers voted our ladies the most gallant they had met in ages. We believe one or two will be back to renew acquaintances.

The signal corps, stretcher bearers, ambulance corps, bugle band, brass band and advance guard of the 57th regiment of Peterborough were guests at the Revere House during their recent visit.

A couple of privates went up to three ladies and addressing them asked permission "for the pleasure of their company." Two of those ladies happened to be from Peterborough and knew the parties, and calling one of them by name, said, Sergt.——"I am going to tell your wife."

An officer had the laugh on a couple of privates. Passing a place of business Monday night the two aforesaid privates entered with the intention of "doings things," and about half way into the place came face to face with an officer.—"Up go their dukes," and a little apology.

NOTES OF THE DAY

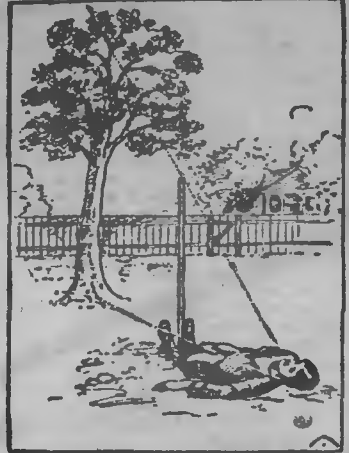
MEASURING A TREE.

How Height May Be Ascertained by the Triangle Method.

A clever boy who wanted to know the approximate height of a tree solved the problem in this manner:

He got a stick and planted it in the ground and then cut it off just at the level of his eyes. Then he went out and took a look at the tree and made a rough estimate of the tree's height in his mind, and, judging the same distance along the ground from the tree trunk, he planted his stick in the ground. Then he lay down on his back with his feet against the standing stick and looked at the top of the tree over the stick.

If he found the top of stick and tree did not agree he tried a new position and kept at it until he could just see the treetop over the end of the upright stick. Then all he had to do was to measure along the ground to where his eye had been when lying down, and that gave him the height of the tree.



APPLYING THE TRIANGLE MEASURE.

The point about this method is that the boy and stick made a right angled triangle with boy for base, stick for perpendicular, both of the same length, and the "line of sight" the hypotenuse or long line of the triangle. When he got into the position which enabled him to just see the treetop over the top of the stick he again had a right angled triangle with the tree as perpendicular, his eye's distance away from the trunk, the base, and the line of sight the hypotenuse. He could measure the base line along the ground and knew it must equal the vertical height, and he could do this without reference to the sun. It was an ingenious application of the well known properties of a right angled triangle.—Railway and Locomotive Engineering.

AN INTELLIGENT DOG.

What a Clever Collie Did With His Master's Plaid.

The shepherds who live among the hills and on the plains of Scotland have to travel many miles a day while looking after their flocks of sheep, but they would have to travel a great deal more if they had not with them some very clever collie dogs.

These little four footed friends are so wise and clever that their masters could not do without them. To show you how clever these doggies are the following story is told of one of them:

One day a Scotch shepherd was caught in a rain shower, and when he arrived home his plaid, which he wore over his back in place of an overcoat, was quite wet through.

But he just took it off and gave it to his collie dog, and doggie at once went into another room, carrying the plaid in his mouth.

And what do you think he did with it there? Why, to the astonishment of an English gentleman who had followed to watch, doggie went and sat on the hearth in front of a big fire, and there he held out the plaid over his paws.

And he turned it about and about in front of the fire until both sides of the plaid were quite dry. Then he took it back to his master.

May Be Read Both Ways.

Palindromes are words or sentences which read the same way, whether they are spelled backward or forward. Here are a number of good examples of this curious orthographical phenomenon:

Madam, I'm Adam (Adam introduces himself to Eve).

Able was I ere I saw Elba (Napoleon reflecting on his exile).

Name no one man.

Red root put up to order. (Sign for a drug store window. Reads the same from the inside as from the outside.)

Draw pupil's lip upward. (Direction to visiting school nurses.)

No, it is opposition.

No, it is opposed; art sees trade's opposition. (Sentence from a debate.)

Yreka bakery. (Sign over a baker's shop in Yreka, Cal.)

The Flying Hours.

Twelve little birds fly by in a row—
Bright little birds are they,
Shining and free and as blue as can be—
And these are the hours of the day.
The sun shines warmly across their wings
As they flutter their way along,
And now and again in their joy of things
They carol a daytime song.

Twelve little owls fly by in a row—
Silent and dark their flight—
Gray little things with shadowy wings,
And these are the hours of the night.
But the last of them all as he hovers low
Is flushed with a radiant pink.
This is the good little sunrise owl.
I like him the best, I think.

"Short Change" Swindlers.

Chatham, Sept. 10.—Farmers galore were short-changed at the Norris and Rowe circus here on Wednesday. Sorry countrymen of Tupperville and Ekendell of Thorncliffe were each mourning departed cash that evening. The stranger had touched each of them for $13. Four or five other cases were reported where farmers were done out of from $10 to $20.

There appears to be a band of short-change artists following in the wake of the circus.

Believes in Armed Peace.

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 10.—In an address on the British navy in the City Hall, Sir William White, former chief of naval construction of the Admiralty, said he had visited Esquimalt and regretted to see the guns at the foot of the hill on top of which they were formerly mounted. He had never agreed with the British policy in abandoning this and other naval bases.

NEW UNIFORMS TO BE MADE FOR THE FIREMEN

Fire, Water and Light Committee Held Busy Meeting Last Night—Stands Will be Secured to Allow Fire Engine to be Placed Close to the Water—Other Business.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee met last night with Chairman Ald. Buler in the chair. Considerable business was transacted and was as follows:

A communication was received from the Durham Rubber Co., Toronto, re fire hose.—Received.

The matter in regard to a load of straw which was left at the fire station, and which proved to be not worth the price asked for, was left in the hands of the chairman to settle.

Mr. Saxby, who resides at the corner of Smith and Downie streets addressed the committee in regard to the request that fire protection be given to the property owners at this locality. The nearest hydrant was at the corner of Bethune and Smith streets and on one occasion when he had been burned out, 1,800 feet of hose was used. He said he intended to build several more houses, but wanted fire protection before so doing.

A resolution was passed to the effect that the Water Commissioners be asked to place a hydrant on Smith street, near the corner of Downie, the exact location to be determined later.

The question of uniforms for the firemen was next discussed, and Ald. Hicks moved that tenders be advertised for in the daily press; the work to be done according to the specifications prepared by Chief Howard. The articles must be made in the city by union firm and also tailor made. The motion was seconded by Ald. Turner and carried.

Joseph Denno, a fireman, will be given an additional $50 per year for his services as lineman. This employee, besides performing his regular duties, has made himself a valuable man to have around the fire hall on account of his ability as lineman, and a motion to give him the extra amount dating from the 1st of September last, was made and seconded.

On motion the chairman read Chief Howard's report as a result of his attending the Fire Chief's convention at Grand Rapids recently.

Ald. Turner wanted to know if any benefit had been derived from the visit. The matter of sending a delegate would likely be a yearly occurrence, and it was a question as to whether the people's money was being wisely spent in this regard.

The chairman answered that he thought the city, through the delegates received the full value of the money in pointers. He gave an explanation of one case which had come to his attention. During the visit of the Orillia firemen in August an alarm was sent in from Box 21, but the register at the fire hall showed 31 and the firemen went to the wrong place. The cause of this was explained to him and is reported in another item of business. It meant considerable to the city if the fire apparatus was not working right and during his visit at the convention he made it his business to look into the matter and see if the report as given from the local fire station was correct or not. From the information he received, he found out that the trouble could be and was caused as stated in the first case.

Chief Howard's report on the matter was then read, and it was to the effect that on the day mentioned, one of the firemen was showing a visitor how the alarm was received and it was at the same moment that the alarm from box 21 was rung in. This was how the register had given the number as 31. He had given orders that in the future the register should not be touched on any account.

Ald. Turner asked what arrangement had been made with the Brinton Carpet Works in regard to the company paying for fire protection. A box was placed between Lansdowne avenue and the river.

The secretary explained that when the company came here an agreement was made with the city that they should receive fire protection.

The light at the corner of Water and Murray streets will be placed out on an arm as a result of a motion moved and seconded by Ald. Turner and Hicks respectively.

The account of Chief Howard re his trip to Toronto to interview the fire underwriters was ordered to be paid, as was also the account of the Kingan Hardware Co., when certified to by the secretary.

The account of last year of F. L. Robinson for liveries hired by the Fire Chief in transacting business of the city was ordered to be paid on motion of Ald. Turner, seconded by Ald. Hicks.

The matter of the reduction in the fire rate of the city was taken up by Ald. Turner, who asked what the Underwriters has done in the matter. A motion was made to the effect that the secretary write to the secretary of the Underwriters Association reminding him of his promise of a reduction of the insurance key rate and ask that it be given consideration.

A sink is wanted for the battery room of the fire station as is also harness for the fire engine.

It was moved by Ald. Turner that both be procured and Ald. Hicks seconded the motion.

Another important matter was the question of securing stands to enable the engine to be run down close to the water in cases of necessity. Experience has proven in the past that they are badly needed.

It was moved by Ald. Turner, seconded by Ald. Hicks, that this committee ask the Board of Works to get these stands placed as designated by Chief Howard, the same to include Auburn.

The meeting then adjourned.

GRADUATING AS TRAINED NURSES

Two Peterborough Young Ladies Have Completed Courses at Jackson Sanitorium

Several Peterborough people have received invitations from the president and directors of the Jackson Sanitorium, Dannsville, N.Y., to the graduating exercises of the training school for nurses to be held on Wednesday evening, Sept. 29th, at seven o'clock. THE HOOK.

A young man passed a forged check at Lindsay and got away with the game. Someone is always stinging the villagers.

A man is not so likely to hide his light under a bushel as some other things that won't stand the light.

Peary and Cook are both going strong, but the chances are that one of them will develop a sore knee before the race has gone many more laps.

The sporting editor writes from New York that expenses there are on the same plane as the buildings.

An Ohio man has been a subscriber off the Lindsay Post for forty years which goes to show the remarkable vitality of some men.

It is now becoming possible to secure a ripe apple without there being a worm in it.

It is hard to say farewell to the straw hat, especially when one hasn't got the price to buy a new sky-piece.

Guelph hotelmen were fined for refilling bottles. And we have seen men fined for emptying too many of them.

If Peary and Cook are going to meet in the ring, Peterborough should make an attempt to secure the match.

The Port Hope Guide says that Port Hope barbers are clean. We know one of them who is clean——crazy.

STRANGE STORY ABOUT QUEBEC HAVING FLAG OF ITS OWN

French-Canadian Says That Race Suicide Among English-Speaking People is Going to Give the French-Canadians a Predominant Position.

Washington, D.C., Sept. 11.—In an interview in The Herald, Jean Bonier of Quebec, a guest at the New Willard, says:

"French Canada has virtually a new flag, or rather a flag of its own. It has already four or five flags differing from the Canadian flag proper, but none of them quite expressed the real national aims and desires of the French-Canadians. Even the new standard is not assured of universal adoption, though it is being very largely employed by groups of French-Canadians throughout the whole of Canada, and also for church and other decorations in certain French-Canadian centres in the New England States.

"Visitors have always been struck with the number of French tri-colors decorating the streets and public buildings in Montreal, Ottawa, Quebec and other parts of French Canada. The French colors are still occasionally in evidence, but are being rapidly displaced by the new flag.

"Like all Gallic peoples," added M. Bonier, "the French-Canadians attach a great deal of sentimental interest to the symbolism of flags, and there is consequently considerable significance in this change of standards. The French-Canadians attach a great deal more importance to the choice of a flag than is generally supposed by those who are not familiar with all their aspirations. That they dream of becoming an independent nation, which will in time dominate the northern part of Canada, few of them care to deny. They largely base their hopes upon the rapid natural increase of their nationality, and the alleged race suicide which their public men openly charge against the English-speaking citizens of both Canada and the States. And it is precisely because they believe so firmly in their future destiny as an independent nation that they attach so much importance to the choice of an appropriate flag which shall be distinct from any other existing colors and shall proclaim their French and Catholic origin."

FOUND TORONTO FRIENDLY STATEMENT OF LA PRESSE

Montreal, Sept. 11.—Referring to the recent visit of the members of the Montreal Chamber of Commerce to Toronto Exposition, and the cordial manner in which they were received, La Presse says:

"Up to this date, the nasty manifestations of The News, The Telegram and The Mail against the Province of Quebec, had really led us to believe there was a serious incompatibility of character between the English-speaking people in Ontario and the French-Canadians in Quebec. What a pleasure for us to admit our mistake. There can be no doubt that the Ontarian is quite disposed to fraternize with Quebec.

"We are citizens of the same country, we all feel the same need of promoting its development and greatness, and the serious men of Toronto have made it a pleasure to receive serious men from Quebec, without considering their nationality.

"Under the same British flag, with the same allegiance in our hearts, we are all British subjects and compatriots. This view allows us to deeply despise the criminal but fruitless attempts made by some ambitious journals, who would like to provoke fratricidal divisions, to derive party advantages therefrom."

YOUNG FARMER'S HORRIBLE DEATH

Blenheim, Sept. 11.—John Spangle, a young farmer residing on Neil Sinclair's farm, Old street, met death in a horrible manner. He was assisting at the threshing, and was sliding out of the mow to the barn floor. The hands had finished and were cleaning up the barn floor, so some of the forks had been left standing along the mow. Spangle slid down on the butt end of one of them, and though the drop was only a couple of feet, it entered at the rectum and he was impaled by over 15 inches. He died in a few hours.

DOCTOR FRITCH DENIES CHARGE

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 11.—Dr. G. A. Fritch, arrested in connection with the Millman case, made a brief statement yesterday, in which he said:

"I do not know that I ever saw the Millman girl, but I think she was in my office two weeks ago Thursday night in company with another girl. Nothing was said about the nature of her case."

When told that bricks similar to those which the body was weighted had been found in a garage being constructed at Dr. Fritch's home, the doctor said that undoubtedly cement bags might be found there also.

Dr. Fritch was remanded under $10,000 bail.

GAS PLANT EXPLODED

Toronto, Sept. 11.—Richard Luker of Lorne Park was severely burned by the explosion of an acetylene gas plant in the cellar of Alfred Jephcott's summer residence at Lorne Park yesterday.

It was only by his nerve and presence of mind that Luker escaped as well as he did, for when the gas ignited the flames caught his clothing and were burning fiercely when he threw himself on the floor, and by rolling over and over extinguished them.

Both his arms were badly burned and his face was almost cooked by the flames. His eyes are swollen, and at first it was feared that he might lose his sight, but it is now thought that his eyes will be saved.

FOUND DEAD BODY IN RIVER

Holland Landing, Sept. 11.—George Swezie, a well-known farmer, living in this village left the house about 7 o'clock Thursday night without saying where he was going, and failing to return, a search party was organised. Yesterday morning the body was found in the Holland River, where it passes through the farm of John Sheppard.

Deceased was about 75 years of age, and leaves a widow and one daughter, Mrs. Beth Beaton. The supposition is that Mr. Swezie wandered about in the darkness and fell in the river.

THE NEWS AS TOLD IN DESPATCHES

Babe's Body Left In Hotel.

Detroit, Sept. 11.—The dead body of a three weeks' old baby girl was found alone yesterday in a room in the Library Park Hotel. The child was brought to the hotel Thursday afternoon by a well-dressed and attractive-looking woman who registered as Mrs. J. C. Capon of Chicago.

Wanders From Home; May Be Dead.

Winnipeg, Sept. 11.—While laboring under high mental and nervous tension and partly delirious as the result of long illness, Alexander Frank, Austrian consular agent in Winnipeg, wandered from his home about midnight Thursday and was still missing yesterday.

Cut His Throat.

Winnipeg, Sept. 11.—Leaving a note for his wife, Harry Gill, a carpenter, left his home Thursday night with the deliberate intention of ending his life, and yesterday morning he was found with his throat cut in St. James' Park, but still alive. He may recover.

Toronto Engineer Gets Job.

Port Arthur, Sept. 11.—John Galt, hydraulic engineer, Toronto, will advise the city regarding the placing of the in-take pipe connected with the waterworks, which must be moved to allow the construction of the drydock.

Drunkenness Amongst Troops.

Ottawa, Sept. 11.—E. F. Jarvis, acting Deputy Minister of the Militia Department, has issued a statement in which he denies that there has been much drunkenness among troops on strike duty at Glace Bay.

The report of the officer commanding the Maritime Provinces has been received at the Department, and it is to the effect that a statement made in the press despatches is malicious, unjust and largely incorrect.

The report says that only a few cases of drunkenness have occurred among over five hundred men scattered into numerous detachments.

Bank Vault Wrecked.

Lakeville, Conn., Sept. 11.—An attempt was made yesterday morning to rob the vaults of the Robins, Burrell & Co.'s banking establishment. The vault doors were blown open, and the interior of the establishment wrecked.

Loses a Foot.

Woodstock, Sept. 11—John McLean, market gardener, while loading fruit at the Canadian Pacific station last night had one foot taken off and was badly injured around the face.

Passed Forged Checks.

St. Catharines, Sept. 11.—Albert Foster, colored, was sent out of harm's way for 25 months by Magistrate Campbell for passing forged checks for $46.

LORD ROSEBERY'S SIGNIFICANT DECLARATION AT GLASGOW

Said That the Budget Was Revolutionary and Put the Future of Great Britain in the Melting Pot—If Budget Only Alternative for Tariff Reform He Would Give up Free Trade Doctrines.

Glasgow, Sept. 11.—Lord Rosebery finally cut himself adrift from modern radicalism as exemplified by the House of Commons nowadays and in a straight talk yesterday to the business men of the north, vehemently denounced the budget and its authors.

The ex-Premier's speech has been awaited eagerly by those opposed to the budget, as it was expected to give a lead to the House of Lords and furnish a platform for a fight for a general election on which the moderates of all parties would be able to foregather.

Lord Rosebery, characterized the budget as a "revolution which put the future of Great Britain in the melting pot and which in the best interests of the nation should not become law."

He declared that the first result of the budget would be an immediate increase in the ranks of the unemployed through a great depletion of capital.

The arguments advanced for taxing land applied logically to consols and all other forms of realized property.

Scores of millions were lying idle in the banks at the present moment owing to the apprehensions regarding the financial policy of the Government which proposed to treat all landlords as pariahs.

If the Lloyd-George budget was the only alternative to tariff reform, Lord Rosebery declared many would cease to defend the doctrines of free trade. He said the Government was dallying with Socialism, which was the end of all things.

Lord Rosebery's address was discussed keenly in the House of Commons, and the prevailing opinion in the lobbies seemed to be the fate of the finance bill has been sealed thereby and the House of Lords would reject it.

MEXICO VISITED BY BAD FLOOD AND LOSS IS HEAVY

Mexico City, Mex., Sept. 11.—Another terrible flood has visited the Jamiltepec district, in the State of Oaxaca. Sugar plantations and mills have been destroyed, hundreds of heads of cattle have been killed, and scores of farm laborers have lost their lives in the waters.

The destruction wrought by the floods and tornadoes throughout the State of Tamaulipas, has done frightful damage, and may even rival that in Monterey.

The greater part of the state is still cut off telegraphically from the rest of Mexico. Such reports as are coming in tell of whole towns having been swept by the raging waters.

Destitution has spread over great areas. Plantation owners have sent messengers into Victoria telling the authorities of the pitiful condition of the inhabitants.

Several towns report loss of life ranging from a few up to five hundred persons in some instances.

All the irrigation works in and around Matamoras have been ruined, and will involve a loss of millions of dollars.

STRUCK DOWN BY A WAITER

Alfred Bond Unconscious in Hospital at Toronto and in Serious Condition

Toronto, Sept. 11.—Struck down by a blow on the back of the head, Alfred Bond, 63 Pears avenue, is lying unconscious in the General Hospital. His condition is serious. Bond's assailant, whose name is known to the police, is an employe of Bird's restaurant, at the Exhibition grounds, where the assault took place. He disappeared on felling his victim, but it is expected he will soon be arrested.

Bond and a companion entered the restaurant about 8 p.m. Both were apparently intoxicated. After eating and paying for a meal, they seemed disincline to leave, and the proprietor had them ejected, but without any violence, as they offered little resistance. It appears from the statements of spectators to the police that the employe followed them out, and, with no provocation, made a cowardly attack on Bond, striking him on the head with his fist. Bond fell unconscious, and, in this condition was removed to the emergency hospital in the police ambulance. The doctors applied restoratives for an hour without result, and he was then removed in the ambulance to the General Hospital.

Bond is a driver employed by A. R. Stanton, dairyman, of Davenport road, and is about 25 years of age. The young man for whom the police are looking is understood to have his home in Unionville, Missouri. It is charged that on Thursday night he made an unprovoked assault on an elderly man outside the restaurant.

GERMANY'S TARIFF BEING DISCUSSED

Berlin, Sept. 11.—The National Zeitung states that in spite of all machinations by Britain, it appears it will no longer be possible for her to prevent the conclusion of the commercial peace between Germany and Canada. This will be due to the fact that Canada in consequence of the reduced duties on English imports, is one of those countries to which the new maximum tariff of the United States will be applied and the inevitable result would be a tariff war between Canada and the United States, but Canada will endeavor to prevent this development. For this reason it will probably transpire that Canada can do nothing but meet the wishes of the United States and abandon her highly protective policy. That would change the position in regard to Canada's tariff war with Germany, because there would be no reason for Canada to deny to Germany what she concedes to the United States.

Kitchener a Field Marshal.

London, Sept. 11.—Lord Kitchener, who recently succeeded the Duke of Connaught as inspector-general of the Mediterranean forces, has been made a field marshal of the British army.

G.T.R. Want European Traffic.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 11.—The Grand Trunk road is equipping its terminals at Portland, Maine, so as to capture Canadian traffic to Europe.

CROP ESTIMATE FROM OTTAWA

Ottawa, Sept. 11.—A statement of farm crops of Canada at the end of August was issued by the census and and statistics office yesterday. The wheat crop is put down at 168,386,000 bushes, or 21.73 bushels per acre, and barley at 56,975,000 bushels, or 30.55 bushels per acre. The yield of oats is given as 354,919,000 bushels, or 38.15 bushels per acre; rye, 1,708,000 bushels; peas, 8,134,000 bushels; beans, 1,311,000 bushels; buckwheat, 7,794,000 bushels; mixed grains, 19,524,000 bushels; flax, 2,131,000 bushels, and hay, 10,246,000 tons.

The wheat estimate for the three western provinces is 149,285,000 bushels; oats, 187,802,000 bushels and barley, 33,893,000 bushels.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

One of the prize horses at the Toronto Exhibition was stabbed yesterday.

If the typhoid epidemic at Cobalt is not soon checked the town may be quarantined.

A Liverpool despatch reports that the Allan Line steamers will probably be transferred to the Grand Trunk.

The Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph and the Macdonald Institute have each more pupils than they can accommodate.

A part of the Toronto Garrison Common will be leased to the Hydro-Electric Power Commission for a transformer station.

An attempt was made to wreck a C.P.R. passenger train near Maniwaki, Quebec, by placing a rail across the track and covering it with stones and moss.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier returned to Ottawa and a Cabinet meeting was held to discuss business of the session. It is expected that Parliament will meet in November.

Mr. Alex. Frank, Austrian Consular Agent at Winnipeg, has disappeared, after making his will and bidding his family good-bye. It is feared he has committed suicide.

THE CLOSE OF TORONTO FAIR

Toronto Sept. 11.—The Canadian National Exhibition of 1909 which will to-day pass into history has justified expectations that it would easily surpass the records of former years, but unless a miracle occurs, the directors will have to wait until 1910 for the attainment of the coveted 800,000 mark. As nearly as can be gauged at present, the surplus will be about $45,000, an increase of $5,000 over 1908, with a possibility that the civic coffers may be enriched by as much as $50,000.

"Review Day" showed a satisfactory increase in view of the fears entertained in some quarters that the heavy gains earlier in the exhibition might result in a slight falling off later on. Quite a smart patter of rain in the middle of the afternoon was not a helpful influence, and while the grandstand was filled at night, receipts were a trifle under those of last year.

COOK COMING TO AMERICA IS HONORED AT COPENHAGEN

Representatives of Geographical Society and University of Copenhagen Saw Him off—Danish Admiral Assured Cook of His Perfect Confidence in Him.

Copenhagen, Sept. 11.—Dr. Fred. A. Cook left Copenhagen yesterday afternoon on the first stage of his journey homeward, apparently happy and confident and with the cheers of a great crowd ringing in his ears. Formal farewells were exchanged between Dr. Cook and committees of the Geographical Society and the University of Copenhagen. As he departed the explorer stood alone on the high bridge of the yacht Melchior, which is taking him to Christiansand, raising his hat in response to the shouts of the spectators, who line the waterfront. The ships in harbor were dressed with flags.

Admiral De Kichelieu, in a speech, thanked Dr. Cook for returning to the United States under the Danish flag.

"Green-eyed envy and jealousy," he said, "are doing their envenomed work, but we in Denmark believe in you absolutely."

"I want to thank you," said Dr. Cook, in reply, "for the great honor that is mine in going home on a Danish steamer. You have been my friends; you have fought my battles. With a full heart I say farewell to the people of Denmark."

Speaking to the Associated Press, Dr. Cook said: "I am perfectly willing to put my records before the American coast and geodetic survey to be compared with those of Commander Peary, but I do not see why I should ask for such a comparison first."

Asked if he had any message for the public, Dr. Cook replied: "Don't you think that would be rather presumptuous? All I want is to get home to my family and children and to finish my work."

Peary's View of Cook.

New York, Sept. 11.—The Herald yesterday morning, publishes conspicuously the following communication from Mr. Peary:

"Battle Harbor, via Cape Ray, Nfld., Sept. 10:

"Editor Herald, New York.

"I do not imagine The Herald likely to be imposed upon by the Cook story, but for your information, Cook has simply handed the public a gold brick. He has not been at the pole on April 21, 1908, or any other time. The above statement is made advisedly and at the proper time will be back by proof. (Signed) Peary."

BUSINESS SECTION OF ALMONTE GUTTED BY FIRE

Almonte, Sept. 11.—Fire which did damage to the extent of about $75,000 broke out at three o'clock yesterday morning in a frame structure in the rear of a business block on Mill street occupied by James Patterson, druggist; W. Kaufman, hardware; and W. West, general merchant.

Adjoining the building first attacked were several other frame buildings, and these soon fell a prey. It also ran and enveloped the sheds and stables in the rear of the Commercial Hotel, and soon these fine premises and the large three-storey brick hotel were in flames.

All the fine business blocks were totally destroyed, together with their contents. It spread in the rear and a stable owned by J. K. Cole was burned and other frame buildings farther up the street.

An electric light pole fell, striking A. S. Henshaw, manager of the Bank of Montreal, knocking him unconscious and breaking his collar bone. At ten he was reported conscious and and no really serious results are anticipated.

The following are losers: Thoburn, owner of the premises occupied by Mr. West; W. West, general merchant; Kaufman, hardware; T. R. White, owner of buildings occupied by Mr. Kaufman; James Patterson, druggist; Dr. T. P. Patterson, dentist; Masonic Lodge, contents on top floor of White's building; J. K. Cole, owner of Commercial Hotel; D. J. McDonald, tenant of hotel; George Young, boots and shoes; J. K. Cole, damage to residence; H. H. Cole, damage to stock. Total insurance is about $40,000.

LITTLE GIRL WAS DROWNED

St. Catharines, Sept. 11.—The four-year-old daughter of William Brinson, an employe of the Welland Vale Manufacturing Co., was drowned in the waste wier in rear of the work last night. The girl, with her three-year-old brother, was playing on the banks, waiting for their father to leave the factory. The girl lost her footing at the top of the steep bank and rolled into the water. Workmen had seen the children on the bank and had warned them away. Soon after the boy was seen crying and told of the accident.

EMBALMERS GET DIPLOMAS

Toronto, Sept. 11.—The names of the successful candidates in the recent examination held by the Canadian Embalmers' Association were given out by Secretary J. C. Van Camp last night. Those who will receive diplomas as embalmers are: Jos. Hillier, Burk's Falls; Charles F. Barr, Drumbo; J. W. Law, Beeton; Geo. S. Wilson, Norwich; Robert W. Lockhart, Cochrane; Russel C. Wood, Cornwall; M. P. Brown, Brantford; J. Herbert Boutelle, Danville, P.Q.; Geo. C. Wilcox, Waterford; W. H. Theaker, Mount Albert; H. Strafler, Aurora; W. V. Corbin, Hepworth; S. C. Richardson, Toronto; S. W. Wolsford, Cargill; Charles R. Cole, Belleville.

LAY DOWN ON TRACK TO SLEEP

St. Catharines, Sept. 11.—A strange fatality happened on the local line of the N. S. & T. Electric Railway between here and Merritton Thursday night. Robert Cooper, a Merritton man with his wife and family of 12 children, had evidently laid himself down on the railway tracks to sleep. In the shadow the motorman did not see the man, and the car ran right over him, killing him.

Boy Held for Assault.

Kingston, Sept. 11.—James McManus, a 17-year-old employe of the Locomotive Works, is held by the police, accused of striking George Snowden, another employe, on the head with an iron bar. Snowden is in the General Hospital, and not expected to live. McManus was remanded for a week.

A Sudden Death.

London, Ont., Sept. 11.—John Wrigley, aged 70, for many years engineer on the Grand Trunk, died suddenly. He had been working in the garden shortly before he expired.

Legacy to Winnipeg College.

London, Sept. 11.—Rev. C. A. Jones, Debham, Essex, left $9,000 to St. John's College, Winnipeg.

MUCH LOOTING AT A TORONTO FIRE

Toronto, Sept. 11.—Two teamsters were arrested yesterday and lodged in the Agnes street police station, charged with stealing a quantity of scrap copper from the ruins of the west wing of the Parliament buildings.

Inspector Duncan yesterday received a letter telling him that the copper, being eaves and other piping about the building, was being sacked and stored in a cement house on the grounds. From this, it was being removed between noon and one o'clock and between five and six in the evening.

Detectives Montgomery and Ferguson secured Charles Yoman, 32 years, 387 Sackville street, at noon. He had two sacks in his wagon and said he had been told to sell them and buy beer. He offered to give back the copper, but was locked up.

At 6 o'clock Detectives Montgomery and Miller got Gladstone Paris, 25 years, 52 First avenue, on a similar charge.

WAS KILLED ON RAILWAY TRACK

Toronto, Sept. 11.—While on his way home from the Moffatt Stove Foundry at Weston yesterday afternoon William Mathers was struck by a train at the crossing and instantly killed.

Mathers was on his way to dinner when the accident happened, and it is thought he miscalculated the distance the train was from the crossing and tried to get over it first. He was hurled some distance, and when picked up was dead.

Mathers, who is a widower, was 59 years old, and known in Toronto. He has a son, besides two sisters and a brother, living here. At one time he drove a wagon for O'Keefe's brewery.

Mauretania's New Record.

New York, Sept. 11.—The Cunard Mauretania broke all trans-Atlantic records by making the crossing between Queenstown and this port in four days, eleven hours and thirty-five minutes. This performance betters that of the Lusitania by seven minutes.

Fell to His Death.

Smith's Falls, Ont., Sept. 11.—Robt. Swindlehurst, a moulder, fell downstairs at his home and died a few hours later from concussion of the brain. He was 46 years old, and leaves a wife and five children, two daughters in Toronto.

Pennsylvania Drought Broken.

Philadelphia, Sept. 11.—Rain began falling throughout Pennsylvania late Thursday night after one of the longest dry spells in years. The grounds in many sections was dry to a depth of four feet or more, and leaves of trees were drying.

PROBABILITIES.

Sunday fresh winds fair and warm showers in some localities.

RACE—GAMBLING

Canada's race-gambling is largely a form of swindling. To charter companies for the purpose of carrying it on is simply chartering companies to keep gambling-hells. That the Dominion Government should do this is unaccountable. That Hon. Chas. Murphy should defend it is monstrous. But when he undertakes to call down and to call down hard, the Globe and the Liberal press generally for refusing to endorse the Government's action, he is going altogether too far. He is flying fair in the face of public opinion and public morals.

As a concession to the under-world it is a success, but as an aid to legitimate and wholesome advancement of the people it is worse than a failure. If we are to judge the government by its fruits, it must be admitted that they give a very bitter taste in the mouth. No doubt many Conservatives approve of Murphy's words but the party generally will join with all well-thinking people in defending the decency and honour of their country.

THAT NAVY

It is becoming plainer and more plain from day to day that the Laurier Government plan of having an independent Canadian navy will have to be given up. The idea of having a navy all our own and under no obligation to join with the other Colonial and British fleets in defence of the Empire is a wrong idea. It may satisfy a portion of the people of Canada, but it does not satisfy those who wish to belong to a British Empire one and indivisible when danger threatens. To say, "If we approve the war we may join in and help in defence of the empire, but it must be understood our navy is largely for our own defence", is an insult, not a loyal sentiment. It will have to be revised, and already the words of Sir Joseph Ward, premier of New Zealand, and of Lord Charles Beresford are having their effect upon the Laurier Cabinet, who will now proceed to contrive some other way of thwarting the imperial aspirations of the Canadian people while pandering to the unreasonable and selfish prejudices of that part which presumes to rule the rest. This country is British. We govern ourselves in civil matters. To seek to make us virtually independent is a triumph for the mal-contents and cannot be submitted to.

BEATEN AND BITTER

The Globe has been fairly driven from the field in its late revival of the Free Trade vs. Protection argument, yet it still continues to snipe at the enemy. When it calls Lord Charles "a mere admiral," because he says British workmen require protection it is sniping. The following clipping taken from "Industrial Canada" may help it to see better:—

The London Times contained among others the following expressions of Canadian opinion on the new United States tariff:—

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway.—"With a population of approximately eighty millions, with enormous wealth created by the development of their natural resources, and with the knowledge that these conditions are largely the result of the trade policy of the country during the past half century, the United States, if the action of the Senate may be taken as an expression of the public sentiment, have decided upon a continuance of a strong protective tariff, although many manufacturers pressed for a reduction. What an object lesson, based upon experience and most conclusive results, this is to Canada whose situation and conditions are identical with those which prevailed in the United States, and what safer or more logical course can Parliament pursue than to adopt practically the same lines in Canadian tariff legislation?"

EDITORIAL NOTES

It is to be hoped that the Ontario Government will, before long, issue a report on the late fire. The people are not pleased with the way things went on that occasion.

The glare of fashion and society dazzles the human moths who rush to it. Some people in their heart worship a king more than the King of Kings. Such is the contrariety and weakness of human nature.

Some people imagine that to be at the Pole is like standing on a hill. It is not, however, a bit different from being in the Cavan swamp in wintertime listening to the traffic rushing by to Lindsay, that would come here—if we subsidized the roadway.

If Bernier comes home from the Pole and says that he heard nothing of Cook or Peary, what must we think of the latter? It will go hard with them. As the Montreal Star suggests the only way out is to keep a polar hotel register on the spot.

The report that the Government intends taking the opportunity of making some changes in the roof of the Toronto Parliament Buildings, now that they have the western wing to rebuild, is welcome. The inside of the building is good, but the outside cross between a Moorish kiosk and a child's tin bank, is awful. Those roofs are a fright.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

It has turned out, under the searching experimentation of recent years, that much that we have supposed to be instinct in animals is not instinct at all. For example, the young duck proves to have no instinctive impulse to enter the water; does not recognize the element by sight; is, in short, in precisely the same situation as a chick—until by happy chance, it gets its legs wet. Wet legs, however, and the lift of the water on the body at once start up the swimming reaction, and away sails the duckling, as chicks and children do not.

The chick, on its part, has a definite instinct to peck at any small object that catches its eye. That takes care of its feeding. But the chick has no corresponding instinct to drink, and would die of thirst before it would recognize water by sight alone. Drinking it has to learn for itself, by pecking at dew drops or spots of light on the surface of the water or particles at the bottom of its cup.

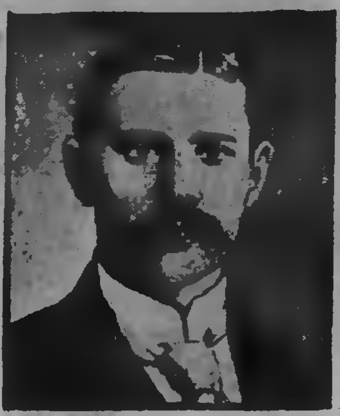
Even the hen, contrary to general belief, proves to have no instinctive fear of the water for her offspring. A hen that has raised a few broods of ducks and seen them take to the water becomes highly distressed when a subsequent batch of chickens do not swim. In fact, hens have been reported, under these circumstances, to lead their chicks to the waterside and push them in.—McClure's for August.

In his latest letter from Berlin, Mr. Samuel Gompers, the American Labor leader, presents British tariff reformers with a series of effective arguments against free trade. In the past few years German workingmen's wages have materially advanced and at the same time their hours of labor have been considerably shortened. The union leaders have told Mr. Gompers that while the prices of some food staples have risen this has not been the case in general. The advances in prices, where such have occurred, have not overtaken the increase in wages. Rye bread is nearly as cheap to-day as at any time in thirty years. Potatoes are cheap, hog products are comparatively so, and beef is 10 per cent. higher than twenty-five years ago.

Fruit is cheaper than in Great Britain. The same rent that was paid a few years ago for a poor habitation now suffices to secure a good one. So prosperous are German workingmen that on festive occasions they appear in frock coats, while their wives and daughters also dress well. They take their daily papers and freely patronize places of amusement. They are fast becoming amongst the best looking of the German people.

These enviable conditions of the working classes occur in high tariff Germany. What a contrast the picture presents to that of free trade England and Scotland recently drawn by the editor of the Globe! Wages have advanced and food is not held at prohibitive prices in protectionist Germany. Surely Mr. Gompers' letter effectively answers the small-loaf cry of the Manchester economists. British workingmen do not wear frock coats and grow sleeker looking under the present fiscal policy. How would it do to see how a tariff would affect their situation? The fact that Germany has profited greatly from technical training is not overlooked. But protection has also done much for the nation.—The News.

Recommended As An Ideal Remedy



W. S. BOND, Esq.

Lloydtown, Ont., March 19th, 1909.

"For some years I have been greatly troubled with headaches and indigestion, brought on by stomach disorders, constipation and biliousness. I had tried many remedies with only indifferent success, until "Fruit-a-tives" came to my notice. Being a general storekeeper, I was selling a good many "Fruit-a-tives" to my customers and, remarking how pleased they were with the results obtained from using "Fruit-a-tives," I decided to try them and, I might say, the effects were almost magical. Headaches and biliousness disappeared and to-day I recommend "Fruit-a-tives" to my customers as 'An ideal remedy.'

"I might also add that about three years ago I was laid up with LUMBAGO AND SCIATICA—couldn't get out of bed or lift one foot over the other. A good treatment of "Fruit-a-tives" cured me of these pains and banished the Sciatica and Lumbago so that to-day I am as well as ever and can lift anything necessary."

HUNTERS

Something About Moose and Deer

It is now pretty well known among hunters that the best deer hunting country in Ontario is on the line of the Canadian Northern Ontario and that hunters receive special attention. Mr. C. Price Green, Passenger Agent of the line is a hunter himself who goes right with the parties and looks after them, in fact he located most of them. This year the line will be opened north of Sellwood into the midst of the Moose Country, they are reported very thick, the Engineers say that they have never seen anything like it, the Moose season up there opens October 15th, fifteen days before the Deer. We have something special on a new place that will take three parties of deer hunters.

MADOC WILL VOTE ON POWER BY-LAW IN NEAR FUTURE

The Campbellford Herald, in this week's issue, has the following interesting power information:

The Seymour Power & Electric Company are getting sale for their power. A power by-law will be voted on in Madoc village in a few weeks, and doubtless the people will ratify the agreement made with the council. Stirling has already signified its intention to have power for lighting purposes, and Marmora and Delora will require over 800 horse power.

In all these agreements it may be noticed that the company is getting a price for power commensurate with the cost of development. They are not and cannot afford to sell power at a rate such as was talked of in town a year ago, when the Steel Company agreement was proposed. The price proposed to Madoc for a 24-hour service for industrial purposes is $32.50 per h.p., that for electric lighting service is $25.00 per h.p., continuous for 24 hours, while power required for daylight hours alone will be given at $12.50 per h.p. These figures seem indeed reasonable when we consider the enormous expense of development and transmission, and we have no doubt the village of Madoc will endorse that agreement.

The figures quoted will be a guide for the sale of power by our municipality. The plant should be run for the benefit of the town and not simply with a view of getting industries, no matter whether profits accrue or not. We should, however, in view of the cheap cost of production, be in a position to compete favorably with any company that may have power for sale.

LADY WAS KNOCKED OFF THE SIDEWALK BY CART

An elderly lady while returning home from attending market this morning was knocked down on Aylmer st. by a small waggon, which was being pushed along the sidewalk at a rapid rate of speed by two young boys. The lady carried a basket in each hand, and as the waggon approached her a sudden jerk of the handle resulted in a collision and she fell off the sidewalk on to the hard road, but fortunately did not receive any severe injuries.

This practice of young boys, who are a source of danger to citizens, on account of the rapidity with which they ride around the sidewalks should be stopped or at least the offenders should be given a lesson, which would have an effect of making them more careful in the future. Why should they not be compelled to take the road like the bicycle.

BARN IN EMILY TOWNSHIP WAS DESTROYED

At ten o'clock Thursday night a disastrous fire took place in Emily township about two and a half miles from Downeyville, when the barns on a farm leased by Mr. Patrick Meehan, of lot 7, concession 11, was destroyed by fire together with the contents. The cause of the fire is a mystery.

About two years ago the house on the farm was destroyed by fire. This is the second barn Mr. Meehan has lost by fire, the first one being destroyed on the farm on which he resides.

Mr. Meehan had leased the farm on which the fire took place from Mrs. Michael Casey of Emily. It is understood that the building was insured.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

Orange Brotherhood

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—At the funeral of the late Wm. Cook, Douro street, yesterday, it seemed strange that the Orange society, of which the deceased was a member, was not represented in a good substantial manner. I have been at several funerals in different towns and cities, also in the country, both near and in the far north, conducted by the several fraternal societies. I have been at Masonic funerals, and the ceremony was very impressive. The different Forester societies have their beautiful service, and in one case I know of where the lodge of over two hundred walked in procession, and showed every respect to a Canadian Forester brother at his wife's funeral.

In talking to one well posted in the way the St. Peter's T.A.S. and the C.M.B.A. societies conduct funerals, it was explained that they had a service of their own, also the K. of C. of the same religious faith.

The Sunday schools have always, in my opinion, showed due respect to a companion in forming a procession and assisted in the singing of favorite hymns of the departed at the service.

The Loyal True Blue Association, I was told by a member I recognized, have a beautiful funeral service, and also the 'Prentice Boys I have personally seen at such a gathering of the latter. In Little Lake cemetery I noticed several monuments erected by the Canadian Order of Woodmen, or Woodmen of the World. I might be more safe in saying, and they not only visit and care for the sick, but bury the corpse and erect a monument to their brothers.

The Sons of England, the Sons of Scotland, and the different trades and labor unions have their funeral rites administered to the departed. The Loyal Orange Association, it seems, should look into this, and even if all cannot turn out to honor the departed, it should be arranged with the Grand Lodge to allow the brethren to walk and have some appropriate music by a band by those that have time.

The Twelfth of July is celebrated by millions, but a brother of the same cause has only only one brother to wear the color in his honor and memory. There might have been another half dozen men with a small streak of Orange blood in their veins, bu where were their colors as they term it?

I have heard several say they are not ashamed of their colors, but where were he members without their colors yesterday? Where was that noisy band of July? Orangemen, if there is any funeral service in connection with you Society; it remains for you to form a large gathering and have the services of an Orange Society for a member, since fifty years ago he joined you. Nassau, get that band together, and, boys, fall in line; send word ahead to the several lodges in the city and go down to the Little Lake cemetery, and do your duty, and fulfil the last wishes of your Bro. Cook.

Yours, &c.,

THE ONLY WAY TO GOOD HEALTH

Is to Keep the Blood Rich, Red and Pure by Using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

The only way for every girl and woman to be well and at her best is to keep her blood rich and red and pure. Impure, weak blood is the cause of the wretched feeling of languor and faintness, pains in the back and sides, headaches and all those other indescribable sufferings which make the lives of so many growing girls and women a daily torture. There is one sure way to be well, and that is through the tonic treatment supplied by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. These Pills actually make the new, rich blood which growing girls and women need to make them well and keep them well. Thousands of mothers and their daughters have found an effectual cure for anaemia, general weakness, indigestion, palpitation, nervous disorders, skin troubles and other ailments in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Mrs. J. C. Moses, Brenton, N.S., says:—"Last spring and summer my daughter's health gave out. She had no energy, was very pale and nervous, and had no appetite. As the usual remedies given in such cases did not help her, we became much alarmed, and on the advice of a neighbor began giving her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. We could soon see an improvement, and as she continued to take the Pills, she gained in weight and vigor; her color returned and her whole system seemed to be built up again. She is now the picture of health and joins in recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

These Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MACHINE FOR PICKING POTATOES

The day has arrived when the progressive farmer no longer regards the harvesting of his potatoes as an arduous task. Until just recently the man with a ten-acre field of potatoes was up against a lengthy proposition when it came time to remove the tubers from their earthy home. Armed with a fork he would sally forth and dissect one hill at a time. It was slow and back-breaking work.

However, the day of the fork is past, and a machine long wished for by farmers has been invented and placed on the market. And what is more to the point, the machines are being made and sold right in Galt by the Canadian Potato Machinery Company, a branch of the big Hammond, Ind., firm.

The company have erected and equipped an up-to-date factory on the Stone Road. Early in the season they planted two large plots of potatoes to be used in testing the Canadian Digger. The first test was held on Saturday afternoon, and, through the kindness of the company a Reporter representative was enabled to witness the machine in operation.

The apparatus is very simple. The machine is not large, being about the same size as a cultivator. At the front is a new plow point. When the machine is in motion this is lowered until it is down far enough to get under the potatoes. It picks up the entire hill, potatoes, earth and stones, if there are any of the latter. The accumulation is then carried back to an elevator, which consists of an endless chain, made of iron bars about two feet long and set a couple of inches apart. The elevator travels twelve feet while the machine travels six. Two agitators, one at either side, give this elevator a sifting motion, which makes out the dirt stones, etc. The potatoes are then carried to a rear elevator, which is also constantly in motion. By this time the tubers are perfectly clean and they are dumped on the ground in a row about twelve inches wide.

Two horses are attached to the machine which passes up and down the furrows without a hitch. The controlling lever is attached near the seat and from there the plow point can be either raised or lowered according to the depth of the potatoes. Two horses operate the machine easily, and from three to five acres a day can be dug. One machine with two horses will keep five or six pickers busy following up. In Ohio with four horses 800 bushels were picked in ten hours.

The present machine, with two horses and a good driver, will keep five pickers busy and each can pick from 100 to 125 bushels in a day. The machine is fitted with a special apparatus for stony ground and the company in constructing it have made fixtures to overcome any difficulties.

The test on Saturday was very successful, and one farmer who was in attendance remarked that he had often imagined such a machine, but had never thought he could actually see one in operation. The potatoes were thrown off the rear elevator free from dirt and without a mark or bruise, all ready in fact to be placed in bags and carted away.—Galt Reporter.

Nothing Too Good

WE have had over ten years experience in supplying Toric Lenses to our most particular patrons. This form of lens is increasingly popular in all the large cities of America and especially in the United States, where the manufacturers have large capital and the best facilities for turning out accurate work. We are particular to have only the best, and judging from the increased number which we now supply, we deem our care in this regard is appreciated. There is nothing too good for the eye.

ASKS TO BE RELIEVED OF CONTRACT

Mr. Geo. A. Begy, of St. Catharines, has asked the city to be relieved of his contract to build the new Smith street bridge. His tender was accepted at the meeting of the Council on Monday night. A meeting of the Council will be held early next week, likely Tuesday, to decide what will be done now.

Mr. Begy waited on the Board of Works last night and asked to be relieved of the contract. Circumstances over which he had no control made it necessary for him to make this request, as it would be impossible for him to go ahead with the work.

..STYLE IN GLASSES..

There is no reason why persons with defective vision need disfigure their faces by wearing glasses of unsightly shape, entirely out of harmony with the contour of their features. There is style in glasses just as there is style in everything else to wear. There is some style or mounting that is "just the thing for your face" if you can only find it, and we are in a position to tell you all about all the different mountings, for we make frequent visits to the leading factories, and keep pace with all the improvements in mountings and lens grinding. We will take pleasure in helping you select a mounting to carry your lenses, that will be becoming, comfortable and secure.

We are showing now one of the Newest ideas in mounts, and we are selling a lot of them. We can adapt these to suit any person. When you have tried all other eyeglass mounts without success, come to us, we will guarantee to fit you to your entire satisfaction.

The uncut lenses we use are from the AMERICAN OPTICAL CO., the largest Optical House in the world. We buy these only in "First" quality, and grind them any shape or size. All work guaranteed.

AYLMER STREET EXTENSION BEFORE BOARD OF WORKS

The extension of Aylmer street was up before the Board of Works last night and some further progress was made in solving the problem that has been before the Council for two or three years.

The extension has been completed as far south as ex-Mayor Best's property and there it stops. The committee and Mr. Best cannot agree on the price that is to be paid for the right of way through the latter's property. The committee offers $500 and Mr. Best wants $800. He bases his claim on the price paid for other property purchased between his land and Lake street. The probability is that is will go to arbitration.

It will be remembered that Mr. Best gave the right of way for George street free along with two or three other parties. He thinks now he should be paid for the Alymer street right of way.

Mr. Best was present at the Board of Works meeting last night, and he submitted a new proposition to the Board. He suggested that he give the city a strip of land 20 feet wide facing the park from George street to Aylmer street for $400. He asks that all houses built on his lots face the park and that a walk be built along the front. This, of course, did not bear on the question of the right of way of Aylmer street, so the committee asked Mr. Best to put his offer in writing and it would be considered in due time.

This closed the deal so far as any bargain was concerned except that Mr. Best told the committee that his offer for $800 was without prejudice in case of any arbitration proceedings.

Mr. Best asked Ald. Phelan what prospects there were of having the extension gravelled this year.

"No money to do it this year," said the chairman.

"DON'T MENTION IT," THEY SAID TO ALDERMAN TURNER

Whisper it softly if you have a proposition to make to the City Council about putting a sidewalk inside the tree line. The aldermen are as touchy on this point as Commander Peary is about Dr. Cook's claim of discovering the North Pole. And no wonder. The question pretty nearly disrupted civic government a short time ago, and the memory of the trouble still lingers lovingly in the minds of the city's rulers.

Ald Turner proposed at last night's meeting of the Board of Works that the standing resolution to build all sidewalks outside the tree line be rescinded.

"For heaven's sake don't mention such a thing," remarked one of the members. "Leave the resolution as it is or we will have no end of trouble."

Ald. Turner tried to press the point but there was nothing doing.

"I was once of the same opinion as Ald. Turner," said Ald. Gillespie, "but I have changed my mind."

After a few expressions from the aldermen on the point raised, it was decided to keep away from the resolution.

HARRY HERMSEN,
in "The Burgomaster," at the Grand Thursday, Sept. 16th. Plan opens box office Tuesday morning, 9 o'clock.

THIS SUBJECT SOUNDED FAMILIAR TO ALDERMEN

The Downie street creek is to the fore again.

Mr. D. W. Dumble addressed the Board of Works on behalf of two property owners. Years ago an ex-alderman in the north end, Mr. Rutherford, had the course of the creek changed. The walk over the creek is now badly decayed and needs repairing. Instead of repairing it, the creek, Mr. Dumble said, should again be changed, and run through Mr. Tamblyn's and Mr. Blodgett's property. Mr. Tamblyn offers to give the right of way in exchange for a little bit of street. Mr. Blodgett will give his consent if the city will dump the excavations from the new water course onto his property, and also to crib the banks of the creek with the old timber taken from the old drain and elsewhere. Tamblyn built a house on his land and part on the street and put a mortgage on it and now he is in a bad position, as he cannot sell his property. There will be no trouble in getting him to carry out his part.

Mr. Blodgett wants the city to do all the crib work and all the work at their own expense.

Ald. Bradburn suggested that the city sell at a low cost part of the gore to Mr. Tamblyn and let the drain stay just where it is.

It was decided that the Board of Works would go up to Tamblyn's and Blodgett's property on Tuesday and decide the matter.

BOARD OF WORKS HAD BUSY TWO HOURS SESSION

The Board of Works held a meeting last night and had a busy two-hour session. Those present were:—Ald. Phelan, chairman; Mayor Rush, and Aldermen Gillespie, Turner, and Bradburn.

ENGINE STANDS.

The application from the Fire, Water and Light Committee for the Board to build the stands for the fire engine was taken up next. The Board considered this once before and turned it down.

Ald. Turner and Ald. Bradburn thought the Board should do it, as they will have to be built. One is wanted at the Quaker Oats Company, one at Auburn, and one at Lake street. If the stands are not built the fire engine is of very little use.

Ald. Bradburn then suggested that the engineer make a report at once, and submit it to the committee of the whole council at its next meeting early next week, the report to include the stand at Auburn and at the Quaker Oats anyway.

C. J. Matthew's application for holidays was left to the chairman of the committee to deal with it. The applicant drives the grey team belonging to the Board of Works. He will likely get his holidays later in the season.

CRESCENT STREET SEWER.

City Engineer Hay presented a report on the proposed Crescent and Romaine street sewer, which will be 1690 feet long. He finds that there are a great many obstacles in the way, and it would not be satisfactory so he recommended that the sewer be deferred for the present, until the Council decided upon the improvement in the whole sewer system.

On motion the committee decided that the building of Crescent street sewer be deferred for the present as a result of the report of the engineer.

It was moved by Aldermen Turner seconded by Ald. Bradburn, that the selection of the inspector for Smith street bridge be left in the hands of the chairman and engineer.

Among the applicants are W. J. Martin, Cecil Arnott and A. H. Webb,

THAT WATCH OF YOURS

Is in many respects similar to a railway engine. Let an engine be run without oil or cleaning and before long it will stop dead. Upon examination it will be found that the friction and wear and tear has ruined the machinery, and it is fit only for the scrap iron heap. Likewise your watch. You put it in your pocket, and while there is a kick in it, you, in your mistaken economy, do not consult the watchmaker, and consequently rob your watch of years of good service and also much of its former accuracy. The time-keeping qualities of a good watch are maintained and often improved by timely and skilful attention. If you have been one of the neglectful ones call around and see us.

THE MAKING OF GERMANY

It is a waste of time to talk or write politics, as generally understood. Unless there is an end to be gained for the advancement of the people, it is better to be silent until such an opportunity occurs. But that opportunity presents itself vividly before the people of Canada to-day. The rich are getting richer, but the mass of the people are falling behind. Gompers's letters from Germany show three things:—

1. That the German workmen, their wives and families, are far in advance in prosperity, technical knowledge and comfort, of the workmen of Great Britain, their wives and families. Compare Canada. We are behind in technical knowledge; the price of living has gone up faster than the rate of wages, and there is no pension-fund or system of national insurance. In fact the function of government in Canada consists in letting contracts and very little else.

2. That the application of a scientific plan of government is as much of an improvement over the present one as the threshing-machine is over the flail.

3. That freedom of trade, where it is freedom for ALL is desirable, but where it is freedom for the moneyed class and serfdom for the unorganized or unprotected masses of the people it means the gradual degradation of them. Protection of the workmen and technical knowledge imparted through government channels have been the making of Germany.

Our Parliaments may well turn their attention more to the very urgent need of the hour. Of this Mr. Gompers's letters will convince everybody, if further convincing really is necessary. At present the capitalist financier is in control both of the people of Canada and their employers. That we should be asked to kneel before the god of money or the ugly little Billikens of mere gamblers' good luck, is to ask us to consent to live like beggars on the bounty of the ignorant rich, and to rejoice in the crumbs that may fall from the rich man's table. It is in such ways as this, also, as Mr. Gompers points out, viz., in the fine spirit of the mass of the people that the Germans so far excel.

Young Man From Kinmount in Police Court—Paid the Usual Drunk Fine

James McIntyre, who probably did not find the conditions favorable in Kinmount, where he lives, as the law will not allow any wet goods being sold, and came to this city yesterday but took a drop too much. He boarded the Belleville train at the Grand Trunk Station, but the conductor put him off. James then entered another coach on the siding and as a result of his manoeuvres broke the glass in a window. The police were made aware of his actions and very soon he was taken to the cooler. This morning Mac was fined $2 for being drunk and a charge laid against him for destroying property. The complainant failed to show up, so the visitor from the dry town was allowed to go on his way rejoicing.

Practice What You Preach

Here is a hard one for the businessman. Fanie Lockhart, now playing the part of Willie in the big comic opera success "The Burgomaster," is a very talented and keen-sighted little lady. During an interview the subject of moral plays, the pulpit and the stage and modern business life was the topic.

Miss Lockhart said it was "better to be open and out what you were than to hide behind charity or religion. I do as near right as I can. I am on the stage because it pays me better than any other profession. I believe any person who conducts themselves properly will succeed and be respected in any sphere of life. Take your kings of finance, look them over carefully. I claim that men have come to realize that in modern industrial conditions the majority of them cannot conduct a paying business and live according to the tenets of the Christian religion.

"But," she continued, "they rebel against the hypocrisy of such a course. Americans may be cynics but they are not hypocrites. The motto of the majority may be 'If religion interferes with your business, then cut out your religion.' But, on the other hand, the instinct of the majority is also to demand of those who profess religion that they practise it.

"It is, for instance, one of our great American jokes—it has already been celebrated in rag-time ballad—that John D. Rockefeller teaches Sunday school. The attitude of the average American towards this fellow-citizen of ours might be translated into these words:

"Conduct your business as you wish, Rockefeller, for after all, we rather admire sharp practice when it makes good. Put your helpless competitors out of the game, drive them to failure, despair and suicide, buy up the Upper House, create a third house; but don't, on top of that, don't, we beg of you, have the face to preach the golden rule. Really, Mr. Rockefeller, when it comes to this Sunday school proposition you're nothing but a joke. Beat it!"

Plan opens Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock.

A Newcomer in the Realm of Exclusive Fabrics

Chamois Sedan Cloth

A Perfect Weave for Women who Love Perfect Dress

You haven't seen the ideal dress fabric until you have gazed upon this exquisite cloth, felt its smooth tissue like weave and become fascinated with its enchanting colorings. Words, poor weak things, portray but slightly its beauty and its worth.

What it is

Chamois Sedan Cloth is made after the same style as fine Chiffon Broadcloth. It has the same even weave, the same texture and the same rich colorings that made chiffons so popular.

For dresses of the better class it is going to be the reigning favorite for Fall. It comes in a wide range of colors and will appeal most strongly to those who like distinctive appareling.

CATCH BASIN TO BE BUILT

On George St. Near Simcoe—Will Prevent Flooding of Cellars

From the talk one hears occasionally, it would be supposed that the city's finances have not been so low since Christopher Columbus discovered the North Pole. At the meeting of the Board of Works last night Ald. Bradburn wanted to know why the catch basin on George street, between Hunter and Simcoe streets, had not been built.

Ald. Phelan said there was no money to do the work, and the engineer had advised that it be left over till a later date.

Ald. Bradburn was not satisfied. "It was passed by the Board of Works and passed by the Council," he said, "and that is sufficient authority for building it, although it takes the whole appropriation of the Board of Works. We'll have a suit for damages the first thing we know. Mr. Barrie says he will take action the next time his cellar is flooded."

It was decided to have the basin built at once.

The vacation season is now over and preparations have been made to make the Sunday school services tomorrow a memorable one.

The Opening "FAUST"

Referring to Morrison's 'Faust,' which opens the season at the Grand to-night, the Ottawa Citizen says;—

"The return of the ever-popular Faust to the Russel theatre was received with large holiday audiences afternoon and night and proved an admirable Labor Day attraction. For a quarter of a century Lewis Morrison has appeared in this vehicle. The cast throughout is a most capable one and all the roles are taken in very satisfactory style. George S. Trimble gave a thoroughly successful rendition of the devil. Miss Edna Porter as Marguerite was most attractive and gave a splendid performance. She has a very pleasing voice and there was no striving for effect. Mr. Carlyle Shelley as Faust was seen to excellent advantage. The scenic production left little to be desired. Very beautiful indeed was the garden scene; the scene presenting the summit of the Brocken on Walpurgis night was unusually lavish and weird, while the apotheosis at the final curtain was a most striking feature."

Dr. A. McIntyre's residence at Belmont was burned with $4,000 loss.

Joel Benedict Erhardt, president of the Lawyers' Surety Co., of New York, died suddenly of heart failure.

Lager Purity

To make a Beer like O'Keefe's Pilsener after the celebrated German Pilsen formula, purity is not only desirable, but absolutely necessary.

O'KEEFE'S PILSENER LAGER

is brewed only from the best barley malt, choicest hops, and absolutely chemically pure water. The water is filtered before brewing, and the beer filtered before bottling and afterwards pasteurized in the bottles. Mild and delightful, always pure and healthful.

ATHLETICS HAVE BETTER CHANCE FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

Detroit will have a hard time finishing on top in the American League race this year. Conditions favor the Philadelphia Athletics materially. In the first place of the 29 games the Philadelphia team still has to play, commencing with this week, 26 are on its own grounds. Detroit has but 26 scheduled games left, and 16 of these are on foreign grounds. What is more, there is a strong prejudice against Detroit on the part of the other clubs this year. About the only club that wants Detroit to win is Detroit. All the others would prefer to see the flag fly from the Philadelphia grounds. This for business reasons. Even the head of the league would prefer to have Philadelphia win, because it would be a boost for the city where the National League has a rival team.

The players of the American League do not want Detroit to take part in another world's series because of their poor showing on the two previous occasions. So, in addition to having the worst of the remainder of the schedule, the Tigers will be forced to fight every inch of the way from now to the wire. Only the best pitchers will be worked against them and they will be on the road most of the time.

Jennings undoubtedly has the strongest team, but it will have to carry a handicap this year, under which it will be difficult to hold up. So long as the tigers could win their games from the western teams there was a chance, for it was figured that they would come east with so big a lead that they could afford to lose some games and still win out. In losing in the west they received a set-back from which it will be hard to recover.

LINES ON SPORT

Chech and Ryan, whom Boston got in exchange for "Old Cy" Young, are both back in the minors, while the veteran pitcher is doing gilt-edged twirling for the Cleveland Naps.

"Young Cy" Young will go up to the majors next year, having been purchased by the Chicago White Sox.

Pittsburg Pirates may leave for Japan immediately after the close of the world's series.

The Vancouver and New Westminster lacrosse teams will play a series of two games at the New Westminster Exhibition next month for a purse of $2,500 put up by the Exhibition Association.

Fred Simpson, the Ojibway Thunderbolt, was beaten by Red Hawk (Henry Jackson) in a ten mile race at Penetang, being a quarter of a mile behind at the finish. So far each has won a race, and a third contest may be pulled off at Parry Sound. Simpson has signed up to meet Longboat in a five mile race at Merrickville next week.

Rube Waddell shut out Chicago yesterday 2—0. This wonderful pitcher is not all in by any means.

McDonald lost the game for the Leafs yesterday by a wild throw. The loss of the game could not be blamed on Kid Manley, as he is not in harness.

Detroit rubbed it in to Cleveland yesterday for all the knocking they have received. The Tigers took both games.

Miss May Sutton and Miss Moyes will meet to-day for the final match in the United States national tennis tournament.

Dr. McPherson will have a strong team at Peterborough. The former Varsity star took a lot of raw material last fall and whipped it into a good team in a few weeks. The Peters will be the team to watch for the O.R.F.U. senior championship.—Globe.

NO MORE HOCKEY FOR 14TH. REGT.

Kingston, Sept. 10.—The historic 14th Regiment hockey team is to disband, according to Lieut.-Col. Cunningham, the head of the regiment. The matter of disbanding the team was discussed at a meeting of the officers of the regiment last night, and the decision was practically reached to go out of the hockey business. Col. Cunningham says that the officers feel that the energies expended in keeping up a hockey team could be better utilized in building up the regiment.

Lieut. Noble Stacey, manager of the team, and chairman of the Sports Committee of the regiment, was not present at the meeting last night, but he expressed no surprise when told of the officers' decision. He says that he had very little return from the time and money which he has expended. Moreover, Mr. Steacy said that the prospects for a good team were exceedingly poor, as three of the crack players, Richardson, Vanhorne and Hiscock, declared last winter that they were through with the game.

BASEBALL

About 75 spectators witnessed a decidedly farcical exhibition of baseball yesterday at Agricultural Park, when the Chicago Bloomer girls played a local team. The bloomers were there, but only four of the tender fair sex essayed to get into the game. The alleged feminine wonders of the ball diamond are evidently travelling on their nerve, as far as playing the game is concerned. However, enough said, the local team won 6—3, and could have made it 63—3. William Simpson let the bloomer girls down easy when they came up to bat, but the five men on the team were shown nothing. The alleged bloomer team went to Hamilton to-day. So long, Mary!—Brantford Expositor.

RUGBY

Rugby ugby

AT EDMONTON.

"Bill" Crawley and Hal Burnham will no doubt be wearing the Rugby togs at Edmonton this fall. The following appears in a recent issue of the Edmonton Bulletin:—

Forty or fifty loyal Rugby enthusiasts turned out to the annual organization meeting of the Edmonton Canadian Rugby Club at the Orell Hotel last night. The following officers were elected for 1909-10: President, Hon. C. W. Cross; vice-presidents, C. H. Belanger, R. Secord, W. H. Nightingale and H. G. Brunton; secretary-treasurer, D. L. Robinson; manager, C. A. Wilson; Executive Committee, W. V. Pospet, H. Burnham, F. A. MacPherson.

The selection of the captain was left to the players before the first match. As soon as grounds have been secured practices will commence. New suits have been ordered for the team in the club colors, blue and white.

HYPNOTIZED MAN LOST IN LONDON

A Professor Has Amazing Story to Tell of a Subject

London, Sept. 10.—A professor of hypnotism, who deprived one of his subjects of memory and then had the misfortune to lose him in London for three days, had an amusing story to tell last night.

He is Arthur Lancester, a well-known club-swinger and physical culturist, who has been practising hypnotism with some success as a cure for drunkenness and the drug habit.

"Some weeks ago" he said, "I advertised in a weekly paper for a subject for hypnotic experiments, and from many applications selected a Mr. Marshall, of Kensal-rise, an ex-schoolmaster from Cornwall, aged 30. I soon found that I had perfect control over him, and on Monday last I put him into the hypnotic state and deprived him of his memory, the object of the experiment being to wipe all the past out of his mind so that I might impress on it new ideas, like writing on a clean slate.

SUBJECT LOSES HIMSELF.

"We were experimenting at the rooms I share with the Apollo Physical Training School, in Great Newport street, W. C. Just as I had Marshall in this state I was called away for a moment. When I returned I was told by an attendant that he had walked out of the building. I did not worry about the matter then, thinking that my subject had merely gone home on a sudden impulse, and that he would turn up as usual next day. But Tuesday came with no sign of him. He had not gone home, and so I informed the police. His description was circulated, and on Wednesday night I was notified that my lost object was in St. Giles' Union Infirmary, Endell street, W.C.

"Later on I learned the events that had led to his arrival there. About midnight on Monday, many hours after he left me, he rushed up to a police officer in the West End, gesticulating wildly and uttering meaningless sentences. Accordingly, he was taken to Bow street, thence to the Strand workhouse, and eventually, to St. Giles' Infirmary, where he was detained as a mental case.

"When I arrived at the infirmary to identify him, the master said he could not be released without a magistrate's order. In short, my poor subject was certified as insane. He did not know me, so I had to release him from the hypnotic state and restore his memory. First of all I said to him: "I shall begin to count, and when I reach 90 you will fall asleep.' He did so. Then I said: "I shall again count, and this time when I reach 20 you will awake with restored memory."

A MOST SURPRISED MAN.

"Sure enough, he work up, quite himself again, but the most surprised man in London when he saw where he was and learned that three days had passed since he was at Apollo school, the last incident he remembered.

"Though, of course, I am sorry for his plight, the incident is gratifying to me, because it assures me that the man was really under hypnotic influence and deprived of memory, and not merely shamming.

Marshall was discharged from the infirmary at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

He was surprised at how the sores healed—"I took your NEW METHOD TREATMENT for a serious blood disease with which I had been inflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians, taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchiness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 8 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the NEW METHOD TREATMENT for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. My boy, three years old, is sound and healthy. I certainly can recommend your treatment with all my heart. You can refer any person to me privately, but you can use this testimonial as you wish." W. MR. LARMONTH IS BEREAVED

Father Passed Away at Ottawa This Morning--Was One of the Capital's Most Respected Residents

Special to the Review.

Ottawa, Sept. 11.—Mr. Peter Larmonth, aged 76, one of the Capital's most respected residents, died rather suddenly early this morning. He leaves two sons, John Herbert Larmonth, manager of the Peterborough Light and Power Company, Peterborough; and Norman Larmonth, barrister, of Ottawa, a widow and three brothers.

The late Mr. Larmonth was born at Lachine, Que., 76 years ago, but had resided here many years. He was a member of the Ottawa Curling Club and St. Andrew's Presbyterian church. Mr. J. H. Larmonth, of Peterborough, is expected to reach here to-night or early to-morrow morning.

Too Much Of It

There is too much slander and gossip in Peterborough. People talk about their neighbors when they should have something better to occupy their minds and time. Reputations are often blasted by idle talk and by stories that are as cruel as they are uncalled for. Conditions are getting no better here along this line, which is far from being a credit to the city. Less slander and gossip would mean more happiness for many people.

BIRTHDAY OF MAJOR LEIGH

Celebrated Eighty Second Birth-Day on Thursday

The many friends in this city of Major Leigh will read with interest the following item which appears in last evening's Toronto News—

"The eighty-second birthday anniversary of Major Edward Leigh was celebrated at his home in Albany avenue last night, when a large number of the Major and Mrs. Leigh's friends called to congratulate him. Major Leigh is very hale and hearty, and still goes regularly to his office in the Crown Lands Department at the Parliament Buildings. Amongst those present last night were Mr. and Mrs. Longsdale Capreol, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Capreol, the Misses Capreol, Mrs. Birchall Merling, Lakefield; Mrs. Templeton, Mr. and Mrs. Farthing, Canon and Mrs. MacNab, Rev. D. R. Ledbrooke, Miss Dorothy Grahame, Miss Phoebe Hughes, Mr. Buck, Mr. Robert Clark, Mr. and Miss Wood, Miss Rosenthwaite, the Misses Bend, Mr. A. S. D. Bend, Mr. and Mrs. Lace, Mrs. Chown and Mr. Chown."

Goldfish Scarce

Goldfish are a most elegant parlor ornament, and the demand for them is constantly increasing. Last year over one hundred and one half million were sold in the United States, and yet the supply was insufficient and during the past three months it has been almost impossible to buy them.

The first shipment to Peterborough this season was cleared at the customs office to-day by the Peterborough Optical Institute in the market building. They are a fine assortment of about two hundred large and very large beauties, ranging in price at 10c., 15., 25c., and 50c.

REMAINS WILL ARRIVE TO-NIGHT

Funeral of the Late Henry Sherwood Will Take Place To-morrow Afternoon

The remains of the late Henry Sherwood, whose death occurred in Maple Creek, Sask., on Sunday last, will arrive in the city this evening on the 7.51 C.P.R. train, and will be taken to the residence of his son, Mr. J. H. Sherwood, 551 Bethune street. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 1.30 o'clock to the Little Lake cemetery. The Rev. Robert Pogue, of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, will conduct the service at the house and grave.

The late Mr. Sherwood was born in Yorkshire, England, and prior to his going to Maple Creek had lived in this city for over 45 years.

Three sons and a daughter survive him. The sons are Messrs. G. H. Sherwood, of Vancouver; Fred. of Vernon, B.C., and J. H., of this city. Mrs. R. H. Lithgow, of Maple Creek, is the daughter.

SEVEN PRIZES AT DOG SHOW

Dr, F. L. Robinson's Entries of Boston Terriers Were Winners at Toronto

Dr. F. L. Robinson has returned from Toronto, where he has been attendingtending the International Dog Show at the exhibition. He secured seven prizes in the competition for Boston Terriers. There were entries from Pittsburg, Boston and other places, but the entries of the local man headed the list of prize winners in the majority of cases.

The new steel steamer Stoney Lake has been especially built for these waters and is the finest and most commodious boat on the inland lakes.

Dynamited Bank.

Montreal, Sept. 11.—Burglars dynamited the safe of the Banque Provinciale at Yarrachiche at 2 o'clock yesterday morning and stole $4,800.

The explosion awakened the manager, Belmore, who was sleeping upstairs, and he ran down and fired at them. They fired back and refused to leave. They fired another dynamite charge and blew the safe open and ran with the money.

Took Too Much Medicine.

Hamilton, Sept. 11.—Jennie Shea, 62 West Burlington street, was found in Robertson's shipyard, at the foot of MacNab street, last night in a semi-conscious condition. She had taken an overdose of Pain Exterminator and was hurried to the city hospital. The stomach was pumped out and at a late hour she was reported to be out of danger.

New York Democrats.

Saratoga, N.Y., Sept. 11.—After adopting a declaration of principles which included an endorsement of a Federal income tax, and effecting a continuation of its efforts for the rehabilitation of the party through the organisation of "the Democratic League," the Democratic conference concluded a two days' session yesterday.

Three Years For a Firebug.

Ottawa, Sept. 11.—For setting fire to a wood pile immediately adjoining the house of a man he disliked at Wakefield, Que., Onesime Dubois was sent to prison for three years. He was convicted once before for arson and was allowed out from jail two years before his time was up. He will now have this to serve.

Wellman Gives Up.

Christiania, Sept. 10.—A special despatch from Tromsoe to The Aftenposten says that Walter Wellman has instructed his agent to arrange for the return of all his property from Virgo Bay, Spitzbergen, as well as the three men who were to have spent the winter there. It is understood Wellman abandoned his plans for reaching the north pole by airship for next year.

The 23rd Regiment, Northern Pioneers, is in camp at North Bay for 12 days.

A. J. McKeen, of Ingersoll, a bridgeworker, fell from the C.P.R. bridge at Thamesford and fractured his skull.

NOTES OF THE DAY

Rev. P. W. Anderson, of Ottawa, is moderator of the Presbytery.

The tonnage of the Canadian Soo canal for August was 8,988,223 tons, a record.

James Brooks, of Hamilton, was arrested on a charge of intimidating a witness.

There is a speculation that Mackenzie & Mann are in a deal to acquire fast steamers from Britain to the Mediterranean and eventually to own an all-red route.

KELSEY HEATING

¶ The Kelsey system of Heating insures a constant circulation of fresh warm air and enough of it for heat and ventilation. The Kelsey Warm Air Generator warms fresh air to a natural and heathful temperature, and forces it into every room in equal proportions.

¶ The whole house is warm and comfortable even though a January blizzard may be howling outside. The Kelsey accomplishes these results, not only in small houses, but in the largest and finest city and country residences, and with the most economical use of fuel.

¶ That is why 30,000 home owners who have investigated carefully have bought the Kelsey.

¶ The ZIG ZAG Heat Tubes are responsible for the efficiency and economy, and we should like to explain all the other Kelsey advantages to you.

SURVEY OF GRAIN ROUTE COMPLETED IN VICTORIA

Lindsay, Sept. 10.—A new and extensive construction work is about to be started in connection with the Georgian Bay Seaboard Railway, otherwise known as the C.P.R. grain route.

The final survey for the major portion of the road has been made out, and the plans passed. In this country the new line which is intended to enhance the grain traffic and meet more efficiently the growing trade from the Canadian West, commences in the west corner of lot 17, in the first concession of Eldon, running through lots 17 and 16 on the 2nd concession, and curving southeasterly again to the boundary line between Eldon and Mariposa and crossing the boundary line to the southeast across to lot 1 in the 10th concession of Eldon, crossing several concessions on its way to the town.

The line is intended to enter the town diagonally across the river at Carew's mill, where a high stationary bridge will be built. The line comes right across the Midland track and is a slight deviation from the plans made by Mr. Kittaly some time ago. Mr. F. Darling, chief engineer of the C.P.R. has passed the present plans and it is hoped that the one outstanding difficulty, viz., the undulating land between here and Peterborough—some of the hills being 500 feet high—will be overcome, and that a first-class grain route from Georgian Bay through Lindsay to the main line at or near Peterborough will be the result. The work is expected to be under way at an early date.

FIRST ENGINE ON I. B. & O. GOES TO THE JUNK HEAP

Gooderham, Sept. 9.—Time works its ravages on everything; there is nothing free from its grip. There is wonderful strength in steel bars, but there is a limit to their endurance. The locomotive engine that first ran on the I.B. & O. or the I.O.U., as it was called in its early days, was not brand new when it came to the road. It had indeed already seen its best days but for many a year, in sunshine and through winters' storms the good old "Mary Ann" drew her train as long as there was a rail to run on, and when the rails gave out, she would quietly squat, and never hurt a soul. This great north country will never again see "Mary Ann." She will live only in the memory. John Dobensky, of Bancroft, the scrap dealer, has given $100 for her, and is taking her to pieces. Poor old "Mary Ann." She was not much of a flyer, and made no pretensions to style, but she did her work well and faithfully, and gave a lot of valuable service for this part of the country.

ITALIAN BOSS IS STABBED BY AN INDIAN AT SYDNEY

Max Petrission of Number One Mine is Fatally Wounded by Joe Nash in an Italian Shack—Victim Had Thrown His Influence in With Company.

Sydney, Sept. 13.—Max Petrission of Dominion mine No. 1 was foully stabbed to death by Joe Nash in an Italian shack at No. 2 Saturday afternoon. Petrission is the padrone at No. 1, and has from the commencement thrown his influence into the scale for the company. A number of striking foreigners were moving, and Petrission drove there Friday afternoon to purchase some of their furniture. He entered the shack, leaving his rig outside, and entered into conversation with the men gathered there. Being strikers, the conversation turned to the respective merits of the United Mine Workers' Association and the Provincial Workmen's Association. Petrission was sitting on a chair when Nash, an Indian, who had espoused the U.M.W.A. cause, leaned forward and plunged a knife into the upper part of Petrission's leg, inflicting a severe wound. Petrission ran outside, clambered into his rig and drove to the residence of Dr. McKeen, who did all in his power for the injured man. Petrission was then removed to St. Joseph's Hospital, where it was found one of the large arteries of his leg was severed. It proved impossible to stop the bleeding, and about nine o'clock the man died. After inflicting the injury, Nash ran away, and was seen to go in the direction of No. 3. Since then all trace of the murderer has been lost. When last seen he was wearing a brown suit and a brown cap. The murderer is about five feet five inches in height, dark complexion and clean shaven. He was arrested some time ago for carrying loaded weapons, but the case was dismissed. He has been in the country several years and speaks broken English. Chief Ingraham was notified of the occurrence, and promptly with a number of his men set out in search of the man.

HARRIMAN LAID TO REST MAGNATE BURIED AT ARDEN

Wall Street's Great Men Attend Last Rites Over Railroad Napoleon—Scores of Employees of His Immense Estate Follow Remains to the Grave.

Arden, N.Y., Sept. 13.—Through the quiet aisles of the Ramapo Woods, the body of Edward H. Harriman was carried yesterday from the great house he never lived to see finished and laid in its resting-place on the Arden hillside.

The rulers of Wall Street came from New York to pay their last tribute, but the most prominent part in the funeral ceremonies was taken by the men who knew him best as a country squire, master of the great estate which covers 43,000 acres of hill and valley in this, the most rugged part of Orange County.

His general superintendent, his master mason and the managers and assistant managers of his dairies, his farms, and his trotting stables, were the men who bore his coffin, and the services were led by his own chaplain.

The funeral was private and only friends of the family who had received invitations from Mrs. Harriman were admitted. Those present included: Hon. B. B. Odell, jr., and wife; Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Perkins, Maxwell Ewarts, James Stillman, Jacob H. Schiff, F. D. Underwood, W. V. S. Thorne and Robert S. Lovett.

The first service was holy communion celebrated at 10 a.m. by Rev. J. Holmes McGuinness for Mrs. Harriman and children at their home on Tower Hill.

At 11 o'clock came a public memorial service at St. John's Church for the employes of the estate and parishioners of the church. The Harriman family pews were left vacant.

Elaborate precautions were taken to preserve the privacy of the afternoon service. Several scores of employes, aided by a number of uniformed police from Tuxedo, guarded all roads over which the funeral procession passed from the house to the church and kept watch at intervals of twenty yards around the patch of woods, which includes the Harriman burial plot.

DANISH DOCTOR SAYS PEARY TOOK COOK'S SUPPLIES

Says Cook Left Provisions in Charge of Whitney, But a Boatswain Was Placed in Possession on Pretext That Cook Was Dead.

New York, Sept. 13.—Wireless despatches last night told of Dr. Cook's homeward journey on the steamer Oscar II., gaily decorated in his honor. He mingled freely with the passengers, and at luncheon related more of his experiences. The Oscar II. is due in New York Sept. 21.

Commander Peary is still in the vicinity of Battle Harbor, Labrador, where the Roosevelt is being repaired before her trip to Sydney, N.S.

Despatches from Paris indicate that France would not be averse to acting as mediator in the dispute, being peculiarly fitted for this task as an unprejudiced nation.

A cable from Peary to certain newspapers saying that "Cook has simply handed the public a gold brick," and claiming proof for the statement, has added fuel to the personal warfare.

Seized the Supplies.

Copenhagen, Sept. 13.—A remarkable letter, giving Dr. Frederick A. Cook's version of the trouble with Commander Peary over supplies, appears in the newspaper Politiken. The letter was written by Dr. Norman Hansen, a prominent Danish physician, who several times visited Greenland to study eye diseases.

Dr. Cook told practically the same story to one of his closest American friends just a week ago, before Commander Peary re-appeared on the scene.

Dr. Hansen was with Cook for some time in Greenland, and returned with him on the Danish Government steamer Hans Egede. In his letter he says:

"Now that Dr. Cook is gone, I am no longer under any obligation to keep silence, and I will air my right to publish the story about the house in Annatok, a story which Dr. Cook himself had too much delicacy to relate to the world. I write it according to my memory, in the same manner that Dr. Cook in Egedesminde told it to me, and I am fully convinced that in no details are my recollections wrong.

"Dr. Cook had built his house for stores in Annatok, north of Etah and it was this depot which he started to reach in February, 1909, crossing Smith Sound. It was a pretty large house, the wall being built of heavily filled provision boxes, so that Dr. Cook knew that when this important point was reached everything was safe. He had, before the start, arranged with a young friend named Whitney that he have the right to use the house while hunting musk-ox for sport, in the winter of 1908-09.

"When Dr. Cook and his two Eskimos, exhausted and half starved, came within a shot's distance of the house in Annatok, young Whitney came out to bid him welcome, but inside the house was a stranger, giant Newfoundland boatswain, on watch. This man had been placed in Dr. Cook's house by Peary, when the latter passed Etah with his ship bound north, Peary had given the boatswain a written order, which commenced with the following words:

"This house belongs to Dr. Fred. A. Cook, but Dr. Cook is long ago dead, and there is no use to search after him, therefore, I, Commander Robert E. Peary, instal my boatswain in this deserted house."

This paper the boatswain, who could neither read nor write, exhibited to Dr. Cook, and the latter took a copy of this wonderful document. Dr. Cook gave me a lively account of how the young millionaire, Mr. Whitney, during the whole winter, was treated like a dog by the giant boatswain, and how he had calmly witnessed the sailor bartering Dr. Cook's provision for fox and bear skins for himself.

"Dr. Cook also had to put a good face on the unpleasant situation. He had to beg into his own house and had to make a compromise with the boatswain with strong fists.

"Dr. Cook made a present of the house with all its contents to his two faithful Eskimos, with the proviso that Whitney was to have the use of the house as long as his hunting trip lasted, but he was compelled to let the Newfoundland boatswain continue his watch.

"Now, I suppose the sailor will celebrate his triumphal entrance into New York harbor aboard Peary's ship, while Whitney is, where? Aboard his own yacht Jeanne? or perhaps he has not waited to wait for his own boat and has gone aboard Peary's ship.

"To Mr. Whitney, Dr. Cook gave his instruments and his observations, as he thought these precious things were safer there than on the long sled trip in the spring across Melville Bay, but all his note books and greasy and soiled record books, which have been so closely written upon, he kept and carried with him.

"But what is the record to us? The two men, Peary and Cook, their character, their conduct, that is what interests us, and every little item throwing a side light upon their nature is valuable."

No White Man With Peary.

New York, Sept. 13.—The surmise that Peary was unaccompanied by a white man or anyone who could check his reading of the sun, when it told him he was at the North Pole, proves to be correct. It is stated now, that the only three men in his party who could take altitudes were sent back with supporting parties or because of frost bites, and that only five men went with Peary beyond the 88th degree. These were Hansen, a negro, who had been with Peary as a kind of man Friday on previous expeditions, who has always been useful, and four Eskimos.

CHAMBERLAIN IS PARALYZED

London, Sept. 13.—A man who has been on a visit to Highbury gives some interesting, though sad, particulars about the present condition of Joseph Chamberlain.

Physically, it is hopeless. A form of paralysis has so settled upon his frame that he cannot walk without assistance and he speaks with difficulty.

Intellectually there is no falling off, nor is there any abatement in the interest taken by him in political events. He follows with the closest attention the debates in the House of Commons on the budget bill, and is looking forward with great interest to the forthcoming encounter between the Prime Minister and Mr. Balfour at Birmingham.

FARMERS ARE DOING WELL

Increase in Grain Crop This Year is Nearly $60,000,000

Ottawa, Sept. 13.—A supplementary crop bulletin issued by the census and branch shows that, as compared with last year, Canada's crop yields shows a remarkable increase.

Of wheat, it is estimated that Canadian farmers will have for sale 168,000,000 bushels, over forty-three million bushels more than last year.

The oat crop is estimated at 345,919,000, an increase of over eighty-four million bushels.

There is also an increase of over seven million bushels in the production of barley.

The only province which does not show a substantial increase in the yield of wheat, oats and barley is Ontario.

It is estimated that the wheat crop of the west will exceed last year's crop by forty-five million bushels. There is a big increase in the production of hay and clover.

The crop should be worth from fifty to sixty million dollars more to the Canadian farmers than that harvested in 1908.

LACK OF RAIN GETTING SERIOUS

Montreal, Sept. 13.—Manager Saunders of the Bank of Montreal in Mexico, who is now in the city, makes the announcement that no rain has fallen in the Necaska Valley, and that the Mexican Light, Heat & Power Co. have been paying at the rate of $10,000 (Mexican) per day for coal.

Generally the rainy months are June, July and August, but when the banker left for the north on the 31st of August, no rain whatever had fallen in the valley, and the outlook was not at all promising.

U. S. TARIFF COMMISSION

Beverly, Mass., Sept. 13.—President Taft Saturday appointed the new tariff commission or board, which is to assist him in the execution of the new tariff law, with especial reference to applying the maximum and minimum clauses to nations which are unfriendly or friendly in their tariff relations with the United States.

The new board consists of Prof. H. Emery of Yale, chairman; Jas. F. Reynolds of Massachusetts, now assistant secretary of the treasury, and Alvin H. Sanders of Chicago, at present editor and publisher of The Breeders' Gazette.

Congress appropriated the lump sum of $75,000 to cover salaries and the expenses of the investigation of the commission.

STRATHCONA IS NOT RETIRING

Montreal, Sept. 13.—Lord Strathcona, who reached here yesterday from the west, declined to discuss the rumor of his alleged coming retirement from the high commissionership. He said he did not generally discuss such matters, but acted whenever the opportune moment arrived. His lordship did say, however, that he had held the office up to the present time at the earnest solicitation of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who had maintained that the public interest required his presence in London.

PEARY MAN HAD TO PAY A FINE

Fort Worth, Tex., Sept. 13.—Judge Lane of the corporation court decided against a Peary contender in an argument over who discovered the pole. B. C. McHam and Lewis D. Wall had the dispute. Wall stood out for Cook and when a patrolman came along to stop the fight Cook seemed to have the better of the argument.

The court decided that Peary's supporter started first, even if Peary didn't, and the referee find him a dollar and costs. Cook's supporter went free.

BRITISH SERVICE TAKES MARCONI

London, Eng., Sept. 13.—It has just been announced that the Postmaster-General has concluded an agreement with the Marconi Company for the transference to the Government of its wireless telegraph stations in the United Kingdom. The Marconi system has been worked under a license from the postoffice for several years, but it was not anticipated that the Government would take over so soon the stations and plant of the Wireless Telegraph Co.

The agreement gives the postoffice the right to use the wireless system between the mainland and the outlying islands, such as the Isle of Man and the Channel Islands. The arrangement is purely insular and does not embrace transatlantic communication.

No information has yet been given as to the financial terms of transference, but these must, as a matter of course, shortly be laid before Parliament. There can be no doubt that wireless telegraphy at present is only in its infancy and is needful of much development before it can, as an adjunct to the postoffice, be worked with advantage to commercial life.

WERE MAROONED IN SMALL LAUNCH

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Sept. 13.—For thirteen hours, George Felz and Harry Porter with two companions, were marooned in a small launch on a bar out in the river less than a mile from the point where the river breaks into the turbulant upper rapids.

The boat went aground about 7 o'clock Saturday night, and it was not until 8 o'clock yesterday morning that it was released and the party, half dead from cold and fright, were taken off.

The absence of a wind was all that saved the boat, and its four passengers from being swept over the falls.

Just off the spot where the boat grounded the water is deep and the current very swift. There was a dense fog over the river all night, and even if the launch had lifted off the reef, the men would have been in a worse plight than before, for it would have been a hard matter to make shore with the lights obscured and a mark of only a quarter of a mile between them and the rapids.

All through the night the men kept calling for help, but their voices failed to reach any ear along the shore.

When John W. Broderick, a riverman, went out early in the morning and pulled the craft off the men were in a state of collapse.

Several years ago the Ella H. went aground on the same reef and pounded to pieces.

NEWSPAPERS ARE ROWING

Ottawa, Sept. 13.—Proceedings for contempt of court were inaugurated here on Saturday against the proprietors of The Evening Journal, because that paper, in the face of an injunction issued on Friday morning, restraining it from using Peary's story of the north pole discovery, came out with detailed reports.

Action for contempt is taken at the instance of The Ottawa Citizen, which bought exclusive rights of publication for the City of Ottawa. Case will be heard this week.

HOLY SEPULCHER FOR GERMANY?

Paris, Sept. 13.—According to Young Turk representatives in Paris, their party is very anxious to secure permanent friendly relations with the outside world. Part of their program which is under discussion and which looks to the removal of religious difficulties is the disposal of what is known as the Domain of the Holy Sepulchre and their interests in the adjacent property to Germany, whose interest in Jerusalem is shown by many external signs there.

SKELETON OF HUMAN BEING FOUND BY FARMER WHO WAS SEARCHING FOR A LOST PIG

Gruesome and Startling Discovery Made by George Bidgood in Woods a Few Yards From C.P.R. Track at Kendry Siding Yesterday Morning.

Badly Decomposed Body Lay in Partially Upright Position Against Limbs of Fallen Pine Tree—Must Have Been There Over a Year—Open Razor in Bony Hand and Small Can Containing Paris Green Lay Near—Bones Resemble Those of Woman.

A terrible discovery, which has all the features of a big mystery, was made yesterday morning by Mr. Geo. Bidgood, a farmer residing in North Monaghan, while he was searching for a number of strayed pigs. Not finding the pigs on his own property, he crossed on to the farm of George Campbell, and on arriving at a point where a tree had been chopped down, he was horrified to find a skeleton of a human horrified to find the skeleton of a human being propped up against one of the limbs.

The locality where the discovery was made is on the north side of the C.P.R. track at the east end of the siding at Kendry siding, about five miles west of this city. The tree, beside which the skeleton was found was cut down by Matthew Clarke a year ago, but for some reason had not been trimmed of its branches, and it is surmised that the unfortunate person's remains have been there since shortly after the tree was felled.

The left arm hung over the branch and by the position of the skeleton and the fact of the coat being bundled up and placed under the head, the unknown had been sleeping. Most of the bones are in a good state of preservation: and appeared to be those of a female. The bones of the fingers are small, the teeth are those of a woman, and in excellent condition. The length of the skeleton is five feet two inches.

Small pieces of decomposed flesh still adhered to the hip bones and the back, and a few hairs still remained attached to the skull. The clothing, which had been worn consisted of a coat and trousers of black serge cloth, black stockings, a light cloth vest, striped shirt, pair of winter guernseys and a pair of boots, laced tightly and which indicated that they had not been worn for any length of time. A razor with the blade opened laid across the bones of the right hand. In the pockets of the trousers were found four dollars in bills and 95c. in change. They were all of the Dominion of Canada and bore the following numbers; $2, 205,019; $1, 002,443; $1, 050,019.

There was also a part of a bill with the letters Mon. and another on which the printing could not be distinguished. A two bladed jack-knife and a wooden pipe with a bulldog head, was also found, together with an unopened package of T. and B. smoking tobacco, and a half plug of MacDonald's chewing tobacco. A short distance from the skeleton, a half-pound tin, half-filled with Paris green was found. This was dry and did not contain any leaves or dirt of any sort as might be expected if the can had lain there as long as the remains.

Coroner Gray received a telephone message yesterday morning, giving him the particulars and when he arrived on the spot where the skeleton was found, selected a jury from the large number of men, who had been attracted to the scene. The jury viewed the remains and were then dismissed, and will be called again if it is found necessary.

No clue can be found whereby the identity of the person can be ascertained. All the clothes are those of a male person, while the skeleton resembles that of a female. The residents in the vicinity have no recollection of anyone who disappeared in that section of the country a year ago last winter and the mystery will probably never be explained.

This morning Coroner Gray telephoned to County Constable Archie Reynolds, at Springville, to have the bones buried in the cemetery at that place.

LORD BERESFORD WAS NOT THERE

Toronto, Sept. 13.—Lord Charles Beresford, who was to have laid the foundation stone of the South African memorial on University avenue on Saturday afternoon, was detained on his northern trip, and the ceremony was performed in his stead by His Honor Lieutenant-Governor Gibson. Col. Mason received a telegram from W. K. George, who was with Lord Beresford in the northland, announcing that they had just reached Temagami Station; that owing to the rain they had ben unable to make their way through the woods in time to reach the city for the ceremony, which Lord Charles Beresford very much regretted.

STREET RIOTS END CARNIVAL

North Adams, Mass., Sept. 13.—A street riot, in which damage to the extent of $4,000 was caused, ended the old home week observance in this city Saturday night. There was a crowd of about 10,000 people on the streets, and the carnival spirit proved too much for a large crowd of young men and boys, who gathered together in one big mob and went up first one side of the main street and then down theother, wrecking peanut stands, tearing down bunches of bananas and upsetting fruit stands.

Lemieux Going to Europe.

Ottawa, Sept. 13.—Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Postmaster-General, will leave for Europe on Monday, Sept. 20, to attend the international postal conference to be held at Berne, Switzerland.

Mr. Lemieux, while in England will probably renew the negotiations with the British Government, looking to the establishment of cheaper cable service across the Atlantic.

STOPPED TEACHER FROM MAKING LOVE

Detroit, Sept. 13.—An injunction has been obtained by Ernest D. Shove, a Brownstone Township farmer, restraining Lily Burien, 33 years old, who was a school teacher at Flat Rock last year, from making love to Shove's 17-year-old son.

In his petition for an injunction the parent said the teacher had told him his son was dull. He believes now it was a subterfuge to gain access to his company, for in order to assist him in his school work the teacher taught the boy after hours. It is alleged she made considerable progress in gaining his affections.

PORT HOPE GIRL WAS ATTACKED

Port Hope, Sept. 13.—Miss Bessie Good, stenographer for Henry White, town solicitor, was attacked by an unknown man Saturday night about 10.30 while on her way home.

Her screams attracted W. Soulsby and J. McMillan, who seized a man named Freedenburg, alleged to be running away from the scene. He says he was attracted to the spot by screams. The young lady is in a most nervous condition. No arrest has been made.

Acid-Throwing at Kingston.

Kingston, Sept. 13.—People in the vicinity of King and Brock streets Saturday evening were startled to see a young woman throw a bottle at a young man with whom she had been conversing alongside Reid's butcher shop. The bottle hit the wall and the contents splattered over the young man's clothes. The couple ran in opposite directions. It is thought the liquid was carbolic acid or vitriol.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Experiments are about to be made with a view to establishing a direct wireless telegraphic service between England and South Africa.

Wm. Lloyd Garrison, son of the great abolitionist, and widely known as a publicist and reformer, died at his home at Lexington, Mass., at the age of 71 years.

Miss Catherine Delafour Beresford, daughter of the famous English naval admiral, Lord Charles Beresford, is in New York. On Friday, Sept. 17, the Pilgrims' Club will tender the father and daughter a banquet.

The announcement was made in the Catholic Churches of Hamilton yesterday that Rev. Dean Mahony of St. Mary's Cathedral had been appointed vicar-general of the diocese to succeed the late Vicar General Laussie.

Capt. R. W. Scott, who commanded the discovery expedition in 1901, will start next July on his new Antarctic expedition. He says that the main object of the expedition is to secure for the British Empire the honor of reaching the South Pole.

At the annual session of the Northwest Indiana Methodist conference it was announced that Mrs. Russell Sage will donate $500,000 to the church for use in spreading the Bible throughout the world, provided the church raise a like amount by January, 1910.

The Central Union Telephone Co. has made a startling move at Toledo in its war for local business against the Independent Telephone Co., by announcing that all independent 'phone subscribers who have not a Bell 'phone will be provided with one free of cost for an indefinite period.

THE IDEA OF IMMORTALITY

A new idea is taking hold of some minds in this strenuous age. It is that since mankind is immortal it has plenty of time. It will be a singular thing if in the near future the mad onrush of men and women, the reputed "craze" of the present day, should give way to an Oriental apathy.

The Hindus of all the orientals represent the drifting theory of the progress of mankind. Physical forces are not to be compared with the spirit or the soul which, to the oriental, in long aeons of time returns to the universal life from it emanated. The civilization of Christianity or the west is above all things concrete. It believes that men are born into the world not as beings, but as souls to work but a future in heaven for themselves a sort of other and higher world than this one with a still further development which in the course of time evolves the return of man to God as a perfect being, the completion of a great cycle of the soul's history.

It would seem as if this new idea is the beginning of the development in the western mind of that same spirit of oriental mysticism. The attainment of Nirvana or the absorption of the individual into the One lacks all inspiration or enthusiasm. It is for the meditative, not for the active. How far it will attach itself to western Christian idealism remains to be seen. There are so many fads now-a-days that this one may also take hold. It has been held that the difference between the east and the west is as great as their geographical directions and yet after all they represent one great people, mankind as a whole.

WHY NOT RECIPROCATE?

Referring to the recent visit of the members of the Montreal Chambre de Commerce to the Toronto Exhibition and the cordial manner in which they were received, the French-Canadian journal La Presse says:

"Up to this date the nasty manifestations of the 'News,' the 'Telegram,' and the 'Mail' against the Province of Quebec had really led us to believe that there was a serious incompatibility of character between the English-speaking in Ontario and the French-Canadians in Quebec. What a pleasure it is for us to admit our mistake! There can be no doubt that the Province of Ontario is quite disposed to fraternize with that of Quebec. The warm reception tendered our Chambre de Commerce was marked with the most sincere cordiality. One cannot be deceived by the manner in which true sympathy is unequivocally manifested by deeds even more than by kind words. We are citizens of the same country, we all feel the same need of promoting its development and greatness, and the serious men of Toronto have made it a pleasure to receive serious men from Quebec, without considering their nationality. Under the same British flag, with the same allegiance in our hearts, we are all British subjects and compatriots. This view allows us to deeply despise the criminal but fruitless attempts made by some ambitious journals who would like to provoke fratricidal divisions to derive party advantages therefrom."

It is to be hoped that the impression made in Toronto will not wear off by this time La Presse issues again. It is idle for La Presse to assert that the English-speaking Canadians hate the French. We want to be one people, not two. Is this hatred? But does it not show hatred and distrust when the French continually exalt their racial aspirations. Is it not a continual threat and a continual insult that French-Canadian journals should always and forever emphasize the line of cleavage between the two races. This determination to remain distinct and not to be one with the English-speaking Canadians in building up one country and one people is the real issue and La Presse knows it. It is absurd to say we hate the French. It is more. It is deliberately untrue.

THE BRITISH BUDGET

Lord Rosebery objects to the collection of taxes for the carrying-on of government by direct methods. He prefers the tariff system. The tariff system does not tax lands. Therefore, it would suit the landed class in Great Britain. But even the tariff does not prevent the imposition of a direct tax, and Lord Rosebery and his friends might find that holding land for amusement purposes will no longer pay. The people have a right to the land. They have a natural right to it. They must have it or die. Hence the monopoly of land must cease and in small countries like England it must cease first. But there are other privileges quite as detrimental to the general welfare and they will have to go next. The laws are too expensive for the poor. They exist chiefly for the benefit of the rich. Capital is favoured in a hundred different ways. All this sort of Privilege "must go." Let the people have a chance, and then the world will be a new world and a much finer and more glorious one.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The inhabitants of Fox River are all in favor of the cancellation of debts due by them. This is not an uncommon feeling.

The worship of money means the sacrifice of the Poor upon the altar of that god. The massing of money lessens the happiness of the people.

On a recent occasion this year, 78-pound Colorado lambs realized $9.80 in the Chicago market. This price included the wool. It is a record price, and shows that when a tariff secures the United States market to the American wool grower as well as the American woollen manufacturer sheep raising is profitable to the farmer while affording the raw material to an industry of general advantage to the country.

"I think we are able to compete with Germany in technical education in Britain now. The main objects of this college is to take up advanced courses of research and with the remarkably strong staff of professors which the college now possesses it is anticipated that increasing value will result," was the statement given by Dr. Bovey, F.R.S., late Dean of the Faculty of Applied Science in McGill University, and now rector of the Imperial College of Science and Technology in London, England.

Dr. Bovey was enthusiastic about the new Royal School of Mines when seen by a 'Witness' representative this forenoon and takes an imperial view of its functions.

He believed that Germany in the past had done more for scientific education than Britain, that Charlottenburg, the famous German institution, had surpassed in its equipment and objects anything Britain possessed. But since the idea was set before Britain by Lord Rosebery, of an institution rivaling, if not surpassing, Charlottenburg, all has been changed and the new College—a monument to Britain's progress—now stands at the corner of Exhibition road and Prince Consort road, South Kensington, London.—The Witness.

HUNTERS

Something About Moose and Deer

It is now pretty well known among hunters that the best deer hunting country in Ontario is on the line of the Canadian Northern Ontario and that hunters receive special attention. Mr. C. Price Green, Passenger Agent of the line is a hunter himself who goes right with the parties and looks after them, in fact he located most of them. This year the line will be opened north of Sellwood into the midst of the Moose Country, they are reported very thick, the Engineers say that they have never seen anything like it, the Moose season up there opens October 15th, fifteen days before the Deer. We have something special on a new place that will take three parties of deer hunters

THE SUPERIOR AND PROFESSORS OF THE COLLEGE OF STE. MARIE, QUEBEC, ARE UNDER INTERDICT

La Patrie Says it is a Serious Affair—The Case is Carried to Rome—The People, La Patrie Says, Sympathize With the Professors.

The account of this affair is taken from La Patrie and is as follows;—

"At the request of the friends of the interested professors and of the religious authorities La Patrie has not made public the unfortunate incident which has just arisen in the scholastic world. But on account of the actions of certain indiscreet publications in making it known, we consider ourselves free to speak likewise. The incident concerns the educational establishment which the old professors of the College of Ste. Marie opened at St. John, P.Q., and for which Canon Lemieux, one of the most eminent of the Canadian clergy, and twenty other priest-professors have been put under the interdict. The whole population of St. John and the surrounding country are feverishly discussing the situation."

The affair began by a disagreement with the Bishop of St. Hyacinthe, and the professors who decided to remove. The professors said that Marieville was a desirable place for a college. The bishop maintained that it was. In 1908 the college was burned. Then the removal to St. John arose in earnest. The papal delegate, Mgr Sbarretti, was called in. He made a report to Rome. Meanwhile the college languished and the students left. More representations were made to Rome. Card Mery del Val replied that the decision of Rome would be communicated to the professors through Ottawa. Meanwhile the professors have set up at St. John They declare themselves ready to abide by His Holiness' decision.

FALL STYLES FOR MEN

This fall will see quite a revolution in tailoring in Canada. Worsteds, for a long time the favorite for autumn trade, will be superseded by tweeds of the fancy variety. This does not mean that worsteds will be entirely done away with, but that they will play second part to tweeds. There is no particular reason for this change, except fashion's decree, which decided that the day of the worsted for a time was done.

The freaky style of suits that came into vogue about two years ago are to be entirely done away with, as far as the fashionable tailor is concerned. There was a strong feeling against these styles last season, though they were worn. In cloth of cheaper grades these styles will, to some extent, prevail.

NO MORE CUFFS ON SLEEVES.

"It is highly time that these cuffs on the sleeves and pockets were abolished" said a prominent tailor. "They were used on a modification of what was supposed to be the New York style, though there was not very much similarity in the designs. This season the turned-up cuff at the bottom of the trousers, will have few wearers. The sack coat will be about the same length as last year, the three button coat being largely the favorite. The striking feature of these coats will be their exceeding lack of decoration of any kind.

"The pegtop trouser will not be used at all this year. Instead they are being made very fully the whole length.

DEMAND FOR PLAIDS.

"There was an effort last year to bring in some better class plaids, which was unsuccessful, and there will be none this year either, though, in the case of the cheaper lines, I expect there will be a fairly good demand.

"In regard to overcoats the only change that will be introduced will be in the case of the semi-fitting coats. These coats were fairly popular last year, though they only look well on a big man. This season they will be made to fit more from the shoulders to the knees, and from the knees downwards, they will be given lots of flare. Melton will be a popular line, as usual. In fact, melton is always a staple. Beaver will not meet with the same demand as in former years."

INFORMATION THAT FARMERS SHOULD HAVE

Most farmers can estimate closely the number of bushels of grain raised, and tell fairly accurately the number of tons of hay grown, but when it comes to the really most important income of the farm, the product of each cow, its all a blank, and they say ,"Oh, I don't know; I get my cheque each month, that's all I care about."

While a knowledge of the total weight of milk delivered at the factory, it never conveys to the farmer the information he stands in need of as to the profit made by each cow in the stable. That information is absolutely necessary to him if he desires to consider himself a credit to his profession, a first-class, business-like dairyman. Otherwise these satisfying totals or delusive averages will continue to allow the one or two poor cows in every herd to consume good feed ,for which no profitable return is ever given.

In many herds where no attempt at checking up individual performance has been made, there is frequently to be found a difference of $30 or $40 in the earning power of the best and poorest cow. Farmers need to consider that statement carefully. In the Dominion are to be found herds, let us say, of 12 or 24 cows, with a fairly good average yield of perhaps as high as 5,500 lbs. milk where the highest yield is close up to 8,000 lbs. milk, and 330 lbs. fat; but, where the lowest yield is only about 3,700 lbs. milk and 150 lbs. fat. Such comparisons are only made possible by noting the actual performance of each individual cow for her full milking period. Weigh and sample regularly and make sure that each cow brings in good profit.

LATE NEWS FROM MANY LOCALITIES

Boy Bandits In Pen.

Ottawa, Sept. 13.—To meet two boys, aged 11 and 12 years, serving each two-year terms in the penitentiary at Edmonton, Sask., for highway robbery, was the unique experience of W. P. Archibald, the Dominion parole officer.

One lad organized a gang of boys and fitted them out with revolvers. The children had to be put in the big penitentiary simply because the authorities had no other place for them.

Bowser For the Bench.

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 13.—The coast papers publish a story that Hon. W. J. Bowser, Atorney-General, will be appointed to the full court bench. Mr. Bowser mildly denies the story. In case he is appointed, McPhillips, K.C., would be Attorney-General.

A Guardian to Spend Money.

New York, Sept. 13.—Pennsylvania, New York and Washington relatives have had the court appoint a guardian to travel abroad with young Francis Depau, spend his money and keep from him the knowledge that he is weak-minded.

Leg Torn Off.

St. John, N.B., Sept. 13.—Saturday night Percy Campbell, six years old, climbed on the back of a carriage and getting his leg caught in the wheel had it torn off at the knee. The thigh bones were also badly broken. The boy is still alive.

Lineman's Bad Fall.

Brockville, Sept. 13.—A Bell Telephone Co. lineman, F. B. Dillfillan, narrowly escaped being killed near Gananoque by falling from a pole on which he was adjusting wires.

Sir Felix Schuster Coming

London, Sept. 13.—Sir Felix Schuster, the well-known British financier, will sail for New York to-day to deliver a lecture before the American Bankers' Association.

Kingston's Loss.

Kingston, Sept. 13.—Dr. John H. Bell, grand medical examiner, Canadian Order Chosen Friends, moving to Hamilton, was tendered a farewell at home in the city hall, attended by 600 citizens. He was presented with a diamond ring and gold-headed cane. He served two years as mayor, and was medical health officer for several years.

Aeroplane Exhibition for Military.

Jarville, France, Sept. 13.—Roger Sommer, the French aeroplanist, made a spectacular flight here yesterday, in view of 30,000 soldiers who are taking part in the war manoeuvres. He then made another flight, thrice crossing the River Meurthe and soaring over the highways and farms at a speed of 80 kilometers.

Found Body In Boat.

Brockville, Sept. 13.—Early yesterday morning a visitor to the water front in the vicinity of Wilkinson's coal dock found the dead body of John Marlow, aged 50, a coal cart driver, in a boat tied under the wharf. Marlow had been drinking and was in the habit of sleeping in such places.

Chinese Retaliate.

Kingston, Sept. 13.—In order to meet the high tax of $50, Chinamen have started to raise the price of laundry. It is expected the city council to-night will lower the license fee.

Dead From Injuries.

Woodstock, Sept. 13.—John McLean, who had a foot crushed at the C.P.R. station on Friday evening, died yesterday afternoon.

British Fleet Off Virginia.

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 13.—According to advices received at the British vice-consulate here, sixteen British battleships and cruisers are to engage in manoeuvres off this coast, with Hampton Roads as their base. All supplies, including coal and general stores, will be furnished from the cities of Hampton Roads.

..STYLE IN GLASSES..

There is no reason why persons with defective vision need disfigure their faces by wearing glasses of unsightly shape, entirely out of harmony with the contour of their features. There is style in glasses just as there is style in everything else to wear. There is some style or mounting that is "just the thing for your face" if you can only find it, and we are in a position to tell you all about all the different mountings, for we make frequent visits to the leading factories, and keep pace with all the improvements in mountings and lens grinding. We will take pleasure in helping you select a mounting to carry your lenses, that will be becoming, comfortable and secure.

We are showing now one of the Newest ideas in mounts, and we are selling a lot of them. We can adapt these to suit any person. When you have tried all other eyeglass mounts without success, come to us, we will guarantee to fit you to your entire satisfaction.

The uncut lenses we use are from the AMERICAN OPTICAL CO., the largest Optical House in the world. We buy these only in "First" quality, and grind them any shape or size. All work guaranteed.

PREPARATIONS FOR THE FAIR GOING AHEAD SPLENDIDLY

Many Local Merchants and Manufacturers Will Have Exhibits—Main Building Being Re-shingled—Midway Attractions.

Greater than ever will be the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

Secretary Hall and President Leary are as busy as North Pole discoverers and are being ably assisted by the directors in perfecting the details for the big fair. Superintendent J. J. Bennett is at work at the grounds with a force of men and the grand stand, main building, cattle pens and fences are being put in the best of shape. The stand is being thoroughly overhauled and a new roof is being put on the main building. Exhibitors can rest assured that exhibits in the main hall will be perfectly safe, no matter how heavy the rain may come down.

G. W. Walter Green Will have the same exhibit at the local fair as they had at Toronto Exhibition. It will be one of the attractions at the grounds.

The Brinton Carpet Company will also, it is understood, exhibit at the exhibition. Many of the merchants in the city have secured space for exhibits, and the display in the main building will eclipse that of any past year.

The exhibit of live stock will be a large one. The entries in this department are coming in fast.

The "Midway" will be a line of activity and noise. Some of the attractions will be as follows—

Le Drew's Reptile Household.
Old Plantation Show.
Great English novelty, Hoop-La.
Little Johnny Playfair.
Laughing Gallery.
Penny Arcade.
Knife stands.
Cane racks.
Honey ice cream cones.
Shooting gallery.
African dodger, real "Nig."
Mysterious East India Fortune Teller.
Egyptian palmists.
Merry-go-round.
Kicking Mule and her name was Maud.
Punch and Judy Show for the little ones.

BRADBURN HOMESTEAD TO BE CONVERTED INTO ORPHANAGE

Has Been Purchased by Roman Catholic Diocese of Peterborough for $17,000 — Children to be Removed From House of Providence.

Announcement was made at St. Peter's Cathedral by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, yesterday, that the Roman Catholic diocese of Peterborough had purchased from the Bradburn estate the Bradburn Homestead, between McDonnel and London streets. It is to be used as a Catholic orphanage, and it is expected that it will be occupied in this way before October 1st. The price paid was $17,000 and the deal has virtually been closed.

The property consists of two acres and there is on it a large brick house and a fine barn, also of brick. The property is bounded on the south by McDonnel street, on the north by London street, on the east by Stewart street, and on the west by Mr. D. W. Dumble's property. The location is an excellent one and the house can be made with a few alterations into an excellent home for the children.

At the present time there are about fifty child in the House of Providence This is contrary to the provincial law, which states that all children from two to sixteen years of age must be in a separate building from the old people. On his last two visits to the House of Providence, the government inspector, Dr. Bruce Smith, recommended that the children be placed in a separate building. It was impossible to do so at the time, however, and on account of the recommendation not being carried out, the government grant for the present year, amounting to $1,535.00, has been withheld. His Lordship, however, has hopes of securing the grant if the new home is occupied by Oct. 1st.

There are nearly one hundred inmates in the House of Providence at the present time, half of whom are children. The Bradburn house will provide accommodation for at least fifty inmates. The barn can also be connected into a dwelling if it is found that more accommodation is required.

His Lordship announced that sufficient money has been donated by members of the Catholic Church to cover the expense incurred in the purchase of the new home.

PHAMIE LOCKART IN THE BURGOMASTER

OLD MAN WAS SHOT AND KILLED

Special to the Review.

London, Sept. 13.—Harvey Scott, aged 75, living near Thorndale, was shot in the head and instantly killed by his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Wesley Scott, this morning. A neighbor, Joseph Vining, met Mrs. Scott, who was running along the road crying. She said: "You'll see what I've done when you go over there." In explanation of the murder she declared she could not stand the old man's threats and tortures any longer. The two families lived as neighbors.

George St. W. M. S.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of George street church will be held to-morrow afternoon at 3.30 o'clock in the church parlor.

The Return of the Burgomaster

Wm. P. Cullen will offer to the music lovers of this city on Thursday, September 16th, at the "Grand" Opera House, Pixley and Luder's justly famous comic opera, "The Burgomaster," with Mr. Harry Hermsen in his original part of "The Burgomaster." The supporting excellent company of fifty-four people complete what is termed "the best show in America." It comes here direct from a successful Chicago engagement, where it scored a greater success than on its first presentation. Electrical and scenic equipment are absolutely new this year. The same musical gems of yore are retained, the only new additions being especially written ones for exclusive use in this production. The big male chorus, as well as the Dainty Beauty Girls, are ever before you. It is said by people who know, that Manager Cullen has selected Eve's fairest daughters. The lavish display of costumes cost a modern fortune. Taken as a whole, "The Burgomaster" is to-day the premier of all operatic organizations. The plan opens to-morrow morning, Tuesday, Sept. 14th.

THEATRICAL SEASON HAS BEEN OPENED

"Faust" Presented by a Strong Company at the Grand Opera House on Saturday Night —Improvements to Theatre Please

With an excellent presentation of "Faust," as the attraction, the Grand Opera House opened for the season on Saturday night. Peterborough is not a good Saturday night "show" town, but despite this fact there was a large audience to witness the first theatrical production since the month of June. Many were the remarks made about the beauty of the opera house, to which many improvements have been made since last season. The interior has been repainted in a new shade and the decorations are most artistic. The local theatre is now one of the prettiest in Canada, and the proprietors are being complimented on all sides on the good work they have done.

The ever-popular "Faust" was given an enthusiastic reception, the presenting company being one of the strongest on the road.

Full advantage was taken of the possibilities for elaborate and beautiful stage effects, and many were the appliances which gave the scenes a weird and fantastic appearance.

Particularly brilliant was the scene on the Brocken in the fourth act, when the dance of the tormented demons ends up in a blaze of fire, with a most startling effect. The transfiguration of Marguerite in act five is also one of the most striking scenes in the production.

Miss Edna Porter proved an extremely attractive Marguerite, and her acting was very powerful. Mr. Geo. Timble, acted the devil in a very successful manner, though the devil's broadly humorous nature must have come as a surprise to many of the audience.

The orchestra is again in charge of Mr. R. J. Devey, and played exceedingly well on Saturday night. Mr. Charles Wesley has taken the place of Mr. Walter Hughes as cornetist.

The next attraction at the Grand is the old favorite "The Burgomaster," which will be presented on Thursday evening of this week.

THAT WATCH OF YOURS

Is in many respects similar to a railway engine. Let an engine be run without oil or cleaning and before long it will stop dead. Upon examination it will be found that the friction and wear and tear has ruined the machinery, and it is fit only for the scrap iron heap. Likewise your watch. You put it in your pocket, and while there is a kink in it, you, in your mistaken economy, do not consult the watchmaker, and consequently rob your watch of years of good service and also much of its former accuracy. The time-keeping qualities of a good watch are maintained and often improved by timely and skilful attention. If you have been one of the neglectful ones call around and see us.

THE PROTEST

The Examiner of Saturday night states that Mr. Stratton's motion coming up next Wednesday morning, is one more attempt to make Mr. Burnham "tell the whole truth" by disclosing the reports of his alleged detectives since, it is hinted, only by so doing can their possible crookedness on his behalf be disclosed. It is hardly necessary to say that this is not a correct statement of the situation. Wherever charges are made with respect to corrupt practices on the part of detectives Mr. Burnham answered the questions. There is no "privilege" or claimed privilege where wrong-doing of any sort by anybody is specified. The privilege claimed and sustained by the courts refers wholly to reports of detectives where no wrong-doing is alleged against them, this being simply a case of asking Mr. Burnham to disclose what the detectives reported. It is highly improper to discuss proceedings that are sub-judice, but it is not desirable that wrong impressions should go abroad.

Where a charge was made respecting detectives in the particulars of Mr. Stratton's cross-petition it was answered.

OBITUARY

EDWARD GEORGE ADAMS

Sincere sympathy will be extended Mr. and Mrs. William Adams, 509 Chamberlain street, in the loss sustained by they in the death of their infant son, Edward George, whose death occurred yesterday. The funeral took place this afternoon to Little Lake cemetery.

MR. PETER LARMONTH.

The Ottawa Journal says:—Mr. Peter Larmonth, accountant, and well-known resident of this city, died suddenly at his summer residence, "Ercildoune," Rideau Terrace, New Edinburgh, this morning. The death was very sudden as he was in his office as usual last Wednesday. He has suffered from neuralgia, of which he had a severe attack recently. He suffered considerably last night and a doctor had to be called in. He passed away at an early hour this morning. It is thought the neuralgia went to his heart, and that this hastened his end. He was not conscious at the time of his death.

Mr. Larmonth was widely known throughout Ottawa and had the respect of a large circle of friends.

He was born at Lachine, Quebec, 76 years ago, and coming to Ottawa had been a resident of the Capital for many years. He leaves a widow, two sons John Herbert Larmonth, an engineer, of Peterborough, Ont., and Norman G. Larmonth, a member of the firm of Chrysler, Bethune and Larmonth, Ottawa; three brothers, Messrs. John, Frederick and Alexander Larmonth, of Montreal, and one sister, Miss Larmonth, of Montreal.

Mr. Larmonth was a prominent member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church for many years. He served on the board of elders for a long period and was an elder at the time of his death. He was also chairman of the board that controlled the Glebe trustee 'fund' of that church. He took a great interest in this and other departments of this church.

Mr. Larmonth was also a member of the Ottawa Curling Club.

The funeral arrangements have not been completed until Mr. J. H. Larmonth, a son, arrives in the city from Peterborough.

ALBERT SEABROOK.

The death occurred in Toronto yesterday of Albert Seabrook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Seabrook, 629 Downie street, Peterborough. He passed away at the Western Hospital, Toronto, death being due to pneumonia, which followed an attack of typhoid fever. He was twenty years and six months of age, and had been working in Toronto since last fall. In addition to his parents he is survived by four brothers and three sisters. The brothers are Harry, of the third line of Smith, and Ben, Herman and Thomas, of Peterborough. The sisters are Mrs. Hugh Fletcher, Toronto, Miss Jennie of Toronto, and Miss Lizzie, of this city. They will have the sympathy of many friends in their bereavement.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from 629 Downie street, to Little Lake cemetery.

MRS. JAMES WALKER.

The death occurred yesterday of Esther J. Gillespie, wife of Mr. James Walker, at her late residence, lot 14, in the 13th concession of South Monaghan. The late Mrs. Walker, who was 44 years of age, had been a sufferer for a long time with heart disease. She was born in the township of Otonabee, and was a daughter of the late James Gillespie. Mrs. Joseph Stewart, of this city, is a sister.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon to the Little Lake cemetery.

Two Drunk and Disorderlies each Assessed $8.75 at Police Court This Morning

Con. Ryan and Edmund Park were each fined $5.00 and costs, amounting in all to $17.50 at the police court this morning. Neither possessed the necessary cobalt with which to pay the fine, and the magistrate ordered a fifteen-day term at Castle Nesbitt. Both were drunk and disorderly at the east end of Simcoe street yesterday. This accounts for the $5 fine.

Chamois Sedan Cloth

A Perfect Weave for Women who Love Perfect Dress

You haven't seen the ideal dress fabric until you have gazed upon this exquisite cloth, felt its smooth tissue like weave and become fascinated with its enchanting colorings. Words, poor weak things, portray but slightly its beauty and its worth.

What it is

Chamois Sedan Cloth is made after the same style as fine Chiffon Broadcloth. It has the same even weave, the same texture and the same rich colorings that made chiffons so popular.

For dresses of the better class it is going to be the reigning favorite for Fall. It comes in a wide range of colors and will appeal most strongly to those who like distinctive appareling.

WOLVES ARE KILLING SHEEP IN THE NORTH

Wolves are killing sheep near Haliburton. Mr. Andrew Dugan lost two and had another worried last week. At first it was thought to be the work of dogs, but Mr. Hainsworth saw a wolf in broad daylight on Tuesday, and now everyone knows their dogs would not kill sheep.—Minden Echo.

HOTELMAN GETS HIS LIBERTY

James Simpson, the Kinmount hotelkeeper, who was sentenced some time ago to a four months' term in gaol, for selling liquor without a license, has been released upon the authority of the Assistant Deputy-Attorney-General, Edward Bayley. Simpson had nineteen days of his sentence to serve when he was liberated.

NEW LODGE OF "TRUE BLUES"

Has Been Organized at Hall's Bridge—Is in Flourishing Condition

What proved to be a very profitable meeting of the Loyal True Blue Association took place on Saturday evening, Sept. 11th, at Hall's Bridge, when one more lodge was added in this district. When the brethren that went up from the city arrived, they found that the members were already in their hall and ready for the ceremony. This new branch of the Order is in the best of condition. Besides owning their hall and furniture, they have a large bank account for the treasury, possibly the most wealthy lodge in the county. They were well prepared for the opening of the lodge and have a banner costing nearly one hundred dollars, and expensive band instruments, and to say that they know how to entertain visiting brethren is a very mild expression.

After the organization had been formed, the officers duly elected, and installed the members and visiting brethren sat down to a neat and tasty luncheon, and after hearty good wishes to each, the meeting was brought to a close, having been profitable in every way.

Bro. M. E. Ketcheson, district organizer is much pleased over the prospects in this lodge, and has never presided over a meeting where more agreeable and more earnest endeavor were put forth.

A lodge for ladies is being organized at the same village, and it is expected the night of organizing, the local lodges of the city will go up in hacks to assist in the opening.

Following is a list of the officers of the lodge organized Saturday evening:—

WHEN MRS. EDDY DIES THEN WHAT?

The following letter to Mr. R. J. Todd, 456 Aylmer street, this city, will be of interest to some of the Review's readers;

Mr. R. J. Todd, 456 Aylmer street,
Peterborough, Ontario;

Dear Mr. Todd,—Your letter of the 31st ult. was received here in due time, but it was utterly impossible for me to give it attention at that time.

I desire to say that it would not be very good taste for me to speculate as to what would happen on the event of our leader's death. I do not know anything to say and it would seem not even polite to speculate. Whether or not the church has ever considered what the church government would be I do not know. Already Mrs. Eddy's works have taken her place in a large measure. So that you will kindly tell your editor I know no more about what will happen than he does, and although my speculation might be more intelligent than that of those who are less informed respecting the Christian Science movement, it would still be speculation, and nothing more, and it does not seem wise to me that I should write a speculative story.

I do not disapprove of the writing of fiction, but I have never yet gone into it.

Yours sincerely,
ALFRED FARLOW.

SPORTING NEWS

RUGBY PROSPECTS FOR LINDSAY THIS SEASON

A meeting of the Lindsay Rugby Club will be held on Tuesday evening in the Simpson House parlors at 8 o'clock for the purpose of considering Rugby prospects for the coming fall. A large attendance is requested.

The team of last year brought honor and glory to the town by winning the junior O.R.F.U. and although many of last year's players have left town, still it is felt that there is plenty of material in town to select a team to defend the title of junior champions.

The boys received very little support last year, there being often more players on the grounds at the game than there were spectators. Moreover the boys paid their own expenses and that meant a considerable outlay. Their record was both a proud and remarkable one, far more remarkable than was ever achieved by any local sporting organization, but it was not recognized by the citizens.

If the organization of the club is effected Tuesday evening, it is to be hoped that the boys will receive loyal support.

BRINTON FOOTBALL TEAM AFTER THE HALL TROPHY

The Brinton Carpet Co. football team are looking for the R. R. Hall trophy which is emblematic of the championship of Peterborough County. They are out with a challenge to meet all comers at the Peterborough Fair and it is hoped that some of the teams in the county will accept the defi. The Brintons mean business and have started practice to be in the best of shape to meet every opponent.

HOWDEN-EASTWOOD TROPHIES HAVE NEW OWNERS THIS YEAR

Harry Woods Carries Off Senior Honors and Egbert Kelly Wins in Junior Section—Great Sport at Riverside Park Saturday Afternoon.

Harry Woods, a young man who arrived here from England not long ago, will hold the Howden trophy for 1909-10, and Egbert Kelly, a young Peterborough athlete, and a member of the T.A.S.A.C., will be the holder of the Eastwood trophy for the same period. Woods captured the Howden cup by winning two firsts and a second in the games at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon. Kelly took a larger share of the honors in the junior department, having to his credit two firsts, two seconds, one third, and tieing for second place in the running high jump.

The standing of the first three athletes in the two competitions was as follows:—

HOWDEN TROPHY.

1—H. Woods, two firsts and one second, 13 points.

2—Stanley Canniff, two firsts and one third, 11 points.

x—"Dick" Evans, one first and two thirds, 7 points.

x—Vincent Corkery, two seconds and one third, 7 points.

xTied for third place.

EASTWOOD TROPHY.

1—Egbert Kelly, two firsts, two seconds, a tie for second, and one third, 19 points.

2—Walter Perks, two firsts and two thirds, 12 points.

3—Rollie Howden, one first, a tie for second, and one second, 10 points.

The games, which are held annually, and are under Y.M.C.A. auspices, attracted a large number of spectators, who were delighted with the afternoon's sport. There was a large entry list and every event was well contested. The junior events were no less interesting than the senior ones, the youngsters entering into the contests of speed, skill and strength with the greatest of vim. The best athletes in the city competed and two or three of the finishes brought the crowd in the grand stand to its feet. Probably the two most exciting events were the 100 and 220-yard dashes in the senior division. The fight was between Woods and Vincent Corkery, and the former won both events by inches. Corkery's defeat in the hundred was unexpected, and it was thought that he would carry off the 220. In the latter, however, he stumbled in making a turn on account of running into one of the flags marking the course, and lost his stride. Coming down the north side of the field he crept up on Woods, and it was a great race down the stretch in front of the grand stand. Woods finished strong and reached the tape less than six inches ahead of his rival. Both boys ran in splendid form, the time in the hundred being 11 seconds. When it is taken into consideration that it was a grass track, the time for the century is worthy of note. Both Woods and Corkery will stand watching in the sprinting game in this part of the province.

Egbert Kelly showed class in the running broad jump and putting the eight-pound shot, winning both with a good margin to spare. He took second in both dashes, 100 and 220 yards, tied Rollie Howden for second place in the high jump, and was third in the half mile. Rollie Howden got a poor start in the final of the hundred and dropped out after taking a couple of strides. The other four competitors got away nicely and Perks, who is a comer in the sprinting game, beat out Kelly by inches.

The results were as follows:—

Stanley Canniff cleaned up in the high jump and putting the shot, and "Dick" Evans had to exert himself in the long jump, "Bill" Cahill being only two inches behind him. R. G. Sturgeon could not resist the opportunity to heave the 12-lb. shot, and he was good enough for second place. Jack McDonough also competed in this event.

W. A. Bailey took part in most of the senior events, and while he failed to land any of the honors, he showed that he is by no means a "has-been." He loves amateur athletics, and can't keep away from a meet like that of Saturday afternoon.

In the one mile Geo. Robinson, who might be mistaken for Alf. Shrubb, had an easy victory. He got away from Jimmy McMartin, the Otonabee boy, who set the pace for the first lap. McMartin was second and O'Donnell third. Woods dropped out on the third lap.

Nagle Phelan made a good showing in the junior events and will be heard of later.

In the half mile, open, Charlie Thorpe trailed Brown to within thirty feet of the finish and then won out with a sprint. Charlie thought there was another lap to go and was taking it easy till he noticed that the tape was but a few yards away. Then he cut loose with a splendid stride. H. Lees, a youngster, was third.

Rollie Howden won the quarter-mile open without being pushed.

The sports were splendidly conducted, and the officials deserve much credit. The track was well laid out and there was no delay or confusion. The track was five laps to the mile.

The officials were as follows:

Judges—Mr. J. J. Howden, Mr. V. Eastwood, Mr. H. R. H. Kenner.

Timers—H. Clarke, R. M. Glover.

Referee—D. B. MacRae.

Starter—Fred McGrath.

Clerks of Course—Mr. Chas. Sisson and Mr. George Armstrong.

OTHER PRIZES.

In addition to the Howden and Eastwood trophies, which are held by the winners for one year, the following prizes were distributed:—

Second place, Howden trophy—Gillett razor.

Third place, Howden trophy—Watch fob.

Second place, Eastwood trophy—Fountain pen.

Third place, Eastwood trophy—Sweater.

First place, men's half mile, open—Coat sweater.

Second place, men's half mile, open—Military hair brush.

First place, boys' quarter-mile—Pair of skates.

Second place, boys' quarter-mile—Running shoes.

RUGBY

The first rugby practice of the season was held at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon at the conclusion of the Howden-Eastwood sports. About a dozen punted and caught the pigskin, "Ab." Quinlan being among those out. From present indications the game is going to boom here this fall as it has never been before.

Jack Crough is expected home from the west this week and will be found wearing the rugby togs again this fall. He will add strength to the back division of the Peterboroughs.

SPORTING TALK

Peterborough is developing a fine lot of athletes. Many of them are youngsters, but will be in the front rank in a year or two. It was a pleasure to see the fine spirit shown by the boys in the games at Riverside Park on Saturday. While everyone did his best to win, the losers took defeat like true sportsmen and were the first to congratulate the victors. It is easy to be a good winner, but good losers are too scarce.

And some people are afflicted with the [illegible]

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

A cup of cold water before retiring and a cup of hot water in the morning before breakfast work like magic as a cure for indigestion.

Almond meal is preferred by some women to soap and acts as a pleasing alternative to soap at any time. This softens, cleanses and whitens the skin.

The most easily digested foods which contain the greatest amount of nourishment and are free from acids and starches are those best adapted to the child's needs.

A glass of warm water before breakfast is a tonic for the whole system. If the complexion is in need of improvement try squeezing half a lemon into the water just before drinking.

Have as nice towels as you can afford, but pay less attention to the quality than to their cleanliness. There is little use of careful scrubbing if a half soiled towel is used for drying.

Sties almost invariably indicate a weakened condition of the system, but external applications relieve and better the lids. A pomade for the purpose is made from four grams white vaseline and five centigrams each of white precipitate and oil of birch. This is applied at night. A drop of belladonna on a lump of sugar is an old fashioned remedy that is taken when symptoms of a sty are first manifested. At the same time the lids are to be bathed in warm elder flower water.

A skin whitening preparation that can be easily made at home is in the proportion of two tablespoonfuls of oatmeal, a half tablespoonful of powdered borax and a half pint of rose water. Let the mixture stand three days, strain and add a half ounce of alcohol. The addition of the alcohol prevents the souring which is the drawback to so many oatmeal preparations. If preferred, instead of using all oatmeal it can be mixed with half this bulk of almond meal. Either of these washes makes the skin feel soft and smooth if rubbed on the hands or face after washing.

The biggest problem of all to the woman who would keep her good looks is the matter of wrinkles. A generation ago she gave up without a fight, but since the coming of massage and simple devices of all sorts she dares no longer indulge in such disfiguration as long as it may be prevented. One woman's simple cure-all is the cream bath. She dabs her face with hot water until it is heated thoroughly, then applies the cream fresh from the dairy, letting it dry on her face. She puts on more cream, massaging it into the wrinkles particularly. It is then washed with warm water and lightly powdered.

Nail Polish In Tubes.

The latest toilet novelty is a nail polish which comes in a tube and can be pressed out like artists' pigments. The polish itself is of a consistency between a cream and a liquid, easy to put on.

The case is a neat little one, nickel plated, with a top that pulls off, and furnished with an ejector to force out the enamel.

Gored by Bull.

Port Hope, Sept. 13.—Eph Corbett, a farmer, aged 55, a brother of Dr. Corbett of this town, was badly gored by a bull Saturday afternoon. His thigh was broken and he was bruised about the head. His son Harry was almost killed a year ago by the same bull.

Grim Coincidence In Fatalities.

Middletown, N.Y., Sept. 13.—Frank Taylor, 40 years old, was killed by a fast train yesterday at the same hour and on the same grade crossing where his five-year-old son was killed five days ago. Fire destroyed his house a few days before his boy's death.

AFTER SUFFERING TEN YEARS

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

MARLTON, N.J.—I feel that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has given me new life. I suffered for ten years with serious female troubles, inflammation, ulceration, indigestion, nervousness, and could not sleep. Doctors gave me up, as they said my troubles were chronic. I was in despair, and did not care whether I lived or died, when I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; so I began to take it, and am well again and relieved of all my suffering."—Mrs. GEORGE JORDY, Box 40, Marlton, N.J.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., from women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaints, inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration. Every suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

ARE SUCCESSFUL AT SIOUX FALLS

Two Former Peterborough Men are Getting Along Well

The Sioux Falls Daily Press, of Sept. 14th, contains the following item:—

Warden Swenson of the South Dakota state penitentiary, has made his first report to the board of charities and corrections upon the operation of the new twine plant built this year at the penitentiary. Practically no work was done the first month and a half, as it took that long to acquaint the men with their tasks and the machinery and to adjust the machinery. However, Swenson has counted that month and a half in the period for which he has reported, and he still shows a profit to the state of $4,000. Upon this showing it is certain that annual profits from the operation of the plant will reach $12,000 to $15,000. Still more could be realised if the convicts were numerous enough to supply a full working force.

The authorities having the penitentiary in charge have already discovered the disadvantages of competing with a trust. The International Harvester Company is in the twine business and makes a practice of buying enough of the supply of raw material to force up the market and make a neat market for themselves out of the raw material bought by competitors. For example, the price of sisal has gone up in the last six weeks from about 5 cents laid down at the penitentiary here to about 7 cents. However, the authorities have succeeded in buying perhaps enough hemp to last through the season and considerably lower prices than must be paid now.

The above is of special interest to many Review readers, as the manager of the business referred to is Mr. Thomas P. O'Connor for some years Superintendent of the Cordage Mill in this city. His assistant is Mr. J. B. Noyes, also a former resident of Peterborough, and connected with the Canadian Cordage Co. from its inception until a few months ago, when he went west on Mr. Connor's invitation. Mr. Connor's family still reside here, and they and his many friends in town are looking forward to a visit from him soon, now that the twine season rush is over for another year.

Woman's World

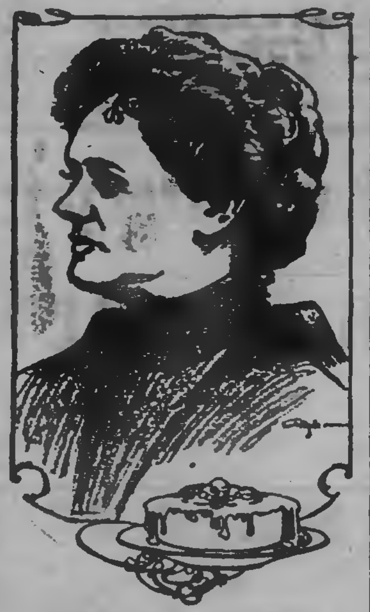
"THE DEVIL'S FRUIT CAKE."

Mrs. Wilson of Nashville, Baker Extraordinary to the World at Large.

Here is the story of a woman who finds herself famous without malice aforethought upon her part. A career has, in fact, thrust itself upon her. All she has done has been to develop an inborn art impulse, a rather wonderful palate, not along the lines of least resistance, but of most profit. As a consequence she has kings and noblemen, presidents and cabinet ministers, not to mention simple millionaires, among her patrons. The truly wonderful thing is that it all comes not from ambition, but from doing woman's work in what should be woman's way, which is to say better than ever it was done before.

So much for the general particulars. Here follow others much more interesting: Name, Elizabeth Lyle Wilson; local habitation, Nashville, Tenn.; condition, happy wife and mother; profession, cakemaker in extraordinary to the world at large. And such cake as she makes! To eat of it is something betwixt an experience and an epoch. Indeed, it leaves a haunting memory, an aching void which only more of the same cake can fill.

Small wonder, then, that no less a person than William Howard Taft has served in a way as the cake's press agent.



MRS. ELIZABETH LYLE WILSON.

Mr. Taft while at Nashville, just before the 4th of March, ate of her "devil's fruit cake," which is innocuous to sound digestion despite its name. It captivated him. He took back with him to Washington a generous sample. As a consequence Mrs. Wilson has received orders for several cakes to be sent to the White House at Christmastide. She has express receipts showing that her cakes have been delivered at the courts of Vienna and St. James; also to all the American duchesses and not a few other expatriates. They have gone safe as far as Australia and Brazil and even into Russia. Mrs. Wilson never saw the inside of a cooking school. All she has done is through nature's free gift. When she married, back in the nineties, homemaking and homekeeping were, as they still are, her delight. She had not the least thought of doing more than delight the palates of her family and her friends. From baking for her friends she drifted into regular work, much against her husband's will. He was taking care of that family. Still, the venture has not bred family dissension. How could it when through her work the worker has found not only profit, but happiness and health?

The maker of this delicious cake has very generously given the recipe for the dainty:

One pound of flour, browned and sifted; one pound of butter, one pound of sugar, twelve eggs, four pounds of raisins, one pound of homemade citron, one pound of crystallised cherries and pineapple mixed, one pound of almonds cut fine and soaked overnight in rosewater, one pound of pecan meats cut small, one glass grape jelly, half a glass good cordial, one glass of good whisky or brandy, tablespoonful each of powdered allspice, cinnamon and nutmeg and teaspoonful of powdered cloves. Soak all the fruit twelve hours in the whisky, cream together butter and sugar, add to them egg yolks beaten very light, then the cordial, spices and jelly. Put in next two teaspoonfuls of melted chocolate, next add the white of eggs beaten stiff and part of the flour. Roll the fruit in the rest of the flour and add to the mixture. Put in nuts last of all. If nuts are left out put in a third more fruit. Bake several hours, keeping a vessel of water in the oven until almost done.

When the Wind Blows.

In an old house with its loose framework sensitive natures are often driven half wild by the rattling of windows on a blustery night. It is a good thing in preparation for such emergency to keep in each room four or five split clothespins to be used as wedges between the upper and lower sash.

Stout clothespins can also be forced into the latch of a cellar window in such a way that it is impossible to open it from the outside. This is a convenient bit of knowledge when catches so frequently break or the keys of padlocks get mislaid.

When Cook and Peary meet it is expected they will unbelt language indicating that the North Pole is the hottest place on earth.

STAY-AT-HOMES.

Duties of Sweet June Graduates Who Eschew Professional Life.

With the passing of June school life will end for many a girl. Some will elect to take up a profession or business. The girl who stays at home will probably give the matter no consideration whatever, but she should.

She has just as important work awaiting her in the home as has the girl in an office. Her decision will affect her future life quite as much as though she were taking up a profession. It is quite important to the family and to herself what kind of home girl she will be.

If she is going to be the home girl who comes down late to a breakfast her mother has prepared, who idles through the morning dawdling in the shops or gossiping with friends, who wastes the afternoons and evenings in mere gossip or gayeties, home life will be a decided disadvantage to her. She will deteriorate morally and mentally. She will grow selfish and lazy. No girl should permit herself to become this sort of home girl, even though her mother may want to indulge her or the family circumstances may permit of idleness. It is not enough merely to live. An animal can do that. One should live to some purpose.

A certain amount of gayeties and pleasures are right and necessary. Girlhood needs them. But not all one's time should be given up to them. Life demands of a healthy, bright, forceful girl something more worth while. Pleasure should be given its proper place and proportion in the day's affairs, like the dessert on the menu. One cannot live on it altogether without becoming flabby and unhealthy.

The girl who stays at home should take her share of the household tasks. The time has come to lift some of the burdens from mother's shoulders, to give more time and sympathetic attention to the interests of the younger members of the family, to add to father's pleasure in the family circle of an evening. The girl who is home with mind free from lessons and time to study the home life in all its details will find plenty to do to help and to make it happier. And the girl who stays at home should do it. A study of household economics might be of greatest aid in lessening the household expenses or lightening the burden of its toil. She will be a wise girl if she takes this up. She has elected to make home work her life work, and she should bend all efforts to do it as scientifically and intelligently as possible. She will get far more pleasure out of it also if she goes about it in the most up to date manner.

The girl who stays at home should take an intelligent interest in the affairs of the community about her. Sunday schools and charitable organizations need workers. Business women are too busy and too tired to do much of such work. Justice to themselves demands that they rest and recuperate when their day's task is over. The girl who stays at home can also help much now in many civic affairs.

The girl who stays at home should not shirk such responsibilities. They will broaden her life, make it more useful and happier. And when she goes to a home of her own she is better fitted to manage it and to make it a haven of love and rest for her own and a power for good for the community.

Best Man In the Service.

When Commissioner Leupp of the Indian bureau searched the records of his department "for the best man in his service" to send to the Mission reservations in California he picked Miss Clara True. His reason for desiring the most capable man in his service was because of the desperate condition into which the Mission Indians had fallen through the operations of a strong whisky ring which had established a strong hold on the Indians and which never had been successfully coped with. Miss True has already won marked success in the same line of work at the Morongo reservation, in California. Here the liquor evil had become a scourge, and the Indians were notorious throughout the state for their lawlessness.

What that little woman endured in her struggle to evict the whisky ring that had operated at such profit for years her eastern sisters can scarcely realize. She was first offered bribes, then intimidation of every sort, from the circulation of unpleasant stories about her to anonymous letters threatening death, and finally she was shot at from ambush. And in addition to all this trouble with the whisky men she was forced to fight land thieves and cattlemen who had been in the habit of using Indian land as though it was their own. But in the end she was the victor, and the Mission reservation is rapidly becoming one of the models of the Indian office.

Miss True weighs only 110 pounds, but she is as lithe as years of riding in the saddle can make her. She is approaching her fortieth birthday.

An Inspiration.

When a fair young girl with sunny hair, red lips, white teeth and gentle manners is seen earning her living and her mother attending to marketing and meals it can but rouse every spark of decency and chivalry in the young men. Perhaps they think, "But for father or brother my mother and sister might be doing the same for a lot of us fellows, and I'd punch the head of any one who was impolite or disrespectful."

Match the sunshine with your smiles. Help the birds in filling the earth with music. Feel yourself a part of this busy, happy, awakening world and show it by your looks and acts.

In the sailor's family the father is the mainstay, and the father the speaker. [illegible]

GRATITUDE OF THIEVES.

Their Longing For Association With Honest Men.

The thief in the community is very much like the boy whose meanness or ruffianism has caused the other little children to band together to ostracize him. He may move about with a sullen swagger, carry a chip on his shoulder and a vicious gleam in his eye, but there is always a sob in his throat. So the thief is longing and aching to get back in the circle out of which he has been ruled.

If any honest man wants to meet lively gratitude let him knowingly give the countenance of his company to a crook. It will be a favor never forgotten. Every lawyer practicing at the criminal bar knows this. One very well known practitioner of genial personality and large tolerance occasionally takes a client to dinner at a good restaurant or braves an appearance with him at a theater. There have been embarrassing results, due to the criminal's gratitude.

"After one of these evenings," the lawyer laughingly told me, "I'm kept for days dodging and returning presents sent by the crook—watches, scarfpins, cuff links, now and then a valuable painting or a Persian rug—all belonging to somebody else."—Everybody's Magazine.

Take a Friend's Advice

And do not neglect your Fire Insurance at any period of the year. It is the best friend you have got in case of accidental fire—which the utmost caution will not not always prevent. It is far better to take out a policy in a good Company and be on the safe side. Remember you cannot insure AFTER the fire, only before.

ALBERT STREET NOT A "PARADISE ALLEY"

Women Neighbors Said Things About Each Other—Young Girl Claimed She Got Struck in the Nose—Police Court Case This Morning.

There was a hot time on Albert street Friday evening and a hotter time at the police court this morning as a result. Mrs. Sheppard and Mrs. McGill have not been on speaking terms for several months, and matters reached a critical point on the above mentioned date during a stormy meeting between the fifteen year old daughter of Mrs. Sheppard and Mrs. McGill, and the particulars of the fray and the incidents leading up to it were told in the police court this morning when the young girl charged Mrs. McGill wiht assaulting her by means of a blow on the nose.

The Magistrate, after he had heard all the evidence furnished by both sides, dismissed the case. Mr. G. N. Gordon was present in the interest of the defendant.

The complainant stated that on Friday evening while talking to Jack Fraser, Mrs. McGill arrived on the scene and said: "Your mother called me an old thing. I'll show you whether I'm an old thing or not," and with that struck her on the nose.

Wm. Willard, who resides on Albert street, and from the verandah of his house viewed the affair, said there had been no blow struck. The two were having some words over certain things, which Mrs. McGill alleged that Mrs. Sheppard had said about her. Mrs. Shepherd came out of her house and wanted to fight Mrs. McGill, but the latter told her to back in again, as she wouldn't dirty her hands with her.

Mrs. McGill, in her evidence, denied striking the complainant, and as the statments of the many witnesses were contradictory Magistrate Dumble dismissed the case.

Drunk and Disorderly Alarmed the Citizens Saturday Afternoon Was Fined $8.75

Seymour Forsythe, a resident of Bridgenorth, came in to see the city on Saturday and imbibed too freely of the cup that causes trouble. In the afternoon he wandered up to the north end of Aylmer street and alarmed the peaceful citizens of that street by his crazy actions. He threw stones at every person who came near him and his language was not of the variety that pleases. This morning at police court he was charged $8.57, and advised to remain at home in Bridgenorth in the future.

FLOWER SUNDAY WAS OBSERVED

At St. John's Church Yesterday — Rev. Mr. Montgomery, Port Hope Preached Eloquent Sermon

Yesterday was scholars' flower Sunday at St. John's, and about 250 took part in the beautiful special service in the church at 3 o'clock p.m. Led by the choir singing Onward Christian Soldiers, class by class the scholars moved in a large procession to the church. The regular church service was used up to the collect, after which the floral decoration of the cross began. A large cross was placed at the altar rails pierced with hundreds of holes and fitted up with electric lights. Each scholar placed a white aster in one of the holes, under the guidance of Mrs. R. J. Devey and Miss Maud Rush, and presented a bouquet of flowers and money offerings. The choir boys followed by filling the centre of the cross and then the tiny tots from four years old commenced at the foot until with the Bible class girls the cross was filled with lovely blooms.

The Rev. Mr. Montgomery, of Port Hope, gave a most eloquent address taking "Flowers" as his text, and drawing many lessons from them, helpful to the Christian life. The service was choral throughout, especially noticeable being the hearty singing of "All Things Bright and Beautiful."

Two tables under the altar-rails were filled with bouquets, and at the evening service the cross was illuminated, many of the congregation remaining for a closer view of the floral offerings. The festival was arranged by the Sunday school superintendent, splendidly aided by all the teachers and officers.

WEDDING BELLS

McLAREN—BERRY

A very pretty wedding took place in Centreville Presbyterian church on Wednesday, Sept. 8th, at 1 p.m., when Miss Matie Evangeline Berry, daughter of Deputy-Reeve Mr. George P. Berry, of Cavan, was united in marriage to Mr. William Glenroy McLaren, a prosperous merchant of Souris, Manitoba.

The church was beautifully decorated. The bride was given away by her father and entered the church to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march played by Miss Maggie Berry, sister of the bride. The bride looked handsome in a princess gown of cream duchess satin, tulle veil and carried an ivory bound Bible. She wore the groom's gift, a beautiful necklace and sunburst of pearls. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Edna M. Evans, of Norham, and was gowned in pink silk.

Mr. William A. O'Brien, of Millbrook, ably assisted the groom.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. D. A. McKenzie, B.A.

The ushers were Mr. James Campbell and Mr. Fred Anderson.

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a sheaf of pearls and to the groomsman a pair of gold cuff links.

After the ceremony a reception was held at "Glenhurst," the residence of the bride's parents, where the guests partook of a dainty dejeuner served on the beautiful and spacious lawn.

The bride was the recipient of many valuable gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. McLaren took the five p.m. train for Stony Lake and other points of interest. The bride's going-away dress was stone blue broadcloth.

After a short visit among friends in Western Ontario the happy couple will go to their home in Souris.

They carry with them the best wishes of a large circle of friends for future prosperity and happiness.

GRUBBE—SEYMOUR LUCAS

The following will be of interest to a well-known Peterborough family:

"There is always something peculiarly charming about the marriage of a great artist's daughter, and this was specially the case with that of Miss Seymour Lucas, for both her father and mother come of highly artistic stock, in fact through her mother Miss Seymour Lucas is said to be descended from [illegible]. The famous R.A. is not, however, marrying a painter, but a soldier. The marriage of Captain Laurence Carrington Grubbe, son of the late John Eustace Grubbe, of Horsenden Manor, Princes Risborough, Buckinghamshire, and Southwold by the Sea, Suffolk, and Miss Marie Eileen Seymour Lucas, only daughter of Mr. Seymour Lucas, the distinguished Royal Academician, took place yesterday at St. Mary's Kilburn. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Noyes, the Rev. Hall Grubbe, Vicar of Ardleigh, brother of the groom. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a soft white satin princess gown, trimmed with Honiton lace and pearls, and a tulle veil over a coronet of orange blossoms. The three bridesmaids wore soft white embroidered muslin dresses trimmed with lace and Charlotte Corday hats trimmed with roses. They carried bouquets of roses which, with gold curb bracelets, were the gifts of the bridegroom. After the ceremony a reception was held at New Place, Woodchurch road, Hampstead. Princess Louise, Duchess of Argyle, sent the bride an amethyst and diamond pendant, surmounted by a diamond true-lover's knot. The president of the Society of Antiquaries gave a copy of an antique mazer bowl and many leading R. A.'s sent works of their own as wedding presents."—The Daily Graphic.

HAULTAIN—CRONYN

At St. Stephen's Church on Saturday morning, the marriage of Miss Frances Muriel Cronyn, daughter of Mr. Benjamin Cronyn, and granddaughter of the late Bishop Cronyn, to Mr. Herbert E. T. Haultain, youngest son of the late Major-General F. M. Haultain, took place quietly, the Rev. Canon Broughall and Rev. J. S. Broughall officiating. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. Charles B. Cronyn, and wore a pretty travelling dress of rajah silk, with cream hat and cluster of pink roses. Miss Edith Hewitt, Brantford, was bridesmaid, in pale blue satin, black plumed hat, and gold chrysanthemums. The Hon. Frederick Haultain, N.W.T., was best man, and only relatives and intimate friends were present. Mr. and Mrs. Haultain left for the north after the ceremony, and on their return will reside in Deer Park.—Toronto Globe.

GAVE THE BOYS A "TRIMMIMG"

Two small boys with a small rifle aroused the ire of a canoeist down the river yesterday afternoon. They were firing at random and one of the bullets whizzed over the head of a canoeist who was paddling with a young lady. He paddled to the shore, landed in such haste that he got his feet wet, and nailed the boys like Peary did the North Pole. They will likely use more caution in shooting in the future.

MIDDLESEX WOMAN ACCUSED OF SLAYING FATHER-IN-LAW

Harvey Scott, Aged 75, is Found Dead With Bullet Behind Ear and Mrs. Wesley Scott is Arrested, Charged With the Crime.

London, Sept. 14.—Mrs. Wesley Scott of the 5th concession of Nissouri, was placed under arrest last evening by High Constable Hughes, charged with the murder of her father-in-law, Harvey Scott, aged 75. She is now lodged in the county jail here.

The shooting took place yesterday morning at 7.30 at the son's home, while the husband was away at a threshing.

Mrs. Scott was observed running down the road and crying by Jos. Vining, about 8 o'clock.

"What's the matter?" he asked, and she replied, vaguely, "You'll see what I have done when you get up there."

Vining found the old man stretched out on the ground at the rear of the house, dead. There was the wound of a 32-calibre bullet behind the ear.

Mrs. Scott admitted to Dr. Armstrong, who was called, and also to Jos. Vining, the first to arrive on the scene, that she had done the shooting. She said that she had been laboring under his threats and tortures for years and could stand them no longer.

On enquiry of the husband, he stated that for years his father had abused him and his wife. Scott showed many marks that he received from blows delivered by the father.

"My father," he said, "used to go to the house and abuse my wife and on many occasions took a club to her. At one time she had him arrested and up in court at Thorndale for beating her. He was fined a small sum and let go."

All the neighbors state that it is a wonder that the woman has stood the old man's abuse as long as she had, and they are all of the opinion that she did the shooting while in a fit of temporary insanity brought on by his constant abuse.

The two families of Scotts live side by side on the 5th concession of West Nissouri, the old man living alone. The other household consists of Wesley Scott, his wife and one daughter, who is about 15 years old. The homes are between two and three miles east of Thorndale.

Mrs. Scott, sr., stated that she was the second wife of the deceased. She said that he had always been a model husband to her; he never abused her.

The son, Wesley, said that his mother had died of heart failure some 22 years ago. The neighbors stated that just before she died a kettle of boiling water had been spilt on her breast, and they went so far as to charge her husband with throwing her out of the loft on two occasions, breaking her leg.

An inquest was opened yesterday afternoon at the Scott home. After viewing the body the inquest adjourned to meet on Friday evening in Thorndale. Coroner Hughes of this city is in charge of the inquest.

Dr. Armstrong from Thorndale conducted a post-mortem examination after the jury had viewed the remains.

The shooting was done with a 32-calibre revolver, which Wesley Scott says has been in their house for years.

"I was surprised to hear that my wife had shot my father. I would not have been surprised had he shot her, as he often threatened to shoot both her and me," he said.

BOY BURGLAR KILLS HIMSELF

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 14.—Rather than face arrest for burglary, John Washburn, aged 13, who lived with his parents at Hastings, yesterday afternoon turned and fired a shot at a posse of sixteen men who were pursuing him through the woods, then placing the revolver to his head, blew out his brains.

The pursuit followed a burglary committed some time Sunday night, two stores near Fruitport being entered and ransacked, and guns, revolvers and ammunition stolen.

Suspicion centred on young Washburn, who was seen near his home firing at a target.

To Lease Kingston Dry Dock.

Kingston, Sept. 19.—As a result of complaints from vessel-owners and the Marine Underwriters' Association, that the Kingston Government dry dock has not the necessary facilities for repairs, thus detaining vessels too long a time, the Public Works Department of the Dominion Government is calling for tenders to lease it.

WAS CRUSHED BY LOAD OF PIGS

Toronto, Sept. 14.—Herbert Willing, a farm laborer, employed by Alexander Featherstone of Streetsville, was fatally injured on the Lake Shore road near Port Credit Saturday afternoon, and died in a few hours at Streetsville. He was taking home from the exhibition a load of hogs, when one of the horses took fright and upset the wagon, the crate pinning Willing against the telephone pole, crushing him badly.

Cremation In Home.

Underwood, Ont., Sept. 14.—Donald McPhail, aged 75, one of Bruce Township's pioneers, was yesterday cremated.

He lived alone on his farm. About 11 o'clock neighbors noticed smoke and flame, but were unable to gain entrance. Later, the charred remains were found. He leaves a son in Arcola, Sask., and two daughters in Michigan.

TWO MEN FATALLY INJURED IN EXPLOSION AT SMELTER

Three Poles Were Sitting by the Settler Eating Their Lunch at Victoria Mines When the Water Jacket Broke and Men Deluged With Molten Metal.

Victoria Mines, Ont., Sept. 14.—A fatal explosion occurred in the smelter here at 1.30 on Sunday morning. One man has died and two others have been badly burned. The water jacket surrounding the settler broke, and the contact of the water and the white heat of the settler caused the accident. Three attendants, all Poles, were sitting close by, eating their midnight meal, and were without a moment's warning deluged with molten metal, brick and scrap iron. One man lived until 10 a.m. on Sunday, and died when they were placing him on a special train, provided by the company, to be brought to St. Joseph's Hospital.

A second man was brought to the hospital on the special, but died at 9 o'clock at night. The third man will get better. The flesh of all three was practically roasted off them.

Dr. Patterson of Sudbury was summoned by wire at 2 a.m. and drove out and attended to the suffering, returning on the special with the one taken to St. Joseph's Hospital. It is stated that the wife and three children of Fred Gouin are now going to Victoria Mines to reside. An inquest will probably be held. The Mond Nickel Co. placed every possible facility at the disposal of Dr. Patterson in his efforts to save the lives of the men. The plant immediately closed down, and was not reopened again until to-day, when a few of the officials from England was present.

"THIS IS SERIOUS MATTER AND WE WANT TO SEE JUSTICE DONE"

Statement of Coroner Gray at Inquest Last Night—Fred Jopling Was Not Called and Adjournment Was Made Till To-morrow Night.

Coroner Recalls Three Witnesses Who Contradict Evidence of Blake Cullen on One Point—Father of Jopling Boys Heard Nothing of Trouble Till Bollard Died—Only Two New Witnesses Were Heard.

"We are not here for our health, we are here to see justice done. This is no child's play. A man is dead and we are going to find out who is responsible for his death. I want to be fair to everybody and will see that everyone gets a square deal but we want to get all the information possible touching on the point at issue."

Coroner Dr. Gray spoke the above words last night during another session of the inquest in connection with the death of Arthur Bollard. Blake Cullen of Bridgenorth, was in the witness box and was being questioned by the coroner. Mr. D. O'Connell mentioned something about the coroner cross-questioning witness and Dr. Gray took time to make a statement, explaining just what his position was and what he was going to do.

Fred Jopling, who it was expected would be the principal witness, was not called.

The inquest opened at eight o'clock and a few minutes after ten, after Miss Ada Minna, Miss Pearl Jopling, Harry Marks, Gordon Long, Blake Cullen and J. G. Jopling, father of Fred and Harry Jopling, had given evidence, Dr. Gray announced that he was unwell and an adjournment was made till Wednesday evening at eight o'clock.

The evidence last night produced very little that was new. The coroner made what looked like an attempt to discredit the evidence of Blake Cullen. Cullen swore that he had been attracted to the scene of the fight by shouting when Harry Jopling and Bollard had started to fight. The coroner recalled Harry Marks, Gordon Long and Miss Minna, all of whom swore that they had heard no shouting till Arthur Bollard cried "let go" and "dirty."

J. G. Jopling, father of the Jopling boys, swore that he had heard nothing whatever of the trouble till he learned of Arthur Bollard's death. He was emphatic in his statements.

Miss Pearl Jopling, sister of Fred about the affair.

The court room at the court house was crowded and Constable Moore had a hard time maintaining order. Persons were entering or going out continually and there was a constant shuffling of feet and whispering. The constable threatened to clear the court room if better order were not maintained.

Coroner Gray presided and Crown Attorney Wood conducted the investigation. Mr. D. O'Connell and Mr. F. D. Kerr were also present.

THE EVIDENCE.

Miss Ada Minns was the first to take the stand. She said she had heard no reference to the trouble when she was at the pavilion on the night the fight took place. "We were on our way home, and the Bridgenorth boys were going directly opposite from their home," witness said. After describing the incidents leading up to the assault, Miss Minns

STRIKER IS ARRESTED

President of Glace Bay United Mine Works Causes Sensation —Rushed to Montreal

Glace Bay, N.S., Sept. 14.—The arrest of Dan. Macdougall, local president of the U.M.W., has created consternation in the ranks of the United Mine Workers.

He was taken out of his home Sunday night by a private detective from Montreal, rushed aboard a special car and not allowed communication with any friends. Mine Workers' leaders do not know the exact charge on which Macdougall was arrested, but from information secured from Magistrate MacDonald, who endorsed the warrant, the charge is said to be criminal libel, based on an advertisement in Montreal papers, stating that men should keep away from Glace Bay, as the Dominion Coal Co. will not pay wages promised, and stating that other conditions are unfavorable in the mines here.

Macdougall left Sunday night for Montreal, in custody. His wife was not informed as to his destination, and thought her husband was not going to leave Glace Bay.

The Coal company officials will not speak of the arrest, saying that the head office in Montreal is responsible.

Reaches Montreal To-day.

Montreal, Sept. 14.—Daniel McDougall, the local president at Glace Bay of the United Mine Workers of America, will arrive in Montreal to-day in custody. The arrest is the outcome of a paid advertisement in a Montreal paper, signed by McDougall, warning workmen from taking the places of strikers, the assertion being made that men now employed were huddled in filthy and miserable quarters.

WERE LURED TO THEIR DEATHS

Strange Man Kills Two and Injures Third Child in Utica, N. Y.

Utica, N.Y., Sept. 14.—A crime for which there at present appears to be no explanation was committed against three Italian children in this city Sunday evening. They are Theresa Procipio, 7 years old, who is dead, shot through the heart; Fanny Infusina, 6 years old, badly wounded in the left arm, and Freddie Infusina, 2 1-2 years old, shot through the stomach and will die. The two last named are children of Ercole Infusina, a grocer in Bleecker street, and the dead girl lived with her parents over the grocery.

There appears to be absolutely no explanation as to why the children were shot.

It developed yesterday morning that they were seen a few minutes after 7 Sunday evening going up Third avenue in company with a man about 40 years of age.

Yesterday morning shortly after 5 o'clock a woman residing near the place where the children were found, which is in a sparsely-settled section of the city, saw a child moving about in some bushes. She sent some men to the place and they discovered the dead body of the other little girl and the wounded boy. The wounded girl was nearly overcome with fatigue and pain.

Fanny stood guard over her wounded brother all night. At times, she said, she would cry out and at other times she would pat his head. In the darkness she did not know what had become of Theresa, or why she was silent. She says that the man went away after he hurt them. She did not know the man, she said, and had never seen him before.

WAS KILLED BY FALLING WALL

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 14.—One man killed, nine seriously injured yesterday, when the walls at the Blanck Transfer Storage Co.'s building here, recently burned, collapsed, demolishing two buildings and burying more than a dozen men in the ruins.

The dead man, Herman Tiege, an employe of a local paper, with those who were seriously injured, were in a two-storey hotel next door to the walls when the accident took place. Two workmen were tearing down the walls of the Blanck building when the crash came.

The men were unable to jump, and both rode the walls to the ground in safety, five storeys below. The monetary damage is estimated at about $15,000.

PROBABILITIES.

Very warm; some local showers; thunderstorms to-night or Wednesday.

Arrested In Toronto.

Galt, Sept. 14.—For two months the police have been looking for Thomas McDowell, a young man employed on a farm in the adjacent township, charged with a grave offence. The victim is Myrtle Black, a Galt girl, aged 15. McDowell was arrested in Toronto, and he will appear before Judge Blake in the morning.

Motorman Crazed.

Brandon, Man., Sept. 14.—Thomas C. Taylor, working for a farmer near this place, has been committed to the asylum. Taylor was the Winnipeg motorman who was on bail until the fall assizes in connection with the killing of two young men on July 28. They were crushed between cars. This preyed on Taylor's mind.

STATEMENT AS TO ORIENTAL LABOR

Ottawa, Sept. 14. — Collingwood Schreiber, Government consulting engineer for the G.T.P., gave yesterday morning a statement as to the labor situation on the western division of the G.T.P., which amounts to a plea for the use of oriental labor. There are 850 miles of mountain work to be done, he said, and of this only 100 miles have been graded, this portion of the work taking over a year. There remain 750 miles of more difficult work. The contractors can get only 2,000 men and must have $3 a day, which is too much for navvy work. If the work is to be finished in reasonable time other than white labor must be used.

Within the next two years 25,000 men should be at work. With them it will take four years to do the work.

HALF MILLION FOR THE MINES

Toronto, Sept. 14.—What promises to be one of the most important sales of mining property yet made by the province, was practically completed yesterday, when the time expired for receiving tenders for the purchase of the provincial mine and twenty other mining parcels in the Gillies' limit.

Various rumors, speculative and otherwise, are current as to the values of the provincial mine. Some stories place its value towards the half million mark, others as a few thousand. It is noteworthy, however, that among the 125 tenders received, the sums offered are considerably higher than those obtained on previous sales.

ACQUITTED ON A TECHNICALITY

Acquitted on Technicality.

Woodstock, Sept. 14.—Alfred Hall of Elk Lake, in the district of Nipissing, and before of Woodstock and Blenheim, was yesterday afternoon discharged by Judge Coulter of St. Thomas on the charge of fabricating evidence by forging an affidavit with intent of deceiving the high court. The discharge was made on a technicality, the defendant setting up that being arrested in Cobalt, he could not be tried here.

Rejected Bribe.

Montreal, Sept. 14.—The shoe went on the other foot at yesterday's session of the royal commission enquiring into civic affairs, when Ald. Clerihue, a leading councillor, swore that Mark Workman, a large shareholder of the Montreal L., H. & P. Co., offered him money to vote for the company's tender for the street lighting.

Ald. Clerihue said he had declined the offer and given Workman a severe "call."

Anniversary of Wolfe's Death.

London, Sept. 14.—The 150th anniversary of the death of Wolfe was commemorated yesterday at the Church of St. Alfege, Greenwich. A wreath was laid on the grave by members of his old force, the Royal Marines, and Mr. Wolfe Aylward representing the family.

Has a Flying Omnibus.

Paris, Sept. 14.—Francis Laur, a French engineer and inventor, announces the invention of a flying omnibus capable of transporting merchandise and passengers, and he has officially asked the Municipal Council to grant him a franchise for the city of Paris.

GETS A FIVE YEAR SENTENCE

Cornwall, Sept. 4.—J. Simmers, late from Aultsville, yesterday got a five-year sentence from Magistrate Danis. An elderly man, named Barker, recently from the western States, was taken to Simmers' house and while he slept in Simmers' bed was robbed of his watch and revolver, losing also the money he had given Simmers. He was then driven out after a fight. Simmers sold the watch for $5, but before he could spend 25 cents was in the toils. Mrs. Simmers corroborated Barker's evidence and told of frequent threats and violence from her spouse.

Nervousness In Mexico.

Mexico City, Sept. 14.—The Federal army headquarters of the third military zone continues to receive insistent rumors of an extended outbreak Sept. 15 and 16 in the northern part of the republic.

Dies In Dental Chair.

Ottawa, Sept. 14.—Chas. Robinson, aged 22, of Buckingham, Que., died in a dentist's chair Sunday while under chloroform for the extraction of six teeth.

NEW YORK SCHOOLS ARE OVERCROWDED

New York, Sept. 14.—The public schools of the five boroughs of Greater New York opened yesterday with 60,000 children unable to gain admittance for the full courses. W. H. Maxwell, superintendent of schools, estimates there are no less than 675,000 applicants for enrollment. A half dozen new buildings finished during the summer were opened yesterday, but these seemed to give but little relief.

Guelph Woman Shoots Herself.

Guelph, Sept. 14.—In an unconscious condition, with a bullet hole in her right temple and a revolver by her side, Mrs. Robert Haugh, wife of Robert Haugh, grocer, was found in the bathroom at her home Sunday afternoon. She never recovered consciousness, and survived but a short time. She had been in poor health.

Grocery Clerk Badly Hurt.

Stratford, Sept. 14.—Fred Sayers, grocery clerk, is in a critical condition as a result of a vinegar barrel rolling down an incline and pinning him against a wall. Two ribs were broken and he has internal injuries.

DEFEATED M. P. GOES CRAZY

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 14.—Disappointment and continual brooding over the loss of his seat in the British Parliament, caused Hon. Muir Wilson, a millionaire of Sheffield, and Servian consul, to go suddenly insane in the Hotel Vancouver yesterday morning. He is now in the city jail, where for several hours he kept up a succession of shrieks and screams, and only discontinued through absolute exhaustion.

Early yesterday morning, guests of the hotel were startled when they saw, striding with military bearing down the spacious stairs, a figure in British court costume, waiving a gleaming sword before him.

"Down upon your marrow bones," he shouted, "I am the lord high executioner."

The guests fled in terror till it was perceived that the man, though looking very dangerous, was perfectly harmless. Later he became violent.

Wilson was a former Conservative member of the British House of Commons.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Seven lives were lost in a storm around La Paz, California.

Harvesting throughout the west is practically over and threshing is in full swing.

Mrs. John Wilson, aged 84, of St. Andrew's, N.B., was suffocated in a fire in her own home.

Frank Riggs of Toronto is under arrest at London as an alleged participator in a hold-up.

A Cleveland despatch says that a great marine strike next year on the lakes is being organized.

The Allan Steamship Co. is being reorganized and the head offices may be removed from England to Canada.

Detectives are watching for alleged smugglers of Chinamen across the border from the vicinity of Kingston.

Elizabethtown Township Council has passed a bylaw prohibiting noisy motor boats, under severe penalties.

Fifteen prominent men have been indicted at Youngstown, Ohio, for bribery and grafting in civic county affairs.

Peat beds in Guelph caught fire Saturday and the firemen had to dig trenches to prevent its spreading to houses nearby.

George Hubbard, 35 years of age, was found dead in a yard near Streetsville early Sunday morning, with a half-finished bottle of whiskey in his pocket.

James C. Kennedy of Owen Sound was caught in a collapse of earth and buried for over five minutes. It was nearly forty minutes before he was totally released.

One thousand weavers, employed in the Borden Cotton Mills at Fall River, Mass., have struck for 10 per cent. increase in wages, throwing 4,000 other employes out of work. At Soco, Maine, 2,200 employes returned to work after a fruitless strike by 150 weavers.

Fruit Societies In Convention.

St. Catharines, Sept. 14.—The Society for Horticultural Science, a subsidiary of the American Pomological Society, opened its sixth annual meeting yesterday, W. A. Taylor, Washington, D.C., presiding. The Pomological Society will open its thirty-first session to-night in St. Paul street Church, when Hon. W. S. GENERALIZATIONS

It is customary for theorists, political and otherwise, to lay down general principles as they would a carpet and then to lie down and go to sleep upon them. General principles are very nice things, and very true things as a rule, but there are times when they cannot be applied as they ought to be. For example Peace is the proper state of Man. Should we on that account make no provision for War? It is the same with trade. Freedom of trade is the ideal condition, but when greedy or "enterprising" nations discover ways of beating us out, we must protect ourselves, and that is all that protection means. Take an example. A great American lock company feeling that it cannot send its locks into Canada against the tariff, is desirous of locating in Canada and may come to Peterborough. With Free Trade it would not have come to Canada at present. Protection means local development more than Free Trade does. The latter favours powerful, populous centres, financial centres, aggregations of rich men, in fact, the developed against the undeveloped. That is why it was good for so long for a developed nation like Great Britain. But it was Protection that kept trade in the U.S. in the face of British competition

Canada's double-back-action tariff is getting us into no end of a mess.

The yield, per acre, in the West is not so great as that of a fairly good farm in Ontario.

A Hudson Bay factor and arctic explorer says that Cook was always highly esteemed in the north, but Peary was not.

Where's Bernier? Has he found the Pole, and also that all (other) men are liars? Vive Bernier! The only real polar explorer made in Canada.

It is seldom that such a storm has been raised in Canada as that raised by the granting by the Dominion Government of charters for race-gambling associations.

The despatch quoted on page five in our special article contains the recommendation of the Government engineer that the G.T.P. be allowed to employ "other than white labour."

In a recent interview Sir Frederick Borden repudiates the idea. La Patrie says that Gen. French is coming here to re-organise our forces. He is to do nothing of the sort, Sir Frederick says we are to do all that ourselves.

That foreign goods are shipped through British channels to get the advantage of our absurd "preference" is well known. There are no half measures in Protection. The world of trade will take advantage of us if we do not know enough to protect ourselves.

To haul a ton of freight over a macadam road costs 8 cents a mile. Yet the 200,000,000 tons of farm produce hauled to the railroads cost, last year, on an average, 22 cents per mile. This is the computation of the Washington bureau of statistics. The difference between 8 cents and 23 cents is the price the country pays for poor roads. It amounts to more than $300,000,000 annually. A good road is as much a matter of economy as any labor machine that was ever invented. To [illegible] to market means the ability to handle larger crops at less expense. Farmers need good roads more than any other class; they suffer from bad roads more than any other class.—Detroit News.

News From Labrador

SS. "Strathcona," Off Labrador.

Dear Mr. Editor,—On our arrival at St. Anthony, it was a great source of regret to us all that the deer were too far on the hills for us to see them. Already they are a noble herd of over six hundred, and at this time of the year are splendid with their rapidly growing antlers. However, the good reports of their progress somewhat made up for it.

One of the boys who drove deer last winter, told me that his deer galloped so fast that I couldn't keep up if I got off to run, and that it was as good as a dozen dogs. Though this was not the case with all the stags that were driven, yet all agreed that for burden purposes they can't be beat, on the snows of our winter.

Their fecundity here is almost amazing, and even the stolid Lapp herders, when they found four of last year's fawns with fawns of their own this year, said that they had never known the like before. We are sending back one Lapp family this year, and engaging four apprentices for three years, all Labrador men. The agreement is that the herd shall feed, clothe, and house them, and give them $25, $50 and $100 pocket money, made each year respectively, and also five deer, four of which are to be does, the engagement to be renewable if desirable at the close.

We have lost from the herd our volunteer manager, Lieutenant W. G. Lindsay, who has given us two years' service of the most valuable kind. We have all learned to love him and his peculiarities, and there seems now a big gap left. We have, however, his promise to come back later if we are really in need of him. George Ford, Esq., formerly in charge of the Hudson Bay Company's post at Nachvak takes his place. As a Christian gentleman and a good all-round sportsman, and as an ardent lover of every kind of animal from Homo Bimana downwards, and as a man with an over flowing fund of humor, we could expect no better substitute. Mr. Ford has already had one year with the reindeer under Mr. Lindsay.

We have this year organized an expedition of a number of young students under a capable head, Mr. Edward Parr, of Oshkosh, to capture for us some wild caribou fawns, as we hope to cross the reindeer with them and enlarge our animals. They have borrowed a couple of herders, four steady pack animals, a schooner and outfit, and are now in the country on the west coast. The abundance of mosquitoes and black flies have driven the party out of the country more than once, right down to the seashore, but they have not despaired and are only waiting for the deer to cross to their section of the country, where a little later they are every year very numerous. Naturally this is in the nature of an experiment, and, if successful, the size strength and vitality of our stock should be greatly increased; but there is the danger that it may become wilder and require new methods for keeping them together. Our reindeer wander very considerably more this winter than the previous one. The Lapps say that it is because they have learned that there are no wolves in the country to fear. This has, however, made us short of men with the home herd, and our dairy experiments will be somewhat interfered with. A new development in this line is due to the fact that some of the reindeer milk, sterilized and bottled last autumn was found to be perfectly fresh and palatable at St. Anthony Hospital six months later. Glass bottles, however, are expensive, are heavy, and have to be returned, so we have gladly welcomed a most generous gift of unlimited bottles from the Single Service Bottle Company, of Chicago. The bottles are made of paper, are lined with waxed surfaces, and are used largely for milk and cream. They seal themselves airtight, with a packed wood stopper. The advantages are that they are ridiculously cheap, are of almost no weight, and can be destroyed instead of returned after being used. If this log falls into the hands of anyone willing to help in this reindeer experiment I should be more than grateful, as we need badly some more equipage, we need a couple of good tents, a good portable house for herders' headquarters, and also some addition to the fund for maintaining the herders. Our experience is that the experiment promises already to be eventually successful, and if so, it will be of the greatest possible benefit to Labrador. Indeed, it could be a basis for maintaining a really large population, and would provide Labrador with just that second line of defence which is so absolutely needed in years like this when the fishery on the outside fails. The fact is that unless some such industry grows up, or the pulping or minerals are developed, Labrador will be depopulated entirely, while it could maintain as valuable a population as Norway or Finland.

The great attraction to the clinic of this hospital has been due to the surgical work of Dr. John Mason Little, of Harvard, who has now been two years with us. An exponent of the wonderful possibilities of modern surgery, has at last made some impression on the fatalism of a people, who, like all fishermen, are conservative to the last degree. I have seen ordinary cases of children with club feet, condemned to perpetual crippledom by parents who love their children so well that they wouldn't have the Lord's work interfered with and who have lost lives and functions that a single incision would have saved. It is little wonder, therefore, that, when from one small village an epileptic woman has been cured by a portion of the skull being removed, another with an abdominal tumor restored to life after she had received the last unction, another been given back his sight after he had been for many years blind, another, hopelessly crippled, enabled to get up and walk, and so on, the talk should be all along the coast that wonderful things are done at St. Anthony. One woman had come fifty miles in a boat through the ice, dying; she had had a kidney removed with a stone weighing five and a half ounces and had gone back cured in two weeks.

The professor of surgery from Cornell University, with an assistant surgeon, is now at St. Anthony, as a volunteer with Dr. Wakefield, during Dr. Little's absence on the "Strathcona."

Among other gratifying features of work here has been the growing interest in the industrial department. As we approached the harbor my host on the yacht said he very much wished to carry back to New York some specimens of Newfoundland homespuns. As our weaving department had been in the care of only a Labrador girl this winter I was much afraid he would not find any; so I was the more rejoiced to see him coming down the wharf after carrying no mean supply of it that he had purchased, and to hear also that the branch started under another local girl fifty miles to the south had been equally successful.

One more effort we were able to direct before we left in the night again for Labrador. We are about to build a school for the children. Over eighty children now live in the harbor, and the 'pig-sty,' as we have learned to call the ancient shack, which they tried to gather in, has long since been outgrown. We have decided to build one of logs, and the people have hauled out quite a number already for that purpose. It will cost a little more than the conventional clapboard one, but the aesthetic aspect is worth considering; and if the place is made the most attractive of any known to the children, we shall expect it to afford them an incentive to that invaluable spirit of esprit de corps and loyalty to one another which are no mean assets in the valuation of a college course, and which are sadly lacking emotions in most scattered communities.

SOMEWHAT OF A SENSATION

In Rev. Dr. Crothers' Church at St. Catharines—Plain Talk to the Congregation

St. Catharines, Sept. 13.—At St. Paul's street Methodist church yesterday the pastor, Rev. Dr. W. J. Crothers, created something of a sensation among the congregation by referring to the absence of sociability among the members.

"Some people," exclaimed Dr. Crothers, "think that the pastor of this church should go down to the door after service and shake hands with the people as they go out. I refuse to do such a thing. I refuse to make a pump handle of my arm for anybody. I am not here for that purpose. That is up to the members of the congregation themselves. If they don't see fit to shake hands with each other that is their affair, not mine. I am here to preach the gospel."

In course of his further remarks Dr. Crothers intimated that if some people didn't like the way things were run in that church there were other churches in the city.

HUNTERS
Something About Moose and Deer

It is now pretty well known among hunters that the best deer hunting country in Ontario is on the line of the Canadian Northern Ontario and that hunters receive special attention. Mr. C. Price Green, Passenger Agent of the line is a hunter himself who goes right with the parties and looks after them, in fact he located most of them. This year the line will be opened north of Sellwood into the midst of the Moose Country, they are reported very thick, the Engineers say that they have never seen anything like it, the Moose season up there opens October 15th, fifteen days before the Deer. We have something special on a new place that will take three parties of deer hunters

ANNUAL FAIR AT KINMOUNT

Held on Saturday Was Largely Attended—Falling off in Number of Entries

Lindsay, Sept. 13.—The first fall fair of the season in the United Counties of Victoria and Haliburton was successfully held in Kinmount on Saturday under the auspices of the Galway Agricultural Society. Away back in the north country for miles around Kinmount the Galway annual show is looked forward to for weeks ahead by the entire population.

A LARGE CROWD.

The annual event this year could hardly be classed as "the best ever," but everybody, and there was a large crowd present, went home satisfied and happy. The crowd was a trifle larger than in previous years, but the entry list was a couple of hundred entries short of last year, and consequently the exhibits in many lines were not up to the standard.

PERHAPS TOO EARLY.

This was attributed to the fact that the fair was held at least a couple of weeks too early, and particularly this year, as the harvest is very late. The farmers attended the fair, but their produce was not in a fit condition to exhibit.

IDEAL WEATHER.

The weather man certainly favored the northern people and the weather could not have been better if it had been ordered for the occasion. The dark clouds which had obscured the sky early in the morning rolled away before noon. The cool breeze alleviated the heat in the afternoon to some extent, and the pink lemonade and ice cream kept the inner man at a normal temperature.

VILLAGE AND GROUNDS.

The pretty village of Kinmount is situated on the bank of the winding Burnt River, thirty-four miles north of Lindsay, and is surrounded by rocks of all sizes and descriptions, which only adds to the picturesqueness of the village. The scenery for miles around the village, and on the shores of the Burnt River is as fine as can be seen any place, and it is not to be wondered at that so many lovers of nature spend their vacation in the wilds of Victoria county.

Christian Science

Sir,—The following may be of interest to your readers:

Yours, etc.,
R. J. TODD.

"The Rev. C. M. Shaw, pastor of the United Methodist Church, Springfield road, Blackpool, has resigned his position, and the resignation has been accepted by conference with great regret. The Conference Committee did their best to persuade Mr. Shaw to continue as a minister of the church, but he replied that his mind was made up and he thought it better to decide at once. The resignation has already taken effect, and Mr. Shaw will not again occupy the pulpit at Springfield road. The wrench is a sudden one, and will be keenly felt by the congregation. Mr. Shaw has only been in Blackpool twelve months, but during that time he has made strong attachments, and has won high esteem as a thoughtful, scholarly preacher and a kindly pastor.

The reason for his resignation is that Mr. Shaw has been converted to Christian Science, and his religious views have undergone such a change that he could no longer subscribe to the tenets of the United Methodist church. Last night Mr. Shaw granted a brief interview to a representative of the Blackpool Times, after a twelve-hour journey from Plymouth, where he met the Conference. He did not wish to say more at present than that he had resigned, and that he had become a Christian Scientist. He pointed out that Christian Science regarded sin and evil differently from the evangelical church, and the vicarious sacrifice was not a part of its doctrine."

Christian Science does not teach that mankind is saved through the death of Christ, but through His life. That He sets an example and it is His example, not His sacrifice, that is intended to teach mankind.

CHEESE SOLD AT LINDSAY AT 14 1-4 CTS.

Lindsay, Sept. 13.—"You cheesemakers have received more for your cheese this summer than in any other county in the Province," said Buyer H. B. Clemes this morning to the salesmen of the Lindsay cheese board, when everyone refused 11 1-4 cents for the cheese.

For a while it seemed as though there was to be no sale. The salesmen wanted 11 3-8, and Buyer Brown had the highest bid with 11 1-4 for selections.

Finally, after all had refused Mr. Brown's offer, and a similar offer from Mr. Clemes, buying for Flavelles, the salesmen changed their minds and all sold for 11 1-4c. Mr. Brown took the following factories:—Star, Dunsford, North Ops and Pine Grove.

Mr. Clemes offered the same and got the balance of the board, viz., Mariposa, Omemee, North Verulam, Reaboro, Bobcaygeon, Maple Leaf, Red Rock, North Harvey.

Ald. A. G. Gillespie, of Peterborough, was the other buyer.

Canada's crops are worth fifty millions more than last year.

Ben Snyder, of Amherstburg, was sentenced to seven years in Kingston under the Charlton Act, for a crime against a fourteen-year-old girl.

ESTHER'S ALTERNATIVES.

When the Test Came It Was Not Difficult to Choose.

By W. BERT FOSTER.

"And now, Jack, what can I do? He follows me everywhere, and he stands around and ogles me with that detestable 'baby stare' of his, and—and—you're laughing, Jack! You are as mean as you can be to laugh when I come to you for advice!"

Esther stamped her foot. Jack Ormsby leaned against the veranda railing and watched her with amused eyes.

"I can't help smiling, Esther, but I can appreciate the irritation poor Hallowell must cause you."

"Irritation!" A world of emphasis entered into the word. "And just because I was foolish enough to let him propose to me!" she wailed.

"Well, of course," Jack said slowly, "you must expect to have your scalps cost you a little something, Essie."

"He doesn't say anything!" exclaimed the girl. "If he did, it would give me a chance to tell him what I think of his dogging my footsteps everywhere."

"It certainly is a case of 'the villain still pursued her,'" Ormsby said. "What do you want me to do, Essie—call him out and plug him full of holes?"

"Ugh! Don't be so vulgar! I don't want you to do anything but tell me what to do to get rid of him."

Jack was almost the only man she knew well who had not proposed to her. Men had fallen before her charms, had said their little piece, and some said it rather well, she had to admit to herself, and gone their way, and until now no man had really been able to trouble her serenity.

"Do think of something, Jack," she pleaded. "It's been three months now since he—he"—

"Since he said the momentous words which made him—not yours, eh?" And Ormsby laughed, but his hands trembled as he shifted the cane a little.

"Don't be absurd! He doesn't want me any more than other men do."

"Whew! Your serene conceit is certainly charming, Essie."

"Don't be unkind. You know it's true," she said calmly. "Any woman with fluffy hair and blue eyes can bring men to her feet. Only you don't get foolish and propose to me, Jack."

"No, I don't propose to you," he said, quite calmly.

"And that's why I like you."

"Then I'll try not to make you dislike me. But what can I do to poor Hallowell? A cat may look at a king"— But Esther interrupted snappishly.

"That's no reason why a calf should look at me all the time!"

"Poor girl! You're finding it mighty hard getting away from the consequences of your own sin, eh?"

"What sin have I committed?" she demanded, with conscious innocence. "Is it a sin to refuse to marry a man you don't want?"

"No-o. But how about—well, not exactly leading him on to proposing—but"—

She favored him with a frigid look. "I beg your pardon, Mr. Ormsby," she observed.

"Well, you needn't," he said quietly. "You expect plain talk from people whose advice you ask, don't you? No man will ever ask a woman to marry him if she doesn't give him the opportunity."

"That is different. But such remarks as you are making now are hardly in the nature of advice, Jack."

"Well, I don't see that there's much you can do," he drawled, and his eyes began to twinkle. "There seem to be but two courses to pursue, and two only"—

"Oh, here's your Sultan and the runabout!" suddenly cried Esther, clapping her hands and springing up. "Are you going to take me to ride, Jack?"

"Well, it's what I came around for, but your tale of woe about knocked it out of my head."

The negro from the stable leaped out and held the big bay's head. Esther ran down to the gate, forgetting the beruffled parasol lying on the veranda. Ormsby followed lazily.

"Feeling pretty gay, isn't he, Jackson?" he asked, pulling on a glove and looking at Sultan, who danced charmingly to the accompaniment of little squeals of delight from Esther.

"Yes, sah; he do, sah."

"Hop in, Essie," Ormsby said, holding out his hand to assist her. Then he added, "Speaking of angels, there's Hallowell now."

A fresh faced young fellow cantered by on a fine horse and lifted his hat seriously. A little way beyond he pulled in the animal and dismounted as though he would come back to speak to the couple at the runabout.

"Do hurry up!" exclaimed Esther under her breath. "What shall I do to get rid of him, Jack? You said there were two ways. What are they?"

"Well," and Ormsby buttoned the glove slowly and put one foot on the step of the runabout, "you might marry him to get rid of him."

"No, thank you!" she exclaimed, pouting and tossing her head. Then she started and looked toward the house. "Oh, Jack—my parasol! I shall want it."

Ormsby had already leaned forward to seize the reins. He glanced at the colored man. "Miss Dingley's parasol is on the veranda, Jackson," he said.

The man dropped Sultan's bridle. [illegible] threw up his head and started.

The lines had not been quite within Ormsby's grasp. His foot slipped from the step. He made a leap to reach the carriage, but Sultan swung into a long stride on the instant and fairly snatched the runabout from under his master's grasp.

"The reins, the reins! Quick, Essie!" Ormsby cried.

Thank God, she knew what he meant and seized the lines before they slipped over the dashboard to dangle about Sultan's heels and drive him mad with terror. But the horse knew instantly that an unfamiliar hand held the reins, and he increased his trot to a gallop.

Esther told herself that she would not be frightened, and she drew the lines in firmly and said "Whoa!"

But Sultan saw no reason for "whoaing" just then. There was a long stretch of dusty, sunlit road before him, and he seized the bit in his strong teeth and bolted. He flew by Hallowell's mount with a rush and set that creature to dancing. Hallowell hung on to the leather and stared with round eyes after the runaway.

His astonishment was vastly increased when a second whirlwind reached him. Ormsby went at him as though he was playing football.

He snatched the bridle from Hallowell's hand, and that young man was sent rolling in the dust as Jack leaped astride and set the now frightened animal after the bolting Sultan.

The road for a mile was clear, but where it joined the boulevard beyond Ormsby knew the runaway would burst into a tangle of carriages of all descriptions and the end would be serious. He didn't know much about the soundness of Hallowell's mount, but he would have made an asthmatic old car horse do stunts just then.

Like the wind he rode, and his mount's nose soon came up to Esther's shoulder. Foot by foot he gained on Sultan, and then, with a swift dive Ormsby seized the reins, which Esther had continued to cling to with all her little might. A strong pull on both horses and Sultan instantly recognized the fact that all his fun was over.

He slowed down and in half a block and just before the junction with the boulevard stopped was gentle as a lamb. For a minute they gazed at each other.

"Well," Ormsby said at last, "you came near escaping the pursuit of the villain that time, Essie, for good and all."

Esther's eyes grew luminous. "And you dared suggest that I marry him!" she said, catching her breath.

"Well, you know there was an alternative."

"And that is?" still looking at him.

"That you might marry me to get rid of him. That—that would be effectual, wouldn't it?"

Another breath of silence, and then Esther murmured, "Well, Jack, dear, we might try it."

Andrew McDonald, a young Indian, was sentenced at Chatham to five years for forgery.

Blonds in History.

It is certain that blond, long headed men once played a great role in history, for it was they who colonized Galatia and brought home the treasures of Greece and Italy to Toulouse, who overthrew the Roman empire in the west and won England from the Britons. It is equally certain that this physical type was once much more dominant and widely distributed than it is now and that it is tending to die out. This is especially true of that pronounced form of blonds which is distinguished by red hair. Red haired persons do not now constitute the majority in any known tribe or nation, but one authority sets forth grounds for thinking that red hair was once much more prevalent.

It must have occurred, for instance, among the Brahmans, since they were forbidden by the laws of Manu to marry red haired women. There is no doubt that blonds and red haired persons are still encountered about the Hindoo Kush, among the tribes from whom the Brahmans are supposed to have been immigrants. But obedience to the law mentioned would in the course of time annihilate the tendency to their reproduction.—Westminster Gazette.

Where Poverty Was Criminal.

In Peru at the period of the Incas, before its conquest by the Spaniards in the early part of the sixteenth century, poverty was counted a crime. The whole territory was divided into three portions, and the respective revenues and resources were given (1) to support the priesthood and ceremonial worship of the sun, who was their god; (2) to the reigning Inca for the expenses of the royal household and the cost of government; (3) to the people at so much a head. The extent of land apportioned to each householder was regulated by the size of his family. This nation of workers wrought as one man for the common good. Their simple wants were easily and entirely satisfied, no one was overworked, and thus they lived a happy and contented life, with frequent holidays and festivals. Under a social system so well organized that no man could be poor unless he were incorrigibly idle we cannot wonder that those who did fall into poverty and want through sheer indolence were regarded as deliberate criminals and were even allowed to starve.

KELSEY
Zig-Zag Heat Tubes

Make the KELSEY WARM AIR GENERATOR the most powerful apparatus.

¶ The "Kelsey" warms fresh air by the best method; warms large volumes of air properly and forces to exposed or distant rooms; has double the weight and heating surfaces of the ordinary furnace, and utilizes all the heat to much better advantage; does not heat the cellar or waste heat up the chimney.

¶ The "Kelsey" does not warm the same air over and over like steam or hot water systems with radiators; costs less to install, and for management and repairs; and is more efficient, healthful and economical.

¶ These are a few of the reasons why the Kelsey Fresh Air System has been installed in so many of the finest class of City and Country Homes, Churches and Schools, and why it is being specified in preference to other systems.

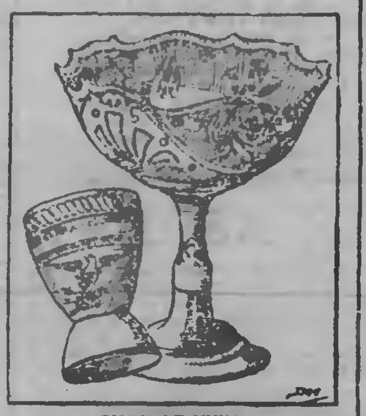
FILLMORE CHINA.

Interesting Pieces of Crockery Added Recently to White House Collection.

Interesting pieces of china once owned by President Fillmore were placed recently in the White House cabinets. They were obtained through the efforts of Mrs. Abby G. Baker, who has charge of the White House collection, under the direction of Mrs. Taft. She learned that much of the Fillmore china could be found in Buffalo, the former president's old home. There she found that two sisters, Mrs. B. Terry and Miss Cornelia Burtis, had bought the old Fillmore mansion with almost all the furniture and china. They were delighted to add something to the White House collection and gave an old Staffordshire platter, a willow pattern plate and other dishes.



FILLMORE CHINA.

The present administration is the first for more than half a century that has not been obliged to buy a new set of dishes for the White House, and the reason why is simply that congress soon after Mr. Roosevelt became president gave him $22,000 to spend on an immense outfit of chinaware, imported from England.

Up to Abraham Lincoln's time the executive mansion was supplied with crockery in a desultory sort of way, dishes, plates and cups and saucers being purchased whenever more of them were needed. But Mrs. Lincoln persuaded congress to give her money for a fresh outfit, a very beautiful set, ordered from France, with a blue border, gilt stars for the states of the Union and an eagle and scroll, with the words "E Pluribus Unum" on every piece.

Lord Strathcona declines to discuss rumors of his retirement.

Rev. J. A. Hill, pastor of Victoria Avenue Baptist church, Belleville, has resigned.

Seven cattle and a team of horses of Thos. Woods, of Sidney township, were poisoned in their stables.

OBJECTIONABLE CLAUSES IN AGREEMENT WERE DISCUSSED

The Manufacturers' Committee met last night and with Mr. E. A. Peck discussed the clauses in the proposed Thirty-year agreement with the Peterborough Light and Power Company, and which had been ordered to be further considered by the Council. There were present Chairman Ald. Gillespie, Mayor Rush, Ald. Metheral, Hicks, Duffus, City Solicitor Hall and Mr. E. A. Peck, who represented the company.

After the different clauses had been gone over, the City Solicitor was ordered to draw up a by-law to be presented to the Council at the meeting on Wednesday night.

Ald. Hicks suggested that a clause be added to the agreement to the effect that in all cases of accidents caused by wires, the matter is to be settled by an Arbitratory Board composed of a representative of the company or companies and the city.

This met with the approval of all those present and it will be inserted in the agreement.

COUNTY CONSTABLE REYNOLDS THINKS THERE WAS FOUL PLAY

Does Not Think That There Was Suicide at Kendry Siding --- Outlines Theory to the Review -- Mysterious Features.

Coroner Gray of the Opinion That Skeleton is That of a Woman—Fullest Investigation to be Made—Attorney General's Department May be Notified.

The veil of mystery which surrounds the finding of the skeleton of a human being found in a dark spot in George Campbell's woods, near Kendry siding, on Sunday morning has not been lifted. Will it ever be? is the question that residents of Springville and vicinity are asking. Indeed the deeper one goes into the particulars of the gruesome find, the deeper the mystery becomes.

With an egg-crate as a coffin, the bones of the unfortunate person were interred in the little cemetery at Springville last evening by County Constable Reynolds. The clothes had not been removed from the skeleton and the shoes were still on the feet. The cloth was falling to pieces owing to the long exposure to the elements and the remains were so badly decomposed that an egg-crate about three feet in length was large enough enough to serve as a coffin.

A representative of the Review interviewed Constable Archie Reynolds at Springville last night and secured his opinion of the gruesome discovery. "I have no doubt but that the death of the person whose remains were found beside the track was the result of foul play," he said. "No man ever committed suicide either by cutting his throat with a razor or by taking Paris Green and died in a sitting position. One arm was around a limb of the tree holding the body in a sitting posture. In the left hand was an open razor, but the body was so badly decomposed that it was impossible to tell if the throat had been cut, and the exposure to the elements had been so long that all traces of blood had been eradicated. About eight feet from the skeleton was a small can containing Paris Green. The contents were dry and the can was not rusted."

The can of Paris Green is the strangest link in the chain of circumstances that makes up the mystery. The body had without doubt been exposed to the elements for over a year. If the can of Paris Green had been there for the same time would the tin not have been rusted and the poison dissolved? This is the question that Constable Reynolds asks, and it is a hard one to answer. The theory of the constable is that the man was murdered and the body placed in the bush with the razor in the hand to give credence to the suicide supposition. But even this does not account from the presence of the Paris Green can, which the constable believes was placed where it was found only a short time ago. The small amount of money found in the pockets was left there for a "blind" to cover the crime, which many Springville people believe has been committed.

There was not a paper in the man's pockets or a mark on his clothes that would give a clue to his identity. It is not often that such is the case.

Constable Reynolds raked the the ground where the body was found very thoroughly, and was unable to find the vestige of a paper of any kind that might furnish a clue as to who the man was.

Asked if no one had noticed an odor in the vicinity of the wood where the skeleton was found, Mr. Reynolds stated that Mr. J. J. Bennett had spoken of an odor being there last spring. Mr. Bennett frequently walked along the track to Kendrey station past the spot where the body was discovered. "We were in the woods last spring picking May-flowers," Mr. Reynolds said, "and we must have passed within a few feet of the fallen pine tree, but we did not notice the skeleton or perceive any odor."

THE CORONER'S OPINION.

Coroner Dr. Gray stated to-day that he had left the matter open so that the fullest possible investigation could be made. The doctor is of the opinion that the bones are those of a woman. He bases this opinion on the fact that the head and teeth resemble those of a female and the pelvic bones appear to be those of a woman. The teeth were all in the jaws except two, and were in almost perfect preservation. They are small and Dr. Gray has little doubt but that they are a female's teeth. The skeleton was about five feet in height.

If the remains are those of a woman, the mystery becomes deeper. The theory is advanced that the woman might have been murdered and the body arrayed in a man's clothes to make the solution of the crime a more difficult matter than it otherwise would be.

A number of Italians were working on the C.P.R. in the vicinity of Kendry siding last spring, but it is not likely that they had anything to do with the strange affair.

It is possible that a request will be sent to Attorney-General Foy's department to send a detective to investigate the matter. The case resembles that of the famous Barton mystery at Hamilton, where a woman's body was found and her identity was never established or the slayer brought to justice.

The skeleton buried last night at Springville can easily be dug up if it is found necessary.

NOTABLE PERSONALITY TO VISIT PETERBOROUGH

The Rev. Dr. Wilbur F. Crafts M. A., superintendent of the International Reform Bureau, with headquarters in Washington, D.C., and who has just returned from the World's Congress of Moral Reform recently convened in the old land, will visit Montreal, Kingston, Belleville, Peterborough and Toronto during the first week in October.

As it will be a peculiar privilege to hear Dr. Crafts his advent will be looked forward to with great interest and pleasure.

The public meeting will be arranged for Friday, October 8, and will be held in a central auditorium.

COMPREHENSIVE EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGN ARRANGED FOR PRESBYTERY OF PETERBORO'

This morning the Rev. Wm. Beattie, of Cobourg, convenor of the Committee on Evangelism for the Synod of Toronto and Kingston, together with Mr. James Clarke, of Port Hope, a member of the same committee, were in the city this morning consulting with the local Presbyterian clergy regarding the outline of a simultaneous evangelistic campaign for the entire Presbytery during the month of November. This will embrace the entire section of territory from Pontypool to Marmora and Port Hope to Campbellford. The Presbytery will be divided north and south, so that the band of workers will spend two weeks in each district. The General Assembly's Committee has had invitations from twenty-one Presbyteries to furnish special speakers for evangelistic meetings. The plan will be submitted to the Presbytery at its meeting in St. Paul's church next Tuesday when Prof. Kilpatrick, of Knox College, Toronto, who took such an active interest in the Kootenay Evangelistic campaign last spring will address the Presbytery and all those interested in this work at two o'clock in the afternoon.

THAT WATCH OF YOURS

Is in many respects similar to a railway engine. Let an engine be run without oil or cleaning and before long it will stop dead. Upon examination it will be found that the friction and wear and tear has ruined the machinery, and it is fit only for the scrap iron heap. Likewise your watch. You put it in your pocket, and while there is a kick in it, you, in your mistaken economy, do not consult the watchmaker, and consequently rob your watch of years of good service and also much of its former accuracy. The time-keeping qualities of a good watch are maintained and often improved by timely and skilful attention. If you have been one of the neglectful ones call around and see us.

WHAT DOES THE EXAMINER MEAN?

Last night's Examiner allows a correspondent to attack the Council for recommending a thirty-year franchise. It allows a misleading statement to go without comment. The alleged franchise is not an exclusive monopoly to this company or any other. Surely this is what the people want.

THE REAL PERIL

Ottawa, Sept., 13.—Mr. Collingwood Schreiber, consulting engineer of the Department of Railways, who has returned from a trip from the west, expresses the opinion that the mountain section of the Grand Trunk Pacific will not be ready for a long time, unless the contractors are allowed to employ other than white laborers. He declares that the conditions in British Columbia as regards labor are bad. The first hundred miles of the railway from the coast have been graded, and the rails have commenced to arrive. Over a year has been spent on this section, and there are still about 750 miles of mountain construction to be accomplished.

The contractors, Messrs. Foley, Welsh and Stewart, have been able to get only a couple of thousand men by the payment of three dollars a day and board. As there are still four contracts to be let in the next two years twenty thousand men will be required on the work. The white men at present engaged are being paid more than the contractors can afford to pay, and they do not stay on the work when engaged. Attempts to bring men to Canada have failed, because after arriving they leave the work and the company is out the passage money.

What will the people of Canada think of this despatch from headquarters? The Government engineer is in favor "of other than white labor." The policy of the Laurier Government from the beginning has been to hand the country over to financial exploiters. What does it matter to them so long as wages are kept down? Canadians are providing interest for keeping down their own wages. Do the financiers keep down their wages? Have they not even had the brass to ask for and secure a guarantee by the people of their bonds? Capital takes care never to drug the market, but Labor is enticed and coerced into doing so. We shall never have a happy and contented people so long as such miserable selfishness exists. The present recommendation is one that was tried on the eve of the last election, but discreetly withdrawn. Are there any other favors that the financiers would like? The workmen of Canada must be proud of the privilege they will have of competing with "niggers and lascars."

So much for our boasted civilisation that has reached that point where men, not money, must give way, where the standard of wages is to be settled by what the least fortunate and most degraded of poor human beings can be forced to take—or starve.

NEW ORPHANAGE

The new orphanage secured by Roman Catholics for the care of their orphaned little ones is a beautiful place. That the Government required the separation of children from the old is on the ground "that the vitality of a growing child suffers from constant contact with the old. What can be be more humane and delightful than the kindly care of the defenceless young and the defenceless old! Some day a system of national insurance will provide an independence for the old, whose self-respect necessarily suffers from the receipt of charity. With children it is different.

CASE IS BEING HEARD TO-DAY

Many Witnesses Will Testify at Case in Havelock

An unusually interesting case is being tried at Havelock this afternoon in which the young girl, who was recently taken from her home there and brought to the Shelter, but subsequently returned to her home again, is the star attraction. There have been sixteen witnesses subpoened, and there is much excitement in Havelock over the case.

The young girl in question was taken from her home by the agent of the Children's Aid Society, as a result of complaints being made that she was being illtreated.

Mr. G. N. Gordon will conduct the case in the interests of the father of the girl and Mr. E. L. Goodwill will act for the Children's Aid Society.

Magistrate Edmison will preside.

HAS SPENT THIRTEEN YEARS IN CHINA

Rev. Robert Jaffray Will Address Meeting Here Thursday Night

The Rev. Robert Jaffray, son of Senator Jaffray, of Toronto, will address a meeting in Bethany Tabernacle on Thursday evening of this week.

Rev. and Mrs. Jaffray, who have spent about thirteen years in China in connection with the Christian and Missionary Alliance, have been at home on furlough and attending many of the large missionary conventions in Canada and the United States. From a business standpoint Mr. Jaffray has had unusual opportunities, but has realized the Christian's responsibility and the call of God to the far grander and more glorious work of preaching the Gospel to those perishing without Christ. They expect to leave again in two weeks for China to resume their work there.

Frightened at Auto

This morning as Alderman Gillespie of Peterborough, was touring in his auto in Ops township between Reaboro and town, a team of horses attached to a plough did not take kindly to the car. They had been left standing unattended and when the auto came along they dashed across the fields at break neck speed. No damage was done, however. Mr. Harry Theobald, of the Peterborough Examiner, accompanied Alderman Gillespie on his auto trip to Lindsay this morning.—Lindsay Post.

AN OTONABEE PIONEER DEAD

Alexander Turner Passed Away at Age of 81 Years

Alexander Turner, a pioneer resident of Otonabee, passed away yesterday morning at his home in that township. He was eighty-one years of age, and a native of Scotland. He settled in Otonabee when a young man and had lived in that township all his life. He first owned a farm near Blezard's, and later moved to the farm where his death occurred, near Drummond's Station, between the tenth and eleventh lines of Otonabee. He was a member of the Westwood Methodist church.

The late Mr. Turner is survived by a widow, one daughter, Mrs. Frank Pratt, of Peterborough, and one son, Mr. Alex. Turner, of Otonabee. The funeral took place this afternoon at three o'clock to the Methodist church at Westwood, and the remains were interred in the Westwood cemetery.

T.A.S. AND WEST ENDS TO MEET ON SATURDAY

The president of the City Baseball League has ordered that the postponed game between the T.A.S. and West Ends must be played next Saturday afternoon at Riverside. Should the latter team win, it will be necessary for the P.A.C. and T.A.S. to play off for the championship. It is desirous that all matters in connection with the league be settled as soon as possible, on account of the lateness of the season. The managers of the interested teams were notified this morning that the game is to be played next Saturdy and both stated that they would endeavor to have their strongest team in uniform. The contest will start at 2.30. The prize for the player running the bases in the fastest time will be competed for and the home run prize will also be offered.

HAVELOCK AND BRINTON'S WILL MEET AT THE FAIR

Havelock football team, champions of the Midland League, have accepted the defi of the Brinton Carpet Company eleven and the two teams will meet at the Peterborough Fair to struggle for the possession of the R. R. Hall trophy. The game will be played either Friday or Saturday afternoon. The Havelock boys want to play on Friday, but the programme for that day is pretty well filled out and Secretary Hall is trying to arrange the game on Saturday. The Havelock team is one of the strongest in the province and they expec. to defeat the Brinton aggregation, which is composed largely of Old Country players. It should be a good match.

SPORTING NOTES

By winning to-day's game from Haverhill, Worcester won the pennant of the New England Baseball League for 1909.

Mike Donlin, the baseball player.now in vaudeville, was arrested in New York, charged with assault by Edward Danforth, of Cedarhurst, L.I., Felix Isman, of Philadelphia, bailed him out a few minutes after he reached the station house. According to Danforth he was walking on Broadway, when Donlin jumped from an automobile in which he was riding with his wife and another woman and struck him without cause. In reply Donlin said that Danforth made an insulting gesture towards his wife, Mabel Hite, and that he jumped from the auto to resent it.

The Ladies' Bloomer Baseball team played an exhibition game of baseball ith nine locawl players at Agricultural Park yesterday and were defeated by a score of 6—3. There was a very slim attendance, and the game itself was a farce, as the girls could no more play ball than fly.—Brantford Courier.

John D. Marsh, of Winnipeg, won the fifteen mile $5,000 race at Butte, Mont., on Saturday in 1.35.28, over a muddy course. Alexander Rowan, Nanaimo, B.C., was second.

The Newark Indians are making a noise like the championship of the Eastern League these days. The Bronchos take the road to finish the season, while McGinnity's team performs at home.

Pitcher Applegate, formerly of the Toronto Leafs, has been drafted by the New York Americans.

The prospects of a good team to represent the Strathconas in the City Rugby League are very bright. The players intend turning out to practice in a short time.

With three strong teams in the City Rugby League, the game should make big advances here this year.

According to reports many good hockey players from outside points have drifted into this city within the past few days.

GOLF

Peterborough ladies are said by "those who know" to play golf in "good form." They have got into the "swing" of [illegible]

AMERICAN CHAMPION LAD.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—Robert E. Gardner, of Hinsdale, a lad of 19 years, today won the amateur golf championship of the United States from H. Chandler Egan of Exmoor, twice winner of national honors, 4 up and 2 to play. He is the youngest man that ever won the national championship.

Gardner had an advantage of two holes over Egan at the end of the morning round, and although Egan caught him at the third hole of the afternoon play and had a lead of one hole at the seventh, the gritty youngster came on again and from that time on completely outplayed the man from Exmoor.

The veteran golfers, like Walter J. Travis and former open champion Will Anderson watched in astonishment the remarkable game of Gardner as hole after hole he drove, then approached, then took the regulation putts or brought applause from the gallery by holing out from a seemingly impossible distance.

Gardner throughout the tournament played consistent golf. He disposed of Walter J. Travis in the third round of the match played, and won from former western champion Mason E. Phelps yesterday in the semi-finals.

ANNUAL HARVEST HOME SERVICES

The annual harvest home services and rally day at the Park St. Baptist church will be next Sunday. There will be special music by the choir and special preaching services. The church will be beautifully decorated for the occasion, and, coming as it does right after the Peterborough Fair, it will afford all who wish to contribute towards the decorating an opportunity to secure appropriate articles.

At 3 o'clock p.m. Secretary Hassard, of the Y.M.C.A., will deliver an address to the children of the Bible Bible school.

All contributions of the harvest home services will go towards the new church building fund.

AFTER MOVING.

Well, here we are—moved at last!
A house this time our shelter is.
Steam heated flats are of the past,
And we are done with terraces.
I hoped that she'd be satisfied
At least until the early fall,
But now she finds, however tired,
Our rugs won't fit the floors at all.

She likes the house and calls it cute.
The parlor color scheme is blue.
Our tapestries, she says, won't suit,
It's up to me to purchase new.
With lighter hangings, it is plain,
Our chairs must reupholstered be,
Our upright needs a coat of stain
Of something like mahogany.

The curtain fixtures are too small,
And very few of them will do.
As there is a reception hall,
I'll have to buy a rug or two.
She's got to have a new settee,
For bedroom use some wicker chairs,
And she has made it plain to me
We must have carpet on the stairs.

Our china cabinet looks cheap
In such a handsome dining room.
It's headed for the rubbish heap
And I for sure financial doom.
But there's one ray of comfort still,
Not all we own is ancient stuff.
One thing we have that fills the bill—
Our kitchen table's good enough.

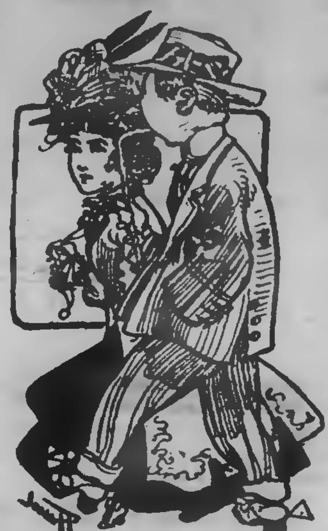
Strife of Intellects.



"Why don't Dickins and Wickins let their children play together any more?"

"They both think they have the smartest children on earth, and the two families are accusing each other of plagiarism."

More Than One Way.

The caller, a man whom he had known in the old town back in Pennsylvania, had dropped in to talk old times with the busy lawyer, and the lawyer had endured it patiently for an hour and a half. Then, unseen by the caller, he pushed a small knob at the end of his desk and a bell rang in the adjoining room.

"Excuse me a moment, Mr. Hockensplutter," he said, stepping into the other room and proceeding to hold his one sided conversation over an imaginary telephone.

"Hello!"

"—— —— —— ——."

"Yes."

"—— —— —— ——?"

"No, Bertha, I'll not have time to go home for dinner. It's already 4.30, and I have several hours' work yet to do. I am very busy and have been detained."

"—— —— —— ——."

"Yes. Goodby."

Then he went back to his desk, but Mr. Hockensplutter had already risen to go.—Chicago Tribune.

Too Wise.

"Will you take a chance on kissing a pretty girl?" asked the young lady with the raffle tickets at the church fair. The crusty and confirmed bachelor held up his hands in horror. "What, he?" he gasped. "No, indeed. I don't take any such chances as those. Chap took a chance like that one time, and six months later he married the young lady."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

In Great Fear.

Percival came running to his grandma one day asking for a drink of water. "Quick, quick, grandma," he said, "give me a drink of water! Quick!"

After he got his drink he said, "The reason that I was in such a hurry I thought I swallowed a worm while eating an apple, and I wanted to drown it."—Circle Magazine.

Johnnie's Logic.

"Dad," said the victim of the paternal palm, "you're awfully cruel."

"Why so, son?"

"'Cause you don't lick me oftener."

"What's that?"

"If you licked me oftener I'd get tougher and it wouldn't hurt so much."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Disregard of Gold.

"An artist should despise money," said the man with the wide hat and pointed whiskers.

"Yes," answered the one with the velvet coat and big necktie. "I'd like to get hold of enough to enable me to give a practical demonstration of my scorn."—Washington Star.

His Just Deserts.

Smith slapped Jones on the back.

"Hello, old chap!" he gurgled familiarly. "I'll wager $50 you don't recall me!"

Jones gave him an icy stare.

"You win!" he said, passing on.—Lippincott's Magazine.

DEAD PROFESSOR KNOWN HERE

Prof. Duncan McDermid Passed Away at Winnipeg on Sunday

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 12.—Prof. Duncan McDermid, principal of the Institute for Deaf and Dumb, one of the most prominent men in western Canada, died here to-day. He was stricken with heart failure Thursday while touring the province with an auto party, and never rallied. He had attained the eminent position of a 33rd degree Mason. In Masonic lore and as a lecturer in the higher degrees he was one of the recognized authorities throughout the world.

The deceased was a son of Mrs. John McDermid, who is living with her daughter, Mrs. R. Armstrong, on William street, Lindsay. He attended the public school there, and was a son of the late Major McDermid, of the 46th Batt., Port Hope.

BRIDGENORTH NEWS

Special to the Review.

Bridgenorth, Sept. 13.—Duck hunting and fishing are very poor at present, as both fish and duck seem to be shy of coming near Bridgenorth.

A number of Bridgenorth people attended the Toronto Fair.

PIAZZA WORK.

Making Screens, Window Shades, Table Covers and Straw Matting.

The schoolgirl home for the summer, the housewife on a vacation and perhaps the convalescent who has many long hours to spend on the piazza will all enjoy occupying themselves with little bits of handiwork to add to the furnishings of the summer home.

One of the newest ideas is to make screens, window shades and porch table covers of ordinary straw matting. True, the shades will have to be rolled up from the bottom by hand and tied to their pole when they are not needed to keep out the sun, and to make a pretty screen or table cover one will want to weave in a few simple designs of raffia, and all the edges must either be bound with some pretty carpet binding or laced to the rods that support them. But when you have finished you have something really worth while.

Where a selvage edge comes next the rod which supports either screen panel or curtain it is laced with stout raffia or cord to the rod. In order to push this "thread" through the matting without breaking the fiber insert the point of a pencil in the matting between the straws, pushing them closer together on either side and leaving a good sized opening for the laces. Make these openings five or six inches apart and lace the matting to the crossbar by simply looping the lacing over the bar each time it is put through the matting.

Among the useful trifles that one may make for the piazza one should remember coverings for the backs of painted chairs, which, unprotected, may leave marks on the clothes.

Denim will answer admirably for these coverings, green being a good color to choose because of its suggestion of coolness.

Made double, just the size of the chair back, and with loops of tape at the upper corners to tie the cover on the chair back, they are easily placed and may be removed with equal ease to be laundered when necessity arises.

There will be cushions, too, to make ready.

These are of two kinds—the soft ones to serve as back rests and the harder ones used as seats on the porch steps.

After all, the latter will be found more acceptable for all purposes in warm weather, when the heat from the down or feather pillow is a consideration.

In selecting covers for any kind of pillows note the color scheme of the piazza furnishings.

That being decided, pick out materials which will launder well and which are not so delicate that they will look soiled within a few days from the dust which is bound to accumulate.

Monk's cloth, denim and some of the darker figured cretonnes are very satisfactory. Burlap is attractive, but is rather too loosely woven to be thoroughly practical.

Canvas will answer, though it is a little stiff. The pillows of denim or monk's cloth may have a design of cretonne appliqued on without great expenditure of time.

An Outdoor Stove.

How to dispose of the garbage at a summer cottage is often a troublesome question, says Good Housekeeping. A man devised a solution of the difficulty without cost. From a neighbor who used acetylene gas he got two empty hundred pound carbide tins and removed the tops. After being cut the tins were placed lengthwise, one over the other, and the open tops then became the front of the crematory. With a strong can opener strips were cut out of both tins where they came together, so as to form a grating, as in the illustration. A piece about four inches square was cut out of the upper tin to make a good draft and allow the smoke to escape. In the lower tin a fire was started with shavings, chips, driftwood or broken branches. In the upper tin the garbage was thrown in upon the grating. Experience proved that the heat generated in this humble contrivance would consume almost anything, green cobs of corn and banana skins not excepted. Moreover, the maid liked it, and no nagging was needed to get her to burn up the garbage at least once a day. In fact, she became so interested in this amateur outdoor stove that when washing day or preserving day came she moved her apparatus under a tree near the crematory and did the work on hand with a good humor that was frequently absent when she worked in the hot kitchen.

YOUR BLOOD IS POISONED

If You Suffer From Headaches or Neuralgia.

Frequent attacks of Headaches or Neuralgia are Nature's warnings of Blood Poisoning. The pain is due simply to the tortured nerves, inflamed by the blood being overloaded with impurities, because of inactive bowels, kidneys or skin.

There is usually chronic Constipation and the foul matter, instead of passing from the body, is absorbed by the blood. The kidneys are not as strong as they should be and fail to filter from the the blood, the necessary amount of impure matter.

Instead of the skin throwing off one and a half pounds of waste matter every day, it becomes inactive and does only half its work, leaving three quarters of a pound of this waste to poison the body. Headache powders and pain killers simply numb the nerves and have no helpful action on the organs causing this poisoning of the blood. To cure Headaches and Neuralgia, the blood must be purified, which can be done only by making the kidneys, bowels and skin healthy and active.

"Fruit-a-tives", made from concentrated and intensified fruit juice, is the greatest blood purifying medicine.

"Fruit-a-tives", or "Fruit Liver Tablets", is a scientific cure for Headaches and Neuralgia, and never fails to cure because "Fruit-a-tives" stops the cause of these troubles.

"THIS IS A SERIOUS MATTER"

said;—"It looked to me as if they were all on Mr. Bollard at the time There were two come first, and four or five came in the second bunch."

(Mr. Bollard did not dance on Monday night. Witness thought he was sitting at the ice cream pavilion nearly all evening. He was talking to another boy; witness did not notice who he was. Mr. Bollard came from the ice cream pavilion to join the home-going part. Witness was positive that the boys had come running after them down through the park. Harry Jopling and another boy came first. Harry Jopling said: "Here he is," to his friend, and Mr. Bollard said "yes, here I am." Harry Jopling and his friend, whom witness did not know, attacked Bollard at once. Fred Jopling came in the second group.

To Mr. O'Connell witness said that Harry Marks and Gordon Long were in a better position to see the fight than she was. They were closer to the scene of the struggle than she had been.

J. G. JOPLING.

Mr. J. G. Jopling, of Bridgenorth, father of the Jopling boys, said he never heard anything about the trouble till Bollard died. He had never heard of there being a fight or that there was going to be any trouble. He never heard it mentioned around the house till Bollard was dead. Witness was away from home at his work during the day time, but was home at night.

MISS PEARL JOPLING.

Miss Pearl Jopling said she was a daughter of Mr. J. G. Jopling. Her brother Harry had told her that Arthur Bollard was going to give him a threshing that night. This was about 9.30 o'clock on Monday night. He had told her this when they were sitting at the ice cream pavilion. She had not told anyone about what Harry had told her. Both Fred and Harry were around the hotel at a quarter to ten. Witness continued: "Harry had two ladies and understood he was going to take them home. The ladies were at the swing. Witness had gone home about ten o'clock.

The coroner tried to get the witness to admit that her brothers had prompted her regarding the evidence she was to give. This the witness denied with vigor.

'I'm telling the truth," she said. "I knew myself what I was going to say. They asked me what I was going to say, but did not tell me what I was to say."

Miss Jopling said that the Bollard family had purchased both groceries and meat from her brothers.

HARRY MARKS.

Harry Marks told practically the same story as when he was in the witness box at a former session. Describing the fight, witness said Fred Jopling had a knee on Bollard's shoulder and he was striking him in the face with his right hand. This was after Bollard had cried out "let go" three times, and "dirty" twice. Blake Cullen had kept witness from going to the assistance of Bollard.

BLAKE CULLEN.

Blake Cullen was taken over his story again by the Crown Attorney and Dr. Gray. He said he had told Fred Jopling that Arthur Bollard was going to give Harry a threshing. Fred had said, "We'll go and see what the trouble is," meaning that he would ask Bollard. Fred Jopling and Harry started down through the park after Bollard, Marks and Miss Minna. Witness was walking behind them. The Joplings were running. Two ladies were walking behind witness through the park, and he walked along with them. He only knew their first names. They were Ruth and Ida. When he heard shouting ahead he started to run to the spot where the fight was taking place. The shouting occurred when Harry Jopling and Bollard were clinched. Witness was closely questioned on this point and stuck to his story. He said he had prevented Harry Marks from interfering.

GORDON LONG.

Gordon Long said he had been with Arthur Bollard on the Monday night on which the fight occurred. Bollard had told him he was going to make Harry Jopling take back some insulting language he had used. Witness understood that Bollard was going to have Jopling apologize, or if he would not do that to give him a chance to fight. Witness was behind Bollard, Marks and Miss Minna down through the park, and the two Joplings ran past him towards the Bollard party. Witness described the fight, the description being the same as given at a former session.

Harry Marks, recalled, said he heard no one about when Bollard and Harry Jopling were fighting. There was no shouting till Bollard cried out.

Gordon Long, recalled, said he had heard no shouting till Bollard cried out, 'let go.' and 'dirty.'

(Miss Ada Minna was put in the box again and questioned by the coroner as to whether there had been any shouting when Harry Jopling and Bollard were clinched. She was positive there had not been any.

Adjournment then took place.

H. P. Kennedy reported hog prices unchanged, at $8.50, fed and watered at the market, and $8.25 f.o.b. cars at country points.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Sept. 13.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending Sept 11 were 2550 cattle, 1225 sheep and lambs, 1875 hogs and 475 calves. The offerings at the market for local consumption this morning consisted of 1225 cattle, 650 sheep and lambs, 800 hogs and 300 calves.

A feature of the trade to-day was the stronger undertone to the market for cattle, and prices scored an advance of ¼c per lb. as compared with those of a week ago. This was due to the increased demand for supplies on account of the large number of strangers being in the city, and, in addition to this, there was also a number of carloads brought for shipment to the lower provinces; consequently the market on the whole was active, and the prospects are that prices will go still higher in the near future. Cable advices from Liverpool to-day stated that the weather was good, but trade was slow, and in consequence a weaker feeling has developed in the market for Canadian cattle, and prices show a decline of ¼c to 1c per lb. since this day week. There was no demand from exporters here to-day. Choice steers sold at 5¼c to 5½c; good at 4¾c to 5c; fair at 4¼c to 4½c; medium at 3¾c to 4c; bulls at 3½c to 4¼c; canners at 1½c to 2c per lb., and bulls at $2.25 to $2.60 per cwt. There continues to be a strong undertone to the market for hogs on account of the limited supply coming forward, and the keen demand for the same from packers and dealers, and the indications are that unless receipts increase in the near future values will go still higher. The bulk of the stock which arrived this morning had been contracted for last week at $9 per cwt.; consequently the offerings on the market for sale were very small, and the inside prices for selected lots were $9.25 to $9.50 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars. All the leading foreign markets for Canadian bacon are very strong on account of short supplies, and cable advices received note a further advance in prices of 1s to 5s per cwt. since this day week.

The demand for small meats to-day was very brisk, and an active trade was done. Supplies were larger than usual, and especially so of lambs, but, notwithstanding this fact, the market for them was stronger, and prices advanced, with sales at 6c to 6½c per lb. Sheep were firm, at 3¾c to 4c, and calves sold at from $3 to $15 each, as to size and quality.

At the Canadian Pacific live stock market the receipts for the week ending Sept. 11 were 4250 cattle for export account, and 1500 cattle, 2040 sheep and lambs, 1100 hogs and 440 calves for local consumption. The supply on the market this morning for sale amounted to 650 cattle, 500 sheep, 500 lambs, 200 hogs and 175 calves.

NEW KNOX CHURCH TO COST AROUND $22,000

A construction permit was taken out at the city clerk's office to-day for the new church to be built by Knox congregation. The estimated cost is $22,000, and it is expected that it will be completed by September of next year. The basement is to be of concrete and stone, and the walls of brick and 18 inches thick. It will be 128x68 feet and will contain six rooms. Simpson and Young, of Toronto are the architects, but the name of the contractor has not yet been announced.

The new church will be located on Rubidge street. The permit was taken out by H. J. McCamman, secretary-treasurer of the church.

NO ACTION WAS TAKEN BY BOARD OF HEALTH

In Regard to Request of Council For an Expression of Approval in Connection With What is Being Done by Them in the Matter of Building New Isolation Hospital—Other Business.

The Board of Health did not make any motion to the effect that they approved of the expenditure of $12,000 for the building of a new isolation hospital. The members of the Board feel that they have not been fairly dealt with in connection with the matter. They were never shown the plans, and at the meeting this morning the Board decided not to express any opinion, as asked for by the Council.

The members present at the meeting this morning were the Chairman, Dr. Burnham, Mayor Bush and Messrs. Johnston, Murty and Edgar.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

The following communications were read and acted upon;

From J. A. Ash, asking for permission to build cess pool in front of his residence, 711 Bethune street, the same to do for two houses.

On motion of Messrs. Johnston and Murty, the request was granted on condition that the cesspool be built under the supervision of the Health authorities and that in the event of a sewer being constructed at the point, connections to be made.

From W. H. Walkey and John Mathieson, asking that they be given sewer connection on Benson street.

On motion of Messrs. Johnston and Edgar, the request was granted.

From City Engineer Hay, giving his report on the proposed sewer to be built on Romaine and Crescent streets. —Received.

On motion of Messrs. Johnston and Murty, the Board will recommend that the request of Mr. Clegg's be granted on sanitary grounds.

A letter was read from Mr. R. L. Sarginson asking payment of accounts amounting to $6.68 for provisions during the term he was quarantined and an account for $30.00 for wages lost. An account was read from Alex. Gordon for $4.76 for meat furnished Mrs. Beauregard and from Wm. Stork and sons for $2.55; from C. J. Reilly for $1.65 for goods furnished to L. LeBarr. An account was also read from Mrs. L. LeBarr for $18 for goods destroyed, and from L. Lebarr for $16.75 for shop expenses while quarantined.—Received.

ACCOUNTS.

The following accounts for services performed under the direction of the Board were ordered to be paid, on motion of Messrs. Johnston and Murty—

OBITUARY

MRS. JOHN MOFFAT.

Mrs. John Moffat died this morning at 10 o'clock at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. Alex. Gibson, 585 George street, at the advanced age of 83 years. While summering at Stony Lake with the family she was taken suddenly ill last week and was removed to her home, but she never rallied. The deceased was the daughter of the late Archibald [illegible] and the relict of the late John Moffat. She came to Peterborough with her father over 70 years [illegible] this city was a very small [illegible]. She leaves to survive her three [illegible] ters, Mrs. C. E. Starr and [illegible] Moffat, both of Toronto, [illegible] Alex. Gibson of this city. [illegible] brother, Mr. Alex. Haggart, [illegible] P., of Winnipeg, had arrived [illegible] previous to her demise.

The funeral will take place [illegible] day afternoon at 2.30 o'clock [illegible] the residence of Mr. Gibson.

THOS. D. STAPLES.

Lindsay, Sept. 13.—There probably isn't another man in Lindsay [illegible] accomplished as much for [illegible] as Thomas D. Staples, who passed [illegible] at noon Sunday at his home, Glenelg street west. During his residence [illegible] town, which lasted about twenty-seven years, the late Mr. Staples built from one hundred [illegible] dred and twenty five houses. [illegible] streets have been practically [illegible] by him with handsome and [illegible] residences. Glenelg street west, [illegible] sex street south, Sussex street [illegible] from Peel to Wellington streets, [illegible] many other streets, have been greatly improved by the many dwellings Mr. Staples erected. He was in [illegible] year when he passed away Sunday.

The deceased was a contractor and carpenter. For years he was foreman of the wood work department of Sylvester's foundry and he had the distinction of having driven the first stake for the erection of that foundry. His dealings in town have been characterized by fair-mindedness and honesty and he was one of the town's [illegible] citizens in more than one sense of the term.

The late Mr. Staples was born in Benbrook, near the city of Hamilton. His father was born in Ireland and his mother in Pennsylvania. When three years of age he was taken to Manvers township, and was among the earliest residents of that vicinity. After he had grown to manhood he operated a sawmill in Fleetwood. [illegible] he came to Lindsay and since then has been a continuous resident of the town.

About forty-six years ago the late Mr. Staples was married to Jane Howden, of Lifford, who survives him, along with the following children:—Mrs. George Lindsay, town; Mrs. Albert F. Morgan, Toronto; Mrs. W. J. Carlisle, town; Wellesley in Lindsay, and Wilbert, in Toronto. The brothers of the deceased are;—Joseph, in Manvers; George, in Detroit; Richard, in Moosejaw, Sask., and James, of Toronto.

Death came Sunday at twelve o'clock after a long illness. A splendid constitution upheld him for months, but the end came at length.

The funeral will be held Tuesday afternoon from his late residence, Glenelg street, west, to the Riverside cemetery, leaving the house at 3.30. Rev. J. P. Wilson, pastor of the Cambridge street Methodist church, of which deceased was a consistent member, will officiate at the funeral services.

TRANSFERRED TO LINDSAY

Mr. P. S. Pickering, who has for the past three years been employed as day operator at the Grand Trunk Railway station, has been transferred to the despatching office at Lindsay. Mr. Pickering during his residence here gained many friends, and was very popular among his fellow-employees.

Mr. Walter Williams, of Lorneville Junction, will be his successor here.

REV. MR. PEARSON HAS RETURNED

Rev. E. A. Pearson arrived home last evening after having spent the past two months on a visit to Europe. He states his holiday was a very pleasant and interesting one, and feels greatly benefitted. Rev. Mr. Pearson visited the British Isles, France, Italy, Germany, Belgium, Switzerland and Holland, starting at Ireland and finishing at Glasgow, from which place he sailed on the return trip for home by the Allan Line. The trip across the ocean from Glasgow was rough, and the weather foggy up to the last two days, when conditions became more pleasant.

Rev. Mr. Pearson will be present at the prayer meeting at George St. Methodist church to-morrow evening.

ANNUAL MEETING OF BIBLE SOCIETY

Union Service Will be Held in Charlotte St. Church on 22nd of September

It has been decided to make a departure from the ordinary method of conducting the public meeting in the interests of disseminating the Scriptures throughout the world. Heretofore some one has been invited to address a formal meeting which has not always been very enthusiastic, although citizens have responded liberally to the work when called upon. This year the wishes of a large number are being complied with and an interesting union service will be held on Wednesday, Sept. 22nd in Charlotte st. Methodist church, when it is expected that all the churches will combine their mid-week services for that important event. The Rev. Messrs. Brown, Webb, Pogue and Canon Davidson have been asked to give ten-minute addresses on some striking phase of the work being accomplished.

The home on the farm of Charles Weller, near Grafton, was destroyed by fire.

Hamilton police again raided foreign boarding houses yesterday and seized liquor.

The presentation was made by Mr. Thomas Hodges, and Mr. J. J. Turner, sr., read the following address;—

Jas. McBain, Esq.:

Dear Mac,—We, your fellow-workers learn that you are about to leave the ranks of the bachelors, and join forces with the benedicts at an early date. We have nothing but words of encouragement to offer you on the important step which you are about to take, and trust you will live to a ripe old age to enjoy every domestic happiness.

We have been associated with you for some time, and you have endeared yourself to us by your courteous manner and happy disposition, so that on the eve of the important step which you are about to take, we feel that we would like to give you some token of the esteem in which you are held by us. We would ask you to accept from your fellow-workers this clock as a small token of our appreciation and esteem. May its face remind you as it marks time in your life that we are all approaching the end of our span, and should use the time at our disposal to the best advantage.

With best wishes for your future happiness.

PEARY IS TAKING HIS TIME STILL AT BATTLE HARBOR

"I Am the Only White Man Who Has Ever Reached the North Pole, and I Am Prepared to Prove it," Declares Dr. Cook's Rival in Interview.

Sydney, C.B., Sept. 15.—Commander Peary will not be in Sydney on Wednesday, as he planned. For a day or two it has been thought that the Roosevelt would be unable to sail from Battle Harbor as soon as expected. No definite word had been received from the explorer for several days, but late last night Mrs. Peary received a wireless from her husband stating that he had been detained and would be unable to get to Sydney for several days yet.

While Sydney had planned to turn out in force to-day to greet the explorer, the delay in his arrival will only serve to give the citizens a little more time to prepare for his reception.

No word has been received from some forty odd newspaper correspondents who are now ploughing the Gulf of St. Lawrence on board the cable steamer Tyrian searching for Peary. As the Tyrian cannot steam very much faster than the Roosevelt, even if they do meet with him it is unlikely that they will get back to Sydney at all ahead of him, and the heavy seas running on the coast to-day are not conducive to comfort on a cable steamer.

Possibly fearing that some of the enterprising correspondents might take his ship away from him and put up in Battle Harbor in her, Commander Durand of the French cruiser Isly put to sea last night. When the Associated Press got away to Battle Harbor in the tug D. H. Thomas, some correspondents of other news-gathering associations went aboard the Isly and asked the commander to take them to Labrador.

He protested that this was impossible, whereupon they wired the French Ambassador at Washington that representatives of two hundred and sixty American newspapers asked him to get the Isly for them, and would he please cable to the French Ministry of Marine for her.

M. Jusserand complied with this request, but the Ministry of Marine did not, and the correspondents had to direct their energies elsewhere.

Peary Makes Statement.

Battle Harbor, Labrador, Sept. 15. (via wireless telegraphy to Cape Ray, Nfld.)—"I am the only white man who has ever reached the North Pole, and I am prepared to prove it." This statement was made to the representative of the Associated Press by Commander Robert E. Peary, in reply to a question on the Peary-Cook controversy.

The Associated Press tug Douglas Thomas, after a stormy passage up the west coast of Newfoundland and through the Straits of Belle Isle, from Sydney, C.B., arrived at this lonely whaling and mission settlement at noon on Monday. A squall of rain was blowing over the harbor as the Thomas steamed in, but with glasses it was able to make out the mast and hull of the Arctic steamer Roosevelt moored in the inner bay.

The Arctic steamer looked little the worse for her second trip to the polar regions. Along the rail, as the Thomas approached, were gathered the members of her famous crew, among them the redoubtable Captain Robt. Bartlett, who was at once recognized.

Capt. Bartlett invited the Thomas to lay alongside and the correspondent to come on board without delay. The correspondent clambered over the weather-beaten bulwarks, and proceeded direct to the cabin to meet Commander Peary, the man who has stood upon the apex of the surface of the world.

The commander's greeting was most cordial. "This is a new record in newspaper enterprise," he said, "and I appreciate the compliment."

PELLAGRA SPREADING RAPIDLY

Deadly Disease Spreading at Alarming Rate in North Carolina.

Durham, N.C., Sept. 15.—Pellagra is spreading in this state at an alarming rate. The ninth death in this locality occurred here Monday night. Two new cases were discovered Monday, and one of the two survivors of the eleven originally afflicted will die within a week, in all probability. There are said to be one thousand cases of the disease in North Carolina at the present time, and but one county, Onslow, it is declared, is without a patient.

The first autopsy upon a pellagra victim in North Carolina was performed Monday night on George Mebane, a large negro, who had just died, violently insane. Though the germ was found, no other trace of the disease was discovered. The heart and other organs were in perfect condition. Prior to the negro's death, Guinea pigs were inoculated with his blood. They have shown no signs of the disease yet.

Late Monday night the physicians who conducted the autopsy, headed by the pathologist of Trinity College, declared themselves completely mystified as to the origin of the disease.

Pellagra is a cerebro-spinal disease not uncommon among the peasantry of northern Italy, where it is caused by the eating of diseased corn. It affects the spinal cord and intestines and often produces dementia. Fresh air, rest and a good diet; from which maize must be excluded, are the remedies.

DEFENCE PROBLEM CRAZED THIS MAN

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 15.—J. Muir Wilson, former Conservative member in the British Parliament for the Attercliff division of Sheffield, who became suddenly insane Monday morning, will be conveyed east by special car in care of Major Harris, his agent, and two guards, en route to England.

Wilson is a very wealthy man. He differed with his party on the tariff question and though defeated in the general election, polled a heavy vote. When a bye-election came along, his party nominated another. Wilson used his influence for the election of the Socialist candidate.

His health broke down and he was taking a trip around the world. The excitement over imperial defence seemed to affect him greatly.

He had but recently returned from the Yukon, and on the way had lost all his trunks, save one, containing the court dress in which he so startled hotel guests. He is now in a hospital here.

Had a Fall.

While wheeling on Aylmer street last evening a well-known doctor had a nasty spill just in front of the fire station. After brushing some of the mud off his clothes he continued on his journey, none the worse for his little mishap.

GLACE BAY STRIKE MAY END SOON

Montreal, Sept. 15.—Information has leaked out in a wire from the United States to the effect that the U.M.W. of America, in charge of affairs at Glace Bay, have advised their grand officers at Indianapolis that the strikers there are poor fighters, that they appear to think that the U.M.W. has untold wealth to spend on them and that they advise them if any kind of settlement could be obtained, it would be the best thing to do at the present time, in their opinion.

In a special report to one of the grand officers, that officials advised that the strikers are clamoring for clothes and provisions, and that the American supporters keep putting them off.

Meeting Postponed

The meeting of the Cheese Board, which was to have been held this morning was postponed until Saturday morning.

OPEN GATE WAS CAUSE OF SHOOTING

London, Sept. 15.—Mrs. Wesley Scott, who is charged with the murder of her father-in-law, Harvey Scott, of 5th concession, West Nissouri, was brought to the city Monday night, and appeared before Squire Chittick, who remanded her for a week. She is at present in the county jail, where she passed a quiet night. Ed. Meredith, K.C., will have charge of her case.

An adequate motive for the crime seems hard to find. And as far as can be learned it is a case, the neighbors say, of a woman goaded beyond endurance by a long series of cruelties and petty tyranny, stretching back for many years. The dead man had borne a harsh name among his fellows.

"He was a good neighbor," one man said, "and always kept the line fences carefully. And if he worked for you he wouldn't spare himself or his horses. But he was a hard man, and close. A man who had worked hard all his life, had made no friends, and had crossed all who had come in his way."

A gate between the two places, it seems, had been left open, and some cattle belonging to Wesley Scott had strayed into the old man's premises. The deceased man became angered at this, and taking up the stick, which he always carried, he went over to see his daughter-in-law about the matter.

FATHER AND CHILD FELL FROM TRAIN NEAR NORTH BAY

Man From Calumet, Mich., While Passing From One Car to Another Falls off Platform With Child in His Arms—Baby Hurt.

North Bay, Ont., Sept. 15.—A peculiar accident happened near Beaucage station on the Indian reserve, nine miles west of North Bay, on the C.P.R.

A man named Mitchell, with his wife and family, from Calumet, Mich., were passengers on the Soo express, en route to England, and while the train was in motion, Mitchell endeavored to pass from one car to another with his three-year-old son in his arms.

He states that he lost his balance and fell from the swiftly-moving train, striking heavily on the ground, but fortunately rolling clear of the train. When he came to his senses he saw lights in a house nearby, and picking up his child asked for admission, which was refused.

This has not been corroborated, as the houses are few in this vicinity and the sectionmen disclaim any knowledge of the occurrence.

However, Mitchell states he wandered around trying vainly to secure a place of refuge, finally crawling into a box car, where he spent the night with his child as best he could, walking to North Bay in the morning, where he was given medical attention with his child, which was found to be suffering from fractured thigh-bone, and was placed in the hospital. Mitchell's injuries were confined to bruises and are not serious. Mrs. Mitchell continued her journey to Montreal, and was in a terrible state of anxiety, not knowing what had happened. She was brought back to North Bay, and the journey to England has been postponed.

LAWYER WAS IN THE HOUSE

Montreal, Sept. 15.—The crown sprang a surprise on the defense yesterday in the trial of John Dillon for the murder of Constable Shea.

For the first time, it came out that Dillon's lawyer at the time was in the house the evening of the shooting.

In fact, Hugh Semple swore yesterday that he was with Dillon when the police arrived, and that he was in the other room when the accused fired and said he had shot a man.

"My God, what have you done," said the witness, and Dillon asked him to go into another room, but he ran from the house by the back way instead.

RE-ORGANIZATION OF ALLAN LINE

London, Sept. 15.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Inquiries in the best-informed shipping circles in Liverpool leave no doubt that the Allan Line reorganization foreshadows an important re-grouping in the Canadian trade. Formal union with the G.T.R. will not take place immediately. But within two years, when the Allan agreement with the Canadian Pacific for joint mail service will have expired and the G.T.P. has been completed to the Pacific, there will, it is stated, be closer relations, possibly amounting to complete fusion, between the Allan Line and the G.T.R.

ROBINSON CAUGHT AFTER HARD FIGHT

Warren, Ont., Sept. 15.—James Robinson, wanted for incest and infanticide, was captured at his home yesterday by his brother-in-law, Jas. Matheson.

Matheson was passing by the Robinson farm on a load of hay, when he glanced across a field, and there beheld Robinson, the fugitive, who had been at large since the 11th of August.

Matheson immediately dismounted from the hay wagon and unstrapped a strap from the harness. Robinson, being on the alert, took to the bush, and Matheson followed him. After running about a mile, Matheson drew up with the fugitive. A desperate fight ensued and Matheson finally overpowered Robinson.

In the course of half an hour, Robinson was handed over to the authorities and lodged in the Warren jail.

He was taken to Sudbury last night and lodged in jail.

THIRTY-SEVEN NEW MINISTERS

Toronto, Sept. 15.—Rev. Dr. McLaren, Presbyterian Home Mission secretary, has just returned from a ten weeks' official visit to Great Britain, and Ireland. His purpose was to secure a number of young men for home mission work in the West.

Dr. McLaren stated yesterday, that he received thirty-seven who would start from the old country this month. Several more would follow this fall, and others in the spring. The work here, however, would afford stations for nine young preachers than were in sight either here or in Great Britain.

Young Agent's Thefts.

Montreal, Sept. 15.—Three years in the penitentiary was the sentence meted 17-year-old Hector Larose, for stealing $800 from the Canadian Pacific Railway while employed as clerk in the ticket office on the Place Viger station.

Ever since he started to work, a deficit of from $25 to $30 was found almost daily. This could not be accounted for until Larose was arrested, under suspicion, and pleaded guilty.

FAST TRAINS AND GOOD TRANSPORTATION NEEDED

President Hobson in Annual Address to the Canadian Manufacturers' Association Lays Stress on Need of Freighting Facilities.

Hamilton, Sept. 15.—The point most elaborated yesterday in President Hobson's address at the opening of the annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, was the necessity of the fullest and fastest transportation for Canada in her competition with the United States.

He considered it the biggest problem before the Canadian public.

The farmers' money kept the wheels of commerce and industry in motion. But they wanted to keep him in profit by his geographical advantages so that he could reach the great consuming markets by the shortest and cheapest route.

The superiority of the Hudson Bay and the St. Lawrence to the Mississippi route were pointed out. The St. Lawrence route, placed Canada in a position of supreme advantage. American interests were steadily at work in an almost superhuman effort to negative this advantages by the construction of artificial water ways, for which $110,000,000 has been voted by New York State. The point of peculiar significance to Canadians was the overwhelming advantage which would be Canada's if the Welland and St. Lawrence Canals were deepened uniformly to 24 feet, or if 400 miles were cut off the route by the construction of the Georgian Bay Canal, providing a straight line waterway, stretching half-way across the continent, far removed from the attack of foreign foes, and opening up a territory of untold wealth in minerals and timber.

Noting the revival in business, fault was found with the anti-dumping regulations. It was recognized that manufacturers would resort to ways, subtle and devious, whereby these regulations can be evaded, when their interests required, and it was urged that "strong representations to the Government," and the incoming tariff committee.

A lengthy reference to the labor situation included a consideration of the present coal strike. Owing to favorable business conditions, there had been a conspicuous absence of labor troubles. Employers, he believed, would not take advantage of such a situation to reduce wages.

"I believe I voice the attitude of every manufacturer here present when I say that in times of business adversity, we exhaust every other means of economy before attempting to economise on productive labor. But depressions such as we have just passed through might well be regarded as blessings in disguise, if only they would cause the artisan to realise that the manufacturer is, after all, his friend and his ally, rather than his natural prey, as the agitator would have him believed," he said.

During 1908, disputes with 26,286 employes involved a computed loss of time of 708,194 working days, which at $1.35 a day, meant a loss to the working population of $1,000,000. Canada was too young and too badly in need of money and labor to bear such burden.

The 13th and 91st regiment last evening tendered a reception at the Armories to the delegates to the convention of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, and Mayor McLaren gave them an address of welcome.

At yesterday afternoon's session, the secretary, G. M. Murray, spoke of the future needs of the organization. He said the guide published by the association should contain the names of every reliable manufacturing firm. A special committee was named to devise a scheme to increase the membership of the association. The executive council was given permission to hold one of its sessions in Ottawa. The treasurer, George Booth, reported that the surplus assets had been reduced from $21,945 to $16,000. Receipts amounted to $52,250, an increase over last year of $3,422. The membership amounted to 2,356.

NEW SECRETARY FOR THE HYDRO COMMISSION

Toronto, Sept. 15.—To provide for the increasing amount of work entailed by the construction of the hydro-electric transmission line, it has been necessary to appoint a secretary with enlarged powers to relieve the chairman, Hon. Adam Beck.

Sir James Whitney claims to have found the right man in W. W. Pope of the Grand Trunk legal department at Montreal. As secretary, Mr. Pope will bring to the service of the commission a wealth of experience in matters pertaining to such an undertaking. He first became connected with the Grand Trunk Railway at Bellwith, some 20 years ago, and was later transferred to Montreal to assist W. H. Biggar, K.C., general counsel.

C. E. Settell, who has been acting secretary of the commission since its inception, will still be retained as assistant secretary.

PREVENTED A TRAGEDY

Bremerton, Wash., Sept. 15.—Capt. Thomas Phelan of Kansas City, soldier of fortune, is dead, aged 76.

While visiting Ireland years ago, Phelan learned of a plot to blow up the British ship Queen and prevented the execution of the plan.

Phelan was later requested to call at the office of O'Donovan Rossa, editor of The Irishman of New York, and was stabbed thirteen times and his arm was broken.

Miners Die From Thirst.

Rhyolite, Nevada, Sept. 15.—The bodies of Emery Bodge and Tom Flanz, miners, who perished of thirst while attempting to cross Death Valley, were found four miles west of Skiddoo, Cal., by members of the searching party scouring the desert for a brother of President Eldridge of the National Sewing Machine Co., who has been lost for three weeks.

Murdered by Burglars.

Nanaimo, B.C., Sept. 15.—Burglars broke into the residence of William Rudd early yesterday morning, bound and gagged Mrs. Rudd and so seriously wounded her husband that he died in a short time.

The murderers secured $50 and escaped.

LORD BERESFORD HAS DEPARTED

Toronto, Sept. 15.—Capt. R. M. Melville, R.N.R., of Toronto, accompanied Admiral Lord Charles Beresford to New York, where the latter left on the 7.10 train last evening. The admiral expects to meet his daughter in New York, where they will be the guests of Col. Thompson, an old friend.

His lordship's departure was marked by an extreme absence of ostentation. He arrived at the station about 15 minutes before train time, and stood on the platform chatting with the few friends who were down to see him off. Very few outside of the party knew who he was. He did not have a private car, and when the train pulled out he was standing on the platform of the rear Pullman, waving farewell.

Those who were present to bid the admiral bon voyage were Geo. H. Gooderham, M.P.P., Mrs Melville and family, D. H. Irish, and Harold Phillips, a student of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, from South Africa, a personal friend of his lordship.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Grain fields in the vicinity of Gunnison and Telluride, Colorado, are buried under a blanket of snow as a result of the heavy storms of Monday.

The city of Montreal is thronged with visitors for the old home week. The visitors come from far-removed points as Dawson to the north and Cape Town to the south.

David Blumenthal, aged 17, of Toronto, is lying at the point of death in the General Hospital, suffering from injuries sustained in a street car accident yesterday morning.

The Roman Catholic diocese of Peterboro has purchased the Bradburn homestead for $17,000 and will convert it into an orphanage. The property consists of two acres on which is a large brick building.

Threshing returns from the Brandon district are considerably better than was anticipated earlier in the season, and many crops are running from 25 to 30 bushels to the acre, where from 18 to 20 only was expected.

Capt. Roald Amundsen, the Norwegian explorer, has decided to postpone his projected expedition to the Arctic regions until June 1, 1910, on account of delay in his preparations caused by the general strike in Sweden.

King Manuel will leave Portugal for England Nov. 20. He will stop four days in Madrid. It is understood that King Manuel's betrothal to the daughter of the Duke of Fife, will be announced from Windsor Castle, and that King Edward will confer the order of the garter upon King Manuel in honor of the engagement.

THE INCONSISTENT GLOBE

The Globe quotes, presumably with approval, the words of Premier Gouin of Quebec, who reiterates his expressed determination not to take off his pulpwood duties in deference to the threats of the United States or anybody else. It is wrong, then, is it, to hamper trade by putting on a protective tariff, but it is not wrong to hamper it by putting on an export tariff? Odd logic, that. As for ourselves, we should say that a regulative tariff or duty may well be put on anywhere at any time it it serves a good purpose. Surtaxes, preferences, bounties, embargoes, etc., are just so many hypocritical ways of escaping the inevitable conclusion that Free Trade, pure and simple, may be good for a country and it may not. It depends.

FIGHT IT OFF

What do the workingmen of Canada propose to do about the recommendation of the Laurier's Government's engineer, Mr. Collingwood Schreiber, C.E., who having been west on a tour of inspection, is convinced that if the men who finance the G. T.P. are to make their usual enormous haul out of it, the wages of labour must come down. Recently Sir Wilfrid guaranteed the bonds of those gentlemen in the London market. They got inside rates as a consequence. But who is there to guarantee the bonds of the workingmen?

There has been nothing like it in Canada before. It is the most barbarous and cruel throw-down for Canadian civilisation that it ever had. Once the request is conceded, Canada will remain in the grip of the Money-hog. We must fight their demand to the last ditch. Even if "other than white labour" had to be employed, don't let the wages go down or else Canada will soon have what they have in the purlieus of Southern Europe, viz., a people without ambition and without hope except that of escaping to some other country. Will Canadians consent to have their happy land taken from them? God knows the countless rake-offs that Money gets are big enough without treating human beings as nothing at all. Employers and employed alike are made to bow to the brazen serpent. Verily the love of money is the root of all evil, for even churches yield to it, too. Like all beasts of prey, the capitalist-financier has his jackal attendant, the man who watches the market and speculates in stocks on margin. He aims to be the friend and intimate of the brainy rich man in order that he may pick up crumbs of information and make a haul out of a rise in the FOOD market. He doesn't work in any good sense. He helps no good cause by evolving some plan of making things better. He merely schemes. He is the god-child of the devil. How can a man become rich fairly and legitimately who has given no return for the money he has made. The manager of a big industry usually earns his wealth fairly and is a blessing to the community but the man who makes it by dealing in finance or stocks make it out of other people's earnings, and out of what is often the blood of toiling women and starving children. Nor does it avail to buy off popular discontent with an occasional gift or sop. It but aggravates the meanness of it all.

AGRICULTURE IN ONTARIO

"Agriculture is making actual progress but relative to other industries it is going back, and there is reason to fear that even actual progress may stopped if a change does not soon occur. As Mr. Drury said the weed evil is assuming alarming proportions; in some cases fields, and in other cases almost whole farms have been taken possession of by the sow thistle. The area covered by weed pests is constantly being enlarged and, if something is not done, and that speedily, to check the spread, the retrogression of agriculture will not be relative, but actual.

But how is the evil to be checked if the labor supply, insufficient at present, is to be further drawn upon to develop the Canadian idea in the west, and to man factories in Ontario that have been artificially stimulated by protection? The demand for a square deal and for a more intelligent study of agricultural conditions by leaders of thought in cities cannot be too strongly presented." — The Weekly Sun.

Ontario agriculture is doomed if some consideration is not shown to the great east as well as to the great west. We have mortgaged our farms, our industries and our energies to please those who desire to speculate in western lands and to build up political reputations regardless of cost. Ontario might have been the garden of eastern Canada, but it bears every evidence of becoming, comparatively speaking, a desert. The signs of weakness in our farming operations are just such as one would expect when the tide recedes from a shore and carries off everything with it and not the least important of these is the tide of enterprise. Our young farmers are unsettled. The prospects here barely recovering from the Manitoba madness of a few years ago are doomed again because of the overwhelming desire to develop every part of this great country before its time. Half the land well developed is infinitely better than three-quarters of it skimmed. In a few years the west will require careful cultivation and then we shall find the same conditions there as here viz., to skim the cream and let the solid work go. Agriculture is the basis of national life and Ontario agriculture is the basis of Ontario life. With a fine home market it should do well here, but how can it do well when the powers that be are doing everything they can to kill it?

FRANCOMANIA

That our good French-Canadian brothers are being led into a campaign of exclusion of the English-speaking is apparent. The refusal to fuse is founded on the leaves and fishes, as the following indicates:—

Yesterday's 'Bulletin' contained an article published over the name of C. Duroc, treating on the candidature of Dr. J. J. Guerin for the mayoralty, and on the Board of Control. After heaping miscellaneous abuse on the Doctor and making various insinuations as to his political career, and his attitude towards French-Canadians, the article seeks to clinch its attack with the account of an alleged visit of the Doctor to Laprairie at the time of a regatta some years ago, on which occasion, it is affirmed, he became enraged because a French-Canadian crew won a prize put up by English-speaking supporters of the sport, with the expectation than an English-speaking crew would be victorious, and on being asked to speak he said some uncomplimentary things about the winners and French-Canadians in general.

Dr. Guerin, seen with regard to the article this morning, said:—

"The tone of the article speaks for itself. The 'Bulletin' as well as its supporters, imagine they can throw dust in the eyes of honest people by appeals to race prejudice. It is too bad to be obliged to stoop to refute statements which are neither more nor less than dishonest, as they are absolutely without foundation. I am, according to that little paper, supposed to have favored at a regatta a crew of English origin in preference to one of French extraction.

"All I have to say is that never in my life did I attend a regatta at Laprairie, and what is more, during the twenty odd years that my family has been in the habit of visiting that delightful spot I have never heard of a regatta having taken place there. The article you refer to is not only libellous, but malicious, and absolutely void of any vestige of truth.—The Witness.

EDITORIAL NOTES

One of the secrets of masculine opposition to women's suffrage is out. There are more women in the world than men.

Lord Northcliffe and Carl Peters both insist that there is to be war between Germany and Britain. People who go to war in a moment of passion may be excused. Not so with those who go at it deliberately.

Machinery men are doing all they can to persuade Toronto to provide a proper machinery-hall for the Exhibition. It will probably do so.

HUNTERS
Something About Moose and Deer

It is now pretty well known among hunters that the best deer hunting country in Ontario is on the line of the Canadian Northern Ontario and that hunters receive special attention. Mr. C. Price Green, Passenger Agent of the line is a hunter himself who goes right with the parties and looks after them, in fact he located most of them. This year the line will be opened north of Sellwood into the midst of the Moose Country, they are reported very thick, the Engineers say that they have never seen anything like it, the Moose season up there opens October 15th, fifteen days before the Deer. We have something special on a new place that will take three parties of deer hunters

INFANTS DELIGHT
Taylor's Soap

Soap That is Best for the Baby's Bath

Baby's skin is very sensitive to soap; some soaps soothe and nourish, while others inflame and irritate.

It is of the utmost importance that you know what soap to use, and to do this you must know what is in the soap.

So let us explain how we make Infants' Delight. We first go for pure vegetable oil to France. There we pay often double what we might pay. But the oil we get is pure enough to use on your table.

Then we go more than 12,000 miles to the isle of Ceylon for pure cocoanut oil. Both oils are carefully tested by chemists and doubly boiled.

Next they go through our own special milling process and fall like flakes of snow into enormous bins. Then they are crushed under a weight of 30 tons to press out the moisture.

Finally they pass through granite rollers and come out in miles of silky ribbons. Then they are dried eight times and stamped into oval cakes that just fit the hand.

Isn't it worth while to have soap like this for your baby? Why risk using common soaps when this excellent kind costs no more than others?

This lovely soap leaves the baby's delicate skin as soft as velvet and as smooth as silk. Even the baby knows the difference in this delightful soap—so we call it Infants' Delight.

Baby will like the perfume too. It is so dainty and fragrant—only the exquisite scent of the rose. If this soap is pure enough for the baby's skin it surely is best for your own. Try one cake—you owe it to baby and yourself.

How to Bathe the Baby

Rinse the body with clear, warm water and then rub in a rich lather of Infants' Delight. Then rinse off the lather with a cloth dipped in lukewarm water and wrung out over the skin. Pat the baby's skin dry with a cloth but never rub with a towel for it coarsens the texture of the skin.

PLANT BAROMETERS.

The Dandelion, Clover Leaves and the Scarlet Pimpernel.

The dandelion is a dandy barometer, one of the commonest and most reliable. It is when the blooms have seeded and are in the fluffy, feathery condition that the weather prophet faculties come to the fore. In fine weather the ball extends to the full, but when rain approaches it shuts like an umbrella. If the weather is inclined to be showery it keeps shut all the time, only opening when the danger from the wet is past, says the Chicago Tribune.

The ordinary clover and all its varieties, including the trefoil and the shamrock, are also barometers. When rain is coming the leaves shut together like the shells of an oyster and do not open again until fine weather is assured. For a day or two before rain comes their stems swell to an appreciable extent and stiffen so that the leaves are borne more upright than usual. This stem swelling when rain is expected is a feature of many flowering grasses.

The fingers of which the leaves of the horse chestnut are made up keep flat and fanlike so long as fine weather is likely to continue. With the coming of rain, however, they droop as if to offer less resistance to the weather. The scarlet pimpernel is nicknamed the "poor man's weather glass" or wind cope and opens its flowers only to fine weather. As soon as rain is in the air it shuts up and remains closed until the shower or storm is over.

INSECT STINGS.

Dangerous Always and Especially When One is Run Down.

Stings and bites of insects are extremely dangerous at all times and especially when the system is not in a condition to resist the poison injected.

In many insects the nature of the poison has not been ascertained, while in most of them it is of an acid, irritant nature, in others it may contain a powerful cardiac sedative and depressant, and in still others organisms in pure or mixed cultures may be introduced with the sting or bite. Apart from the natural poison used by insects it should not be forgotten that flies and other insects that live on carrion may easily carry contagion and inoculate the persons whom they bite or sting.

In the case of ordinary bites and stings the chemical antidote is an alkaline solution, such as a strong solution of bicarbonate of soda or potash, which counteracts the acid of the sting. Suction at the wound in all these varieties of stings and bites will draw out some of the poison and until some antitoxin treatment can be found which will prove an antidote to the bacterial poison introduced little can be done beyond a stimulating and supporting treatment with attention to symptoms.—Health.

Old Mail Box.

Among the treasures held by the Antiquarian society in Portsmouth, N. H., there is an old box the history of which is given on a label which it bears. The box is of tin, painted green, and shows signs of much usage, which is not surprising when one considers that it carried the United States mail between Portsmouth and Boston during the Revolution. It is about nine inches long, four and a half inches wide and a little more than that in height. It was carried on horseback by Captain John Noble, otherwise known as Deacon Noble, who was post rider until 1783. This box contained all the mail and made every week one round trip, occupying three days in the journey—from Portsmouth to Boston the first of the week and three days at the end of the week from Boston to Portsmouth. The distance between the two places is a little more than fifty miles.

He Knew No Fear.

Prince Metternich was driving in Vienna one day during the congress of 1815 when the horses bolted, the carriage was overturned and Metternich was thrown into the roadway. Finding he had no bones broken, he picked himself up and walked quietly away. The same evening he met the king of Naples, who had seen the accident.

"How horribly frightened you must have been," said the king.

"Not at all," answered Metternich. "It is no merit of mine, but I am constitutionally inaccessible to fear."

"It is as I thought," replied the king. "You are a supernatural being."

Hard to Get.

Not long ago at a village near Durham a quack doctor was selling recipes for rheumatism, so a pitman bought one. It told him to catch a common housefly and tickle its ribs with a clothes prop until it cried. Then catch the tears in a teaspoon and rub the part affected, and he would get instant relief.—London Express.

Praise.

"Your glasses," she said, "have made a great difference in your appearance."

"Do you think so?" he asked.

"Yes. You look so intelligent with them on."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Retort Unkind.

Gerald—A gentleman is defined as one who never gives pain. Geraldine—Then you're no gentleman; you give me a pain every time you call.—New York Press.

Finding His Level.

"A man allus finds his level, son," said Uncle Eben, "an' you's lucky to be let down easy by experience instead of arrivin' wif a jolt."—Washington Star.

Vicar-General Mahony, of Hamilton, will represent Bishop Dowling at the Plenary Council.

More bread and Better bread
—And the Reason for it

A STRONG FLOUR can only be made from strong wheat. Manitoba hard wheat is acknowledged the strongest in the world—and that is the kind used for Purity Flour.

But that's not all. Every grain of this wheat contains both high-grade and low-grade properties. In separating the high-grade parts from the low-grade the Western Canada Flour Mills put the hard wheat through a process so exacting that not a single low-grade part has the remotest chance of getting in with the high-grade.

Of course this special process is more expensive to operate but it means a lot to Purity flour users—that's why we use it.

It means that Purity Flour is made entirely of the highest-grade flour parts of the strongest wheat in the world.

It means a high-class, strong flour and therefore yields "more bread and better bread."

Purity may cost a little more than some flours, but results prove it the cheapest and most economical after all.

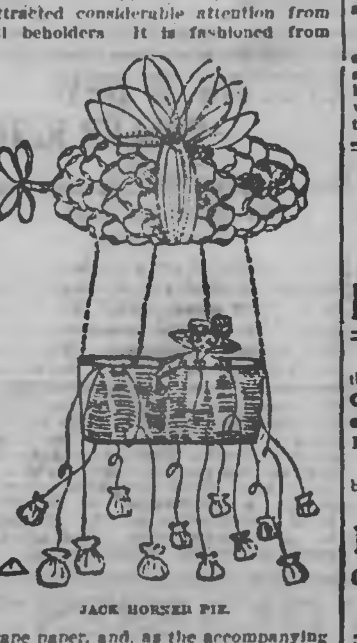
JACK HORNER PIE.

The Latest Guise of This Popular Centerpiece.

An addition has been made to the contrivances for aerial navigation and, while it would defy the skill of a Wright or a Zeppelin to operate it, has attracted considerable attention from all beholders. It is fashioned from crape paper, and, as the accompanying illustration shows, it is carried out in realistic fashion, even to the basket suspended by tinsel cord from which depend satin bags for favors, the mission of this particular airship being to serve as a Jack Horner pie.



JACK HORNER PIE.

The Servant Question.

In England the proportion of men to women indoor servants is as one to three or four. In France the reverse is the case, parlor maids being unknown, the one femme de chambre being lady's maid as well as housemaid. The housework—sweeping, dusting, etc.—mainly falls upon the manservants. One element entailing much extra work for servants in England is absent in a French house. This is the staying guest, the succession of visitors. Outside private hotels and in the handsome flats of fashionable quarters there is, indeed, no room in Parisian households for friends. The words "dine and sleep" or "week end" visits have not found their way into French dictionaries, nor have dine and sleep or week end guests yet become French institutions. It is easy thus to understand why three or four servants suffice in France, while in England a dozen would be needed for people of similar means and position, and where three or four maids are kept in England only a general servant is kept in France.

A reward of $500 per man is offered for the arrest of any of the robbers who blew open the Provincial Banque safe at Yamachiche, Que.

THE HOOK

The mother of the twins found them fighting furiously. Willie, the larger twin, was on top. He was beating Tommy about the face and head.

"Why, Willie, how dare you strike your brother like that!" cried the mother, taking the boy by the ear and pulling him off.

"I had good cause to strike him," answered Willie.

"What do you mean?" she asked.

"Why," said Willie with a righteous air, "didn't I let him use my sled all last Saturday on condition that he'd say my prayers for me all this week? And here I've just found out that he's skipped three days."

OPENING OF NEW ROLLER RINK

Large Crowd Was Present Last Night—Splendid Floor and Good Skates.

A large crowd and a decidedly warm evening marked the opening of the new Brock street roller rink last night. The interior presented a pretty and inviting appearance. The floor could hardly be improved upon, and the skates gave general satisfaction. The grand march was very creditably performed and should be more popular than ever, on account of the large space available. There were sixty-one couples took part in it last night and many more could have been accommodated. A detachment of the 57th Band discoursed a splendid programme of numbers, which added greatly to the enjoyment of the evening.

..STYLE IN GLASSES..

There is no reason why persons with defective vision need disfigure their faces by wearing glasses of unsightly shape, entirely out of harmony with the contour of their features. There is style in glasses just as there is style in everything else to wear. There is some style or mounting that is "just the thing for your face" if you can only find it, and we are in a position to tell you all about all the different mountings, for we make frequent visits to the leading factories, and keep pace with all the improvements in mountings and lens grinding. We will take pleasure in helping you select a mounting to carry your lenses, that will be becoming, comfortable and secure.

We are showing now one of the Newest ideas in mounts, and we are selling a lot of them We can adapt these to suit any person. When you have tried all other eyeglass mounts without success, come to us, we will guarantee to fit you to your entire satisfaction.

The uncut lenses we use are from the AMERICAN OPTICAL CO., the largest Optical House in the world. We buy these only in "First" quality, and grind them any shape or size. All work guaranteed.

FENCE WAS ERECTED ON TRUE BOUNDARY LINE

Magistrate Held That Chas. Griffin Was Guilty of Tresspass on Mrs. Madden's Property—Fine of $5.00 and Costs Imposed.

Magistrate Dumble gave judgment this morning in the case of Mrs. Madden against Chas. Griffin, in which the latter was charged with trespass and causing damage to a fence which the complainant, Mrs. Madden, had had erected, and which occupied the attention of the court last week.

His Worship held that while, in a sense, in the mind of the defendant, there was a trespass on his property, the evidence showed that the fence erected by Mrs. Madden had been built on her property on the true boundary line, and that the acts of Griffin were without justification.

He imposed a fine of $5.00 and costs on the defendant, and an additional $10.00 to compensate Mrs. Madden for losses sustained by her by the fence being destroyed.

WILL HAVE TWO AND A HALF MILLION DOLLARS OF BONDS UNDERWRITTEN

The Northumberland-Durham Power Co., lessee of the whole of Healey Falls power from the Dominion Government, and the Culverwell syndicate, owning certain Trent river powers, north of Trenton and at Campbellford, have completed a contract with a leading financial corporation for the underwriting of the two and a half millions dollars of bonds for the development of these powers.

The deal was consummated by Mr. John Alexander Culverwell, of Port Hope, managing director of the company, and of the syndicate, assisted by R. J. McLaughlin, K.C., of Toronto, and Lindsay. Power will be transmitted to Belleville and the cement mills, Deseronto, Napanee and Kingston; also west to Port Hope and Cobourg, and also north to Havelock, Norwood and Blairton mining districts.

Eighteen Municipal Councils have officially endorsed the Government lease to the company, which has been organized by the leading manufacturers and business men of the district.

These powers will be developed on the dam being built by the Dominion Government for the Trent Canal.—Port Hope Guide.

GIRL STATED SHE WAS HAPPY AND CONTENTED

Hazel Brenan, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Brenan, of Havelock, will remain at home with her parents as a result of Magistrate Denison's judgment in the case which was heard at that place yesterday.

It was claimed that the girl, who is fifteen years of age, was being ill-treated and neglected, but the evidence of the complainant and a number of other witnesses failed to substantiate the charge.

The young girl, in the box, stated that she was happy and contented with her parents and did not receive punishment without justification.

The defence was not called to furnish evidence, and the magistrate decided not to give an order for the girl to be taken in charge by the Children's Aid Society.

Mr. G. N. Gordon acted for Mr. Reginald Brenan, and Mr. B. D. Hall for the society in the absence of Mr. E. L. Goodwill.

SHALL CHIEF ROSZEL AND HIS MERRY MEN LEARN JIU JITS

Chief Campeau and Chief Detective Carpenter received an interesting visitor yesterday, in the person of Professor John J. O'Brien, late inspector of police in Japan.

His mission to the two chiefs was to see whether they would consider the advisability of allowing their men to learn jiu jitsu, which is the Japanese secret science of self-defence. However, the chiefs wanted some practical demonstration to prove the efficacy of the Japanese overpowering methods, and they were convinced when Professor O'Brien had overthrown a couple of burly policemen and rendered them harmless.

The professor is of small stature, but has acquired the art of how quickly to overpower a thug or a man who attempts to resist the police.

Jiu jitsu is one of the physical courses which a policeman in England has to undergo and it is more than probable that as a result of Professor O'Brien's visit it will be adopted in Montreal for the professor has already signified his willingness to give some lessons.—Montreal Witness.

C.P.R. ARE ASKED TO MAKE KNOWN THEIR INTENTIONS

Regarding Entrance of Proposed Grain Route to Peterborough — Disposition of the Waterfront Before the Council

If the C.P.R. have a proposition to make to the city of Peterborough regarding the entrance of the proposed new grain route which will link the ports of Georgian Bay with the Toronto-Montreal line of the Canadian Pacific, the railway people will have to make known their intentions at once. About six weeks ago a number of the officials of the C.P.R. waited on Mayor Rush and asked that the city make no disposition of the waterfront till the C.P.R. had been heard from. It was understood that the railway company were going to make a proposition to the city in connection with the entrance into Peterborough of the new grain line. At the meeting of the Council last night the mayor announced that he had received no word from Mr. Leonard, of the C.P.R., who was the spokesman of the deputation that waited on his Worship six weeks ago. The Peterborough Canoe Company are anxious to secure a portion of the waterfront at the rear of their establishment in order to extend their plant and add to their piling ground. Their proposition is to rent the property from the city at a nominal rent per year, the city retaining the right to have possession of the land at any time, on giving the company reasonable notice.

The Canoe Company's application has been before the Council for some time, and is being strongly pressed.

It was decided by the committee of the whole last night to have the mayor write to Mr. Leonard at once, and request a statement immediately as to the plans of the C.P.R.

The aldermen are in favor of granting the application of the Canoe Company with an agreement, of course, protecting the city's interests.

FIRE INSURANCE RATES LOWERED

Announcement of Underwriters' Associations Means Much to City—Recognition of Fire Brigade—Mercantile Rate Definitely Announced.

The announcement of the Canadian Underwriters' Association that the key rate for Peterborough in insurance has been substantially reduced is of vital interest to everyone in the city who has a fire insurance policy. The Underwriters have made the definite announcement that the minimum rate on all mercantile business has been reduced 25 cents per hundred, which means that a saving of $2 50 per year will be effected on every $1,000 of insurance. The details of the key rate for what is known as "three year business" have not been worked out yet, but the Association states that a substantial reduction has been made. "Three year business" consists of dwellings, offices, churches, schools, etc. It is expected that the city will be furnished within a few days with the detailed key rate for all classes of insurance in the city.

The reduction in the fire insurance rate has been brought about by the improved fire brigade. When it was decided to put the fire department on the new basis the city had the assurance of the Underwriters' Association that a substantial reduction would be made in the rate. This promise has been carried out, the new tariff going into effect on Aug. 10th of this year. The former key rate on mercantile business was 60 cents per hundred, so it will be seen that it has been pretty nearly cut in two.

The change in the tariff is a big thing to the city. It means a saving to those paying insurance of from $20,000 to $30,000 per year. This is more than enough to pay for the maintenance of the fire brigade.

A few days ago City Clerk Armstrong wrote to the Underwriters' Association asking what was being done regarding the proposed reduction in the fire insurance rates for the city.

The following reply was received;—

Toronto, Sept. 11, 1909

S. R. Armstrong,
City Clerk, Peterborough.

Sir,—I am in receipt of your favor of yesterday respecting reduction in insurance rates in your city. I am, however, somewhat at a loss properly to understand your inquiry. You must of course know that a new tariff for Peterborough last month, based on a key rate of 35 cents, while your old key rate was 60 cents. It is true that every risk does nor receive a reduction equal to 25 cents, but the new tariff brings about a substantial reduction on all mercantile business in Peterborough, and I cannot understand, therefore, what the particular intention of the present company is. I shall be glad to be further informed on this subject at your convenience.

JOHN A. ROBERTSON,
Secretary.

Mr. Armstrong wrote for further information after receiving the above letter and the following reply was received this morning;—

Toronto, Sept. 14, 1909.

S. R. Armstrong,
City Clerk, Peterborough.

I am in receipt of your favor of yesterday's date, and in reply would advise that I am unable to give details of the new key rate for Peterborough, as the figure that has been named is lower than would be brought out by the strict application of the table under which we calculated these key rates, and 35 cents was named, as the committee wished to give a substantial reduction on Peterborough mercantile business in recognition of the improved conditions. The rates on all three year business, viz., dwellings, offices, churches, schools, etc., have also been reduced, the classification of the town having for this kind of business been brought to "A," while previously it was "B."

Trusting this may give you the information you may require.

Yours, etc.,
JOHN A. ROBERTSON.

Chimney Fire at Noon.

The fire brigade was called out shortly after twelve o'clock to-day to answer an alarm rung in from box 27. The trouble was found to be at a residence on McDonnel street, near the corner of Harvey, where a chimney blaze threatened to do much damage. The firemen experienced considerable trouble in extinguishing the blaze.

Fire destroyed the carriage shop of W. F. Benest at Wyoming, Ont., and also the livery stable of William Robinson.

THAT WATCH OF YOURS

Is in many respects similar to a railway engine. Let an engine be run without oil or cleaning and before long it will stop dead. Upon examination it will be found that the friction and wear and tear has ruined the machinery, and it is fit only for the scrap iron heap. Likewise your watch. You put it in your pocket, and while there is a kick in it you, in your mistaken economy, do not consult the watchmaker, and consequently rob your watch of years of good service and also much of its former accuracy. The time keeping qualities of a good watch are maintained and often improved by timely and skilful attention. If you have been one of the neglectful ones call around and see us.

NEW LOCKERS FOR THE Y.M.C.A.

One Hundred Made Entirely of Steel Have Been Received and Will be Installed in a Short Time.

One hundred new lockers have been received at the Y.M.C.A. to replace the ones now in use at this institution. These will be installed in the basement as soon as possible and they should give every satisfaction. The dimensions of the lockers is 48x12x12 and ventilation will be received from the back, front and the bottom. They are equipped with the Miller Standard time lock, the combination of which can be adjusted over a hundred different ways. This will mean absolute security for the members who rent them. The height of the locker will allow a coat to be placed therein without being folded, as is necessary with the ones now in use.

Plans were begun for the formation of a St. John's Ambulance class in First Aid and Home Nursing, a committee nominated for the furnishing of the Ladies' Vestry and other special work. Nominations for the officers for the Society for the ensuing year were also made, to be presented at the next regular meeting of the Society, which will be held next Monday evening, Sept. 27th, at the usual place and time.

A RIFLE-RANGE

What is a rifle-range? Perhaps the Government doesn't know what a rifle-range is, or it might give one to our soldiers. It is a place where those desirous of learning to shoot can do so. Without learning it is impossible to shoot straight. Is it not a farce to provide our men with Ross rifles and no ranges to try them on? It is unanimously agreed that it is a farce and a very badly-played farce at that. Well! If we can't get the rifle-range, let us at least have a cooking-range. A banquet is better than nothing.

SHALL THIS BE PERMITTED?

Ottawa, Sept. 14.—Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson and Mr. Chas. M. Hays, of the Grand Trunk Railway, will interview Sir Wilfrid Laurier here tomorrow with respect to the Grand Trunk Pacific. It is understood they will urge the Government to permit the employment of Oriental labor on the mountain section of the road. Conditions of labor on this section now, under contract east from Prince Rupert, as stated in an interview given yesterday by Mr. Collingwood Schreiber, are such that contractors are unable to secure anything like enough men to carry out the contracts within the specified time limit. Railway officials claim that unless some remedy, such as they suggest, is found for the present difficulty of securing navvies on the mountain section the completion of the road from Edmonton to Prince Rupert will be delayed for years.

White Canadian labor is thus to be placed between the nether millstone of coolie labor and the upper millstone of the financier's profit. What must come of it? If it is allowed by the white workers of Canada the market for their labour will be narrowed and the wage cut. Once, too, that the object is attained the hope of the masses of the people will vanish for a wholesome and happy life under improving conditions.

INDIAN FINED: WAS INTOXICATED

Said He Secured His Liquor From a Man He Did Not Know.

An Indian—not a blacklister—was fined $5.00 at the police court this morning for being found intoxicated on the street yesterday. He stated that he belonged to the reserve at Alderville, and had secured the liquor through another person whom he did not know. As his services are required by a man who wants him to go back to the woods, the fine was ordered to be paid forthwith.

WEDDING BELLS

McBAIN—FAUX

A very pretty wedding was solemnized this morning at half-past nine at the residence of Mr. Jno. Faux, 217 Rubidge street, when his youngest daughter, Miss Beatrice Lillian, was united in marriage to Mr. James Marshall McBain, second son of Mr. Jno. R. McBain, 107 Aylmer street. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. G. W. Henderson of Charlotte St. Methodist church, in the presence of only the immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties. The parlor was beautifully decorated for the occasion. The bride was given away by her father, and entered the parlor to the strains of Mason's wedding march, played by the groom's sister-in-law, Mrs. W. H. McBain, of Madoc. The young couple were unattended. The bride's little nephew, Master Harold Forsythe, was flower-bearer. The bride looked handsome in a princess gown of navy blue silk, trimmed with silover lace and chiffon ribbon. After the ceremony and hearty congratulations had been bestowed upon the young couple, the guests entered the dining room, where a dainty dejeuner was served.

Mr. and Mrs. McBain left on the 11.26 C.P.R. train for a trip to Montreal. On their return they will reside at 217 Rubidge street. The bride's going-away suit was of dark green cloth with hat to match.

The bride was the recipient of many valuable gifts, among which was a beautiful oak rocker from the packing department of the Quaker Oats Company. The groom's gift to the organist was a beautiful silver sugar castor.

They carry with them the best wishes of a large circle of friends for future prosperity and happiness.

WILL MORE WITNESSES BE RECALLED?

The resumption of the Bollard inquest to-night at eight o'clock is expected to bring out some interesting developments. Coroner Gray expects to complete the investigation at this evening's session. From what is learned it is understood that Harry Jopling will again be put in the witness box and asked to tell what he knows of the fight and the events leading up to it. Some of the other witnesses may also be recalled. It is also expected that Fred Jopling will take the stand to-night.

HIS DEPARTURE IS REGRETTED

Mr. Stewart Laing Leaving City to Enter Upon Science Course at Queen's University, Kingston.

A special meeting of St. Andrew's Sunday School Association was convened last night to bid farewell to Mr. Stewart Laing, who for some years has been the most efficient secretary of the Sunday school. Mr. Laing left on the 11.26 train to-day for Queen's University, Kingston, where he enters upon the science course.

The Rev. J. G. Potter presided at the teachers' meeting and the following address accompanied the presentation of a handsome copy of the Scriptures, the presentation being made by Mr. Cornish.

Dear Mr. Laing—

On the eve of your departure for Queen's University we deem it our privilege to meet as teachers and officers of the Saint Andrew's church Sunday School Association to give some expression to our sense of loss at your departure and to assure you of our hearty good wishes for your abundant success in your university work, and in the department of active life to which you have decided to devote your attention. We desire you to carry with you the esteem of all the officers and teachers of our Sunday school who have been associated for some years with you, and may you always know that your devotion to duty, your ever-abiding interest in the welfare of the school, and your uniform kindness and courtesy have always been recognised and appreciated.

DON'T MISS SEEING THE BURGOMASTER

The music of the "Burgomaster" is so well known that it needs no lengthy recommendation. The melodies are all the kind that the boys whistle on the streets, and are very pleasing.

A musical treat is in store for those amusement lovers who see W. P. Cullen's great production of "The Burgomaster" at the Grand Opera House, Peterborough, Thursday, Sept. 16th. Harry Hermsen heads the caste. The music of the day is especially catchy. Among the best numbers are: "I Love You," "Never Let Yourself Be Worried," "Cupid Never Marries," "How Many Have You Told That To," "The Hypnotist," "The Gladiator," and the famous Indian chorus. Box office now open.

Edwin Edward is in the hospital at Phoenix, B.C., after falling ten feet into a steel car and being buried under tons of rock.

RUGBY ENTHUSIASTS HELD BUSINESS LIKE MEETING

A Rugby meeting, at which much business was transacted, was held last evening at the armories. Mr. D. Walker, president of the Peterborough Rugby Club, was in the chair, and assisting him were Dr. MacPherson, F. D. Craig and others.

The Strathconas and T. A. S., who have signified their intention of entering a senior city league, were represented by Messrs. F. D. Craig and Wm. O'Brien. The Y.M.C.A. will not be represented in the league, and it was decided to let the matter stand for a few days, during which time an endeavor will be made to secure another team to complete the league.

The teams wishing to enter the junior series, and who were represented last night were the T. A. S., Collegiate Institute, Rough Riders, and Y.M.C.A. The first game in this league will be played at Riverside Park on Saturday, September 25th. Any player participating in these games must be under the age of 21 on the first of October.

The offer of the committee in charge of Riverside Park, which will allow the playing of all games and holding of practices at this place, was accepted. The field will be lighted by arc lamps and practices will be in order within a few days.

The senior players are asked to turn out to practice after the City League baseball game Saturday, and a meeting of the players and the Executive will be held in the armories the same evening.

The schedule for the junior series is as follows—

September 25.—
Rough Riders vs. T.A.S.
Collegiate vs. Y.M.C.A.
October 12—
T.A.S. vs. Collegiate.
Y.M.C.A. vs. Rough Riders
October 9—

MANAGERS TALK ABOUT CHANCES FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 13.—Fred Clarke and Hughie Jennings, who will probably be the managers in next month's world's series, ate their meals together at the Planter's hotel yesterday. Jennings said:

"We should win the pennant because we have a team that's second to none in the league, and we're running four and one-half lengths ahead of the Athletics. That should eventually win for a team like mine, don't you think? We play the Browns two more games, and then start around the eastern circuit. If we win from the Browns to-morrow, we'll invade the east with a lead that we will never lose, unless handicapped by injuries."

Clarke said:

"We are winning, and we have already a lead of five games on the Cubs. We meet them again in Chicago in a three-game series after playing two more with the Cardinals and four with Cincinnati, and I would much prefer to play this decisive series in Chicago this season. Our record is eight straight, and we hope to make it a clean sweep. You must understand that for the Cubs to win the flag, they will be compelled to win five more games than we do, and, as I said before, we are winning regularly."

FOOTBALL MATCH AT THE FAIR FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Havelock football team and the Brinton Carpet Co. eleven will play for the R. R. Hall trophy at the Peterborough fair on Friday afternoon, starting at five o'clock. Arrangements were completed to-day and the game promises to be the best seen on the local football field this season. The Midland league champions want the handsome trophy and the Brintons are just as keen to annex the cup for 1909-10.

SPRATT BOYS LEAVE LINDSAY

Will Attend St. Michael's College at Toronto for the Coming Term.

Peter and John Spratt, two of Lindsay's best known and most popular young men, left this morning for Toronto, where they will attend St. Michael's College for the coming term. The boys' removal from town is a severe blow to the C.L.S. and Lindsay hockey teams, as they were expected to assist Lindsay to win another championship this coming winter.

They have played on the champion C.L.S. team for the past three seasons and are two of the most promising hockey players in the Province.

The boys will be a great help to St. Miques hockey team this winter as they are both very fast players and are sure of a place.—Lindsay Warder.

TENNIS

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 13.—America defeated Great Britain to-day in the third and decisive match of the Davis Cup lawn tennis series on the courts of the Germantown Cricket Club. R. D. Little and H. H. Hackett defeating in the doubles J. G. Parke and W. C. Crawley by 3—6, 6—4, 6—4, 4—6, 6—6.

This result decides the preliminary tie and makes America the challenging nation against Australia, which now holds the coveted blue ribbon of the tennis world. To-morrow the singles matches will be continued, W. A. Larned meeting Parke, and W. J. Clothier playing C. P. Dixon. The result of these matches will not, however, affect the championship.

Six thousand people viewed to-day's match and had plenty of opportunity to applaud, and for the first set, which went to the Englishmen 6—3, the contest was nip and tuck. The veteran Little seemed to be the main objective of the visitors' attack, and they subjected him to merciless bombardment of drives and smashes. He stood the gaff well, but was not as steady as his partner, driving many easy shots into the net after making almost impossible gets of recoveries.

Hackett used his slow but deceptive service to good advantage. It was in shots for placement that the Americans showed their superiority. Parke seemed the better of the Englishmen.

AFTER LOWER EXPRESS RATES

Manufacturers' Association Dealing With Question at Hamilton.

Special to the Review.

Hamilton, Sept. 15.—The Canadian Manufacturers' Association in convention here is moving for lower express rates. The Railway and Transportation Committees are considering a resolution to ask Express Companies to reduce minimum rate from 25 to 20 cents, and in case of failure to ask Dominion Government to reduce parcel post rates and increase size of parcel that may go through the mails.

YOUNG MAN HAD HIP BONE BROKEN

Was Removed to St. Joseph's Hospital This Afternoon

A young man named Steve Gresdale, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital today, suffering from a fracture of the hip bone. He met with an accident the other day and when Dr. Leach was called this afternoon an examination showed that the hip bone was broken and the patient was taken to the hospital in the Dan Spence ambulance.

NEW FUR STORE IS NOW OPEN

Peterborough is prepared to cope with any variety of hard winter that may come along. The fourth fur store has been opened up on George street by Mr. Wm. Leeh, and fitted up in the most modern style. The finish throughout is in antique oak, and the silent salesmen and wall cases give the interior a handsome appearance.

Men's hats and all kinds of furs will be the main stock carried and the establishments adds one more to main street.

Editors Will Appeal to King.

Madrid, Sept. 15.—The Liberal newspapers of Madrid have published a protest against the continuance of the Government censorship and they threaten to strike unless this restriction is removed. The editors have decided to appeal to King Alfonso.

'Phone Company After Telegraph.

New York, Sept. 15.—The American Tobacco Co., has renewed negotiations for control of the Western Union Telegraph Co. The deal is expected to be concluded.

A Novel Belt.

Very new in belts is a casing of white linen with a conventionalized border worked in colored mercerized cottons the same tone as a heavy ribbon belting which is run through it.

The casing is cut about an inch wider than the belting and has an irregular viney edge and different shaped medallions embroidered on each edge, with vertical designs running through them. The edges of the casing and medallions are worked in narrow buttonhole stitch and then cut out. The latter thus make slides which come over the belting. The flowers are worked in satin stitch.

A clover design worked in green is effective for wearing with a green belt, while with a brown one a conventionalized motif of chestnuts and leaves should be embroidered and buttonholed to browns. The edges of the oval, oblong or square medallion slides are finished in straight buttonhole stitch about a sixteenth of an inch apart.

$500 Reward For Bank Robbers.

Montreal, Sept. 14.—A reward of $500 per man is offered for the arrest of any of the robbers who blew open the Provincial Bank safe at Yamachiche. General Manager Bienvenue is satisfied that they will prove to be the party who robbed the Bank of Nova Scotia at Rainy River some weeks ago.

Blown Into the Street.

San Francisco, Sept. 14.—Half a score of persons were injured, several probably fatally, when a boiler in the Lurline Baths exploded yesterday. Women patrons were blown through the windows of their compartments into the street, and the building was almost completely wrecked.

Paying the Penalty.

Belleville, Sept. 14.—John Lynch of Trenton was sentenced to fifteen months for assault on Mrs. M. J. Blakely. Charles Gunyon of Madoc Township was sentenced to three years for attempting to shoot two men.

Says Officer Drugged Him.

Kingston, Sept. 14.—John Campeau, committed from Belleville to the penitentiary for burglary, has written United States Consul Van Sant to aid him. He says a Toronto officer found him at Charlotte, N.Y., and that he was drugged and brought over to Belleville without waiving extradition.

Collision Kills One.

Cornwall, Sept. 14.—David Norman of Monkland, aged 59, was instantly killed and Angus Truax shaken up by the collision of a freight train with a train of flat gravel cars. Norman leaves a widow, two sons and four daughters. An inquest will be held to-night.

Ferry Employe Drowned.

Fort Erie, Sept. 14.—Harry Gown, aged 19, an employe of the International Ferry Co., was drowned last night by falling from the ferry, and Charles Lightheart failed in a desperate attempt at rescue.

Winnipeg at Odds With Railway.

Winnipeg, Sept. 15.—The City Council have directed counsel to get an injunction to restrain the Street Railway Co. from erecting light and power poles in streets without a civic permit.

Pending a suit now threatening the city has without prejudice a clause inserted on these permits, which clause is objectionable to the company, and they are now seeking to over-ride the city.

Tigress Amuck In City.

Marseilles, Sept. 15.—A big Royal Bengal tigress escaped from her cage yesterday on board a vessel that was to convey the animal to Oran, Algeria, and ran abroad in the city with policemen and soldiers armed with guns and revolvers in pursuit. It was recaptured.

Cruisers End Riots.

Gaspe, Sept. 15.—Matters seem quiet at Fox River. Thirty of the ringleaders and principal rioters in the fishermen's strike have been arrested. Much credit is due the officers and crews of the cruisers Canada and Christine.

Clerk Shoots Himself.

Montreal, Sept. 15.—Allan McDonald, aged 22, a clerk in the employ of the Bishop Construction Co., Beaver Hall square, shot himself yesterday morning, probably with suicidal intent, in the company's office.

Votes for Women.

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 15.—West end women have organized a Women's Christian Temperance Union and announce their intention to demand the right of the franchise. The suffragette campaign starts forthwith and Vancouver this winter will re-echo with the cry of "Votes for Women." The movement is important in view of the local option fight.

To Restrict Death Penalty.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 15.—Premier Stolypin has again sent a circular to the Governors-General of the districts under martial law, instructing them to restrict the application of the death penalty as much as possible. They are to resort to courts-martial only in cases of exceptional importance, submitting all ordinary crimes to the civil courts.

The Empire's Merchants.

New York, Sept. 15.—A cable despatch to The Herald from Sydney, N.S.W., says: The Governor-General opened the Chamber of Commerce Congress yesterday. One hundred delegates, representing different portions of the Empire, are present.

Jews to Oppose Bourassa.

Montreal, Sept. 15.—The campaign over the board of control for the city has got into the political stage. At a meeting in the Jewish quarter the speakers attacked Bourassa who was intending to run for alderman in St. Lawrence Ward. He was told that if he ran he would be defeated by the Jews who would not give him a vote after his utterances in the House at Quebec last session.

There are 25,000 Jews in this ward.

Accident at Interment.

Brockville, Sept. 15.—During the burial of the late Milton A. Manhard, as the casket was being lowered into the grave a tombstone gave way under the pressure of spectators leaning against it. A large urn on the top of it struck John McKim a glancing blow on the head, rendering him unconscious. The monument and several spectators were almost precipitated into the grave with the corpse.

Mr. Brackenridge, of Westwood, who has been the county representative on the Norwood School Board for the past twenty-two years, has become disqualified on account of recent legislation which says that no High school trustee may be a servant of the Municipal Council and he must be a resident of the school district. Mr. Breckenridge is therefore disqualified on both the clauses.

On severing his connection with the Board, Mr. Breckenridge in a few well chosen words bid adieu to his former colleagues and said that having supplied the flag pole on the school grounds he now took pleasure in presenting it as a gift to the Board. Other members of the Board spoke expressing their appreciation of Mr. Breckenridge's services in the past.

A RUNAWAY.

A serious runaway was caused on Tuesday afternoon by a horse attached to a buggy becoming frightened at an automobile. Two men were driving and on meeting the auto got out and caught the horse by the bridle. He was not satisfied, however, and when the auto began to move the horse became unmanagable and tore around in such a manner that the buggy and harness were rendered almost useless.

No blame can be attached to Mr. Finlay, who was running the auto as he brought his car to a standstill when he saw the horse was frightened, but the owner of the horse thought he could control the horse by holding on at the bit, but with the above result.

THE CIGARETTE EVIL AS SEEN BY A CLERGYMAN

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir.—A few days ago your correspondent, while passing down Hunter street, saw before him a couple of lads, one apparently not more than 13 or 14 years of age, the other slightly older, each with a cigarette in his mouth, smoking like a pair of small volcanoes. As he approached, the smaller one stepped out impudently and asked if he would like a smoke. The lad may have meant it kindly, but the impression made was that he wanted to make sure that the passer-by would note the fact that, though he was young, he nevertheless had acquired one of the accomplishments of a real man. Some might be disposed to suggest that a rapid-acting spanking machine would have served a good purpose just then; but perhaps, after all, the boy is not to be so greatly blamed.

The question coming to my mind is Where do the juveniles obtain their cigarettes? It is surely an unlawful thing for dealers to supply them and yet one witnessing the vast amount of juvenile smoking about the city is forced to think that some dealers must be guilty. It might be worth while for the proper persons to look into the question, and for some steps to be taken towards the protection of boys against this evil.

I am of the opinion, Mr. Editor, that we suffer too much of the smoke nuisance in public places and upon our streets at all times, and also that too many of our better citizens allow themselves to offend in the perpetuation of the nuisance.

It is not a pleasant sensation for delicate ladies and others who have an aversion to tobacco, to have its fumes fairly puffed into their faces while walking abroad by men who are not sufficiently unselfish to realise that their act, to say the least, is a mark of ungentlemanliness.

I know that the use of the weed has too many apologists for one to expect that a very active sentiment shall be created against it; but it does not seem to me that a great sense of shame should come to citizens generally that so many mere lads —some of whom could almost be carried in one's coat pocket—are permitted to strut about the streets with a cheap cigar or deadly cigarette in their mouths.

What does the Review think about it?

Yours very truly,

A FRIEND OF THE BOYS

NEW ANGLICAN HYMNAL WILL LIKELY BE ADOPTED HERE

During the next few weeks the question of introducing the new Anglican Hymnal in the Anglican churches of Peterborough will be considered by the three congregations. The Hymnal is now on sale in the book stores in the city.

Rev. Canon Davidson stated to-day that the Hymnal will likely be introduced in St. John's although the matter had not been definitely decided. It will be settled in the near future.

Rev. R. H. Trumpour said the congregation of All Saints' had not yet decided to adopt the new hymn book, but was of the opinion that they would decide to use it.

Rev. Dr. Langfeldt would not express an opinion as to what would be done at St. Luke's. "An announcement will be made in due time," he said to the Review.

MEETING WITH GOOD SUCCESS

The Chamberlin Metal Weather Strip Co., Limited, of Montreal, have an agency in Peterborough and their goods are finding a ready market here. The Chamberlin Weather Strip is made entirely of metal, has no rubber or other composition to rot or wear out, but when once in place it becomes a permanent part of the building and will give years hence the same results that it does when first applied.

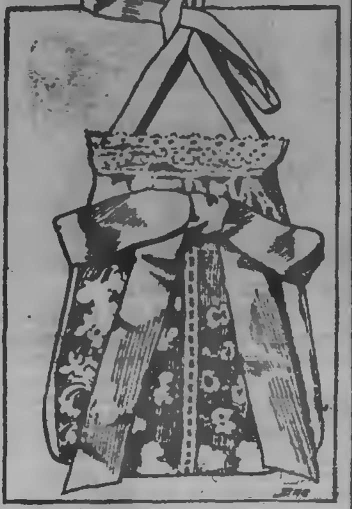
Results have been eminently satisfactory to all who have used it. Experience and tests have shown an average annual saving of about 25 per cent on fuel. In many cases the saving has paid for the strip in one year.

Drafts are positively excluded from windows equipped with the device. Dust and soot are shut out with the drafts.

A PRETTY FANCY.

Pockets of Lace and Muslin For Tea Gowns.

To make the pocket photographed, which is intended for a tea gown or dressy muslin frock trimmed with the same ribbon and all over lace, two strips of all-over three inches wide and eight inches long are required for the body of the bag and twelve inches each of inch wide lace beading and edging to match. The eight inch strips are doubled lengthwise, joined together with a fagoting of linen thread and their outer edges rounded off for the bottom of the bag and seamed with a dainty overcasting. The beading and lace edge are then attached to the top and the inch wide satin ribbon, lavender in this case, run in and tied in a sewed bowknot that leaves just space enough for the hand to reach into the bag. A half inch white satin ribbon two-thirds of a yard long is then attached, as pictured, and the pocket suspended by this means to the semi-empire girdle of the tea gown.



HANDKERCHIEF POCKET.

EASILY WASHED COAT.

A Charming Little Lingerie Wrap For Small Children.

There are many days in summer when the small child needs an extra wrap, something neither as heavy nor as everyday as a sweater, reefer or knit sack. For ordinary occasions the pique coat fills every need, but when baby is to be dressed up and made to look its fluffiest nothing takes the place of the lingerie coats over a lining.

These lingerie coats may be elaborate affairs of handkerchief linen or mull, bedecked with hand embroidery and insets of real lace, worn over white or colored silk slips. Quite as effective, much cheaper and more easily laundered are the little coats of embroidered batiste or dotted muslin.

They are made simply from any good coat pattern that reaches to the end of the frock. The bottom is cut long enough to turn up in a three or four inch hem that can be let out as the child grows. Sometimes the fullness at the back is arranged in side plaits fastened to a yoke. More simply it is gathered to a yoke, the fullness being confined to a few inches at the back.

The coat is untrimmed, but a small cape deep enough to cover the yoke is edged with a row of Irish lace or any other washable cotton lace that looks well with the muslin. The cape may be made round or it can be cut in points, tabs or other fancy shape. A pretty touch is added by brierstitching the edge where the lace is joined to the cape. The turndown collar of the coat is also lace edged, a narrower width being used.

Such a coat can be worn over any straight slip coat. They are most fancied in a color, though for tiny babies china silk makes a good lining, as it can be washed. For very warm weather the undercoat could be mercerized gingham or even of colored lawn. There is a surprising amount of warmth in these cotton fabrics.

Earning a Living.

A young woman who found herself facing the problem of self support, though tied to her home by an invalid parent, hit upon a plan which proved successful enough to be worth copying.

The girl was deft with her needle and had the added gift of being able to draw her own designs and monograms. She decided to make outfits for prospective brides.

A business friend of hers who was to be married had a good income, but little time to bother with her trousseau. When the young woman offered to look after everything for her the bride to be was delighted to give her the order.

Knowing the importance of not sitting too steadily at the needle, the young woman became an accredited shopper and purchased materials, table and bed linen and everything needed for a trousseau outside of clothes and millinery.

Being a judicious shopper, time and money were saved for the bride elect, and her friend had the benefit of commissions and many valuable suggestions for her work.

The Kitchen Wastebasket.

Though the average housekeeper apparently isn't aware of the fact that a wastebasket in the kitchen is a useful thing, the fact remains that it is. Try one under your kitchen table, in which to throw all wrappings from parcels and other odds and ends that cannot be placed in the garbage or in the ash pail. It is also a good idea to hang a small bag over the kitchen table and use it as a receptacle for odds and ends of string and cord.

Stuart Maitland, of Hamilton, a painter, fell from a ladder and sustained severe injuries to his head.

FIREMEN HELD MOONLIGHT 35 YEARS AGO TO-NIGHT

An interesting souvenir of bygone days was shown to the Review to-day. It consisted of a programme of dances which were held on board the "Whistle Wing," during a moonlight under the auspices of the firemen of this city thirty-five years ago to-night. The committee in charge was composed of Capt. Marshall, 1st Lieut. Hall, 2nd Lieut. McWilliams, A. Mitchell and A. Goodfellow. The "Whistle Wing," which was owned by Mr. H. C. Calcutt, has long since passed out of existence. The different waltzes and dances which appeared on the programme consisted of 1, Firemen's Circle; 2, Quadrille; 3, waltz and gallop; 4, Lancers; 5, Schottische; 6, Quadrilles (Ethiopean); 7, polka and gallop; 8, Eight Reel; 9, German Schottische; 10, Lancers; 11, Waltz; 12, Quadrille; 13, Gallop; 14, Navy Island Reel.

PETERBOROUGH IS AFTER THE CANADIAN NORTHERN

To-day's Globe says: It has been decided that a deputation from the Peterborough City Council will wait upon Messrs. Mackenzie and Mann at once in an endeavor to have the proposed Toronto-Ottawa C. N. R. line touch that city. The personnel of the party is left to the discretion of Mayor Bush of Peterborough. The visit from prominent residents of the [illegible] city is due. It is understood, [illegible] out by C.N.R. authorities that in the event of certain concessions being granted the road might be turned sufficiently north to touch that city before turning down to Lake Ontario at Cobourg. The new route would mean but a very slight deviation being made in the route which the C.N.R. executive have practically decided to follow.

CONROYS GET CONTRACT FOR SMITH STREET BRIDGE

Special Meeting of Council Will be Held To-night to Pass By-law and Complete the Matter in Order That Work May be Started.

The tender of E. and F. Conroy, of Peterborough for the Smith street bridge has been accepted by the City Council. Geo. A. Begy & Co., of St. Catharines, have withdrawn their tender and the contract is being awarded to the next lowest tender. The tender of E. and F. Conroy is about $5,700 higher than that of the St. Catharines firm. A special meeting of the City Council will be held to-night to pass a by-law giving the contract to the Conroy firm and it is likely that everything will be settled this evening.

The Council took the matter up at last night's meeting. Mr. Begy addressed the Council explaining why his company withdrew their tender.

Mrs. William Henderson.

A SERIOUS ILLNESS RELIEVED BY PE-RU-NA.

MRS. WILLIAM HENDERSON, Craik, N. W. T., Can., writes:

"I was troubled with very serious internal weakness, which exhausted me so that I feared I would lose my mind.

"I suffered agony with my back, the pain extending down my left leg. The pain was so severe that I would have welcomed death as a relief.

"Peruna cured me of this trouble,—no wonder I recommend it so highly.

"It will soon be two years since I found relief from the pain and not a sign of it has returned.

"I am glad that there is a way in which I can speak of this, as many a sufferer may read my testimonial, and not only read, but believe."

Had Given Up All Hope.

Mlle. Albina Chauvin, No. 50 Rue Agnes. St. Henri, Montreal, Canada, writes:

"I consider Peruna better than any other remedy, as it cured me when nothing else could.

"I suffered for years and years with heart trouble, headaches and weakness. I never expected to find anything to cure me.

"I tried Peruna and am entirely cured."

Mr. Conroy was present and explained the clause attached to his tender to the effect that they would do the work for $1,000 less if the bridge was moved east and south a few feet in order to avoid removing an old pier in the centre of the river. The Council did not like the idea of changing the location of the structure and it was decided to have it as specified by the City Engineer.

No action was taken as to the disposal of the deposit of the Begy Company, but it is likely that the cheque will be returned.

CEMENT GOES UP

Wholesale Price is Now $1.30 Per cwt—Merger Likely Responsible.

According to local contractors the price of cement, wholesale, has advanced twenty cents per cwt. It is stated that it is impossible to buy first-class cement at the present time for less than $1.30, whereas a few weeks ago it could be bought for $1.10 per cwt., and some of the companies were selling it as low as $1.00 per cwt. It is believed that the recent merger of the cement companies is responsible for the advance, and a contractor told the Review to-day that he would not be surprised to see the price given another boost before many weeks had passed.

The city of Peterborough has a contract for its requirements of cement for 1909 at $1.25 per cwt.

Number of Entries Breaks all Records—Fair Weather all That is Now Wanted

Everything is in shape for the opening day of the Peterborough Fair tomorrow. The entries literally poured in yesterday and to-day and the best fair in the history of the city is assured if the weather is favorable. The exhibits will be placed to-morrow and will be ready for the inspection of the public. The finishing touches are being put on at the grounds to-day and the management of the fair are in great spirits over the optimistic outlook. More attractions have been secured than in any past year, immense crowds are looked for on Friday afternoon and evening and on Saturday.

The horse races promise to be unusually exciting as there have been many entries both from the city and from outside points.

TROLLEY LINE IS PROPOSED

To Connect Fenelon Falls and Bobcaygeon.

Sturgeon Point, Sept. 14.—Mr. S. Anderson, who is now operating 40 miles of electric railway and represents large interests, is looking into the possibility of a street railway system from Fenelon Falls to Bobcaygeon, passing through Sturgeon Point, and it has been suggested that a large hotel and pavilion may be erected on the beach at the east end during the coming winter. This would materially increase the earnings of the railway and also make Sturgeon Point one of the most popular resorts in Canada.

CHINESE RESTAURANT WAS WRECKED BY EXPLOSION

Trooper George Woodward, of Stanley Barracks, and Herbert Wilkinson are Arrested, Charged With Attempt to Destroy Building on York-st.

Toronto, Sept. 16.—The metropolitan crime of wrecking by means of a bomb, which has been unpleasantly common in Chicago, and other American cities was introduced to the Toronto police at 10 o'clock last night when the Chinese restaurant run by Sam Lee at 209 York street, was demolished by a bomb placed under a table in the centre of the dining-room of the resturant.

Two men, the only two who had been in the place for some time before the explosion, are under arrest charged with placing the explosive, but declare that they know nothing of the matter. The police, however, say that they have evidence that on entering the place, a trooper at Stanley Barracks, showed a bulge in his pocket and remarked significantly, "There will be something doing here to-night, shooters."

The explosion was heavy and could be heard for blocks and in a moment or two a large crowd had gathered about the little restaurant, the heavy plate glass front of which was blown out into the street.

The story told by Queenie Oliver, waitress and cashier, and the only white employe of the place, is minute in all save that it fails to supply any motive for the crime. Queenie who is about 20 years of age and a slight, rather plain-looking girl, was in the place at the time and had a miraculous escape from death or serious injury.

She says she was in the place when the two men, Trooper George Woodward, 24 years of age, of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, an Englishman, and Herbert Wilkinson, English, 19 years, who has only been two days in the city, came in. They ordered temperance beer and sat at a table near the door. They drank the beer and then went to a table about the centre of the room and close to the northwall. She sat at the cashier's desk, which is beside the window and separated from the table by a heavy curtain. The men did not order anything at this table and in a minute or two got up and went rapidly out of the front door. A moment later there was a terrific explosion. Tables, chairs and dishes were thrown about like hail and the heavy glass front was thrown into the street. When the dust and debris had subsided she looked about on a place which resembled an earthquake relic.

In a moment a number of police had gathered. Inspector Wm. Davis of No. 1 division, in which the place is situated, was at Bay and Adelaide street. He rapidly made his way to the scene and ordered the soldier into custody. This was done by Policeman Sockett. Inspector Davis himself picked out Wilkinson, who had stayed to see the wreck. Both were hurried to the Court street station.

YOUTH WAS STRANGELY INJURED

Galt, Sept. 16.—Found severely injured and unconscious in the barn on the farm of Robert Cowan, on the back road from Hespeler to Galt, John Dickson, 15 years old, is unable to tell how he came by his wounds.

He went to the barn to let out the cows, and, according to his story, he loosed one and remembers nothing more. Two hours later he was found in the entry to the stable, with his face gashed. The injury extended from over the right temple, across the face and underneath the nose. His hat was in the rose stable, some distance away.

The wound seems to have been inflicted by some long, narrow instrument, and the belief is that he was struck by some person with a billy.

HORSE TROUGHS SPREAD DISEASE

Chicago, Sept. 16.—Public watering troughs for horses were condemned by the state veterinary of Missouri, Dr. F. D. Luckey, and by Dr. Schoenletzen of Kansas at Tuesday's session of the interstate association of live stock sanitary boards. Dr. Schoenletzen said they disseminated glanders.

Dr. J. M. Wright, state veterinarian of Illinois, asserted the public watering trough was in no way a spreader of disease if the water in it were kept running. Dr. Luckey said that in Massachusetts the public watering trough was responsible for the infliction of glanders upon 1,000 horses.

CRITICISM OF ONTARIO ASSESSMENT ACT FAILS

Wm. Robbins, of Walkerville, Attacks New Law But Resolution at C. M. Association is Turned Down—Do Not Want Election Day Holiday.

Hamilton, Ont., Sept. 16.—The Canadian Manufacturers' Association yesterday unanimously passed a resolution asking Parliament to appoint a permanent tariff commission.

The decision was in private.

Resolutions against the making of election days holidays, and in favor of raising the forfeit for candidates from $200 to $500 were passed also.

The Ontario Assessment Act was criticized by Wm. Robbins, Walkerville, who said it was illogical and discouraged the improvement of factory property. W. K. McNaught, M.P.P., Toronto, challenged Mr. Robbins to suggest improvements to the act, and Mr. Robbins replied that it was the Government's business to do that. A. E. Kemp, Toronto, claimed that the new act was much superior to the old act, under which manufacturers were taxed on the amount of paid up capital. Mr. Robbins' resolution, condemning the act, was defeated.

The association decided that the onus of proving a worker's age in connection with the employment of minors should be on the parents of the employed.

On motion of J. F. Ellis, Toronto, the following resolution was passed.

"Whereas the Dominion Insurance Act, as passed by the House of Commons at the last session, contained a clause providing for the furnishing of a return and the payment of a tax on all insurance placed with companies not registered in Canada, and whereas this is being followed by a movement on the part of the companies forming the Canadian underwriters, to have legislation enacted which will make it impossible for the insured in Canada to place insurance in unregistered companies; and whereas such legislation would prohibit the use of Canadian insurers of mutual and reciprocal and British underwriters, therefore be it resolved that the association, while recognizing always the principle of protection, place itself on record as strongly opposed to any legislation that would impair or prohibit the continual use by Canadians of the valued service by unregistered companies."

The association took up the question of express rates, and decided to make an attempt to get the minimum charge reduced to 20 cents.

Speaking on the subject of transportation, T. L. Moffatt, Weston, urged the members to patronize a competitive steamship service from Montreal and Pacific ports, so as to force the railways to reduce their rates. Alex. Saunders, Goderich, spoke in favor of a general central rate between Canadian ports and outside points. A resolution, moved by R. S. Gourlay, Toronto, seeking to impose charges for rebates, was withdrawn.

The tariff committee reported that as it was generally understood that the Government did not intend making many alterations in the tariff during the last session of Parliament, only a few general matters were attended to. The committee invites the association to discuss the question of a permanent Dominion tariff commission.

Some of the delegates last evening attended a smoker at the yacht club, while others attended the performance at Bennett's Theatre.

In addition to Lord Strathcona, the following members of the Dominion Cabinet will speak at the banquet this evening: Hon. George Graham, Hon. Charles Murphy, Hon. William Paterson and Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King.

OTTAWA MERCHANT HAS PASSED AWAY

Ottawa, Sept. 16.—Thos. A. Lindsay, from whom the A. E. Rea Co., Toronto, lately purchased the large local departmental store, corner of Sussex and Rideau streets, died yesterday of bright's disease. He had been ill four months.

Mr. Lindsay was in his 45th year. Sixteen years ago he was earning $12 a week as clerk in a general store here, and since that time he built up one of the largest retail concerns in Canada. He leaves a wife and three children, a daughter 17 years old, and two sons, 15 and 11 years respectively

The price paid for the Lindsay store was $180,000.

ROBINSON'S EASY ESCAPE

Warren, Sept. 16.—James Robinson, wanted for infanticide, captured on Tuesday, after a month's chase, says that after he escaped from the constables on August 9, he hid around his own farm for two days, and then made his way to Callender, where he got employment. He returned to his home in hopes of meeting his wife. Instead he met his brother-in-law, Rev. Peter Matheson, who had come to see that the crops were harvested, and he overpowered the fugitive, and carried him, bound, to town.

LOST PEARLS IN PLUNGE BATH

New York, Sept. 16.—Mrs. Martha McGuerin, said to be the wife of a rich Montreal railway men, went in swimming at the Fleishman baths with a friend and omitted to check her pearl necklace. After her first plunge she found that the platform wire had snapped and the pearls were lost. Of the 30, 25 were recovered in a short time from the tank by her friend, Mrs. John Lucelle, an expert swimmer, who however, having placed the biggest one in her mouth for safety, accidentally swallowed it.

A Love Tragedy.

Fort Worth, Tex., Sept. 16.—Because Mrs. Jessie Gabel, a widow of 25 years, refused to marry him, Chas. Eason, 30, shot and killed the woman, and after drinking the contents of a two-ounce bottle of carbolic acid, sent a bullet through his brain.

DIES WHILE PLAYING GOLF

Toronto, Sept. 16.—After playing the last hole of the full course of the Mississauga golf links W. L. Knowles, superintendent of R. G. Dun, mercantile agency, dropped dead about six o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Though apparently in good health Mr. Knowles had during the day complained to some friends of feeling unwell and said he proposed to take a week's holidays in Muskoka. He went on the links, however, in fine spirits and had just made the 18th hole when he fell to the ground and expired immediately.

EIGHT KILLED IN COLLISION

Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 16.—As the result of a head-on collision between passenger train No. 4 and fast freight No. 51 on the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railway, one mile west of Pegram station, Tenn., yesterday, eight men were killed, one seriously injured, and a number of the others reported more or less hurt. No passengers were killed. The cars caught fire and several victims were cremated.

The wreck was caused by the overlooking of orders.

WAR OFFICE SELLS MEAT

London, Sept. 16.—Taking advantage of the prevailing shortage in the enhanced price for canned meats, the British War Office is reported to have reaped a handsome profit by selling back to certain Chicago houses large stocks of canned meats. It appears these supplies are not wanted immediately, and under its contract the War Office may replenish its reserves when it desires at the old and lower prices.

Motorman Seized With Fit.

Reading, Pa., Sept. 16.—Winfield Weidner, a conductor, was killed, and six passengers were injured here yesterday, when a trolley car was wrecked at the bottom of the hill Weidner was married last Monday. It is believed the motorman was seized with a fit and fell from the car. The car dashed down the grade, jumped the track and ran into a telegraph pole.

DEATH DUE INDIRECTLY TO FIGHT AT CHEMONG PARK

Verdict of Jury at Inquest Into Death of Arthur Bollard—Thirteen of the Fourteen Jurors Signed It—Jury Was Out an Hour.

Fred. Jopling Was Principal Witness at Concluding Session—He Deposed That He Had Fought Fairly With Bollard—Dr. Gray and Mr. O'Connell Have Lively Clash—Coroner Threatened to Have Lawyer Put Out.

"We, the jurors empanelled to inquire into the death of Arthur Bollard, who died at Chemong Park, on August 27th, find that the said Arthur Bollard came to his death indirectly from effects of the struggle he had at Chemong Park on the night of August 23rd, 1909."

With the finding of the above verdict by the jury, the coroner's inquest in connection with the death of Arthur Bollard came to a close last night at eleven o'clock. All the evidence was in at 9.55 o'clock, and the jury went out at ten. They were out an hour. There were fourteen men on the jury and all signed the verdict but one. The dissenting voice was Samuel Stinson. Warden R. N. Scott was foreman of the jury.

The features of the final session of the inquest were Fred. Jopling's story of the fight with Bollard and a clash between Coroner Gray and Mr. D. O'Connell, counsel for Jopling. When Mr. O'Connell protested against the coroner cross-examining Fred. Jopling, Dr. Gray told the lawyer that "he would have to keep his mouth shut or get out of the room." Dr. Gray let everyone know that he was not going to be told how an inquest should be conducted. Mr. O'Connell said he would notify the Attorney-General's Department of the way Dr. Gray was conducting the inquest, and the coroner told him to do anything he pleased; he was not going to pay any attention to him.

REFUSED TO TESTIFY.

When Fred Jopling took the stand there was a mild sensation. There was almost perfect stillness in the court room.

"You live in Bridgenorth, do you not?" began Mr. Wood.

"I refuse to answer any questions on the ground that I might incriminate myself," said the witness.

There was a half minute's delay.

"You'll have to answer the questions," said the coroner.

Mr. Wood explained to Jopling that any statements made at the inquest would not be used against him at any trial that might take place. When thus assured of the protection of the court, witness proceeded with his evidence. One of the main points of his story was that he had thrown Bollard with an ordinary crotch hold, which is frequently used by wrestlers. He had taken no unfair advantage of his opponent and had not bitten him, as was alleged.

The court room was again crowded, all the seats being occupied and many stood up during the whole session.

The witnesses were Peter Gravelle, a Bridgenorth young man, who was a witness of part of the trouble between Fred Jopling and Bollard, Gordon Long, who was re-called, Fred Jopling and Dr. T. N. Greer.

PETER GRAVELLE

Peter Gravelle was the first witness called. Several times Mr. Wood reminded him of the solemnity of the oath he had taken. The evidence caused considerable amusement and the constable had to call order frequently. Witness saw part of the trouble on Monday night. He saw four or five fellows run past him while he was standing near the hotel. He did not know any of them. He went after them for a distance and then stopped and listened, and then went on further, until he was within ten feet of where the fight was taking place. He saw two men, Fred Jopling and Bollard. Jopling was on top. He did not hear anyone speak, as he was not paying much attention to them. He heard nothing until Mr. Hartshorn tried to make peace. Mr. Hartshorn told Harry Jopling to apologize to Bollard for the vile name he had called him. Harry denied calling the name, but afterwards decided to apologize. Witness was somewhat vague on some points, but he claimed that he told all he knew.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Fire did $350,000 damage to the Portland, Ore., Flouring Mills Co.

Wm. Conger, farmer, near Picton, dropped dead at his work, aged 69.

The house of John Martin at Little Britain was struck by lightning and burned.

St. Catharines schools were dismissed on Tuesday afternoon owing to the heat.

John Stevens, traveler, of Montreal, aged 35, had his arm broken in two places by a fall downstairs at Lindsay.

At Fall River, Mass., the striking weavers at the Iron Works Cotton Mills have accepted a five per cent. increase in wages.

The barns of Geo. Wiley, John Tomlinson and David Dale, in Toronto Gore Township, were destroyed by lightning and fire Tuesday night.

John Hare's barns near Cobourg were struck by lightning and burned with contents, including a team of horses owned by Coffee and Spencer, threshers.

At New York the grand jury dismissed the charge of felonious assault against Mrs. Mary Scott Castle, who shot Wm. E. Craig, a New York lawyer, at the Waldorf Astoria.

Mrs. Fitch, mother of the dramatist, has arranged to take the body of her son home to New York on the steamer Grosser Kurfurst, sailing Sept. 19. Mr. Fitch died at Chalons-Sur-Marne September 4.

S. A. Frayetta, a student of the University of Toronto, who has been working during the summer months at the Stanley automobile plant, Pittsburg, Mass., was badly burned by coming in contact with a live wire.

THE NEWS AS TOLD IN DESPATCHES

Victoria's Population Less.

Victoria, B.C., Sept. 16.—The police yesterday closed up the pool-rooms that have been taking bets on the races at Minoru Park, Vancouver.

Blake Nelson, a collector, is missing and is said to be $2,000 short because of playing the races. Two banks are said to be shy three clerks for the same cause.

Shoots Girl and Kills Himself.

Montreal, Sept. 16.—An attempted murder and successful suicide occurred on Labelle street, after Miss Victoria Forget had refused to wed Hector Charland. Charland pulled a revolver and shot the girl in the arm, and then blew his brains out.

Banker's Injury Fatal.

Almonte, Ont., Sept. 16.—A. S. Henshaw, manager of the Bank of Montreal, who was injured by an electric light pole at the fire last week, is dead. Owing to a fractured rib piercing the lung, pneumonia developed.

Spotters at Soo.

Sault Ste. Marie, Sept. 16.—As the result of a visit of License Detectives Austin and Fartanglo to the Soo during August, fines in the Police Court yesterday amounted to $842. Benny Scipliano, a west end Italian, was found guilty on three charges and fined $460. Marcello Mancoso was fined $257 and the Algoma Hotel $125.

A vote on local option takes place here in January. The best lawyers available were secured to conduct the cases for the defence.

Split Among Labor Men.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 16.—According to a telegram from Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, the charter of the Central Trades and Labor Union, with which practically all local labor bodies are affiliated, has been irrevocably revoked. The central association refused to obey an order to expel delegates of the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, outlawed by the American Federation.

NO ACTION HAS BEEN TAKEN YET

Ottawa, Sept. 16.—The Free Press, the Government organ, says it can be definitely promised that no action will be taken by the Government as to the use of Asiatic labor on the mountain section of the G.T.P. until there is a full meeting of the Cabinet, and that it is highly improbable that any such permission will be granted.

In view of the delay which the collapse of the Quebec bridge entails in the completion of the transcontinental, there is not the same need for the speedy completion of the mountain section as might otherwise have been the case, and it is quite probable that a compromise will be reached by giving the company an extension of time for the completion of that section.

DETECTIVE AFTER CHINESE SMUGGLERS

Kingston, Sept. 16.—A United States detective is here in regard to the smuggling of Chinese into New York State. He found there have been agencies of Chinese smuggling, but to definitely locate them is another thing. A woman detective from New York is here in regard to Japanese smuggling and found that several Japs got across from Kingston not long ago. The customs officials are making a determined effort to lessen the smuggling of goods from Kingston. One woman had to pay $225 duty on goods bought in Kingston and found secreted on her person.

RECEIPTS FROM PEOPLE'S MINE

Ontario Gets $223,054.50 Out of the Sale.

Toronto, Sept. 16.—Details of the sale of the recently advertised portions of the Gillies' limit were made public yesterday by Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines. The total proceeds of the sale were $223,054.50.

This amount included $113,111 for the much-talked-of provincial mine, located on the limit, which goes to F. M. Connell, Haileybury.

In addition to the provincial mine 20 parcels were offered for sale, but only 15 parcels were disposed of, the tenders for the remaining five parcels being too low or otherwise unsatisfactory. The area sold comprises 349 acres, of which 30 is taken up by the mine operated on behalf of the province.

In a statement made by Hon. Frank Cochrane yesterday, the total receipts, including former sales and returns from ore, from the Gillies' limit up to the present time have been $329,436.40. The outlay for prospecting, mining and other purposes has been $94,092.68; so the net return to the province is $234,543.72.

PROBABILITIES.

A few scattered showers during the night or on Friday.

Collingwood Schreiber says the G. T.R. will never be built with white labor.

PRESIDENT TAFT ON LONG TOUR

Boston, Sept. 16.—Wm. H. Taft started yesterday from Boston for the longest trip ever made by an American President in office. It will include 12,759 miles and take 56 days.

The President's longest stops will be at Chicago, 15 hours; St. Paul and Minneapolis, a day each; Salt Lake City, two days and a half; something over two days at Seattle, and an afternoon and evening at San Francisco. After three days in Yosemite national park, and four days at his brother's, Chas. P. Taft, ranch at Taft, Texas, the President will reach St. Louis on Oct. 25. From there he will go to New Orleans by boat, after which he will spend a week in the southern States.

GREAT SHOW AT ST. KITTS.

St. Catharines, Ont., Sept. 16.—The Pomological Society is now in full swing. In addition, the Niagara District Horticultural Exhibition was formerly opened last night by Hon. J. S. Duff, Minister of Agriculture. The display of flowers and fruit is one of the best ever seen in Canada. The show is being held in the armory which is resplendant with choicest fruit and rarest flowers. Even the guns of the seventh field battery have been removed for the occasion. The battery fires at sun down and sun rise every day.

ACID THROWER IS SET FREE

Kingston, Sept. 16.—"He ruined my life, and I intended to ruin his." Thus spoke Mrs. Flossie Taylor, aged 18, and pretty, as she stood in the Police Court charged with assaulting Percy Willis by throwing carbolic acid at him. Willis escaped serious burns. Mrs. Taylor kept company with Willis before marrying Taylor, and alleges that Willis laughed and jeered at her on the street. Judge Price allowed her to go on suspended sentence.

Twenty Thousand Dollar Fire.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 16.—Over $20,000 loss was caused by fire which started at the Niagara Falls Planing Co.'s mill, at 8 o'clock last night. The mill and offices are completely destroyed and lumber which can be realized on, amounts to only about $2,500. The stock and building were not fully insured. A small cottage adjoining the mill was also destroyed. The fire is said to have started among shavings in the planing-room.

Golden Flood Begins.

Fort William, Sept. 16.—Wheat is beginning to arrive in the city in large quantities, and for the first time this season the elevators were working overtime Tuesday night.

Shipping is still, however, slow, and yesterday the Wahoondah, Fairmount and barge Ungava are in the river empty, and waiting orders.

ONTARIO'S DEBT

The settlement in regard to the provincial debt will bear a little more amplification than is given in the bare answer to the question put. Of the total of $8,560,000 in indirect liabilities at the end of 1908, the sum of $700,000 represents Niagara Falls Park bonds guaranteed by the Province, and the revenue from the park is more than sufficient to meet interests and maintenance charges. The remaining $7,860,000 in indirect liabilities is represented by the Canadian Northern guarantee.

Of the direct liabilities of $17,282,000 no less than $12,733,000 was made up for money borrowed to build the Temiskaming Railway, a railway in which the Province has a good asset. Over $4,000,000 was represented by indebtedness incurred in past years in subsidizing privately owned railways and $518,000 represents an obligation assumed on behalf of Toronto University. Against the direct liabilities were assets at the end of the year, aside from the Temiskaming Railway made up of $3,072,000 cash in bank, and nearly $280,000 in debentures, etc. —Weekly Sun.

It will thus be seen that Ontario has really no debt due to the administration of the present Government except the $518,000 to put Toronto University in a decent condition educationally. The $4,000,000 is an old debt and the balance is represented by the paying investment known as the Temiskaming Railway which the government owns and manages.

SCIENCE AND TRUTH

The true man of science has no worldly ambition. He could no more act in the absurd style of Mr. Peary than fly without wings. The great and crowning merit of Darwin was his absolute devotion to finding out the facts. Newton was so embroiled in Trinitarian controversy that his scientific spirit was said to have suffered partial eclipse. Alfred Russel Wallace, the co-discoverer of natural selection with Darwin, made no such claim. Neither did Darwin. Each wished to yield to the other. Surely this triumph of the spirit over the flesh is the greatest thing a man can accomplish, for while men may predict the return of a heavenly body or breathe the heavenly inspiration of a Miltonic hymn they may descend to the arena of the common brawlers and there spoil it all. Therefore he that controlleth himself is greater, as the Bible says, than he that taketh a city. Dr. Cook appears worthy of his fame. Commander Peary does not. He is more anxious to pose as the polestar than the star itself. He is not one whit above the common political shyster, who thinks more of his own elevation than he does of having left the people at least no worse than he found them.

It is this narrow spirit too, that so militates against the spread of religion. The basis of religion is declared to be freedom of conscience and yet the conscience is left about as much freedom as the infinitesimal nothing. To say that man is only free to do right is to say that he is not free to do wrong and that he has not free will whereas the Bible says that the majority will do wrong. The motto "kill or cure" is a poor one in religious matters. The essence and the glory of Christianity lies in the exaltation of the human soul by and through the efforts of Christ. The duty of man is to teach, preach and afford the opportunity. The rest remains with man himself and the punishment as the final reward with God Himself. The abnegation or total extinction of Self is the highest ideal. Peary certainly has not reached it. Neither has he who laughs at the elevation of the human mind and prefers a dollar to an idea, a party triumph to a great principle. The cynic is he who sneers and laughs at good. He is dangerous no matter how disguised. But it is by their fruits that we shall know them all and he who preaches Christ and practises Satan will be found out both in the next world and in this.

Peary would annihilate all rivals. This is a common failing of depraved natures. It is the chief characteristic of the ward boss.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Montreal is having a hard time getting those who left back again.

The Examiner has endeavoured to shake itself clear of obituary poetry by pretending that none of the staff wrote it.

The Jews of Montreal are determined to have a representative in the City Council. Canada will soon be a nation of rags and patches if this racial talk keeps up.

The cynic who sees no good in anything he can't eat or steal is the blind cave-fish of humanity. He is blind from long avoidance of light and decency.

Hurrah! for mergers. The price of cement has gone up to $1.30 from $1.10. And this is possible in a country where Free Trade might exist if the Government dared to put it in force. Let us hear from the Globe.

The witness whether charged with an offence or not, who speaks the whole truth in the witness-box, is free from penalty of any sort. It is only by guaranteeing him full protection from prosecution that true evidence can be secured and justice done in the case on hand. It is announced in court also.

Will the citizens of Montreal who ask old-homers if the city has improved ask if the old gentlemen themselves have improved? It might hurt the back-to-the-woods people's feelings to do so. Some of those from the far east, and west, and south and north will look pretty tough, Time works its revenges.

Mr. Brunet and that treasonable paper the 'Bulletin' have placed the redemption of Montreal in the hands of the French-Canadians. In its sectional appeal to the French the enemy has distinctly repudiated the English-speaking vote, and is likely to be taken at its word. Mr. Brunet has no use for it, and will not get it.—Montreal Witness.

The French vs. English war now on in Montreal is worthy of close attention. The Witness gives it daily editorial discussion, one of which begins as follows:

"The two column leader which appeared in the 'Bulletin' on Sunday is without exception one of the most wicked, most false, and most dishonest of the many wicked and dishonest, etc."

Someone asks the question: "Why should the Government insure its property?" This has reference to the idea that the Government should insure its own property. The answer is: "Which is the cheapest way to do it?" If as suggested, then it is good business for the Government to do the insuring. If otherwise, then let the companies do it. But let somebody do it. Moreover, it is never well to assume too much of the duties of the individual. It tends to crush out individual industry, and it is unnecessary to dilate upon what that would lead to.

If the people of Britain would look intelligently at this developed habit of running to the Government to get the start of some fellow-citizens they would dread protection as they do a pestilence.—The Globe.

But it makes no difference to the Globe that without the protection of government the man without the big money-bag is like the proverbial stubtailed bull during the fly season. "Let alone" the shibboleth of the Free Trader would have perpetuated slavery. That protection may have its abuses we all know. So has religion. But one is almost, if not quite, as necessary as the other.

But, if farmers are to hold their own in the economic and political conflict now in progress, something more than all this is called for. Farmers must have an organization through which they can make their influence felt in the shaping of legislation just as bankers have in the bankers' association, as manufacturers have in the manufacturers' association, and as traders have through boards of trade with the various sub-divisions in the same. It is obvious that an organization created and controlled by a Government, cannot serve this purpose. Representatives of the Farmers' Institute, a body maintained in part by Provincial funds, could not go to Premier Whitney and tell him plainly what farmers think of this policy of subsidizing railways, with any better grace than would be shown by a similar body maintained in part by Dominion funds, in reading the riot act to Sir Wilfrid for the policy that gentleman has pursued in the bonusing of iron and steel industries.

If the influence of farmers is to be felt in the shaping of legislation to the extent it should be felt, farmers must have their own organization maintained wholly by themselves, and directed by themselves. So far as Ontario is concerned the only organization in sight for the purpose of doing this is the Grange.—Weekly Sun.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Sept. 15.—(Special.)—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market this morning the offerings were 1200 cattle, 500 sheep, 650 lambs, 1200 hogs and 300 calves. A good, steady trade was done in cattle throughout the morning, and the market was active, with no change in prices to note. The supply was somewhat larger, but, as the demand was ample to absorb all the stock on the market, a steady undertone prevailed. Choice steers sold at 5¼c to 5½c; good at 5c to 5¼c; fair at 4½c to 4¾c; medium at 3¾c to 4c; good cows at 4c to 4½c; medium at 3c to 3½c, and bulls at 2¾c to 3c per lb. On account of increased supplies of hogs, an easier feeling developed in the market, and prices declined 25c per 100 lbs. At this reduction the demand was good and active trade was done. In the early part of the day a few sales of selected lots were made at $8.50, but the bulk of the trading was done later at $8 to $8.25 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars.

There was also considerable activity in the market for small meats on account of the increased offerings, and a brisk trade was done. A feature of the market was the weaker feeling in the market for lambs, and prices declined ¼c to ½c per lb., with sales at 5½c to 6c per lb. Sheep were steady under a fair demand, at 3¾c to 4c per lb. A good trade was done in calves at prices ranging from $3 to $15 each, as to size and quality.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Sept. 15.—Cattle—Receipts, 150 head; slow and steady; prime steers, $6.50 to $7.

Veals—Receipts, 100 head; active and steady.

HUNTERS
Something About Moose and Deer
It is now pretty well known among hunters that the best deer hunting country in Ontario is on the line of the Canadian Northern Ontario and that hunters receive special attention. Mr. C. Price Green, Passenger Agent of the line is a hunter himself who goes right with the parties and looks after them, in fact he located most of them. This year the line will be opened north of Sellwood into the midst of the Moose Country, they are reported very thick, the Engineers say that they have never seen anything like it, the Moose season up there opens October 15th, fifteen days before the Deer. We have something special on a new place that will take three parties of deer-hunters

LINDSAY PAPER SAYS GRAIN LINE WILL CONNECT WITH MAIN ROAD NEAR CAVANVILLE

A few days ago the Toronto World published an article dealing with the new grain route of the C.P.R., which will pass through Lindsay. The paper stated that President Shaughnessy of the C.P.R., had announced that construction work on the proposed line from Coldwater Junction to the main line would commence next spring, and would be rushed to speedy completion.

The C.P.R. surveyors are now busily engaged surveying the route between here and the main line with a view to avoiding the hills in Emily and Peterborough townships. The original survey will be abandoned, and it is as well as settled that the line will cross the river near Carew's mill, pass on through the east ward and follow the Lindsay-Omemee G.T.R. line to Reaboro. At this point it will cross the Grand Trunk and will follow an easterly course towards Bethany, finally tapping the main line at or near Cavanville.

The announcement that the construction work will start next spring will be hailed with pleasure by the citizens.

ONTARIO AND THE WESTERN DRAIN; THE REVIEW'S POSITION ENDORSED

Agriculture in the Province on the Decline—Local Centres of Industry Grow While Farms Decrease in Value.

(The Weekly Sun.)

Two views, both bearing on the same point, but each formed from a different standpoint were expressed at the official luncheon on Farmers' Day at the Exhibition.

E. C. Drury, speaking as Master of the Dominion Grange, expressed concern because of the position Ontario agriculture is being placed in owing to the drain on the rural population of the Province, a drain that is going on largely for the purpose of filling the west. As a result of this drain, Mr. Drury said, land in Ontario is not being properly tilled, weeds are increasing, and Provincial agriculture generally is not in the position it should be.

Principal Black of Manitoba Agricultural College, declared the satisfaction he felt because of the fact that this drain is going on. "We are," Mr. Black said in effect, "receiving such a flood of immigration in the west from all quarters of the world that we need a large inflow from Ontario as well to aid in developing the Canadian spirit among the new-comers."

That is the situation: The Province is losing more of its young men than it can afford to spare, but if a large outflow does not go far from Ontario to the Western Provinces the Canadian idea will be swamped there by a miscellaneous inflow from abroad. The position in which the country finds itself gives point to what the Peterborough Review has recently said as to the opening up of the West. The contention of the Review is that we have gone too rapidly in the matter of expansion—that we have spread our people so thinly upon the ground that grave economic and political evils are coming as a natural result of the course pursued.

But what should have been done? No country will be long allowed, in the present world-wide situation, to look up in idleness vast territories capable of sustaining large populations. If Canada had not attempted the development of the west herself, some other people would have assumed the task—possibly the Japanese. We might have carried off the task we have assumed in this direction without serious ill had we not pursued an unwise policy in another direction. While drawing on Ontario farms for men to direct the course of development in the west we have at the same time, by bonusing iron and steel industries, and by means of tariff protection, made other lines of industry more profitable than farming. We have taxed the farm to add to the profit of the factory and the steel plant. The result has been to cause an undue drain of population from Ontario farms to Ontario towns, when the same source was being drawn upon to the full limit properly allowable for the west. Either drain would have been sufficient to place a heavy strain on the bearing power of Ontario agriculture; combined they have brought about the evils to which Mr. Drury referred at the Exhibition luncheon.

LAST CALL FOR THE STRAW HATS

September 15th Mark End of "Cow's Breakfast" Season

September 15th is the date appointed by Fashion for the doffing of straw headgear, sailors, Panamas, or any other kind of coverings for the masculine head that are made of straw.

Throughout the summer the average straw hat on the head of the average young man sees a lot of active service. Rain or shine, cloudy, windy or fine, the hat performs the duties required of it. Wind and weather soon leave their marks on the straw, and it has, therefore, been decreed that the outer limit for straw hats is September 15. Those who wear them after that date are decidedly unfashionable, and should know better. There is a time for all things, and from September 15 to June 1 is not the time for men's straw hats.

Many a noble straw hat has done yeoman service all summer, while others have been on the heads of mankind for but a short time, but both are to be put away in the scrap heap or in the garret.

THE GREATEST VOLCANO KNOWN

In the island of Savail, in the Samoan group, during an August night in the year of 1905 there arose from the midst of a peaceful cocoa plantation a volcano that in four years of its still ceaseless activity has sent forth more molten lava than has any volcano of which there is record.

To-day this flow of lava, in some places 700 feet in depth, is filling up the sea along a frontage of more than seven miles, has destroyed about fifty villages and as many square miles of what was once the most productive area in all Samoa. From Apia, about fifty miles away on the island of Upolo, it is sometimes possible to read at night by the glare of the Savaiian volcano, whose twin pillars of vapor by day become columns of red.

Above the ever-seething lake of fire within the crater hangs a great crimson cloud, while eight miles distant from the volcanic cone appears a lesser cloud, sometimes divided into many columns of apparent fire. It is but the steam arising from the sea, colored by the red glowing lava, that pours a Niagara of fire over the cliffs that the ceaseless torrent of molten rocks builds higher and higher every day. The ocean steamers touching at Apia pass within close hailing distance of this dramatic spectacle.

Scientists who have seen the most recent flow say that every minute 300 000 tons of lava flow over the lower rim of the crater; and this not resembling in any way the other lava, but, like molten iron, spreads over the old field and beyond, until at the sea there is a Niagara of fire full ten miles in width. As this molten lava falls into the ocean it turns to fine black sand and sinks, and so a new coast line is being built up in water 300 to 400 feet deep.

This moving molten lake advances at the rate of four miles an hour. As it pours itself into the sea columns of water are raised in steam to incalculable heights, and this, descending in a fine rain of brine, destroys vegetation and corrodes the galvanized iron roofings of churches and trading stations for miles around.

As the torrents of boiling lava break against the basalt cliffs or hummocks left by the old flow cliffs are melted by the heat, hummocks disintegrated and carried forward by the flow to be hurled into the sea, where they explode like titanic bombs, and this is taking place every moment along an ever-widening sea front of ten miles at least. For more than a mile out in the ocean the water boils, and from the crater still flows a steady stream of lava greater, it is said, than has ever been seen in the past issue from any volcano of which there is record.

Never once, since that night four years ago when this volcano was born in a peaceful valley, has it remained for a moment quiescent.

ONE PLUS ONE EQUALS—WHAT?

A Little Problem In Mental Arithmetic That Alice Solved.

By FRANK CHESWICK.

"Girls, what do you think? Professor Storm proposed to me last night. So silly! Why, I never met him until the institute opened. We were coming home from the concert, and he"—

Miss Lingard's laughing accents reached the door of the cloakroom just as Miss Waters and Miss Burrows went out.

"Silly! She is the silly one—the most conceited girl I ever knew!" exclaimed Nellie Waters, snapping a rubber band about her notebook.

Alice Burrows stooped for an imaginary raveling in her skirt binding, and her friend did not see her quivering lips. When she stood erect once more they were joined by other teachers and passed down the corridor.

The first hour was given over to a lecture on chalk work in geography, but Alice was deaf to pedagogic suggestions, blind to the vivid drawings of the faddist who held forth before the teachers of Tucson county, assembled for the annual institute. Above the voice of the speaker rang insistently the words of Hattie Lingard—"Professor Storm proposed to me last night."

Well, why shouldn't he? thought Alice despairingly. Miss Lingard was noted beyond the confines of the county as a beauty and a coquette, just the sort of young woman who would attract a studious, earnest man like Mr. Storm. Yes, why shouldn't he? What did he owe quiet, gentle Alice Burrows? He had spoken no word of love to her, and yet— Her cheeks flushed crimson, and she bent her face closer to the notebook, whose pages were still unwritten. It had all been a mistake. She had misinterpreted the actions of this grave young professor who for two years had conducted the classes in mathematics at the institute. Perhaps it had even been unmaidenly for her to read the clear depths of his hazel eyes.

The morning dragged wearily. At noon her appetite failed. By the opening of the afternoon session a maddening headache possessed her. During the last period of the day her section must report to Professor Storm. She would have excused herself and gone home only that every one knew she must only sit in the depot during the hot August afternoon. Mervale, her home, was but a thirty minute ride from the county seat, and to please her invalid mother Alice made the trip each day, thus depriving herself of the small social functions arranged for the evenings in honor of the visiting teachers, a humorous lecture, several receptions and the concert.

Professor Storm had asked her to attend the concert with him, but she had been forced to decline. Now she thought, with increasing bitterness, that he had quickly consoled himself in her absence. Perhaps if, like the other teachers, she had boarded in town—

"If any of you failed to grasp the method used in that last problem I will be glad to remain a short time and go over it again."

What problem? Alice pressed her hand to her forehead and glanced hurriedly at her notebook. Blindly she clutched at her pencil. Half a dozen teachers remained, and Professor Storm was stepping down from the platform. He reached her side.

"What is the trouble? Are you ill?"

He glanced curiously from the clean page of her book to her flushed face. For a few seconds speech was denied her. Then she replied calmly, almost coldly:

"I fear my mind wandered. I missed the explanation entirely."

Storm looked at the clock.

"You have forty minutes before train time. Come up to my desk, and I will go over it with you."

Mechanically she followed his work, wondering if the ordeal would ever end. But her voice did not quiver as she rose.

"Thank you. It is quite simple now—as simple as one plus one equaling two."

She told the fib unflinchingly, but her eyes did not meet his. The other teachers had gathered in a remote corner to discuss the absorbing question as to whether hats should be worn at the reception to be given that night by the local woman's club. Storm laid a cool, shapely hand over her feverish one.

"I wish," he said softly, "that you would let me teach you that one plus one equals—just one. May I—Alice?"

It had not been her mistake, after all. He had meant—

"Girls, are you ever coming?"

It was Miss Lingard's voice, just outside the door. Then Alice remembered and drew away her hand.

"Really, Professor Storm, if you advance such propositions as that I shall lose faith in your knowledge of mathematics."

And, with a metallic laugh, she hurried toward the cloakroom. Storm looked after her with eyes first puzzled, then hurt. He had never pictured her as a willful flirt. And she had led him on. Yes, she had! He repeated the words again and again as if to smooth his ruffled feelings.

The next morning Miss Waters was waiting on the depot platform for her friend.

"Oh, Alice, you ought to have been at the reception last night," she commented as they walked toward the high school, where the institute was held. "Such larks! That little braggart, Hattie Lingard, was the laughingstock. It seems she wants to marry Fred Baker, whose father owns nearly all the stock in the Tucson bank. She hoped to rouse his jealousy by flirting with Professor Storm. That is why she started the story that he had proposed to her, and they say she even asked him to take her to the concert. Well, she did succeed admirably in rousing Fred's jealousy, and he positively refused to take her to the reception last night, and she had such a dream of a dress too. She had to go with a couple of girls. Imagine Hattie Lingard doomed to the society of girls on a long walk home under the trees! Not even Professor Storm appeared on the scene to console her. I believe he saw through her trick because he was so cool to her last night at supper. We sit at the same table. I don't believe he ever had any idea of proposing to her."

Miss Waters rattled on of the evening's pleasures, but Alice heard nothing. She could only think that perhaps the idle boast of a pretty, vapid girl had come between her and lifelong happiness. A mad longing to shriek in her misery, to strike the girl who caused it all, suddenly possessed her, and she walked like one in a dream to the institute doors.

The period just before the noon recess was given over to mathematics. Professor Storm was quiet, collected, authoritative as ever during the lecture hour, at the close of which the teachers, rejoicing in their freedom, hurried toward the various exits. Alice was almost at the foot of the line. Miss Waters called from the doorway:

"Alice, dear, will you please bring my algebra? I left it on my desk."

With downcast eyes Alice reached for the forgotten book. It lay on a desk just in front of Professor Storm. A faint flush tinged her cheek, and her hand trembled.

He stepped to her side, and the chattering voices of the outgoing teachers almost drowned his words.

"I hope you are feeling better today. No headache?"

For an instant Alice hesitated, then raised her eyes to his, and courage to make right the wrong came to her.

"I have been solving a little problem in mental arithmetic, and with the solution comes relief."

"Yes?" he said eagerly. "Why didn't you let me help you?"

The room was empty now. She leaned forward just a trifle; her glance met his, wavered and fell.

"It was so simple—just that one plus one—equals"—

"One!" he exclaimed triumphantly. "I felt sure you would find that answer if I were patient."

Absent All Around.

The absentminded professor returned home one evening and, after ringing his front doorbell for some time to no effect, heard the maid's voice from the second story window, "The professor is not in."

"All right," quietly answered the professor. "I'll call again." And he hobbled down the stone steps.—Lippincott's Magazine.

Exasperating.

"How is it that your wife gets you so sore at her? Does she henpeck you?"

"Quite the contrary, darn it! When we have an argument and I prove that I am right she sighs meekly and says, 'Oh, well, my dear, have it your own way!' "—Cleveland Leader.

OTONABEE POWER COMPANY WANT 20 YEAR FRANCHISE

Letter From Company Read at Council Meeting Last Night—No Action Taken in the Matter—Council to Study Clauses in Proposed Agreement With Peterboro' Light and Power Company.

The Otonabee Power Company are now looking to the Council for a twenty-year franchise. At last night's meeting the clerk read the following letter, but the matter was left over for further consideration. The letter was as follows:

To the Mayor and Aldermen of the City of Peterborough, Ont.

Gentlemen,—We desire, if satisfactory arrangements can be made with the corporation of the city of Peterborough, to extend our power plant at dams numbers 4 and 5, by combining the two dams under one head, which will result in the most power being produced. We propose to develope the power at these two dams to the full capacity of the available flow of the Otonabee River under a 26-foot head, which will mean an expenditure of at least $250,000.

We find that capitalists do not favor taking up the bonds of a company when the franchise is on a short and more or less uncertain tenure. We desire, therefore, to obtain from you the best terms and conditions upon which the council would be prepared to give us a franchise of the streets for lighting, power and heating purposes for at least a period of twenty years. We also desire to draw your attention to the act that was passed at the last session of the Dominion Parliament, whereby it is provided in connection with water power developments, on the Trent Canal, under a lease from the Dominion Government, that the provisions of the Dominion Railway Act apply for the purpose of regulating the rates at which power, light and heat are sold.

We would be pleased at any time to meet a committee of your council and to discuss the details of our general proposition.

We would esteem it a very great favor to hear from you at your earliest convenience.

Yours truly,
OTONABEE POWER CO.,
Limited.
WILLIAM FERGUSON,
President.

Ald. Gillespie was in favor of not discussing the question at present and allowing Mr. Larmonth to be heard in regard to the thirty-year franchise of his company. This was for the reason of endeavoring to come to some agreement in connection with the objected points. Ald. Morgan moved that the matter be left over. Ald. Gillespie moved that Mr. Larmonth be heard, and the latter motion carried.

The disputed clauses were brought up but little headway was made. Mr. Larmonth was willing to grant a concession in regard to the price of the power but remained firm on all others. He said the agreement was a fair one in his opinion, and his instructions were not to grant any concessions. In the matter of appointing an arbitrator as suggested by Ald. Hicks, to settle cases of accidents, he thought that it would be difficult to secure accident insurance, should the decision rest with one person. Furthermore, he explained the case in which the team of horses were killed. An investigation made by the company showed just exactly how the accident occurred, and it was of such a character that an arbitrator or board of arbitrators would have been deceived as to the correct cause, had they investigated at the time.

Ald. Gillespie said he would like to have an agreement reached or drop the matter altogether, and as a final effort Ald. Hicks moved that a copy of the proposed agreement be sent to each member of the Council for a thorough study of the clauses, and that another meeting be held next Wednesday evening. This was seconded by Ald. Duncan and the meeting adjourned.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL ON CHARGE OF PERJURY

A man was committed for trial at the next session of Judge Huycke's court by Magistrate Dumble this morning on a charge of perjury, arising out of the case in which the defendant gave evidence at the trial of John Wyatt, who was charged in the police court on the 9th of July with having supplied defendant with intoxicating liquor. The defendant was not represented by counsel this morning and did not make any election.

Crown Attorney Wood conducted the prosecution.

The first witness called was P.C. Newhall. He stated that he was present at the trial of Mr. Wyatt on the ninth of July, when he was charged with supplying liquor to defendant. The latter was sworn as a witness and he saw him sign his deposition of which the following was a part:

"I did not drink liquor that day until after I was in the police cells." Afterwards he said: "I was not drunk the day I was taken out of the shop."

Witness stated that he and Chief Rossel arrested him and he was very drunk. He was lying on the floor at the time, and several bottles, which had contained whiskey, lay nearby. The prisoner had to be supported during the journey to the police station.

Chief Rossel said P.C. Newhall was at the shop when he arrived. Prisoner was drunk and was taken to the station. Wyatt was tried on the 9th of July, and prisoner was brought from the county jail to give evidence against Wyatt. The statements made by prisoner in the box were signed by him. Witness corroborated the evidence of P.C. Newhall in regard to what prisoner had said as to his being intoxicated.

The magistrate raised an objection against a committal on the ground that the deposition was not included in the information, as the papers were produced in court, and at the request of the crown attorney he withdrew the objection.

ROSH HASHANNAH IS BEING CELEBRATED BY JEWS

Hebrews of This City are Taking Part in Devotion at Mr. W. B. Lastar's—Celebration Will Last for Ten Days.

Last evening at sunset throughout the whole world the Hebrew race began celebrating their New Year, or Rosh Hashannah, as it is called in their language.

The New Year has a double significance for the Jews. In the first place, it recalls the creation of the world, which took place 5,669 years ago, according to their reckoning, and then again on this day some time in the future or in the ten days of atonement which follow, the end of the world will come, when the deeds of every individual will be put on the balance and weighed and sentence will be passed by the great Judge of the Universe.

The feast of the New Year is mentioned on two occasions in the Old Testament, though it is not called such. In Leviticus xxiii., 24, and in Numbers xxix., mention is made of it, where it is spoken of a day of the blowing of the trumpet.

The ten days of atonement start to-day.

The members of this nationality residing in Peterborough commenced their devotions last night at the residence of Mr. B. Lastar, Simcoe street. Rabbi Garfincall, of Toronto, is officiating, and all places of business operated by our Hebrew fellow-citizens will be closed until Saturday. Services in the morning and evening will be held up to and including Friday night. One fast day will be observed on Saturday, September 25th. There are quite a number taking part in the services at Mr. Lastar's, and this includes several from Lindsay and Bobcaygeon.

CONTRACT WAS FINALLY AWARDED TO CONROYS

At Council Meeting Last Night—Mr. Best Will be Offered $500.00 for His Property on Aylmer Street—Begy's Check to be Returned to Him.

The contract for the building of the new Smith Street Bridge was finally awarded to Messrs. E. and F. Conroy at the meeting of the Council last evening. This matter was followed by a discussion among the members present as to what would be done with the cheques furnished by the other firms who had tendered to do the work. The cheque of Begy & Co. proved to be the stumbling block. Several of the aldermen thought that no action should be taken in the matter at present, in regard to this firm's cheque while others were of the opinion that it should be returned at once. Finally a motion by Ald. McIntyre and Duffus to the effect that all the cheques with the exception of Conroy's be returned, settled the matter. Ald. Bradburn moved an amendment to the motion that the question be laid over for consideration, but the vote went against it.

$800 IS TOO MUCH.

The demand of Mr. Best for $800 for his property to allow Aylmer street to be extended was next considered by the Council. There was a feeling amongst some of the members that the price asked for by Mr. Best was too high, while others thought that he was justified in his demand. One member mentioned arbitration, but Ald. Duncan jumped on the suggestion giving as his reason for so doing that if the price was in the judgment of the Council $200 high, this sum would be expended by pursuing the course mentioned.

Ald. McIntyre moved that the City Solicitor be notified to make an offer of $500 to Mr. Best for his property and if not accepted the solicitor to take steps to ex-appropriate the land.

The motion was seconded by Ald. Turner and carried.

THAT WATCH OF YOURS

Is in many respects similar to a railway engine. Let an engine be run without oil or cleaning and before long it will stop dead. Upon examination it will be found that the friction and wear and tear has ruined the machinery, and it is fit only for the scrap iron heap. Likewise your watch. You put it in your pocket, and while there is a kick in it, you, in your mistaken economy, do not consult the watchmaker, and consequently rob your watch of years of good service and also much of its former accuracy. The time keeping qualities of a good watch are maintained and often improved by timely and skilful attention. If you have been one of the neglectful ones call around and see us.

WARN THE GOVERNMENT

Every organization that has the welfare of Canada and the masses of Canadian people at heart might well send a strongly-worded resolution to the Ottawa Government as a counterblast to the representations of the G. T. P. The Laurier Administration showed its willingness to open the Dominion's western gate to the innumerable coolies of the Orient. It was only the angry protest of Labour and the fierce courage of the British Columbia Government that saved the situation at the time. But the good work remains to be done over again. The "other than white labour" which means yellow and every "other than white" sort, is a making-ready to transform Canada into an Oriental country. It is well to remember that the Laurier Government is as solicitous for the G.T.P. financiers as it seems to be for the race-track gambling associations. Once the coolie becomes an institution white labour will be at the moneyed man's mercy.

WEST PETERBORO' ELECTION PROTEST

The following appears in the legal columns of the Globe to-day;—

"MR. BURNHAM HAS TO STATE GROUND OF OBJECTION

Otherwise He Need Not Answer Questions About Detectives He Employed in West Peterboro' Election Case

Mr. J. H. Burnham must state why he objected to answer certain questions on his examination in connection with his petition against Mr. J. R. Stratton's election for West Peterborough. Mr. Justice Magee so directed yesterday afternoon, on a motion before him, but did not in other respects alter his previous order. Mr. Burnham therefore need not give the names or the amounts paid to the detectives employed by him or the conversations had with them, but simply has to state that the payments were for work done as detectives."

The above contingency arose through Mr. Burnham's not repeating the full formal answer to similar questions each time after the first, but contenting himself with repeating the words, "I object." He is now directed by the judge to give the full answer to all as to the first, not leaving the rest of the answers to be supplied as if clearly understood.

OBITUARY

MRS. WALTER PARNALL.

The death of Helen Goodacre, wife of Mr. Walter Parnall, which occurred Tuesday morning at the home of her parents in Toronto, will be heard with much regret. The deceased, who was 26 years of age, was born in Sheffield, England, and was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Goodacre, formerly of this city, but now of Toronto. With her parents she came to Canada about 25 years ago, and after residing in Cobourg for twelve years came to Peterborough, and during her residence here won the esteem and respect of a large number of friends and acquaintances. Besides the members of her family she leaves to mourn her loss a husband and three children, one of which is an infant. The other two children are Roy and Ethel, aged seven and four years respectively.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, from the late residence, 552 Bethune street, to the Little Lake cemetery. Rev. Canon Davidson will conduct the service.

LOCAL ANGLERS MADE BIG CATCH

As Result of Fishing Expedition Yesterday—Who Made the Presentation?

The remarkable success which two local anglers attained yesterday during a fish expedition is the subject of much discussion by their friends in the city. Messrs. R. M. Glover and A. Haskill are the fortunate gentlemen. While space will not permit of giving the total catch of these two exponents of the rod and line, it will probably be sufficient to note that Mr. Glover intends keeping as a souvenir, a beautiful small mudcat, and Mr. Haskill three undersized perch. Prosecutions may follow.

HUSTLING FOR AUTUMN TRADE

What Some Peterborough Firms are Doing to Push Business

The holiday season having closed down, business men are alert to put things into shape for fall trade. An aid to increased business is to send out printed matter to supplement the use of the local papers. A good, well-printed circular, booklet, folder or other publication adds fuel to the fire of trade and stirs up the thoughtful to take advantage.

From the presses of the Review job department have been issued a stream of work, all designed in the way the contents of the publications are written, and printed to help business.

The Review has just completed a handsome catalogue of over one hundred pages for B. F. Ackerman, Son & Co., illustrative of the fine lines of harness manufactured, and of other lines which are material in the harness and saddlery trade. The firm make and sell wholesale only, and the catalogue is designed to afford information to dealers throughout the eastern provinces and especially the North-west, where their trade is rapidly extending. To place themselves in constant touch with the North-west trade, what is practically depots have been established at several points, including Calgary. From personal inspection and repeated visits to the west, the firm have gained an accurate idea of the styles, qualities and needs in the way of harness, and the products of the fine factory are highly esteemed. For some time the factory has been running day and night to keep up with the demand. Throughout the Ontario west their goods are in great favor, and a substantial part of their large trade covers farm districts west of Toronto.

The Peterborough Canoe Company, Limited, for the purpose of placing the merits of their fine lines of launches, canoes and skiffs before the public, have had printed by the Review a handsome folder, well illustrated, and which was largely distributed at the Toronto Fair. So well pleased were they with the results that a second edition was ordered for distribution at the Ottawa Fair this week. A representative of the company is on the ground handling a full and interesting exhibit, made in the interests of the firm.

Thos. Barrie & Co., the well-known manufacturing furriers, have had printed at the Review a large edition of a booklet, illustrative of the new styles and makes in furs. The suggestions for buyers are well in line, and show that the firm are right in front with what is desirable for the fall and winter of 1909-10.

Frank Mason, florist, will put out in a day or two, from the Review presses, his fall announcement covering bulbs, plants and flowers. In this department Mr. Mason's long experience is one that may be relied on to furnish the best and most desirable lines in all sections of this trade.

LINDSAY RUGBY CLUB ORGANIZED

Expect to be Grouped With Peterborough in Junior O.R.F.U.

Lindsay, Sept 14.—The interest manifested at the meeting of the rugby club held last evening in the Simpson House parlors, bodes well for the success of the game in town this season. The junior O.R.F.U. championship mug is not to leave town without a struggle—that's assured.

Officers were elected last evening and various committees were appointed. Prospects for the year were freely discussed, and plan aformulated.

The list of officers;—

Hon. President—Senator McHugh.

Hon. Vice-President—W. H. Simpson.

Hon. 2nd Vice-President — F. A. McDiarmid.

1st Vice-President—Walter Reeser.

2nd Vice-President—Dr. Brown.

Secretary—Parnell McHugh.

Treasurer—R. E. Porter.

Field Committee—B. S. Sylvester, J. Dougan, J. Bigelow, J. Coulter and L. Nesbitt.

Managing Committee—A. G. Simpson, P. McHugh, R. E. Porter, R. Porter, B. Green.

Manager—A. G. Simpson.

The team will enter the junior O.R.F.U. series, with Peterborough in this district probably.

RUGBY

A good punter is wanted by the rugby club to fill the position of centre half. Cotton, last year's centre half, is not in town, and the team will miss his hard booting of the ball.—Lindsay Warder.

SPORTING NOTES

The Chicago Bloomers did not put in an appearance for their game here to-day. They played in Bowmanville yesterday, but it is reported that one of the girls went away with the money and forgot to return. At the time of writing they were staying at the Balmoral Hotel in Bowmanville.—Port Hope Guide.

The Hamilton Tiger management announce that Art Turner, who was a star half-back with Queen's for the past four years, has accepted a place on the Hamilton team's back division this year. Craig and Binkley, crack players on the Dundas intermediate team last year, will play with the Tigers.

Walter Johnson, who recently strained several muscles so badly that physicians predicted he might never be able to pitch again, will probably be able to face the Tigers when they reach Washington.

When Ketchel and Langford step into the ring Friday evening the Michigan fighter will be the favorite.

Abbe Attell, of California, the featherweight champion, was given the decision over Tommy O'Coole, of Philadelphia, in twelve rounds, by Referee Charles White, of New York, at the Armory Athletic Club, Boston. The decision was a surprise to the majroity of the 2,000 or more who saw the fight and expressed their approval in vigorous fashion.

FALL SKIN DISEASES

An Article for Mothers.

When the children "break out" with eruptions and skin diseases, so common in the fall, don't run to useless and nauseating medicines. Zam-Buk is what is needed. It is a skin food as well as a healing balm.

Mrs. Chas. Levere, of Prescott, North Channel, Ont., tells how Zam-Buk cured her baby. She says: — "My baby's head and face was one complete mass of sores. The itching and irritation were fearful, and the little one's plight was so fearful that at one time we feared her ears would be eaten off.

"We had to keep her hands tied for days to prevent her rubbing and scratching the sores. Doctor after doctor treated her in vain, until we had had five doctors. They all agreed it was a frightful case of eczema, but none of them did any permanent good.

"As a last resource we were advised to try Zam-Buk. The first box did so much good that we felt sure we were at last working in the right direction. We persevered with the treatment until we had used thirteen boxes, and at the end of that time I am glad to say Zam-Buk effected a cure."

Mrs. Hamilton, of 30 Guise street, Hamilton, is quite as eloquent in her praises. She says—"Zam-Buk cured my boy of boils and eruptions when he was so bad that he had been unable to mix with other children. Prior to the boils breaking out he had had a bad eruption, but Zam-Buk cleared this away too, and made his skin clear and smooth. It is a wonderful preparation, and mothers throughout the land should always keep it handy."

For eczema, eruptions, rashes, tetter, itch, ringworm, and similar skin diseases, Zam-Buk is without equal. It also cures cuts, burns, scalds, piles, abscesses, chronic sores, blood-poisoning. All [illegible] and stores at 50 cents [illegible] for price from [illegible] Co., Toronto. [illegible]

DISASTERS ON MONT BLANC.

The Worst Occurred in 1870 and Cost Eleven Lives.

In the long list of disasters which darken the history of Mont Blanc the worst, according to Edward Whymper, the famous mountain climber, occurred to a scratch party in 1870.

The amateur Alpinists were two Americans, Mr. Randall and Mr. McBean, and a Scotch minister, the Rev. G. McCorkindale of Gourock. They took with them as guides or assistants no fewer than eight persons from Chamonix, a quite sufficient number. As is usual, they passed the night at the inn upon the rocks which are called the Grand Mulets.

On the next day, writes Professor Whymper in the Strand, a number of persons below watched their progress through telescopes. They were seen to arrive on the summit and to begin the descent. By that time the weather had changed. The wind was something frightful.

Even 12,000 feet below it was seen whirling the snow about so that the members of the party were obliged to throw themselves down to avoid being carried away by it. Then the summit became clouded and was not seen again for eight days.

No one came back, and on Sept. 7 fourteen men from Chamonix started out to try to learn something. Bad weather came on again, and it was not until the 17th that the fate of the party was ascertained. When the rescue party got up they found Mr. McCorkindale and two of the porters about 750 feet below the top, with their heads right way up, but with their clothes somewhat torn, as if they had slipped and fallen.

About 300 feet higher up they came upon Mr. McBean and another porter sitting down, the former with his head leaning on one hand and the elbow on a knapsack.

Upon Mr. McBean a notebook was found containing several entries in respect to the occasion. All the five corpses were hard frozen. They were put into sacks and dragged down to Chamonix. It took three days to transport them. The bodies of the six others have not yet been recovered, but they will probably come to light in the course of a few years.

One of the earliest avalanche accidents on Mont Blanc occurred in 1820, when Dr. Hamel, a Russian, set out on Aug. 18 to go up Mont Blanc, accompanied by two Englishmen and eight guides. They had ascended to a height of more than 14,000 feet, with five guides in front, who were cutting or making steps, when all at once the snow above them gave way and the entire party was carried down a thousand feet over the slopes up which they had toiled.

Snow again broke away above and more or less covered up the whole party. Some of them struggled out, but three of the leading guides were buried into a crevasse and buried under an immense mass of snow.

Ten years afterward, when conducting another tourist up Mont Blanc by the same route, one of the surviving guides pointed to the crevasse and said to his employer, "They are there."

He was wrong. At that time (1830) the bodies were no doubt a considerable distance from the spot where the accident occurred, for the dismembered remains of the three unfortunates commenced to reappear at the lower end of the Glacier des Bossons in 1861, more than four miles away in a direct line from the place where they perished, and must have traveled down on an average at the rate of 500 feet per annum.

Gold on Desolation Island.

Kerguelen, or the island of Desolation, may be the scene of the next gold rush. Situated midway between the Cape of Good Hope and Australia, it is one of the dreariest and most forbidding spots on the surface of the globe. But the captain of a brig, the Carmen, who spent four months there hunting sea elephants, has made a discovery which may lead to important developments. He picked up a pretty little nugget of gold among the pebbles while walking on the shore. The Carmen has arrived at Melbourne with 150 tons of oil, the product of a couple of thousand sea elephants shot by the captain and his men. They also report the discovery of valuable deposits of coal, which they declare to be excellent fuel. Kerguelen belongs to France by right of discovery.

Preventable Accidents.

The American Museum of Safety and Sanitation in its latest bulletin calls attention to the fact that in 1908, in the whole country, from all causes, accidents totaled 500,000 persons, "which is 500 regiments strong, and these victims of the perils of peace would be hours in passing a given point." The bulletin adds that in "America the insurance interests estimate the annual loss to companies from preventable accidents to be $125,000,000. This does not include costs of defending suits at law, in which the person injured receives in judgments scarcely $500 on the average, of which his lawyer usually gets one-half."

Neptune's Belts.

Neptune, the most distant known planet of the solar system, presents to the ordinary telescope only a small greenish disk, on which no distinct markings are visible. But recently telescopic observations have revealed indications of the existence of streaks on Neptune bearing a resemblance to the belts of Jupiter. A few years ago similar streaks were seen on Uranus. Saturn also possesses them, so that it may be said that cloudlike belts are a feature common of all the four greatest outer planets.

REV. CANON CODY COMING AGAIN

Will be Special Preacher at St. Luke's Harvest Festival Services

The annual harvest festival of St. Luke's church will be held on Thursday, September 30, at 8 p.m. Rev. Canon Cody, M.A., D.D., LL.D., rector of St. Paul's church, Toronto, will be the special preacher. The subject of his sermon will be on national issues. Dr. Cody is acknowledged one of the foremost scholars and one of the most eloquent preachers in Canada, and should, on the occasion of his visit to St. Luke's, meet with a large congregation.

Mr. Mark Workman denies ever offering Ald. Charlibue, of Montreal, $3,000 for his vote.

The Alberta and Great Waterways railway will be built from Edmonton to Fort McMurray.

HUNTING SEASON DRAWING NEAR

Plenty of Deer and Moose.

Already the parties are starting to organise, and a very successful season is anticipated, particularly along the line of the Canadian Northern Ontario that has become so famous as a deer hunting ground. The deer are very plentiful, more so even than last year. There is plenty of room for new parties, as arrangements are made to place the new parties in good locations where they will not disturb or be disturbed by the old parties. The new Moose Country that can now be reached direct by rail will attract a good deal of attention and as the open season up there is fifteen days earlier that the deer season, many will take it in first before coming south for deer.

An advantage of hunting deer on the C.N.O. is the fact that the best of locations can be got along the right of way, where there are numerous camps, and do everything except run across country to accommodate the hunters.

A rate of single fare for the round trip will be made to all points, and places from outside of Toronto, through tickets can be obtained at Grand Trunk or Canadian Pacific ticket offices.

For full particulars write C. Price Green, Passenger Agent, Toronto, who, as most hunters know, is keenly interested in the sport and is happy to give hunters all information about the hunting along the line of the Canadian Northern Ontario.

DEATH DUE INDIRECTLY TO FIGHT

To the coroner witness said he and Fred Jopling came up to the park about eight o'clock and Fred was there from that time on.

To Mr. Wood, witness admitted that he tried to separate them. This was after they were standing up and shaking hands. As he was doing this Long touched him on the shoulder and laughed at him. Witness also told the fighters that they should know what they were fighting about before they started a row. Witness was positive that Gordon Long had not spoken to him when he touched him on the shoulder.

Gordon Long was recalled and asked if he had touched Gravelle on the shoulder and laughed. He said he did, and also made some remark to Gravelle, but he did not remember what it was.

"I suppose you laughed because the affair was over?" said Mr. Wood.

"I wasn't sorry," said the witness.

Fred Jopling appeared in the witness box with his right hand done up in a sling. He was somewhat pale.

After Jopling stating that he refused to answer any questions and Mr. Wood assuring him that anything he said at the inquest would not be used against him, Coroner Gray and Mr. O'Connell had the clash. Mr. O'Connell objected to the coroner cross-examining witnesses. He wished to enter a public protest against it.

"What's that?" asked Dr. Gray.

Mr. O'Connell repeated his protest.

"Look here, Mr. O'Connell," said Dr. Gray, "are you conducting this inquest, or am I?"

"I'll leave it to Mr. Wood to say whether I'm overstepping the mark or not."

"You are not conducting it properly," said Mr. O'Connell.

"I am," said the doctor. "I'm going to discharge my duties and I'm going to conduct the inquest as I want to. If I cannot I'll resign the position at once. If that man (pointing to Fred Jopling) were my brother I would treat him in the same manner. I'm going to see that everybody gets justice."

Mr. O'Connell resumed his seat and the taking of evidence was proceeded with.

Fred Jopling said he was a resident of Bridgenorth and he catered to the Chemong Park cottagers in groceries and meats. He was at Chemong Park on the Monday night when the trouble occurred. He did not know Bollard, not even by sight.

He was at the hotel on Monday night about ten o'clock. He was talking to Mr. Brown when Blake Cullen came up and spoke to him.

Blake Cullen said two fellows were laying for witness's brother down in the park. This was the first intimation he had of there being any trouble. Cullen did not mention who the two fellows were.

Witness called Harry, who was at the swing with two ladies and Harry came towards the middle of the road. Fred asked Harry what the two fellows were laying for him for and said he did not know.

"Come on down and we'll see," said Fred. "We went straight down through the park, along the path," continued the witness.

Asked by Mr. Wood why they went through the park away from the direction in which their home was, witness said Harry was with two girls, who were going down into the park and he thought his brother would be assaulted. Harry left the girls and started down through the park with Fred. They ran a piece of the way and slowed up. Witness had told Blake Cullen to stay back before they left the vicinity of the hotel. Cullen stayed back witness thought.

"When we sighted the party ahead of us," Jopling testified. "I could not tell whether they were walking or standing. I thought there were four in the party, three men and one lady. It looked that way to me. When we caught up to them Harry said, "I think that's him now, indicating Bollard."

Witness repeated that he did not know whether the Bollard party were walking or standing.

"Bollard jumped on my brother and it looked to me as if he crushed him to the ground instantly," witness deposed "and then I took a hand in it. I told him not to jump on a kid, and to stop hitting my brother. Harry cried out in a kind of a choking voice as if he were choking. Bollard was hitting Harry and when he did not stop when I told him I put my arms round him and pulled him off. I told him I would take the place of my brother.

"I can trim you or anything you have down there," Bollard said, and I told him to "let her go." Bollard rushed at me and I met him when he came. We clinched and Bollard went down after a hard tussle. I put the crotch hold on him from behind to turn him over and lifted him up. We had rolled into the ditch. I struck him once in the face when he was down. It was a good smart blow. I did not catch him unfairly. It was only an ordinary crotch hold used by wrestlers."

To Mr. Wood witness said he was considered a good wrestler around Bridgenorth. Very few could throw him when he went to school. His older brother had thrown him. Witness did not think the blow or hold had hurt Bollard. Bollard appeared to give in after being down and witness got up off him. "No one separated us," Jopling said. "I heard Bollard cry out once but I do not think he used any words. He did not hear him cry out "let go" or "dirty." Jopling went over to Marks and asked him what it was all about. Marks said that Harry had called Bollard a vile name in the morning. Witness asked Harry if he had and Harry denied it. Harry said if he had used the expression he would apologize. Fred Jopling said "the easiest way is the easiest way out of this," and told the two boys to shake hands. This they did. Bollard said to Fred Jopling, "you caught me unfairly," and witness said he had not. Witness showed Bollard how he had caught him. Bollard said he would wrestle Fred for $5 and the two friendly wrestles then took place.

"We took side holds and had a hard wrestle. He tried to throw me with a leg trip but I was watching for it and did not go down. I got a hip lock on him and threw him hard. He struggled hard to turn me, and in doing so turned himself. He was on his back and down. I let him up. He rushed at me, getting one arm on the back of my head. I told him to go slow as I did not know anything about the catch-as-catch-can style. He threw me and held me down. I asked him to have another wrestle with side holds, telling him he surprised me before. He said he was all in and could not continue. Bollard walked over to a pine tree and vomited. He complained about being hit on the shoulder and I lit a match and it showed him how he had lit on gravel and where his shoulder was scratched on the rough earth. He said it was "too bad old chap we had got into this trouble." I shook hands with Bollard, Marks and Miss Minns. I saw Cullen, Forsythe and Mr. Hartshorne there. There were others. I asked Bollard if he thought he would be all right and he said he would. We then started for home."

"Who suggested that you go down through the park," asked the Crown Attorney.

"I did," said Jopling.

"Did you know of Forsythe being sent for?"

"I did not."

"Did you think they were going to waylay your brother?"

"I thought they might."

"Do you think they would have had the young lady with them if that were their intent?"

"I wouldn't have had."

ANOTHER CLASH.

"What did you waylay this young man for?" the coroner asked.

Mr. O'Connell started to object.

"Will you sit down Mr. O'Connell," said the doctor.

Mr. O'Connell continued to protest but Dr. Gray continued questioning the witness.

"Why did you follow Mr. Bollard?"

"I wanted to find out why he was going to trim my brother."

"Did you find out?"

"No. Bollard did not give us time."

Then came another objection from Mr. O'Connell and Dr. Gray told him to keep his mouth shut.

Dr. Gray to Jopling—"Why did you not secure an explanation in the park in the limelight, instead of following him up?"

"I'll make representations to the department about the way you are conducting this inquest," said Mr. O'Connell.

"All right," said Dr. Gray hotly, "you can do as you like. What you better do is keep quiet. I respect you, Mr. O'Connell, but no man is going to dictate to me how I am going to run this court. That's my business, and I'm not going to have anyone interfering."

"Are you going to put me out?" asked Mr. O'Connell.

"No, you can stay, but you must not interfere."

Coroner to Jopling—"If you had not followed Bollard would this thing have occurred?"

"If Bollard had not jumped on my brother it would not have occurred."

"You waylayed him," said the coroner.

"I beg your pardon, I did not waylay him" said Jopling.

This ended Jopling's evidence.

DR. GREER.

Dr. T. N. Greer, one of the doctors who performed the post mortem, was asked to take the stand again. Bollard's death, he said, was due to inflammation of the bowels. The condition of his body was such as a result of the fight on Monday night that he was unable to resist an attack that, under ordinary conditions, would not have proved fatal. His vitality was so lowered that the resisting power against disease was far below normal. The exertion of the fight, apparently, led to indigestion and the fermentation of the food in the stomach had caused septic poisoning. Dr. Greer agreed with Dr. Gray that the septic poisoning had developed with unusual rapidity.

Dr. Gray put it to the jury as to whether or not Dr. Morgan should be called and the vote was 7 to 7.

"We'll call him, then," said the coroner.

Dr. Morgan was not present, however, and the case was given to the jury.

Addressing the jury Coroner Gray said he did not go much on Fred Jopling's evidence. Dr. Gray pointed out that the Joplings had followed Bollard on his way home and that it was a serious offence to waylay a man.

MOTHERS WHO HAVE DAUGHTERS

Find Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Winchester, Ind.—"Four doctors told me that they could never make me regular, and that I would eventually have dropsy. I would bloat, and suffer from bearing-down pains, cramps and chills, and I could not sleep nights. My mother wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for advice, and I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After taking one and one-half bottles of the Compound, I am all right again, and I recommend it to every suffering woman."—MRS. MAY DEAL, Winchester, Ind.

Hundreds of such letters from girls and mothers expressing their gratitude for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished for them have been received by The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.

Girls who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion, should take immediate action to ward off the serious consequences and be restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Thousands have been restored to health by its use.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

WHY ARE ST. CAR FENDERS NOT DOWN

Ald. Duncan Wanted to Know at Council Meeting Last Night

At the Council meeting last night when Mr. Larmonth was present, Ald. Duncan complained that some of the street cars were on different occasions running without the fender being down and asked for an explanation. Mr. Larmonth stated that this fact was unknown to him and he would look into the matter at once. He asked the aldermen to take the number of the car in the next case that came under their notice and notify him.

Ald. Hicks said he met No. 13 car one night, but the fender was down,—so was the automobile.

BRIDE AND BRIDEGROOM MEET SAD FATE

Special to the Review.

Providence, R.I., Sept. 16.—Wedded but a few days, Arthur Tetrault, of Boston, is dead here, and his young bride is dying at the Rhode Island Hospital, through asphyxiation by gas in a local hotel. The young couple came from Milton, Que. Some hours after they retired an employee of the hotel noticed gas, and when the door of the room was broken open Tetrault was dead and his bride's life almost gone. It is believed that while turning off the electric light they opened a gas valve by accident.

BELLEVILLE MAN KILLED IN PECULIAR ACCIDENT AT OTTAWA EXHIBITION

Special to the Review.

Ottawa, Sept. 16.—A peculiar airship accident resulted in the death of a Belleville man at noon to-day. An airship made an ascent from the fair grounds and passed [illegible] an electric light [illegible]. Hundreds of [illegible] rushed to assist the aviator and [illegible] received shocks from the [illegible] of the machine, which became charged with electricity. Edward [illegible] of Belleville, was fatally injured and died shortly after in a hospital. The aviator escaped unharmed.

TWO JOPLINGS CHARGED WITH MANSLAUGHTER

Charged with manslaughter, Fred and Harry Jopling were placed under arrest this afternoon. Constables Moore and Cochrane went to Bridgenorth this afternoon, executed a warrant and brought the two young men to the city. They were not placed in gaol at the time of going to press, an application for bail having been made by their solicitor, Mr. D. O'Connell. In all probability they will be let out on bail until the fall assizes, when they will be tried.

The arrest has caused a sensation.

Performing Animals Arrived

The troupe of trained dogs and the donkey, which are billed to give performances at the fair, arrived in the city this morning from Belleville. The animals attracted much attention at the station.

EXHIBITS OVERFLOWING ALL RECORDS ARE BROKEN

Not Enough Room in Main Building and There Were Not Cattle Pens Enough—A City of Tents—The Programme for To-morrow.

This is the opening day of the Peterborough Fair.

And the management, although working overtime and then some more, are tickled to death. The number of entries has broken all records, and the success of the exhibition is already assurred, almost assurred at any rate, for, of course the weather has to be taken into consideration. The "probs" say scattered showers tomorrow, but it is hoped they will be so widely scattered that they will give Peterborough a wide berth.

Activity prevails everywhere at the exhibition grounds to-day. President Leary, Secretary Hall, and the directors, with a big corps of assistants, have been at work since early morning. Over [illegible] of tents were up at noon and there will be nearly fifty erected before the day is over.

The main building is not large enough to hold all the exhibits. President Leary told the Review that the exhibits were so numerous that it was hard work to get them placed.

The live stock department is also overcrowded. Mr. William Staples, of Cavan, had to have sixteen stalls for his exhibit of live stock alone. There are not enough stalls for the live live stock.

The programme for Friday is as follows:

FRIDAY.

8.00 a.m.—Grounds and buildings open to the public.

10.00 a.m.—Judging of exhibits in Main building.

1.00 p.m.—Judging of halter horses in classes No. 1 to 5 and other live stock as arranged in prize list, in small ring.

2.00 p.m.—Troupe of Arabian acrobats.

2.15 p.m.—Trotting races, 2.40 class, Prize $150.00.

2.30 p.m.—Judging of light harness horses.

Acrobatic and gymnastic performances.

3.00 p.m.—Expressmen's race. Prize $5, $3 and $2.

3.20 p.m.—Exhibition of Wonderful Trained Animals.

3.30 p.m.—Trotting race, 2.22 class, Prize $300.

3.45 p.m.—Dog race. First heat

Judging of harness horses in front of grand stand.

4.00 p.m.—Carter's race. Prize $5, $3 and $2.

5 p.m., football match—Havelock vs. Brintons.

FRIDAY EVENING.

Grounds brilliantly illuminated with electric light.

Full Band of the 57th Regiment.

7.30 p.m.—Grand military display and tournament.

The 24th Field Battery will come into action and fire the opening guns for the evening performance.

Midnight alarm.

8.00 p.m.—Arab Troupe of Gymnasts. Thrilling acts. Seven Arabian performers in their famous acts. Bareback wrestling.

8.30 p.m.—Mlle Celina de Leo's Grand Performing Animals. Three assistants, eight dogs, one pony, one monkey, one mule.

Tug of war.

9.00 p.m.—Trained animals in hitherto impossible acts.

Best trained group in America.

9.20 p.m.—Exhibition by the Peterborough Fire Brigade.

Splendid spectacular production. Entirely new and novel.

Victoria cross race.

Firing of two guns, and gallop past grand stand.

SATURDAY.

8.00 a.m.—Gates open to the public, trained animals.

1.00 p.m.—Judging of harness horses continued.

2.00 p.m.—Latest Syrian novelties by Arab Troupe of Gymnasts.

2.30 p.m.—Trotting race, 2.30 class, Prize $150.00.

2.45 p.m.—Mlle. Celina de Leo and her troupe of performing animals.

3.00 p.m.—Dog race. Four heats.

3.30 p.m.—Trotting race, free-for-all, Prize $200.00.

4.00 p.m.—New features by the sensational Arab Gymnasts.

4.30 p.m.—Unique performance by trained animals.

City Music Co.

The City Music Co. are to-day decorating and preparing for a big piano exhibit, showing the fine instruments made by the several well-known firms which they represent. The position the company has secured for their exhibit is one of the best in the main building, and gives them a splendid chance to display their different pianos. One of the Newcombe pianos in the exhibit is a duplicate of the instrument that took the highest award and medal at the Jamestown Exposition in 1908. It contains the Howard supporting truss and other improvements used exclusively in the Newcombe piano, and places it in the front rank of Canadian manufactured instruments. The Evans Bros'. pianos and player-pianos also form a conspicuous part of the exhibit, as well as the Sherlock-Manning pianos and organs.

Mr. Thos. Walmsley, superintendent of sales, will be in charge of the exhibit.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION FIRE INSURANCE RATES

Peterborough, Sept. 16, 1909.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—During the past few days reference has been made in our local papers to reduced insurance rates for Peterborough. The city is to be congratulated on its equipment, which has made the reduction possible.

It occurs to me, however, that the articles referred to may be, to some, misleading, and I therefore offer an explanation.

It is true, as stated, that there has been a reduction of 25 per cent. in the key rate. There are, however, many other features to be taken into consideration in arriving at the rate on a mercantile or manufacturing risk. It does not, therefore, necessarily follow that the reduced key rate will give a lower net rate in every case. As a matter of fact, while of course in the majority of cases the rates are to some extent reduced, there are others whose rates are advanced. In such cases, of course, there are defects or extra hazards charged for, that either did not exist or were not taken into consideration in the previous rating. In such cases the only consolation is that, [illegible] the key rate not reduced, their rate would be still higher by 25 cents.

Early in the year the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association sent to Peterborough several competent rating officers, who thoroughly inspected every building used for mercantile purposes.

As a result of their report, and taking into consideration the lower key rate promised for improved fire protection and equipment, a new tariff was issued for Peterborough, which took effect for new business and renewals, on the 9th of August last.

As stated above, the tendency is a reduction, yet some rates remain unchanged, while others are advanced.

There is, of course, some reason for the increase, where one is made, and I shall always be pleased, as will any agent, to give any information which may lead to the securing of a more favorable rate.

On dwelling houses of first and second class construction there is a reduction of 5 cents per hundred, and in this respect we are in the same class as the city of Toronto. On third and fourth class dwellings there is no change in the rate.

Trusting that this explanation may prevent any misunderstanding with respect to rates.

I remain,
Respectfully,
W. J. THOMPSON

Nothing Too Good

WE have had over ten years experience in supplying Toric Lenses to our most particular patrons. This form of lens is increasingly popular in all the large cities of America and especially in the United States, where the manufacturers have large capital and the best facilities for turning out accurate work. We are particular to have only the best, and judging from the increased number which we now supply, we deem our care in this regard is appreciated. There is nothing too good for the eye.

NORTHCLIFFE STARTS FUND

English Nobleman Favors a Memorial to Wolfe

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 17.—At the Canadian Club luncheon Lord Northcliffe closed a splendid address on affairs of the Empire from a business viewpoint by enthusiastically endorsing an interview given by F. C. Wade, in which he pointed out that for 150 years, Canada had utterly neglected the grave of Gen. Wolfe at Greenwich and endorsed Wade's suggestion that the Canadian Clubs now in conference at Montreal should call on all Canadians Clubs in Canada, and all chapter and daughters of the Empire to join in raising a fund for the erection of a great Canadian monument to Wolfe at St. Alfege Church, Greenwich.

Lord Northcliffe declared that nothing would delight him more than in contributing $500 to the project. Later, he remitted his check for that amount. A number of others have promised large contributions.

JOKE TURNED OUT SERIOUSLY

Chatham, Sept. 17.—Ross Heatherington and Earl Dawson, two young farmers of Romney, pleaded guilty to a charge of horse-stealing in the County Police Court before Judge Houston yesterday morning.

The young men took a horse and rig belonging to Edward H. Suskey while the latter was attending a harvest home social in Zion Church, and hid it in a neighboring barn yard, intending it to be a practical joke. By thus doing they were leaving themselves liable to a term of fourteen years in Kingston.

They were allowed to go on suspended sentence after paying the costs of the court, $25.05.

TWO WOMEN IN TERRIBLE DUEL

Chicago, Sept. 17.—Behind the closed doors of a fashionable South Side apartment house two women fought a duel. One fell dead with eleven bullet wounds in her body. The other, her sister-in-law, sustained mortal injuries.

Mrs. Julius Tripp, wife of an officer of the firm of Morris, Mann & Reilly, is the dead woman. Mrs. Jacob Silvers, the sister-in-law, is at the Washington Park Sanitarium.

LAWYER PATRICK STILL FIGHTING

Albany, N.Y., Sept. 17.—Albert T. Patrick, who is serving a life sentence in Sing Sing prison, for the murder of Wm. Marsh Rice, in New York in 1900, has filed with the clerk of the Court of Appeals, notice of an appeal from a decision rendered by the appellate division, dismissing the writ of habeas corpus granted him by Justice Wm. J. Gaynor last February.

Patrick claims he is confined in Sing Sing illegally, and that Governor Higgins had no right to commute his sentence from death to life imprisonment. Sometime ago Patrick endeavored to secure a review of his case by the United States Supreme Court, but the case was dismissed on the ground that the court had no jurisdiction. Patrick's appeal will probably come before the court in October.

HE MAY HAVE ROBBED BANK

Montreal, Sept. 17.—Dan McLaughlin and a Pinkerton detective are on their way to Quebec in connection with the arrest in that city of a man who gives every promise of being one of the men concerned in the Provincial Bank robbery of a few days ago at the Yamachichie branch.

The man had been changing Provincial Bank bills, and when arrested was found to have several hundred in his possession.

A package sent by express to Portland, Me., by the prisoner, will be held up. It is believed to contain money.

CIGARETTE WILL COST BOY $25,000

New York, Sept. 17.—If Conrad Wilfred Edward Acker, of Atlantic Highland, N.J., smokes a cigarette within the next twenty-two years he forfeits his rights as residuary legatee to an estate now valued at $25,000, and left to him by his grandfather, Wilhelm Henry Maxmillian Grevel, who died at No. 95 East 10th street on Aug. 17. Counsel for the executors filed the will for probate Wednesday, and the grandson, who is now three years old, will receive only $250 if he violates its terms, which apply to him before he is twenty-five years old.

PROBABILITIES.

Fine to-day and on Saturday. Quite cool to-night.

PURE SPRING WATER FOR THE CITIZENS OF GUELPH

The editorial staff of the Review has been invited to attend the formal opening of the new waterworks system at Guelph on the 23rd of September. On that occasion the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario will visit the Royal City.

In connection with the invitations the following interesting information about Guelph's water supply has been sent out:—

In 1879 the municipality undertook to supply its inhabitants with water, and in that year installed a plant which has been in use ever since, and which cost in all $173,918. With the growth of the city a larger plant became necessary, and during the past year $125,000 more has been expended by the city in laying a pipe line some few miles from the city to tap large springs purchased for that purpose. The supply thus obtained is pure spring water, free from contamination and unsurpassed in quality. The quantity is practically unlimited. The extension of the plant has been under the charge of a Board of Three Commissioners, who have given their services gratuitously. In addition to enlarging and improving the supply of water the Commissioners have also succeeded in reducing the charges for water to $8.96 per year for the ordinary householder. To mark the city's appreciation of the success of the Commissioners the City Council and Board of Trade have united to present a testimonial to the Commissioners on the occasion of the formal opening of the new system on September 22rd, 1909.

THE NEWS AS TOLD IN DESPATCHES

Steamer Burns; Crew Escape.

Kingston, Sept. 17.—The St. Lawrence River Steamboat Co.'s steamer Islander was destroyed by fire at Alexandria Bay shortly after midnight. The vessel burned to the water's edge and then sank. The crew had a narrow escape, Capt. John Bertrand being obliged to jump for his life. The Islander was valued at $20,000.

Boy Accidentally Shot.

Saskatoon, Sask., Sept. 17.—William Henry, the five-year-old son of Oliver Marriott, was accidentally shot through the heart Wednesday night and died shortly afterwards. The little fellow was playing with his three-year-old brother. The latter was holding a rifle, which was supposed not to be loaded.

Only Served Six Months.

Kingston, Sept. 17.—After serving only six months on a three years' term in the penitentiary, E. Bishop of Ottawa was pardoned and was met at the gate by friends. He was a letter-carrier and tampered with the mail he handled. His previous good character aided in his release.

Fund For Mrs. Scott's Defence.

London, Ont., Sept. 17.—The people of Nissouri are taking a great interest in the case of Mrs. Wesley Scott, who is alleged to have murdered her father-in-law, and have started a subscription list to meet her legal expenses.

Two Elopers Caught.

Montreal, Sept. 17.—Local detectives have arrested Frank Farrar and Miss Flossie Gull, a young lady with whom he eloped from London, Eng., three months ago. They have been followed ever since by the girl's mother.

Another Labor Split.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 17.—The Detroit Federation of Labor practically withdrew from the American Federation of Labor by voting unanimously not to comply with the recent orders of the executive council to unseat the Electrical Workers' Union. The matter will be appealed to the American Federation convention at Toronto in November.

End of Exciting Tiger Hunt.

Marseilles, Sept. 17.—The hunt along the water front of Marseilles for the Royal Bengal tigress that escaped from a steamer in the harbor on Tuesday, came to a dramatic end yesterday morning when the animal mortally wounded and with the blood streaming from her flanks, fled from the mob of pursuers, sprang into the sea and was drowned.

Harriman's Wealth.

New York, Sept. 17.—According to a Wall street publication, "it can be stated on the highest authority," that Mr. Harriman's property amounted to between $75,000,000 and $100,000,000. He is extremely brief, bequeathing all the property to the widow.

Manley B. Baker Appointed.

Kingston, Ont., Sept. 17.—The School of Mining governors have appointed Manley B. Baker, B.A., B.Sc., as head of the department of geology, in succession to Prof. R. W. Brock, transferred to the Dominion Geological Survey. He has been lecturer here for three years past. His home is in Stratford, Ont.

Another Resolution.

Stratford, Sept. 17.—At the annual meeting of the Stratford District of the Methodist Church, held here yesterday afternoon, a resolution was drawn protesting vigorously against race-track gambling.

LORD STRATHCONA GUEST OF CANADIAN MANUFACTURERS

Lord High Commissioner in Notable Speech Discusses the Growth of Canada--Hon. Geo. P. Graham Speaks on Transportation and Says Hudson Bay Railway Will be Built.

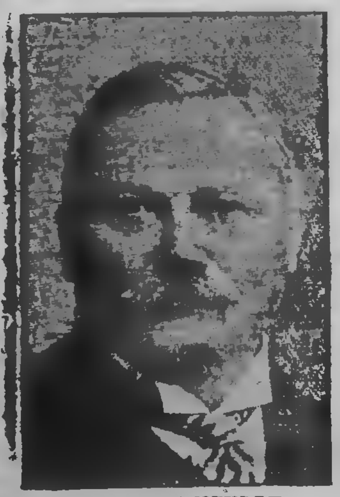
Hamilton, Sept. 17.—Hamilton set the standard for banquets in the splendid entertainment given by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association in the Alexandria Rink here last night.

Amid a scene of gaiety and glitter, surrounded by a gallery of ladies, Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, the Lieutenant-Governor, three Dominion Cabinet Ministers, a Provincial Minister, and many members of both Parliaments, with prominent business men from all over Canada, participated in the enjoyment of a well-selected series of speeches based on a brief and excellent toast list. After the royal toast, "O Canada" was sung with great fervor. The music throughout was excellent and the catering from Toronto exceptional.

Lord Strathcona was the notable figure, and was received with extreme cordiality. He remained till midnight and seemed none the worse of his recent long journey to the coast, the leading points of which he touched upon in his brief speech.

"What would become of public life if everyone was as selfish as that," asked Hon. G. P. Graham, in speaking of the reluctance of business men to take part in public affairs.

It was the duty of Canada to have a tariff that would benefit Canadians, he said. As long as they had a tariff and indirect taxation, they would have to provide funds for the carrying on of the business of the country. The Government was not to be stampeded into any action by what any man or country could do. They had found new markets before and could find them again. (Applause.)



PRESIDENT HENDRY.

The health of Hon. J. M. Gibson, Lieutenant-Governor, was drunk, and in replying he said he occupied a position somewhere between those of the extreme protectionist and the ardent free trader, the exact point being determined by the views of the last man he had discussed the matter with. (Laughter.) He would have preferred to speak as a simple citizen of Canada.

He had once been interested in the production of electric power, which had met with great favor from the public before it had begun to do anything. After the power had been brought to the city from a distance of 35 miles, the men who had been regarded as benefactors were looked upon as scoundrels. (Laughter.) He spoke subject to correction, and more or less figuratively, he explained.

He had also been connected with the street railway, but more officially than financially.

In proposing Lord Strathcona's health Mr. Hobson declared that his lordship's whole lifework had been devoted to the advancement of Canada. He was not only the Grand Old Man of Canada but of the British Empire.

Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal was received with great enthusiasm. He carried his arm in a sling, and spoke in a quiet voice, but looked very well. It was a surprise and an undeserved honor, he said, to be received with so much consideration by men of such distinction as he saw around him. He was proud to accept the invitation from such an association.

The work of the association since its inauguration had been devoted to the development of their great heritage. The visit the association had paid to Britain had been of the greatest value, as comparatively few of the forty millions there realized Canada's opportunities.

It was eighteen years since he had visited Western Canada. Then Vancouver was but a turned patch of ground. To-day it was a great city, with all the accessories of civilization and social life. Victoria and New Westminster in their development would add their share also to the Dominion as a whole. He was struck by the fruit districts of British Columbia and Calgary, which had formerly been known as Whisky Point, was now a great city, while Edmonton had a situation than which none was more beautiful. Saskatoon he also applauded.

Hon. G. P. Graham caused much merriment by declaring that he had some raw material for manufacture to present to the ladies in the gallery, in the person of the Minister of Labor. If they could put him through the matrimonial factory they would do the Government of Canada much service. (Laughter.) He was pleased to meet Col. Gibson, and observed that it was due to the pluck and energy of the citizens of Hamilton that electrical development had reached such an advanced stage.

"Man for man, Canada did a much greater trade than the United States, Canada having a trade of $88 a head while the United States had only $42 a head. The banks showed an increase of bank deposits in ten years of $430,000,000, while the banks had $794,000,000 in circulation, an increase in ten years of $540,000,000.

"When you go to Europe go by the Canadian route, the same as you want us to buy your goods," was an injunction loudly applauded. Mr. Graham had met some of them in London who had traveled via New York and who returned by New York. He was glad to say that the mails by the Canadian route beat the New York route into Toronto. (Applause.)

"The Hudson Bay Railway is going to be built no matter what anybody says," was another of Mr. Graham's statements, and he referred to the progress of the I.C.R.

Hon. W. L. M. King, Minister of Labor, replied to the toast to labor. He acknowledged the compliment paid to labor in including the toast among the few on the list. It was something more than ordinary courtesy, and the workingman of Canada would be the first to recognize its significance. Conditions were changing since the man of labor had no longer to depend on the rich man's crumbs. By various means, but chiefly by their own efforts, the working classes had attained the world's respect. Labor and capital meet today as parties to a contract and each party was respected by the world as it fulfilled the obligations and duties of the contract.

The following officers were elected by the association at the afternoon session: John Hendry, Vancouver, president; W. H. Rowley (Hull), J. P. Murray (Toronto), W. A. Marsh (Quebec), W. H. Barker (Vancouver), T. R. Deason (Winnipeg), J. P. Edwards (Londonderry, N.S.), James Fleming (St. John, N.B.), Hon. F. L. Hassard (Charlottetown), P. Burns, (Calgary), vice-presidents, J. O. Thom, Toronto, Parliamentary; Stanley Pettit, Toronto, commercial intelligence chairman; C. M. Murray, Toronto, reception and membership; J. F. MacKay, Toronto, technical education; R. O. McCulloch, Galt, tariff; J. R. Marlow, Toronto, railway and transportation.

MORE DETAILS OF THE OTTAWA AIRSHIP ACCIDENT

Dirigible Ascension Planned as Big Attraction at Fair Ends in Destruction of Balloon by Explosion—The Machine is Entangled in Wires.

Ottawa, Sept. 17.—Yesterday was a day of disaster and disappointment for Tony Nasser, an aviator, who had undertaken to thrill the visitors to the Canada Central Exhibition with ascents of his dirigible balloon.

The initial attempt, which took place at noon, was attended by a fatality. A couple of successful ascents took place and then came the culminating misfortune, when the airship blew up while being brought back to the ground.

Live electric wires were responsible for the double misfortune. The airship first became entangled in some wires in front of the grand stand. Edward Keating of Belleville, the owner of a "wheel of fortune"; Malcolm Campbell of Glengarry, and Carl Wingerter, one of Nasser's assistants, caught hold of the framework of the machine to pull it down.

They received about 2,200 volts, and fell to the ground as if dead.

The propeller of the machine had torn the insulation off the wires. Campbell and Wingerter were revived, but Keating was soon pronounced dead.

The subsequent destruction of the airship was due to it coming into contact with an electric wire when being brought through an exhibition park gate. It caught fire and was then allowed to go into the air. Ascending several hundred feet, it exploded, and nothing but some bars of twisted iron descended to earth. The ship was valued at $15,000. It was not insured.

A False Charge.

North Bay, Sept. 17.—The trial of Archibald McColl, ex-chief of police of Haileybury, and formerly of the Toronto police force, on a charge of accepting a bribe from Dominic Dromessi, an Italian confined in Haileybury jail, and then allowing his escape, took place yesterday before Judge Valin. The evidence of Dromessi, the chief crown witness, was badly shattered on cross-examination, and McColl was honorably acquitted.

Courteous Chinaman Fined.

Chicago, Sept. 17.—Yee King, was fined $50 and costs for offering Mrs. Goldie Carter the shelter of his umbrella during a rain storm.

The Chinaman pleaded that he had been taught in the New York missions to be courteous to white women.

"I always consider it a diversion tending to a breach of the peace when any Chinese accosts a white woman," said Judge Beitler.

John Lebeuf of Kingston, was arrested on a charge of assault.

Vancouver women are to start a suffrage campaign.

Mrs. John Wilson of St. Andrew's, N.B., was suffocated by a fire in her home.

WIDOW'S CASE LOOKS BLACK

Nanaimo, Sept. 17.—A sensational turn developed yesterday in the mystery connected with the murder of Carlson, whose widow was placed under arrest by Chief Grossan, and will be given a preliminary hearing Saturday. The arrest followed the coroner's inquest, at which damaging evidence against Mrs. Carlson was brought out.

Mrs. Carlson persistently maintained that her husband was murdered by burglars in the sitting-room of their home, the burglars afterwards gagging her and stealing money from the pockets of her husband's trousers. Wednesday two blood-stained pillow-slips were found in the Carlson home, which at the inquest Mrs. Carlson said belonged to her, but disclaimed all knowledge of the blood stains. She also admitted the pillow-slips were on the bed the night of the murder.

HIRED MAN HIT HIS EMPLOYER

Chatham, Ont., Sept. 17.—John Kennedy of Chatham Township had the temerity to order his hired man, Joseph Batsman, off his place.

"You speaking to me?" asked the surprised Batsman; "then take that, and that."

The hired man knocked his employer down and proceeded to wipe the barnyard up with him. Now Kennedy is appealing to the local courts to know if there is not a legal way to get after Batsman to keep him off his place.

Peterborough's Big Exhibition

MR. R. H. LEARY
President of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition.

ANOTHER ELECTRIC RAILWAY SCHEME

Barrie, Sept. 17.—There is a possibility of Barrie having a street railway in the near future. John W. Moyes of Toronto has roughly outlined a proposition which he may later put in definite form before the council.

He proposes to build an electric railway connecting the C.P.R. and C.N.R. at Atherley with the C.P.R. at the 13th con. of Essa. As far as Barrie is concerned, the right of way on certain streets and financial backing to some extent will shortly be asked.

MET DEATH ON WAY TO FUNERAL

Delhi, Ont., Sept. 17.—Early yesterday morning Jacob Billo, a farmer, living about four miles north of here, was struck by a M.C.R. express going west, and instantly killed.

Billo was on his way to attend a funeral, and was walking on the railway track. The M.C.R. is double-tracked and he stepped off the south track on to the other track to pass a freight train, when the express train struck him. He leaves a family of ten children, his wife having died last spring.

CONGRATULATIONS FROM CREWE

Battle Harbor, Labrador, Sept. 17.—The following despatch was read yesterday by Capt. Bartlett of the Roosevelt, from Governor Williams of Newfoundland:

"I transmit with pleasure the enclosed message from the Earl of Crewe, Secretary of State for the Colonies:

"I congratulate Capt. Bartlett and his men on their safe return from the arduous enterprise, in which they, as Newfoundlanders, have taken so important a part.

"(Signed) Crewe."

PARTY SLAVERY

We hope that there is no Conservative politician stupid enough to suppose that the Conservative press will not do its own thinking and support the Conservative leaders just so far as it reasonably can, and no farther. Hon. C. Murphy would reduce the press to a condition of party servitude and moral degeneracy hitherto unheard of. Mr. Murphy's attack on the Globe is an attack on the press, and especially on the party press of both parties. It would make the party organ, which has enough dirty work to do now in all conscience, a mere scavenger. No, a scavenger cleans. We would say a mere distributer of lies and filth. The high-falutin' language used by Mr. Murphy in his historical review of labour is a contrast to his attack on the Globe for being independent enough to condemn an outrage. If the Whitney Administration, as represented by Mr. Foy had not cancelled the charter afterwards conferred by Mr. Murphy it would have been open to the same grave charge Mr. Mirphy is open to. Mr. Murphy hints that his religion had something to do with it. We trust no Catholic is in favour of licensing gambling, racetrack or otherwise. Mr. Murphy started well. He made an epigramatic reference to box-cars in the west that caught the fancy of not a few of the unthinking, but his attack on the Globe is an endeavor to dragoon it into a condition of moral degeneracy is a little too much. He has cut short his career before it well began. Meanwhile the Globe is the apostle of journalistic liberty. It would be a pity if the press had to pass under the rod of every creature sent to Parliament in the name of representative government.

MODERNISM

Canon Mason, whose learning and judgment carry great weight in writing recently gives expression to the conviction that "Modernism, with its ally of pragmatism, applies a solvent to historical Christianity which ends in making it a matter of indifference whether the original facts were as the primitive church believed or not—whether Christ was really born of a Virgin Mother, whether He really rose from the dead, whether He were personally the Eternal Son of God in flesh." Those who are eager to encourage some new religious movement and are largely influenced by the scholarship and enthusiasm of its advocates should be extremely careful before they cast off the old articles of the Church's belief. Not only the Spirit—but not a little of the letter of the "Magna Charta"—may be found to-day embodied in the constitutions of free men the world over.—Canadian Churchman.

MR. MURPHY AND THE GLOBE

(The Sentinel)

What the daily papers call a "hot roast," was handed out by the Secretary of State, Hon. Charles Murphy, to the chief Liberal organ on the occasion of the meeting of the Liberal convention in this city last week.

It will be remembered that the Globe pressed the Attorney-General of the Province of Ontario to cancel the charter of the Dufferin Race Track Association. After investigation Hon. J. J. Foy did as the Globe desired. The men who were thus put out of business by the Provincial authority, immediately journeyed to Ottawa, and there they secured a Dominion charter to do the very thing which the Globe has been condemning, and which the Conservative Government of the Province of Ontario had done its best to stop.

Having criticized political opponents in Ontario for a certain course of action the Globe, naturally, felt called upon to criticize the Dominion officials who have undone the work of the Provincial Attorney-General. This produced from the Hon. Charles Murphy a scathing criticism of the Globe. He charges that paper with having acted without knowledge of the facts. In a long address to the Reform Association of Ontario the Secretary of State recalled some instances where the Liberal newspaper had opposed the schemes of Liberal politicians, and implied by his remarks that this was a serious offence against the party.

One case he mentioned was that of Hon. J. M. Gibson, who sought a charter for a railway to run through Toronto upon conditions that would have destroyed a million dollars worth of property in this city, and which the Globe opposed with good effect. According to Mr. Murphy the Liberal press of Toronto should not have shown opposition to Mr. Gibson's project. The fact that he was a Liberal in the eyes of Mr. Murphy gave him a title to the support of the Globe and all other Liberal papers in this city, even when he was intent upon an enterprise which would have had a most destructive effect upon real estate values in Toronto.

This, surely, is carrying party loyalty to the extreme. If every schemer who happens to wear a party collar could secure the support and assistance of the press which represents that party, whether his case was right or wrong, we would have a strange state of affairs in this country. If Mr. Gibson had been permitted to run his railway tracks over the streets of Toronto it would have virtually confiscated the accumulations of a thousand industrious citizens. It was intolerable that such a request should be made. It would have been discreditable to the Globe had it silently acquiesced in the granting of such a charter.

Mr. Murphy cited other cases to show that the Globe had not been the good party paper that it should have been. And in doing so he declared a doctrine which will not find acceptance with the Liberals of this country or of this city. In our judgment the Globe goes as far in defence of its party friends as any self-respecting newspaper can go. But it is impossible to please the hide-bound party men.

We recall on instance in the history of the Globe when a self-respecting declaration of independence upon the part of the editor resulted in his being superseded. After the death of the late Hon. Geo. Brown his brother, J. Gordon Brown—the man who really made the Globe newspaper—naturally became the managing director. He did not see his journalistic duty to be a slavish obedience to party managers, and in a manly editorial, which is yet within the memory of young men, declared himself a Liberal, but claimed for his paper that its first duty was to the public, and that he did not propose to sacrifice the public interest even for Liberal politicians. In all its history the Globe had never shown better spirit than under the management of Gordon Brown. But this did not suit Sir Oliver Mowat and some of the other leaders of the party. As the result of an intrigue he was voted out of his position and driven off the paper which he had devoted his life to build up. For a period of years the powerful organ of Liberalism, founded by Geo. Brown and managed with such a Liberal degree of ability by his brother, showed a marked decadence, and never was the strength of the Liberal party in its slavish obedience to party interests that it was an independent Liberal newspaper.

This point was made the excellent effort by Mr. J. A. Ewan in the presence of the Secretary of State. He defended his journal and pointed out to the members of the Reform Association that if they wanted to destroy the influence of the Globe they could not go about it in a more certain way than to deprive it of that measure of independence it at present displays. It to be hoped that the great newspaper of this city will never degenerate into mere party hacks and submit to have their policy dictated by the individual interests of designing politicians seeking to exploit the public for their own enrichment.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Globe's legal column is superior to any we know of. It not only gives all the important news, but it, as a rose, gets it right, which is more important still.

An examination of the Legislative buildings at Toronto shows the construction of the entire roof to be of a faulty character, and that a small fire in any of the large passages on or above the third floor might cause the collapse of the upper storeys. The work of the late Ontario Government seems to have been of the jerry order, whether it was in politics or stone and mortar.—Montreal Gazette.

The suggestion of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association that a permanent Tariff Commission be appointed, as in the case of a Railway Commission, is following in the footsteps of the Germans, who adopted the scheme long ago. It is undoubtedly the only sensible way of managing.

The Catholic Register says;—

"As we go to press the Fathers of the First Plenary Council of Canada are assembling in the primatial See of Quebec. The eyes of all Canada are turned for the moment in that direction. The great Church which commands every man's respect, if not his allegiance, is to enter into her plenitude in this portion of the Continent, so big with possibilities of all sorts, and especially with those which make for the maintenance and extension of true religious principles."

The "continental" pronounciation of Greek and Latin is now being introduced by the headmaster, Mr. Kenner into the teaching of the ancient classics at the Institute. It has been recently introduced into Great Britain. Its chief characteristics are that c., g., t. are always hard, i.e., c. is k., g. is not pronounced as j., and t. is pronounced not as sh. becounced e. and e. as long a. J. is i. and v. is w. This form of pronounciation is the original form on the continent and is the original or nafore i. but like t. imrat. It is protural way.

The other name for optimist is "the selfish one." A selfish man with whom time and the world has dealt gently is never able to see why people complain. Pessimism, as the name implies, is making the worst instead of the best out of circumstances. There is a vast difference between the strong, courageous sanity of a cheerful middle course and the unwisdom of either of the others. According to the logic of the optimist, Christ Himself was a pessimist. When the Bible says that the heart of man is above all things desperately wicked, the "Happy Hooligan" would reply, "Oh! no, it aint, pardner. Don't get grouchy. Humanity ain't so bad after all. Aunt Aunt Sally used to say that times was always sure to be worse than they are now. So cheer up! Anyhow, they're what we make em." But, are they?

A large saw mill in Northern Ontario, valued at considerably over $100,000, was nearly destroyed by fire recently. The saving of the mill is a splendid object lesson of the value, first, of good appliances, and subsequently, of the training of the employees to use them in an emergency. The Adjuster reported as follows:—

"When the fire was discovered, the mill, which was in full operation at at the time, was at once shut down and the alarm sounded upon the mill whistle, and the powerful force pump in the pump house started. The discipline and training of the mill employees appears to have been excellent. The fire—caused it is supposed by a spark from the refuse burner lodging in underneath the southwest corner of the mill—had gained considerable headway before being discovered, and as a gale of wind was blowing at the time, the mill became choked with smoke, rendering it very difficult to locate the scene of the trouble. Six powerful streams were taken from the hose attached to the stand-pipes inside the mill, and after a strenuous fight the fire was extinguished before it had gained the roof. I deem this work to be a practical demonstration of the efficiency of Assured's fire protection apparatus."—Norwich Bulletin.

More Harvesters Needed.

Winnipeg, Sept. 17—In consequence of the continued demand for men for farm work in the West, it has been decided by the C.P.R. authorities to operate another excursion from all points in the eastern provinces of Canada. Special trains of this excursion will probably leave the east at the beginning of next week.

It is the hope of the C.P.R. officials that 3,000 additional men can be obtained and brought to the country in time to assist in harvesting operations, especially in the Province of Saskatchewan.

Many telegrams were received at the local offices of the passenger department of the company Wednesday and yesterday, asking for men for pressing needs, farmers stating that they were unable to save their crops owing to the need of farm laborers.

A National Conservation Association.

Chicago, Sept. 17.—The National Conservation Association, announcement of whose formation with former President Chas. Welcot of Harvard, as president, was made Wednesday, was the subject of a brief informal chat between President Taft and Walter L. Fisher here yesterday. Mr. Fisher, who is president of the National League, was the active agent in forming the new and broader National Conservation Association.

Sixty-nine cases of scarlet fever were reported in Barton township, but the epidemic is now over.

HUNTERS
Something About Moose and Deer
It is now pretty well known among hunters that the best deer hunting country in Ontario is on the line of the Canadian Northern Ontario and that hunters receive special attention. Mr. C. Price Green, Passenger Agent of the line is a hunter himself who goes right with the parties and looks after them, in fact he located most of them. This year the line will be opened north of Sellwood into the midst of the Moose Country, they are reported very thick, the Engineers say that they have never seen anything like it, the Moose season up there opens October 15th, fifteen days before the Deer. We have something special on a new place that will take three parties of deer hunters

Makes the Glassware Fairly Sparkle

Mirrors and glassware are hard to clean with ordinary soap. The oily matter often leaves streaks and spots that are hard to remove.

But with Taylor's Borax Soap the result is wonderful. The surface is left without a single streak—it glitters and sparkles as though it were diamond.

And your work is only half as hard. For this soap reduces rubbing to a minimum—it works almost like magic.

Taylor's Soap

Borax is the most powerful cleanser in the world. It does wonders that are almost unbelievable until you once see the results for yourself. When you spend an hour cleaning the bath room, the tub, the wash bowl and the mirrors, you have wasted just half an hour. You would have done less than half the rubbing and finished in half the time with Taylor's Borax Soap.

For this soap does more than any other soap you have ever known. It loosens every bit of dirt instantly, it destroys every possible germ and leaves everything both clean and sweet. Hard water often hardens the hands—it leaves them red and rough. But this delightful borax soap softens the water and so softens the hands—it leaves them whiter and daintier than ever before.

We use only the finest of cocoanut oil in this soap. We go more than 12,000 miles to the isle of Ceylon just to be sure this oil is pure and fresh. Then we boil it doubly long and run thousands of gallons of pure water through it to remove every impurity. It is the cleanest and purest of soaps.

It requires twenty-one days to make a single cake. The labor of more than 200 persons is needed.

Yet this soap costs no more than the ordinary. We make millions and millions of cakes every year and are thus able to buy at the lowest of prices.

How a Ship at Sea Would Have Foundered, But—

He was a sailor, an old sailor, therefore a good story teller.

"Well," he was saying, "we were jogging along down under when a thunderstorm overtook us, and the very first flash of lightning struck the deck amidships and bored a hole as big as my leg right down through the bottom of the vessel."

"And she foundered, of course."

"No, sir. The water began rushing in, and she would have foundered, but there came a second flash, and a bolt struck the fore to'gallant mast. It was cut off near the top, turned bottom end up, and as it came down it entered the hole and plugged it up as tight as a drum. When we got down to drydock we simply sawed off either end and left the plug in the planks."

The children belonging to a family living in a certain rural district heard that their father had that day been elected county sheriff and went home from school wild with excitement.

"Ma," one of them asked as the event was being discussed, "are we all sheriffs?"

"Of course not," returned the mother, with dignity. "It's only me and your pa."—Woman's Home Companion.

A Profitable Verse.

Victor Hugo was even more successful than Tennyson as regards money matters and left over £200,000 at his death. A large proportion of this was derived from fiction, for "Les Miserables" alone brought him in £16,000, but even allowing for this it seems probable that his poems and plays were more remunerative than those of his great English contemporary. Neither Tennyson nor Hugo, however, can equal the record of James Smith of "Rejected Addresses" fame, who was better paid for a trifling effort of verse than any poet since the world began. At dinner one evening he met Strachan, the king's printer, who, although crippled with age and gout, proved excellent company. The next morning Smith wrote to him:

Your lower limbs seemed far from stout
  When last I saw you walk.
The cause I presently found out
  When you began to talk.
The power that props the body's length,
  In due proportion spread.
In you mounts upward, and the strength
  All settles in the head.

Strachan was so delighted with the compliment that he immediately added a codicil to his will leaving the author £3,000. Smith was therefore paid for his poem at the rate of £375 a line.—London Chronicle.

Momentous Trifles.

The greatest events are often drawn by hairs. Rome was saved by the cackling of some sacred geese. The life of Napoleon was saved from the "infernal machine" because General Rapp detained Josephine a minute or two to arrange her shawl. A jest of the French king was the death of William the Conqueror. The destruction of Athens was brought about by a jest on Sulla. Some witty Athenian, struck with his blotched face, called him a "mulberry pudding." A spark from a candle falling on a cottage floor was the cause of the fire that destroyed London. Lafitte, the great banker, was a pauper. He attributed his rise in life to his picking up a pin in the streets of Paris. The invention of glass is ascribed to some Phoenician merchants lighting a fire on the sands of the seashore. Vulcanized rubber was discovered by the accidental mixing of crude rubber and sulphur on a cook stove. The dog Diamond by upsetting a lamp destroyed papers of Sir Isaac Newton that had been the toil of his life.

Married.

"Now, tell me," said the doctor, "do you ever hear a buzzing noise in your ears?"

"Of course, doctor," replied the patient. "I thought you knew her."

"Eh? Whom?"

THE BIGGEST FERRYBOAT.

It Runs Across Lake Ontario and Carries Thirty Cars a Trip.

New Yorkers are prone to think that about every kind of craft that floats may be seen in the waters thereabout. They may be right as regards the pretentious carriers of passengers and freight, but when it comes to the humble ferryboat they are mistaken.

The municipal ferryboats which ply to Staten Island and South Brooklyn are probably the finest of their kind, but among the boats which carry whole railroad trains those in this harbor take a low rank. The Maryland and the Express of the New Haven railroad look mighty powerful as they pass under the Brooklyn bridge transporting the Federal or the Colonial express between Jersey City and Mott Haven, but they are surpassed by railroad ferries in other parts of the country.

The biggest ferryboat for railroad trains is now in operation on Lake Ontario, between Charlotte, N. Y., the port of Rochester and Cobourg, Ont., sixty-two miles away. Boats of the ordinary ferry type could not make the passage of Lake Ontario safely except in fair weather.

The boat which makes this trip, the Ontario No. 1, looks more like an ocean steamship than a ferryboat. It is 317 feet long. It differs from the ordinary steamship in appearance only at the stern, which looks as if a huge bite had been taken out of it.

If you view this boat from the stern the purpose of its building is apparent. The entire space of the main deck is a runway for cars. There are four tracks on which trains are run from the yards by means of an adjustable apron. It carries thirty loaded cars. There is also room on the upper deck for 1,000 passengers.

The Ontario No. 1 is used chiefly to transport carloads of coal from the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg railway to the Grand Trunk railway. A saving of nearly 100 miles of haul is effected and the congestion of traffic on the Niagara-Toronto lines is relieved.

The trip of sixty-two miles is made in about four hours. It is the only boat operating in the great lakes continuously throughout the year. It started running in November, 1907, and hasn't missed a trip yet.—Washington Post.

Some Strange Letters.

The division of dead letters is one of the show places of the national capital and is visited annually by thousands of sightseers. There is much that appeals to human interest and emotion in the immense stacks of letters and parcels received at the rate of 40,000 a day and containing articles of every description, some of them bearing addresses which cannot be deciphered even by the experts. In the 13,000,000 pieces of mail matter received by the division last year there were 6,000 books, 1,000 pair of eyeglasses, 900 fountain pens, 800 razors, false teeth, marriage certificates, rings, shoes, snakes—in fact, everything from valuable diamonds to penny souvenirs. There was also more than $65,000 in actual money and commercial paper, including checks, drafts, money orders, etc., representing a face value of $2,203,992.—Assistant Postmaster General P. V. De Graw in National Magazine.

Shad.

Owing to its price and scarcity the shad, once the despised "food for Indians," has become a luxury. In William Penn's day the colonists marveled at the shoals that invaded the Delaware. But then the Chesapeake was paved with oysters, and the slaves of Maryland despised so common a diet as terrapin. The shad are today more numerous on the Pacific coast, whither they had to be transplanted, than in the fish's native waters, where the fish commissions of the United States and of Maryland have narrowly averted their extinction.—San Francisco Argonaut.

New Burglar Alarm.

Burglars are expected to have difficulty beating an alarm invented by a German genius. The appliance is very simple, consisting of a curtain or portiere, wired with fine conductors. At certain places on it are fixed small metal knobs, which are connected with the wire conductors. The curtain is then drawn across the window or door or around a safe, and the slightest disturbance breaks the circuit, as the knobs are thrown out of contact with each other.—Chicago News.

Schoolroom Dust.

In the course of a report on the disinfection of schoolrooms W. H. Marsh, an English science teacher, asserts that tests made of samples of schoolroom dust showed the number of micro-organisms therein to be from 50,000,000 to 80,000,000 an ounce. On some days as much as one and one-quarter pounds of dust was swept from a room 400 square feet in area, which, on the basis of the figures quoted, would yield from 1,000,000,000 to 1,600,000,000 micro-organisms.

Sardou and a Statue.

Some months before his death Victorien Sardou, passing with a friend the Place de la Madeleine, pointing to the statue of Jules Simon, said: "There is nothing uglier than this good man in his frock coat. To erect this hideous monument a charming little fountain similar to the one we see on the other side of the place has been suppressed." And now it has been decided to erect the statue of Sardou on the spot occupied by the other fountain.—Cri de Paris.

GOING TO BED ATTIRE

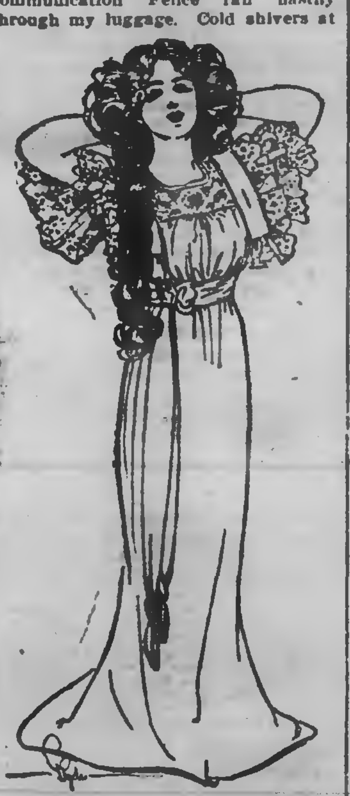
Especial Costume For Midnight Feast of Women Guests.

THE USEFUL NIGHT SUIT CASE

How a Hasty Toilet Was Made by the Aid of a Clever French Maid—Digestible but Toothsome Dainties For the Beauty Luncheon.

Dear Elsa—I never in all my life felt so completely out of it as I did at the J.'s' house party last week. Why? Well, I was spending a week end with them at their place in the Berkshires, a perfect palace not far from Lenox. You know, the J.'s have all sorts of money and are as rich as mud, to borrow some of Dick's elegant phraseology, and of course they entertain in a most sybaritish manner. I arrived Friday evening just in time to change for a late dinner, after which there were some bridge and informal dancing. At 1 o'clock, dead tired, I was about to get ready for bed with the assistance of one of the French maids, which in this establishment seemed to be as plentiful as the proverbial blackberry, when Felice—the ministering angel from gay Paree detailed for my comfort—handed me a scrap of a note. It was from my hostess, asking me to run down the hall to her room and have a quiet little chat with a few of the women guests who were anxious to meet me.

While I was hesitating over this communication Felice ran hastily through my luggage. Cold shivers at this point assailed me, for I was only too well aware of the lack of ammunition she would find.



NEGLIGEE FOR THE MIDNIGHT SUPPER.

After a fruitless search she said, "I do not find the robe de nuit."

"There it is," I said, pointing to my usual sleeping garment.

"I mean the robe madam puts on at night when she visits the ladies in their rooms."

"A negligee," I ventured. "You will find one in the suit case." What she did find was a much laundered blue china silk matinee.

"But," impulsively blurted out Felice, "not this." Then, catching herself, she corrected, "Madam did not bring her night suit case."

Bring it! Ye gods! I never even heard of such a piece of luggage or its contents. Seeing my badly concealed embarrassment, she left me to my mortifying reflections for a minute, appearing again carrying an armful of fluffy finery. Holding up a stunning green and white negligee for my approval, this cheerful prevaricator announced that she had found this dream of a garment hanging in a room occupied by a late guest. As a matter of fact, she had robbed the wardrobe of her mistress. This artful creature insinuated that the quasi owner would not object if I put it on for a little midnight visit. I didn't allow my conscience a second to begin its fine work, but let Felice get me into the negligee as quickly as she could. But, my dear, the toilet was as elaborate for this little midnight talk as it would have been for a ball. Felice insisted that I put on a pair of green silk stockings, found providentially in my suit case. Meanwhile she vanished and reappeared with a pair of the cunningest little white flannel slippers you ever saw, which she pulled upon my feet.

You know, my hair curls naturally, so all that was needed in the coiffure line was to arrange it with careless abandon. In the back she let my hair fall down as far as it would, then braided it loosely and tied a black bow on the end. At the top of the head, as though it were working hard to support the pompadour, she tied another black bow.

Felice while at work chattered on about mysterious little silk curlers which she said she used when her patient's hair refused to curl naturally. At the same time she was tucking little brown silk sachet bags no bigger than a hazelnut into my hair. Into my negligee she was tying bags of apple green.

I really thought she would never get through grooming me. There was manicuring, for Felice insisted that my hands were nervous looking. And I should have taken a hot bath, it seems, to wake up the skin, but there was no time, she regretfully conceded, for the ablution.

As the last toilet stroke was applied Felice confided to me that I really should provide myself with a whole suit case of things to wear at night and that some ladies often brought three or four such sets.

When I reached the room of my hostess I was tremendously surprised to see a chafing dish aglow upon a center table, while around it were gathered the midnight feasters in stunning negligee costumes. One girl actually looked lovely in a throat and chin compress and on her head a jaunty mob cap made from a piece of her matinee. To come back to the "eats," which my hostess respectfully called a beauty luncheon, the piece de resistance was a kind of glorified milk toast. A slice was placed in the center of each hot plate. Then on top of this was put a spoonful of raspberry jelly; then another slice of toast was laid on top; then another spoonful of jelly and a tablespoonful of cream heaped on over all. It was a toothsome dainty, the kind that sweet dreams are made of.

The next night—oh, yes, these feasts take place nightly, first in one guest's room, then another, the hostess having started the ball rolling by having the initial supper in her boudoir—the nightcap was chopped onion sandwiches. They were no bigger than a fifty cent piece, and the onions were chopped to a hash. It was served with weak tea.

My hostess afterward told me that what to serve at these midnight suppers was a great problem, for it had to be something digestible, yet attractive to the palate.

The outcome of this visit was that immediately upon my return to town I sallied forth and procured enough pretty little things for the night to fill a suit case kept especially for "the road." In it is a smart pale yellow silk negligee, all billowy chiffon and black velvet bows, and a charming affair for hot nights of light blue dimity and ruffles of swiss embroidery. The hood collar in front reaches to the girdle of blue messaline, and the little yoke and short sleeves are of embroidery. I am sending you a sketch, but not that I expect you to be guilty of wearing such a robe de nuit, for I can hear you say that you would not be caught dead in such an absurd nightdress. Well, my dear, it's a mighty pretty gown to be wafted off to the great beyond in or to appear in before the fire department in case an alarm is turned in at the wee small hours where you are domiciled. Do try one of the onion sandwiches, though, some night. They're good for the nerves, and after this rambling talk I know yours are a-jangle. Yours as ever,

New York. MABEL.

A THOUGHTFUL MISTRESS.

Mrs. Clarence Mackay Provides a Sewing Room For Her Maids.

At Harbor Hill, the beautiful Clarence Mackay country estate at Roslyn, N. Y., there exist almost ideal conditions in the arrangement of the servants' quarters. The administrative ability of the clever chatelaine has been at work as untiringly planning for the comfort of the twenty-five men and women who form her staff of domestics as it has been for the good of the Roslyn public schools and the suffragette cause. The upper servants, most of whom are English, have their private dining room, living room, baths and gymnasium, and a certain number of underlings are detailed to wait upon them at table.

In most large establishments like provisions for the creature comforts of the servants are to be found; but, as usual, Mrs. Mackay has taken the initiative and is the first mistress of a large household to add a sewing room for the exclusive use of the maidservants. A large, well lighted apartment at the top of the house has been set apart for this purpose. The room is plainly but appropriately furnished. A sewing machine occupies one corner. A large cutting table is in the center of the room, and about it are grouped comfortable rocking chairs in which the seamstress may rock and sew her seam. In convenient places are to be found ironing boards, electric irons for pressing work and all the latest sewing conveniences.

MRS. MACKAY'S SEWING ROOM.

The electric light system is especially fine on the Mackay estate and is under the direction of an expert German electrical engineer. It is said that by pressing buttons in different parts of the house the entire estate may be brilliantly illuminated.

Save Omelets From Burning.

If your omelets burn because you have no omelet pan, put a tablespoonful of common salt in the frying skillet, says an experienced cook. Put it on the stove and heat very hot. Empty salt from the pan, wipe it with a dry cloth. Cook the omelet with a small quantity of butter, and it will not burn easily.

..STYLE IN GLASSES..

There is no reason why persons with defective vision need disfigure their faces by wearing glasses of unsightly shape, entirely out of harmony with the contour of their features. There is style in glasses just as there is style in everything else to wear. There is some style or mounting that is "just the thing for your face" if you can only find it, and we are in a position to tell you all about all the different mountings, for we make frequent visits to the leading factories, and keep pace with all the improvements in mountings and lens grinding. We will take pleasure in helping you select a mounting to carry your lenses, that will be becoming, comfortable and secure.

We are showing now one of the Newest ideas in mounts, and we are selling a lot of them. We can adapt these to suit any person. When you have tried all other eyeglass mounts without success, come to us, we will guarantee to fit you to your entire satisfaction.

WEDDING BELLS

McCLENNAN—ALLAN

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Moore, 112 Osgoode street, yesterday, when their only daughter, Laura Isabel Allan, was united in marriage to Walter Deanebrook McClellan, of the topographical surveys branch, department of interior, formerly of Peterborough. Rev. J. H. Turnbull, of Bank street Presbyterian church, performing the ceremony.

The bride, who was given away by her stepfather, entered the drawing-room, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion with palms, gladioli, asters, and smilax, to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, played by James A. Smith organist of Bank street church. She looked most charming in a handsome princess gown of cream messaline silk over taffeta, and wore the customary veil and orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses. Her only ornament was a necklace of pearls, with pearl pendant, the gift of the groom. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid consisted of a brooch set with pearls, and to the groomsman a pearl and torquoise stick pin.

The bride was attended by Miss Edith M. McClellan, sister of the groom, who wore a French voile gown and carried pink roses. Mr. Wm. F. Allan, a brother of the bride, was the best man.

Following the ceremony a recherche luncheon was served in the spacious dining room. The tables were beautifully bedecked with white blossoms and smilax, and about 50 guests were present. The popular young couple left to spend the honeymoon trip via G.T.R. for Montreal and Quebec, and including a trip up the Saguenay. The bride's travelling costume was navy blue broadcloth, with picture hat of black moire silk and velvet, with white plumes. Among the numerous beautiful gifts received was a handsome cabinet of silver presented by the Bank street church choir, a handsome brass mantel clock and cut glass vase from the staff of the topographical survey office, and a full set of aluminum kitchen ware from the "Queen's bunch." Amongst the guests present were some from Montreal, Peterborough, Cumberland, Vars, etc. On return to Ottawa, Mr. and Mrs. McClennan will take up residence at 57 Strathcona Ave.—Ottawa Citizen.

KELLY—GOOLEY

Chandos, Sept. 14.—This morning at St. Mary's church, Elizabeth Alice second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kelly, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Francis Michael Gooley, son of Mrs. Mary Gooley, of Tacoma, Washington, the bridesmaid being Miss Florence Kelly, sister of the bride, and the groomsman being Mr. Edward Gooley, cousin of the groom. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. G. McFadden, of Peterborough, before the eight o'clock mass. The church was filled with the numerous relations and friends of the bride and groom, showing the high esteem in which the young couple is held in this community.

The bride was attired in a pretty princess of white organdie, trimmed with Valenciennes lace, and wore a lace hat to match, the bridesmaid being similarly attired in pink.

After the marriage the happy couple drove with their friends to the home of Mr. Thos. Kelly, where the wedding breakfast was served by the girl friends of the bride. Dancing was enjoyed during the afternoon and evening on a specially erected platform, roofed over with evergreens.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelly will, in a few weeks, take up their residence in Peterborough.—Com.

JOPLINGS OUT ON BAIL $4,000 IN EACH CASE

Application Made by Mr. D. O'Connell Granted by Magistrate Edmison Last Night—Preliminary Hearing on Friday Morning September 24th.

Magistrate Edmison last night granted an application for bail on behalf of Fred and Harry Jopling, made to him by Mr. D. O'Connell, counsel for the young men. Mr. R. E. Wood, county crown attorney, consented to bail being granted, and the amount required for each of the Joplings was fixed at $4,000, in two securities of $2,000 in each case. The sureties were furnished by Mr. H. LeBrun of this city.

The preliminary hearing will be conducted at the county court on Friday morning, September 24th, at ten o'clock, before Magistrate Edmison, at which both young men have been notified to appear. It will all depend on what transpires at the preliminary hearing whether bail will be renewed or not.

The verdict of the coroner's jury and the subsequent arrest of the two young men by Constables Moore and Cochrane yesterday afternoon is the subject of much discussion on the streets in this city and in the village of Bridgenorth, where the Jopling boys reside. The action taken by the county authorities in making the charge one of manslaughter should not have been unexpected. The report of the doctors who made the post mortem examination on the body of Arthur Boulard and the verdict of the coroner's jury only left one course to be pursued, and this has been done. That the affair is a serious one, must be brought home very forcibly to those who have been inclined to regard the matter as one of very little importance, and was sure to soon "blow over."

AWARDS OF JUDGES IN LAWN AND GARDEN COMPETITION

The awards have been made to those who took such great care of their lawns and gardens during the past season. The five judges made their annual tour on Tuesday and they were more than delighted with what they saw. Every year has seen more lawns and flowers than the previous year. This year has far exceeded all others and the officials only wish that they had fifty or a hundred prizes to award to the especially well kept gardens.

The judges were particularly struck with the increased interest the amateur horticulturists are evidencing, for it is particularly this class that the Horticultural Society wishes to encourage. It is the amateurs, the most numerous with small premises and limited means who can make or mar the beauty of the city. It is therefore especially pleasing to the society to see the advancement being made. There are few cities in Ontario as beautiful as Peterborough.

PRIZE WINNERS.

The judges met last night and after long deliberation made the following awards:

PROFESSIONAL CLASS.

1—Mr. James, on Mrs. A. L. Davis' grounds.
2—Mr. Vickers, on Hon. J. R. Stratton's grounds.
3—Miss Dickson, corner Murray and Dickson street.
4—Mr. John Wood, corner Hunter and Belmont streets.

AMATEUR CLASS.

1—Miss Davidson, Park street, Ashburnham.
2—Mr. Isaac Richardson, Homewood avenue.
3—Mr. S. McKee, Water street, north.
4—James Stevenson, Simcoe street.

FLOWERS.

1—B. Cooney Stewart street.
2—Mrs. W. Kennedy, Aylmer st.
3—Mr. W. Taylor, C.P.R. grounds.
4—Mr. Wm. Logan, corner Aylmer and Brock streets.

SPECIAL MENTOIN.

Peterborough Lawn Bowling Green.
Mrs. John Thornlike's property.

Special attention is drawn to Miss Davidson's property, the winner in the amateur class. She has fruit and flowers and a lawn which is indeed beautiful and does credit to the city as well as to Miss Davidson, who looks after it herself.

The Gay Musician

"LOVELIGHT SONG" in Julian Edward's best Comic Opera, "THE GAY MUSICIAN," Grand Opera House, Wednesday, Sept. 22nd. Plan opens Monday morning.

Amusements at the Grand

"The Gay Musician" Coming

Through the efforts of Manager A. J. Small, who controls the theatrical field in Canada, he has induced Manager John P. Slocum, of New York to present the successful comic opera, "The Gay Musician," by the noted composer, Julian Edwards, for a short tour of the principal Canadian cities during the annual dates of the fair weeks.

Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa will have the opportunity of hearing the charming music of "The Gay Musician" during the fair weeks of the respective cities, and thousands of visitors who will visit the fairs will be delighted to learn that they they will have the chance of listening to one of the most successful musical compositions of the day, through the energy of Managers Small and Slocum.

In addition to the cities mentioned Manager Small has arranged with Manager Slocum for the presentation of "The Gay Musician" at some principal points in Canada, including Kingston, Peterborough, Hamilton, Catharines, Brantford, London and St. Thomas.

Following the preliminary tour of Canada, Manager Slocum will present "The Gay Musician" for a period of thirty-five weeks in the United States in the principal cities only. The demand of local managers in the United States to secure an engagement of "The Gay Musician" was so pronounced that Manager Slocum was compelled to refuse the requests to present the famous comic opera in any other than the large cities, and the fact that the noted composition is to be heard in many Canadian cities is a tribute to the untiring energy of Manager Small, the Nestor of Canadian theatricals.

Julian Edwards, the famous composer, is dear to the hearts of all Canadians, for not only is he a loyal subject of His Majesty King Edward, but he has followed closely the lines laid down by Gilbert and Sullivan, and his constant aim is to give lovers of music the best and cleanest in amusements, a principal that Manager John P. Slocum has already followed for many years.

The engagement of "The Gay Musician" in this city will be on Wednesday, Sept. 22.

The Burgomaster

"The Burgomaster" at the Grand Opera House last night was as merry and as tuneful as ever, and the big audience went away humming the "Tale of the Kangaroo," "We're Civilized Now," and other catchy melodies from the Pixley and Luders score. The company all through was an excellent one and the jokes, although some of them are of the vintage of bye-gone days, seemed to create as much laughter as when they first appeared. Everyone likes the Burgomaster music and the way it was sung last night left nothing to be desired. Harry Hermsen, who was here with the "Royal Chef," made an ideal Burgomaster, and was responsible for much of the mirth. Leo Kendal, as Doodle, and Euphemie Lockhart, as Willie Von Asterbilt, were both good, as were also Marie Grampre, as Ruth, and Sylvia de Frank, as Daisy. The chorus was comedy, and sang in a most pleasing manner. The male voices were heard to excellent advantage in the song "We're Civilized Now," rendered by George McKissock and chorus of Indians.

The scenic embellishments were of a high standard, and set off the production well.

Next Wednesday "The Gay Musician" will be at the Grand, and on Tuesday, September 28, Digby Bell will appear in "The Debtors." These two attractions should draw record-breaking houses.

Scared Horse

While a visiting motor car belonging to a Peterborough citizen was passing up Kent street this afternoon about three o'clock the Canadian Express Company's delivery horse became frightened and dashed down Kent street to the Y.M.C.A. corner, where, through the quick action of a young citizen the frightened animal was brought to a stop. No serious harm was done the outfit except the spoiling of the cover of the seat and a few parcels which fell out of the wagon.—Lindsay Post.

Pretty Tailored Suits $18
BEAUTIFUL STYLE
There is a touch and go to these Women's Suits that appeals to the women. Not overtrimmed yet, just enough to relieve the stern tailored appearance; Note these:

All-wool Venetian in solid colors—Navy, Green and Black, strictly man-tailored with a touch of relief in self covered buttons in two rows at the back at waist-line. Slash pockets also adds a tone, fancy brocaded lining, skirt plain tailored with button trimming.

Another line is made of invisible striped Cheviot (all wool) in shades of Navy Blue, also Black. Coat is neatly tailored, strictly 1909-10 cut, trimmed with self, in "Mayon Age" effect, finished with jet buttons. Skirt is in the pleated panel style, altogether an excellent suit at this special price.

Special selections from the "BURGOMASTER" just received.

THAT WATCH OF YOURS

Is in many respects similar to a railway engine. Let an engine be run without oil or cleaning and before long it will stop dead. Upon examination it will be found that the friction and wear and tear has ruined the machinery, and it is fit only for the scrap iron heap. Likewise your watch. You put it in your pocket, and while there is a kick in it, you, in your mistaken economy, do not consult the watchmaker, and consequently rob your watch of years of good service and also much of its former accuracy. The time-keeping qualities of a good watch are maintained and often improved by timely and skilful attention. If you have been one of the neglectful ones call around and see us.

IN THE LADIES' DEPARTMENT AT THE PETERBOROUGH FAIR

Some Exquisite Work Shown — Splendid Collection of Ladies' Work—One of the Most Interesting Departments of the Fair and Well Worth Seeing.

To many who visited the fair this afternoon the main interest lay in the exhibition of ladies' work, which occupied nearly the whole of the upper floor of the main building. There was a goodly collection of articles, all showing care and patience used in their making, and in quality, if not in quantity, the showing compares favorably with that of some of the larger fairs. Some beautiful pieces of linen work are shown, and the average man not versed in the art, wonders how such results may be obtained with such simple materials as linen, cotton or silk threads and braid. There are four collections of work shown, one by Mrs. F. J. Jamieson, which took first prize, another by Mrs. Givens, Millbrook, which took second, another by Mrs. Geo. Chambers, and a fourth by Mrs. Glover, of Warkworth. These collections comprise many different varieties of fancy work from crocheted bootees and mats to more pretentious efforts in embroidery in Wallachian and Mount Mellick designs. Mrs. Glover, of Warkworth, showed a particularly pretty dresser cover of bolting cloth, embroidered in colors and colored in water colors. Mrs. Jamieson, Harvey street, has a wonderful collection that excites the admiration of everyone. The work is beautifully executed, and there is such a variety of it. There are some handsome embroidered towels and an oval centre-piece in Wallachian work, well worthy of special mention. There was great variety in the exhibit sent in by Mrs. Glover, of Warkworth. This included burnt work, applique in net, crocheting and Beidmeyer embroidery.

The general exhibits were very fine and the aisles around the tables where the lovely things are displayed were crowded all afternoon. A large number of pieces in Wallachian and Mount Mellick and eyelet embroidery are shown, some especially fine work by Miss Flossie Burnham, of Otonabee, and Miss Effie Best winning a great many prizes. The display of colored silk embroidery is also large, and of infinite variety. In this department, and also in the lace work, Mrs. Givens, of Millbrook, was perhaps the largest exhibitor and won many prizes, mostly firsts.

Miss Effie Best took first prize with a pair of curtains of ecru net with crocheted lace and insertion. The lace work exhibit in Battenberg, Honiton point and applique, was of infinite variety and beauty.

There was only a small variety of wood carving, Mrs. Givens showing some photos and plaques in pretty designs, while W. E. Lech has a handsome carved chair on view.

Then there are our old friends, the crazy patchwork, quilts, hooked rugs, knitted socks, crocheted shawls and afghans, homespun blankets and tea cosys—and such an array of them! If it were not that the rules of the Fair Association say that the same article must not be exhibited at the fair more than once, one would declare that these were the same quilts, rugs and socks that have appeared every year since the fair began. Of course no infringement of this rule is countenanced. One hooked rug especially catches the eye. The colors used in it are green, brown and yellow, and it pictures a fierce-looking looking, bright tam cat with yellow stripes and green eyes. Another of the exhibits that causes a smile is a pin cushion that is true to its name. The cushion is of white satin, and the design is worked out in pins, there being a conventional border with this verse in the centre:

Welcome, little innocent
To the light of day.
Smile upon thy happy mother,
Smile, and chase her tears away.

The cushion, while not pretty, is quite interesting, and shows much perseverance in its construction.

There are tea cosies galore, and the chances are good for warm tea this winter at meal times. They are of all sorts, from the plain every-day one to the Sunday best, and make a gala showing down the centre of the table.

Some exquisite centre-pieces and cloths are shown, one of Teneriffe lace being particularly dainty, while an elaborate one of Mount Mellick work by Miss Effie Best took first prize. The eyelet embroidered ones are beautiful, and it must have been a task to decide which merited the prize.

The exhibit, as a whole, is certainly very interesting, and is well worth a visit to the fair to see it alone. Those who did not go down this afternoon should make an effort to go before the fair closes.

The ladies' work department is in charge of Mrs. Geo. E. Elliott, with Mr. Wilbert Mason as assistant, while the judges, who so ably decided the merits of the different articles, were Mrs. E. B. Clegg and Miss Laidlaw.

BARN-RAISING ACCIDENT AT PLAINVILLE YESTERDAY

Special to the Review.

Cobourg, Sept. 17.—An accident which may result seriously to some of the injured occurred at a barn raising on the farm of Matthew Lonton, near Plainville, late yesterday afternoon. A scaffold gave way throwing eight men about thirty feet to the barn floor. About five hundred feet of lumber fell on those who had fallen from the scaffold inflicting severe and serious injuries to most of them. Three doctors were soon at the scene of the accident.

He has special facilities for buying his supplies of meat, and the beef, pork, lamb, mutton, veal and poultry, as well as the cooked meats, may be relied on as of first quality only.

WEDDING BELLS

CONES—DUGGAN

In Port Hope, on September 15th, William Cones, of Peterborough, and Miss Alice Duggan, Burleigh Falls, were married in St. John's church by Rev. Mr. Daniel. The bride was gowned in a cream silk princess dress with silk netting over and wore a black picture hat. The bridesmaid was the groom's sister, Mrs. E. Thompson. She wore a becoming dress of brown with hat to match, the groom was supported by Mr. Norman Daniel, of Port Hope. The bride's travelling dress was a mauve tailormade suit trimmed with black braid. The groom's gift to the bride was a neck pin set with pearls. They left Port Hope on a trip to Toronto, Hamilton and Niagara Falls. On their return they will reside in Toronto.

NEW ATHLETIC CLUB ROOMS TO BE OPENED ON FRIDAY

The P.A.C. rooms will be opened for the winter season Friday, October 1. The club bids fair to fill a long-felt want in the south end of the city. The popular pastor of Park St. Baptist church, Rev. W. C. Riddiford, has been busy of late getting suitable apartments for gymnasium purposes, which, when fitted up, will add very much to the worth of the rooms as a quiet and proper place of recreation. There is plenty of room for basket-ball, and the club intends to give the local Y.M.C.A. artists all that is coming to them in that direction. They feel at least they owe them something for the practical sympathy they have given them. All men will be made welcome at the rooms, and the physical work will be in charge of competent men.

At a meeting held recently the following officers were elected:

Hon. President—Rev. W. C. Riddiford.

President—Mr. Jack Pilling.

Vice-President—Mr. Charles Green.

Sec.-Treas.—Mr. Herb Reid.

It was decided that the following low rates for membership would be charged, which, it is hoped, will cover the running expenses of the club:

Senior membership, $2.25 per year.

Junior membership, $1.25 per year.

Full information regarding the club can be obtained from Mr. Herb Reid, 143 Perry street.

It is the intention of the committee of arrangements for the opening to try and get a good programme of sports and music, which will appear later.

HOW PITTSBURG TEAM CAME TO BE DUBBED PIRATES

"Unless the benzine buggy blows up, that Pittsburg bunch is going to cop the National League flag all right," ventured Owney Ghagan to half a dozen listeners. "That Pirate gang is going so fast right now that you couldn't catch them with a Bleriot monoplane, whatever that is."

"I've often wondered why they call them the Pirates," said the artist, who is always wondering something. "It was because they used to wear black uniforms on the road, wasn't it?"

"No, you're wrong, my son," answered Owney, to whom all hands had turned at the interrogation. "It was because Pittsburg had a wise guy named Horace Phillips as manager, that the name was hung upon the Smoky City bench.

"Way back in 1888, when I was directing the destinies of the Cherry Pickers, Philadelphia had Louis Bierbauer playing second, and Bierbauer was about as fast as they made 'em.

"The American Association and the National League had an agreement in those days, by which the clubs could not reserve more than fifteen players at the close of the season. The management of the Athletics wanted to reserve sixteen men, but under the agreement could not do so. The only way open was to reserve fifteen men and leave one name off the list and take a chance.

"So the name of Bierbauer was omitted when the reserve list was sent in, with a prayer that the managers would not wise up to the omission.

"Everything would have been all right but for Manager Phillips, who made a trip down to Washington to see Nick Young and get a peep at the official list. When he saw the original with Bierbauer's name missing, he hopped the rattler and landed in Erie, Pa., where he made such a tempting offer that Bierbauer signed. The procedure was legal and legitimate, but it raised hob in baseball circles. The Pittsburg club was within its rights, and Bierbauer remained there for years playing grand ball.

"The Athletics and the Philadelphia newspapers took up the cry that the team had been robbed, and one writer termed the kidnapping a case of baseball piracy, whereat the Pittsburg team was promptly named 'Pirates,' and the term has stuck ever since."

TY COBB STRUCK OUT WITH THE BASES FULL

Philadelphia Won From Detroit in First Game of Series—Attendance of 24,710—Cobb Was Struck Out on Two Occasions by Plank.

Philadelphia, Sept. 16.—The Athletics got the first of the four games they needed to pull down the Detroit's big seat in the American League championship by winning from the Tigers in a thrilling and exciting game today by a score of 2 to 1. The bitter feeling prevailing among the two teams, the desperate efforts the Athletics are making to overhaul Jennings' crew, and the fact that the town has gone baseball dippy, brought out a crowd of 24,710 spectators, who braved the threatening sky and the showers which sprinkled occasionally, before and during the game. Had the weather been right all records for attendance would no doubt have been smashed. From the start it was a battle of pent up energy, nervousness and brilliant plays for the players and rooters. Plank's brilliant, though erratic, work kept the men behind him on edge during the game, while the crowd nearly worked itself into nervous prostration at several stages of the game when the Detroits had chances to even up for the afternoon. But right here Plank was at his best. When the Tigers touched the sacks Eddie was invincible. He had Cobb completely on his string through the session. Twice Cobb fanned, the first time up in the opening innings, and again in the third, when, with three on and one down, Eddie fanned the demon hitter of the Tigers, to the wild delight of the crowd. He then proceeded to get rid of Crawford, Detroit's really reliable hitter, on a tap to Davis.

Summers, the Athletic hoodoo, pitched a gilt-edged article of ball, and had it not been for wild flings behind him, he would have caused the Elephants more trouble to win than they did, and the men had to go some to cop out the victory. He held the Athletics to five hits, but three of them the Mack men put together in the fourth, which, with Detroit's two errors, gave them the run and the lead they never relinquished.

The score—

CITY LEAGUE BASEBALL

Will the West Ends trim the T.A.S. on Saturday? is a question of next importance to Are you going to the Peterborough Fair?

Both teams will have a big bunch of supporters on hand.

Some one will get the prize for doing the fastest time around the bases.

Any player who would like to be presented with a box of cigars all he needs to do is to clout out a home run.

The game will start at 2.30 and a Rugby practice will be held after the conclusion of the contest.

The usual prices of admission will prevail, and the grand-stand should be filled with fair rooters.

If the T.A.S. win it means the championship.

SPORTING NOTES

The Ketchell-Langford fight will not take place to-night at New York. Governor Hughes took action and no blows will be struck as a result.

No pennant now for Chicago Cubs. Christy Mathewson, with the Giants behind him, yesterday defeated Chance's men by 2—1 and incidentally destroyed what little chance Chicago had for the championship.

Toronto moved up to third place yesterday.

The Ontario Jockey Club races will start at the Woodbine in Toronto on Saturday.

Stanley Ketchell is but twenty-two years of age, he having celebrated his birthday this week.

Charles Pinckney, second baseman on the Dayton baseball team, who was hit on the head with a pitched ball in yesterday's game with Grand Rapids, died in the hospital at noon to-day. He suffered a fracture of the skull.

Ty Cobb, in spite of the effort of other players in the American League to "get him" when he is sliding to bases, leads the circuit in base-stealing and hitting as well. Collins of Philadelphia, is second with the stick. Wagner leads in the National League, as usual. Lajoie is hitting hard again since being relieved of the worries of management at Cleveland. Bill Carrigan, the former Toronto catcher, is hitting an even .300 for the Boston Americans.

Newark broke an attendance record for that city by drawing 14,290 in a game with Jersey City. Five thousand were turned away. With the Indians right in the race with Rochester there will be some enormous crowds when McGinnity's team winds up the season at home.

Rain Interfered With Peterboro'-Lindsay Ladies' Golf Match

Lindsay, Sept. 16.—Nine ladies from the Peterborough Golf Club played a friendly game with the ladies of the Lindsay Club on the local links yesterday afternoon. Shortly after the game had commenced a heavy downpour of rain compelled the ladies to return to the club house, much to their dislike. After the rain the links were too wet to continue the game, and it was called off with no scores announced. A dainty afternoon tea was served at the club house by the Lindsay ladies. Following are the players:

Lindsay—Mesdames Meagher, McIntyre, Little, Gough, Misses Sootheran, Steers, Meagher, Helen Ross, Neelands.

Peterboro—Mesdames Gardiner, Aylmer, Hall, Hill, F. Matthews, McClelland, Misses Davidson, Hartstone, Anderson.

TOMMY BURNS IS NOW MANAGER OF ATHLETIC CLUB

New York, Sept. 16.—Tommy Burns, who now weighs 215 pounds, has been appointed manager of the Australian Athletic Company, Limited, Sydney, New South Wales, and will shortly open negotiations with the leading American fighters for their appearance in Australia. This company, which is backed by the leading sporting men and bookmakers of Sydney, has leased a large building capable of seating 10,000 persons, and at the end of the year will open with a championship fight between Australian fighters and the champion of of America in whatever class the Australian boxer to be decided on is. Burns is full of talk over his latest business move. He thinks that there is more money in Sydney for good fights than there is in America. The syndicate which engaged Tommy is a strong one financially, and he is going to receive $25,000, and a guarantee of it, too, for his year's work. Therefore, the States are not likely to see one of Johnson's victims for some time. Burns is not troubling over Stanley Ketchell or Sam Langford.

TURF

WALTER G. AGAIN.

Walter G., the well-known race horse that is supposed to be a "ringer," was disqualified in the free-for-all race at Belleville fair Wednesday and as a result the race did not come off. It will be remembered that Walter G. got into the same trouble here last fall where he won a race but did not receive any money and was expelled from the track. He is owned by Dayfoe, of Campbellford.

GOLF

There will be mixed foursomes tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon, commencing at 2.30 o'clock.

Lindsay gave Peterborough a bad beating at Lindsay yesterday. From all accounts, Mr. G. A. Little, of Lindsay, is not only a good player but he can drive on an average from 225 yards up.

HIS OTHER WAISTCOAT.

It Cost Its Unlucky Owner Half a Million Dollars.

"I was so prosperous in 1862 as to be able to have two vests," said a veteran newspaper man, "and one of those vests cost me $500,000. Solomon in all his glory never put up as much as that, I believe, for his whole wardrobe. I could get a vest every bit as good as that now for $1.50.

"This happened on Oil creek in the early days of petroleum. I had wandered over there in 1862. I was only a kid, but I had saved $50. About that time the flowing oil wells were being struck. Men who were poor one day were finding themselves millionaires the next. I suppose there are a good many people out there yet who remember Jim Sherman. When I first met Jim he hadn't as much money as I had, but he had a lease on one corner of what was known as the Foster farm and was trying to find oil on it.

"For some reason or other speculation hadn't cast the eye of favor on the Foster farm as yet, but Jim Sherman believed it had the oil sand under it, and on the strength of Jim's faith his wife had put in every cent she had received as a legacy from her father, $500, to help Jim out in his venture. When I ran up against Jim I had been in the region only a couple of days, and my $50 was still intact. I had a boarding place about half a mile from where Jim was struggling to get his well into the sand he believed in. He had exchanged an eighth interest in his well for a drilling engine, and he had disposed of a sixteenth interest for $60 in cash and a shotgun, and that $60 and the $15 he sold the shotgun for, together with $100 he had received for a horse which he had traded another sixteenth interest in his well for, had all been absorbed and the drill had not yet struck oil.

"It was at this interesting condition of the Sherman well that I ran up against Jim. He was in despair. He had no hope of being able to obtain another dollar. He had been offering another sixteenth interest in his lease for $50, with no takers. I thought the matter over awhile and then said to Jim that I would take the one-sixteenth.

"'Produce the fifty!' said he.

"I felt for my fifty. It wasn't there, and I at once remembered that I had put on my other vest when I came out and had forgotten to change my little wad of wealth to it from the pocket of the vest I had taken off. I explained matters to Jim Sherman and started at once for my boarding house to get the money. I got it all right and was on my way back to invest it in the Sherman oil well when I saw people running wildly from every direction toward the Sherman lease and heard them yelling:

"'Jim's struck it, by ——, and struck it big!'

"So he had. While I was away to get the $50 I had left in my other vest the drill in the Sherman well had dropped into the sand, and she was spouting at a two thousand barrel rate, and she kept on spouting for two years. Before she quit she had spouted more than 2,000,000 barrels of oil, and the average price of oil during that time was $4 a barrel. Jim Sherman cleared up something like $6,000,000 out of it, and if I hadn't been so prosperous that I was able to have two vests 125,000 barrels of that oil would have been mine. That's how one of those vests cost me $500,000."—New York Sun.

Turkey's Star and Crescent.

No matter what happens in Constantinople, the star and crescent is likely to remain the emblem of the metropolis on the Bosporus to a remote futurity. It is not a Turkish emblem. Constantine antedated the Turk at that spot by more than eleven centuries. The emblem is older than Constantine. Long before the Roman emperor set up his eastern capital there and renamed the town for himself the Byzantians were besieged by a neighboring enemy, who one night tried to storm the place under cover of darkness. As they advanced a cloud rolled away, revealing the conjunction of the planet Venus with the new moon, which is one of the most beautiful phenomena of the nocturnal sky. The light exposed the skulking invaders, the walls were manned and the enemy driven back. From that moment the star and crescent became the emblem of Byzantium.—St. Louis Republic.

Wood Used For Putty.

A refinement in yacht construction, introduced last year by Fife in the construction of the Shamrock, consists in the substitution of a thin slip of wood, known as a "slip feather," for putty, in stopping the seams after they have been calked. The "feather" is covered with a very tenacious glue, driven hard home into the seams and left to dry. After the sides are planed off a remarkably smooth surface is obtained, the skin of the vessel being to all intents and purposes in one piece. This method has the further advantage that there is no calking to work out when the vessel is being heavily strained.—Scientific American.

Licenses to Fly.

Already the proposition is made to require persons who desire to fly to obtain a license. The instructor of the United States army balloon corps urges it and maintains that all such licenses be issued by authority of the national government. The purpose is primarily to safeguard the lives of aviators, but it is certain that the new method of transit will present problems that cannot now be foreseen that will be beyond the power of the states to solve. France has been considering the matter with a view to keeping out unwelcome aerial visitors from over the border.—Youth's Companion.

PETERBORO' MAN LOST IN TORONTO

Special to the Review.

Toronto, Sept. 17.—Edward Colby, 88 years of age, and looking like the allegorical representations of 'Father Time' come to life, with snowy hair and a long beard that swept his shrunken breast, faded eyes, and palsied fingers that clutched the dock rail for support, appeared in the Police Court this morning. The old man came from Peterborough a few days ago to meet his son-in-law and daughter, he said, but he got lost and could not find them. He was given a pass back to his home and left in charge of his daughter.

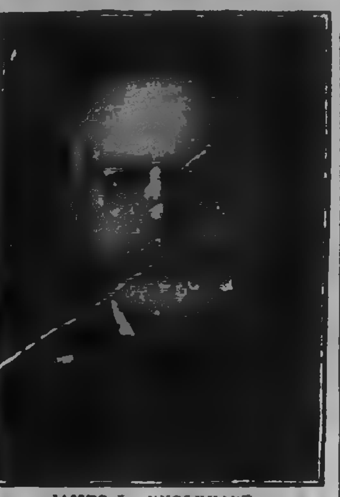
WHAT LAWMAKERS AND EDITORS SAW IN NORTHERN ONTARIO

Ontario Government Takes Party of One Hundred and Forty for a Twelve Mile Trip Into Ontario's Clay Belt--Visits Paid to Cobalt, Haileybury, Cochrane, Englehart, New Liskeard Latchford and Elk City.

Ever since the early eighties the people of Ontario have been hearing of the last west and the boundless possibilities of Canada's prairie wheat fields. Settlers flowed west ahead of the railway into Manitoba, then following the line of the C.P.R. overran Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia. In the past decade the tendency has been north into the northwest proper, and at last word is coming from Winnipeg that the free lands cannot hold out very much longer.

It is just at this juncture that Ontario discovers to her amazement that within her own confines and south of the latitude of Winnipeg she has sixteen million acres of lands equal in possibilities to anything that the west has ever produced.

When, a few days ago, Hon. Frank Cochrane conducted a party of legislators, newspapermen and visitors into the north there were very few of the lawmakers even who had an idea of the undeveloped wealth of Upper Ontario. Four days of personally-conducted touring, however, have brought them more enlightenment than any similar period in their lives, and they are now equipped to enter with knowledge and enthusiasm into the most important development problem that has ever faced the province.



JAMES L. ENGLEHART.

Ministers Were Jovial

A train of five Pullmans, two diners and two special cars awaited the party at the Union Depot on the night of Monday, September 6. About one hundred and forty of the Government's guests were on hand, and it took them only a few moments to get into their appointed places. In his home district the member of the Legislature is a judicious mixture of wise dignity and geniality, but here the assumed wisdom was forgotten and the party might have been a Sunday School picnic so far as merriment was concerned. The Honorable Frank Cochrane roamed about with his hat a-tilt "joshing" his guests; the Honorable W. J. Hanna, who is a raconteur from Raconteursville, told stories to a large and hilarious audience, Col. Matheson unbent and "kidded" his friends. The serious man aboard was Secretary Maisonville. He was the impresario and conductor extraordinary and court of appeal in all cases of trouble, but even his worries subsided as conversation flagged and snoring became fashionable.

There was only a momentary stop at North Bay the following morning, and the train pushed on to Cobalt. This was the destination of Lord Charles Beresford. Little was seen of the admiral on the night of starting, but he was very much in evidence in Cobalt on Tuesday, where the citizens divided their enthusiasm between Condor Charlie and the Minister of Lands and Mines.

All Have an Axe to Grind.

All these northern towns want something. It may be a concession that will disable the nearest rival town, it may be an expensive railroad spur, it may be better freight rates, it may be a change of Government policy, it may be a mining record office, or it may be nothing more than a few hundred feet of railway siding. But they all want something, so their Honorables the Ministers of the Ontario Government must walk softly in the north.

Cobalt started off by wanting several things, and said so. The town was promised a full consideration of its demands and the case was taken under advisement while the members of the party started out across country in various directions to see the mines that produce one-fifth of the world's silver output. Cobalt is vastly interesting but it is coming to be an old story now, and the expedition was headed for the farming country farther north.

Haileybury was reached at seven o'clock and after dinner the visitors were taken aboard steamers on Lake Temiscamingue and shown the town by night. It is an exceptionally pretty town, this Haileybury, and has a townsite immeasurably superior to that of Cobalt. Its natural beauties have made it the residential annex to the silver city, and streets after streets of fine houses are to be found there. Up in the north they call it Millionairetown because it houses so many of the men who have made their fortunes out of the mines.

Haileybury by Night.

Huge bonfires were lit along the waterfront of Haileybury and Port Cobalt and these along with the innumerable lanterns gave the town the appearance of a great city. Lord Charles Beresford was given an enthusiastic reception at the smoker that followed the lake trip and the committee on joyful noises provided a first-class program.

What with tramping around Cobalt and the festivities at Haileybury, they were weary legislators who crept into their berths that night, and sore of foot when on Wednesday morning at dawn the officials announced that there would be a short stay in Cochrane.

Cochrane is the place where the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway crosses the National Transcontinental. This is perhaps the most promising of all the northern townsites and will be the railway centre for the entire district, if nothing unforseen occurs. Last November there was nothing on the spot but brush and forest. In that month the first train went through carrying with it prospective purchasers to attend the Government's auction sale of town lots. Only the merest indications of streets and lot lines were in at that time and a man without imagination could scarcely conceive the busy little collection of buildings that to-day are called Cochrane. Right in the centre of the townsite stands a beautiful little sheet of water with two points of land from opposite sides almost cutting it in two. This is Commando Lake, and is being reserved along with several acres around it, for a park. Two banks are on the ground doing a whirlwind business and back of the town farms are being taken up and cleared with great rapidity.

Real Winnipeg Mud.

It was a rainy dismal morning when the legislative party reached Cochrane, and the exploring proclivities of the visitors were seriously dampened. The most distressing feature about the town is also the most promising. This is the consistency of the mud, which is of the fine gluey consistency that has made the Canadian west famous and infamous. It is the real wheat-growing soil of Manitoba, and means fortunes for the farmers. It also meant small competencies for the Pullman porters before the legislators got their shoes cleaned.

After an hour in Cochrane the train was broken up and two Pullmans and two flat cars were run over the Transcontinental tracks to the new townsite on the Frederick House River, about seven miles away. This is in a sort of way a rival town founded by private interests, and is at the spot where the Transcontinental crosses the Frederick House River. It is occupied at present by the construction gangs who are at work on the big bridge across the river. Frederick House, as the town will probably be called, is a very promising place and has a very picturesque location on the high banks of the river. It will also avoid one of the worst drawbacks of the new country in that its drainage is splendid and the epidemics visiting the unsanitary towns will be avoided.

Matheson and Englehart.

The stay at the river was very brief and the party, mostly standing wide-legged on flat cars were conveyed back to Cochrane. Another brief wait and, after a look at Matheson, the train started for Englehart, the divisional point on the railway.

Englehart takes its name from Chairman J. L. Englehart of the T. & N.O. Commission, and is naturally the pet town of the genial chief. Mr. Englehart has only one hobby, and that is the new country. But of all the north country there is no place he loves so well as his namesake town. It is just midway between North Bay and Cochrane, and will be one of the big headquarters for railway operatives. It has a fine big station, and nearby a little plot of ground where Commissioner Englehart intends to plant every species of North American tree, with a view to seeing what woods can be grown in the clay belt. In the little park is also a greenhouse which promises to be a minature botanical garden.

HON. COL. MATHESON.

When the visitors arrived the Englehart fall fair was in progress. It was not an extensive affair. An acre lot contained the whole, but there has not been an agricultural show in Canada in many years which equals the Englehart exhibition in enthusiasm. They had organised their association only two weeks before and their exhibits were few in number, but high in quality. A little tent housed the fine arts—quilts, cushion covers and the laces and applique that women love—and another tent sheltered the cookery. The various grains, full headed and of phenomenal height were displayed in racks in the open and the fat stock were tethered outside the fence.

Matheson's Baby Show.

The members of the legislative party scattered out over the fair grounds, while the Cabinet Ministers made small talk with the civic officials, and it was only a moment before Hon. Frank Cochrane was high on a rail fence haranguing the multitude in answer to its cheers. For Col. Matheson was reserved the worst fortune of the day. The Provincial Treasurer was roaming about, thinking no evil, when suddenly a stentorian voiced joker announced from an eminence that the colonel had consented to act as judge in the baby show. To this moment the colonel does not know whether the baby show was on the program or only a conceit of the moment. Now, if there is a crop that they raise better than any other in Upper Ontario it is babies, and the rivalry is tremendous. In the wink of an eye the Minister found himself surrounded by bright-eyed mothers and crowing babes that made the glory of his bachelorhood seem a wretched thing. For just a few seconds the responsibility of the judiciary rested heavy on him, then he lost his nerve, thrust a dollar bill in the fist of each competitor and fled.

An hour at Englehart and a start was made for New Liskeard, perhaps the most solid of the agricultural towns of the new country. It is just across Lake Temiscamingue from Haileybury and like the latter town has been a settlement for many years. On the Quebec side of the water the French villages have existed for over a century, and New Liskeard is one of the Ontario outcroppings of these settlements.

Reception at New Liskeard.

New Liskeard was en fete to welcome the legislators. The town was decorated and a big reception had been prepared in the Presbyterian Church. The original intention of the mayor and aldermen of the town had been to take the visitors around the country in carriages to let them look at the agricultural districts, but it was dark before the special train arrived. A band was at the station, however, and seated in vehicles of every sort the party was taken to the church. There in the basement was an exhibition of grain and vegetables that would have brought envy to old Ontario farmers. First grade hard wheat, forty bushels to the acre, was shown and excellent vegetables were served to the legislative party for dinner as earnest of what the country can do under cultivation.

HON. W. J. HANNA.

That night the train waited at New Liskeard and did not pull out until early Thursday morning. As a result many of the tourists stayed to partake of the hospitality of the citizens and trailed in at all hours in the morning, to the sound of sackbut and psaltery and jubilant chorals.

They had cause to rue it at daybreak when the train pulled up at Latchford, just as dawn was breaking, and all were ordered out to take the boats for Elk Lake.

By the Montreal River.

There are two lines of boats plying between Latchford and Elk Lake and the route they traverse is a wonderfully picturesque bit of country. The trip is made in four stages, rendered necessary by three portages. The first at Pork Rapids, seven miles up the river, is a three-minute walk over a spit of land and the break in the route can be made navigable in the summer by damming up the stream at the Latchford end. The second one is at Flat Rapids, twenty-eight miles further on, and this can be easily dynamited and cleared. The third and greatest is Mountain Chutes, three miles beyond, and a lock will be necessary at this point. Twelve miles remain of the fifty-mile run from Latchford to Elk City. The last-named town and its twin site, Smyth, are beautifully situated at the narrowest point of the river and are connected by a floating bridge. Smyth is a Government site, and Elk City has been privately marketed. Two years ago there was not the vestige of a town, but to-day they are thriving little centres for prospectors and not a little gardening is being done to supply the mining camps.

The mayor of Elk City is Jack Munro, the famous prize-fighter, and down the river at his log bungalow he has established an experimental farm, where all the Ontario vegetables are flourishing as they only can in a virgin soil. The twin towns possess perhaps more color and romance than any places in the country. The churches have planted three representatives, Anglican, Methodist and Presbyterian, the gamblers fatten on their rake-offs and rubbing elbows are the illicit liquor merchant and his hereditary foe, the license inspectors.

Waste of Good Liquor.

A vivid example of the thoroughness of the last named officials awaited the legislative party on its arrival in the town. Provincial Inspector Morrison had just made a foray and as a result sixteen hundred dollars' worth of beer was added to the waters of the Montreal River. The barrels lay about in dismal testimony of the ruthlessness of the law and picture postcards showing the execution were on sale the same evening.

As soon as the freedom of the city had been presented to the visitors and a few addresses made the party broke up, some to visit the mines roundabout, a few lucky ones to look up lots they had bought two years ago, and the revellers of the previous night to make up for lost sleep.

The citizens entertained on Thursday evening at a banquet in one of the big dining halls in Elk Lake. The approach was lighted by miners' candlesticks thrust into the stumps and the hall was decorated within with banners bearing an expression of Elk Lake's greatest need—a railway. "We Have the Ore, Give Us a Railway," is a slogan. The local speakers after the banquet presented their case in all its phases and the Minister replied. The question was not answered definitely, but Elk Lake feels more secure now for the future of the town as a result of the remarks of Hon. Frank Cochrane.

All Depends on Gowganda.

The whole question of transportation, however, depends on the wealth of the new camp at Gowganda. If it proves to be what the prospectors say it is the probability that a line will be put through from the main line at Earlton, through Charlton—which point it has already reached, to Elk Lake, Gowganda and thence to Sudbury.

The banquet did not end until the early hours of the morning and after that the younger generation went to a dance. So it was a sleepy crowd that rushed for the boats in all sorts of deshabille at six-thirty on Friday morning.

Another run down the river, the first stage of it in the rain, and the party reached Latchford at about three in the afternoon. There was another public meeting in which the Minister of Lands and Mines replied to the request of the citizens for a mining recorder of their own, and the party pulled out for North Bay. That town was reached in the evening.

A theatre party was provided, but the speech-making before the entertainment proved so lengthy that the curtain did not rise until ten o'clock. The result was that the legislative party had to leave before the performance was finished. One more night in the train, a hilarious one for the juniors and a sleepy one for the older members, and the train pulled into Toronto.

It was a history-making trip. Never before have the members of the Legislature had an opportunity of seeing the new north in shape for the settlers. It required a great deal of imagination a few months ago to realize the possibilities of the district but with live towns springing up in every part, and samples of agricultural wealth that promise at last to be more valuable to Ontario than even the far-famed Cobalt, the representatives begin to realize the claims of Northern Ontario.

THE MODERN TROUBADOUR.

Major Holland Is Both Hero and Teller of Tales.

The race of sagamen is not dead. The other night up at Haileybury Lord Charles Beresford heard a son of the north land tell a story in the ringing poetry of the wilderness, of the wars of the true pioneers of Canada's uncivilized places—the river men of the Ottawa. The bard was Pollough Pogue and the sagaman was none other than Major Ed. Holland, who wears the Victoria Cross for valor in South Africa.

He has a record to commend him, has Major Holland, and when he stood up in Haileybury rink and in full ringing voice told the story of the Great Fight you might have heard the feverish throb of hundreds of hearts carried back to days when the world was younger.

"This is the song that Le Bosseau made
As he lay alone in his bunk.
When the tumid shadows came out — to play
And the camboose fires sunk.
This is the song that Le Bosseau made
For he was the camp's song-smith.
Bull cook he was in the office books,
But at heart he was Homer's kith."

And then Holland went on to tell in the musical nasals of the habitant of the great battle of the river drivers and the struggle for the supremacy on the river. It was a heroic tale of giants told as only a hero could tell it.

They listen up north when Ed. Holland spins a yarn, be it poetry or prose.

Tall and lean, his hawk-like face bronzed with the sun, and his spare, well-knit frame hard as steel from constant exercise, he looks as he stands up in his corduroy coat and his whip-cord riding breeches as if he might have been boss of the Ottawa himself had his taste run to river-driving.

He comes from Ottawa, born there 31 years ago, and after an adventurous life in the north joined the Canadian Mounted Rifles and went to Africa. One day while he was engaged with his corps—he was a private then—in a rear guard action at Lilyfontein, they found the pressure of the Boers on the rear of the column too great for them. They had been five hours at work, hard fighting, and finally the word to cut their way out was given. Among their goods was a Colt automatic machine gun which had to be abandoned. The loss of such a piece of artillery was no small misfortune and that it should be turned to a weapon of offence against themselves was worse. Holland was not long in deciding. Although every moment lessened his chance of breaking through he galloped over to the gun, lifted it from its carriage and with his revolver in his right hand started to cut his way out of the enemy. The gun had been hard at work for some time and as a consequence it was almost red hot. Holland never flinched although it was only a few seconds before his khaki tunic was charred and his flesh sizzling. For more than a mile he galloped with the heavy piece of artillery under his left arm, fighting with his right as long as his cartridges lasted. Not until he was back in his own lines did Holland lay down his burden. For this they gave him his V.C., an honor won by only two other Canadians.

Lest anyone should think that his courage was momentary and hysterical, it is still given to Holland to perform a feat of valor now and again. That very night as the legislators and newspapermen were boarding their train at the Haileybury depot a crowd of rowdies in liquor attempted a disturbance. Three of them were particularly obnoxious and made overtures for a fight with someone. They got it. Holland was out of the crowd in a moment, laid one man low with an uppercut, seriously disabled another, and rumor says he got a flying kick at the retreating remnant of the insurgents. The callings of troubadour and warrior seem to go hand in hand in the north.

WOES OF THE "BLIND-PIGGER."

Troubles of the Illicit Saloonkeeper Up North.

One of the most exciting pastimes in the north country is "blind-pigging," and according to the skill of the operator can be one of the most profitable or most expensive pursuits in which a man can engage. Where liquor is prohibited mankind establishes a new code of honor and respectability so far as that particular form of law-breaking is concerned, and the man who runs a blind pig, insofar as his goods is pure and his place decent, is quite a valued member of the community. The pains and penalties of the law usually take the form of fines and these come to be looked upon as a sort of license, due to the Government, but in no way shameful. At least this is how the dealer and consumer view the matter.

In Elk Lake the country is fairly honeycombed with "speak-easies," and the citizens of the town are prone to boast that liquor is as easy to get there as if the law had never interfered. You have to be known for a solid citizen of the place or at least a bona fide thirsty man, and you can get your drink at fifteen cents for a glass of beer and the more expensive drinks in proportion, "for, you know, the running expenses are high."

On the day that the legislative party reached Elk Lake the gentlemen with a leaning to beer were woe-begone witnesses of a pitiful sight. Inspector Morrison had arrived from Toronto with an official record of the analysis of about $1,600 worth of beer. The juice had been brought in as harmless two per cent. stuff, but it proved to be about eight per cent. strong and summary treatment was necessary. So it was rolled out on the dock and busy hatchets stove in the heads and amid the subdued moans of the entire population the amber liquid flowed into the lake, and after a swift session the Government found itself several hundred dollars richer in fines.

Just how this particular cargo got into Elk Lake no one but the consignees is very sure. As a general rule, however, such treasonable beverages are brought in over the trail from Charlton on men's backs, and are deposited in caches outside the town, where they are to be found when needed. Sometimes the stuff comes in by river steamer gaily decked forth in "two per cent." labels.

"I keep a restaurant," said a prominent dealer in illicit liquors, discussing his trade, "and I have to keep it to do any business at all. I have given it up recently because of the falling off in receipts. I used to clear $25 a day, but when my revenue dropped to $15 I had to give it up. It didn't pay fines."

"What we need here in Elk Lake is a local court. The cost of bringing a judge from North Bay every time we want to be tried is ruinous. When I am fined $110, twenty-five of it is fine and $85 is costs of the court. If they would spend the money here we wouldn't mind so much, but they take it out of the town. The blind pig-keepers ought to contribute a fine court and a resident judge to the city. It would pay us."

An Incentive to Matrimony.

In the course of his travels up and down through his promised land, Chairman Englehart of the T. & N.O. Commission, is at great pains to get his information first hand. So when he visits the home of a settler he busies himself learning all the difficulties that can be remedied.

One woman near Cochrane is the mother of nine—seven of them boys—and her complaint on one occasion was that there were too many men about the house.

"If I could only marry some of them off, and get them in homes of their own," she cried.

"Well," said Mr. Englehart, "I do not see how I can import wives for them, but if they could make a shift to do with eligible young women at hand I could offer an inducement. When one of your boys decides to get married I will provide him with a wedding tour to North Bay, free of cost."

It was scarcely a week before the commissioner got a letter telling him that one of the redoubtable seven had qualified for the trip. He got the promised transportation for himself and bride. With it Mr. Englehart sent a china tea service, by way of wedding present.

"Done," he said hopefully, as he despatched the parcel, "I have one consolation. Most of them are young yet."

WEALTH OF THE NORTH

NEW WHEAT AREA WILL BE GREAT GRAIN PRODUCER

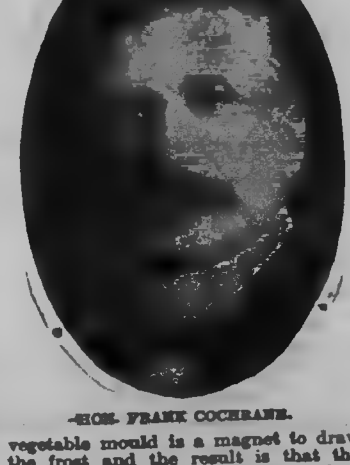
Entire Nature of Country Changes at Height of Land From Barren Wilderness to Rich Farming Area—Cultivation Will Take Out the Surface Water and Lower Temperature Many Degrees.

By devious and fallacious means older Ontario has acquired a peculiar view of the north country. The first charge that has been brought against it is that it is arid and rocky and covered with a stunted growth of brush. This probably arose from the nature of the district immediately north of North Bay. From that town to the northward for many miles, in fact until the height of land is reached, there is a barren area which produces chiefly rock and small evergreens. At Swastika, on the main line of the T. & N. O. where the James Bay slope begins, the appearance of the country changes. The little lakes which were found in the rock basins disappear and in their stead are vast stretches of pine growth on rolling land. The rivers are highly colored by the soil through which they pass and range in color from ruddy brown to gray.

Scientists say that the sub-soil is the result of a huge glacial movement slowly retreating to the north, denuding the rocks and as they melted depositing huge quantities of clay and sand loam, in which as they went farther and farther north fewer and fewer rocks appeared. Over this was later strewn a cap of decayed vegetable matter in the form of a rich mould usually two or three feet in depth. The trees of the clay belt are rarely more than thirty years old, which proves that there have been from time immemorial periodic forest fires which have swept the country, perhaps as frequently as three times a century. The ash and half burned wood have thus added their quota to the fertility of the soil.

Another charge that has been brought against the clay belt is that the season is too short for growing any but the hardiest of vegetables and grains. That the winter is cold at present there is no gainsaying, but it is not so cold as that of Manitoba in the early days of the rush, or even of Ontario three-quarters of a century ago. There is nothing will change the seasons as quickly as cultivation.

What the land needs is to have the mould cap cut and turned over and to have the country properly drained. The water which collects in the vegetable mould is a magnet to draw the frost and the result is that the climate is many degrees colder than the latitude justifies.



HON. FRANK COCHRANE.

That cultivation and drainage will alter the entire climate of the clay belt is shown by the fact that the construction of the railway and the drainage which it has brought has brought up the temperature along the line several degrees in the past winter. At Englehart, where there is a clearing of a few miles in extent the thermometer registers ten degrees less of cold in the town than it does in the woods roundabout.

New Liskeard is another proof of this. While the farmers in the year old and two-year-old districts are struggling with white frost at harvest time the country around New Liskeard is having fine warm weather.

The quality of the produce shown during the legislative tour provoked universal comment. Fine big potatoes of exceptional quality and immense yield were shown at every town in the clay district. Turnips, beets, mangolds and other root crops were equally successful. Peas forty-two inches in height were raised in Englehart, and the barley, wheat, rye, oats and spelt were phenomenal. Beautiful green corn was served to the legislators at New Liskeard. It is probable that hay will be the big crop in the country around the railroad for the next few years. It has been commanding twenty-six dollars a ton from the railway contractors, and there promises to be money in it for the farmer on land where two tons can be raised on an acre.

An interesting fact about the farmers in this country is that they will have none but the best cattle. Fine Herefords are the choice of most, and dairying promises to be a profitable pursuit for many years to come in view of the proximity of the big mining camps. Even now many farmers refuse to sell their surplus stocks of feed but are buying more stock up to their capacity for keeping them.

One thing which the New Ontario settler will have which is unparalleled in the history of Canadian homesteading is the pulp wood. The supply of spruce runs about fifteen cords to the acre and commands this year $3.50 at the track. Now that the uneasiness over the U.S. tariff has been settled the price will rise to something like its earlier figures—it was $5.50 last year. This means that the homesteader can go on the land practically without a cent and find a valuable crop ready for the cutting which may net him from two thousand dollars up. Here is enough to start him farming with a full equipment.

One of the richest districts in the country will be between Earlton and Elk Lake. In here is the Long Lake tract where so many of the South African veterans have located their land. It is a wonderfully rich farming area and is only a few miles from the city of Elk Lake, where there will be a great deal of mining activity and where a good market can always be secured for farm produce. The projected railway will make the district easy of access.

Despite the fact that it has mining areas on both sides of it the Montreal river country which almost parallels the T. & N.O. on the west, this district is not without rich farming lands. The west side of the river is the famous Temagami forest reserve and is therefore withdrawn from settlement, but on the eastern side the silver-bearing rocks are liberally covered by a formation perhaps shallower but every bit as rich as the clay belt proper. Already farmers are finding their way up the river and are building their homes along one of Ontario's most beautiful waterways. The river service will take their produce both north and south into profitable mining camp markets at Latchford and Elk River.

Thornloe and Earlton also are rich districts and the towns on the railway promise to be wealthy farming centres.

The Most Beautiful Bridge.

There will shortly be opened in Switzerland the Wieser viaduct, on the route from Davos to Filisur. It is entirely constructed of stone at a height of 90 meters, or 292½ feet, and has a central arch of 55 meters and six others each of 20 meters, the entire length of the bridge being 175 meters. It is, according to a Paris contemporary, the most beautiful bridge in the world.

The new line of Albula, moreover, presents some other admirable works of great boldness, among which is the Solis bridge, 25 meters in length and at an altitude of 77 meters, upon which the "diligences" stop to enable tourists to admire the beauties of the situation. Then, at 8 meters higher, is a second bridge, that of a railway, about 40 meters in length, which crosses an abyss of 85 meters.—London Globe.

Postal Service Supplies.

Some idea of the quantity of material used by the postal service may be gained when it is stated that during last year the division furnished 925,000,000 yards of twine, 3,280,000 pens, 283,000 penholders, 650,000 pencils and 2,600,000 blank cards. To wrap the bundles 5,400,000 sheets of wrapping paper were used. Blank forms are furnished by the millions. Of the form "Application For Domestic Money Order," which is seen in the lobby of every postoffice, there were 161,770,000 used last year, and during the same period 69,034 rubber stamps were manufactured and supplied to postoffices.—Assistant Postmaster General P. V. De Graw in National Magazine.

BEAUTIFUL SERVICES AT ST. JOHN'S LAST NIGHT

The beautiful harvest festival services of thanksgiving to the Giver of all things, which were conducted in St. John's church last night must have struck a very responding cord in the hearts of all those present. Within the large edifice were many striking evidences that we have indeed received a goodly heritage, and these were augmented by facts and figures in the sermon preached by the Rev. J. H. Teney, rector of St. Philip's, Toronto.

The decorat[illegible] which consisted of fruit flowers [illegible] vegetables, tastefully arranged about the church, made a very pretty spectacle, and the hymns and anthems were appropriate to the occasion.

The service, which was choral [illegible] taken by the Rector and Rev. [illegible] Langfeldt. The hymns, the special prayers and thanksgiving were attuned to the occasion. An unusually large choir contributed in a very excellent way its share to the service.

The sermon was brief and breathed patriotism and gratitude and was timely and appropriate. The text was selected from Deuteronomy VIII, 10: "When thou hast eaten and art full, then shalt thou bless the Lord thy God for the good land [illegible] has given thee." This was a tribute of gratitude from the venerable leader of the Israelit[illegible] of thankfulness for the land which had been given his people. App[illegible] to this country this sentiment shows what unaccounted blessings we enjoy, justifying the exclamation of the Bishop of London, "It's a glorious thing to be alive," especially in Canada so richly endowed with the conditions that make for material comfort and happiness. If the Jews were so loyal and patriotic to their little country, sixty by one hundred and forty miles in area, then Canada, a country which extends 4,000 miles and in which it required an express train seven days at full speed to cover the distance from sea to seas, was a more glorious country and one to be proud of. It was a land where seed time and harvest never failed. To show what we had to be thankful for it was pointed out that in Peterborough with 17,000 people it cost $5,000 for one day's food and maintenance, a million and a half dollars a year. Apply this to the cities, towns, villages and country of seven millions and we should see what bounty Divine Providence bestowed in order to feed the people of this happy country. We reaped from one hundred to one hundred and forty million bush[illegible] this year and when our av[illegible] soil was brought under th[illegible] we would be able to reap a crop that would give five bushels of wheat to every man, woman and child on the earth. Was there another country like this, when we considered in addition to its material aspects, its laws, its liberties, its educational, re[illegible] social advantages? What [illegible] could [illegible] fittingly enter into its mouth the words of the text. It [illegible] suggested that there was a danger that we might forget as the children of Israel had done, the source from which all blessings came should neglect the [illegible] things. Our blessings should [illegible] our gratitude and kindle our devotion to the bountiful Giver of all things. The preacher closed by impressing the duty of gratitude and all that involved, then we should realize the beauty of the 23rd Psalm—"The Lord is my Shepherd; I shall not want."

The services throughout were, speaking humanly, highly successful. The liberal offertory was devoted to Home and Foreign Missions.

What Mr. Griffith Says

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—I wish to say a few words in regard to fence between Mrs. Madden's and Mr. Griffin's, being on the true line, as stated in Tuesday's paper. The block was surveyed a short time ago and the correct line was found to be 27 inches north of the present fence, agreeing with the plans from the registry office. The surveyor drove a stake in so those interested could see where the line should be. The stake was pulled up by Mr. Davidson, Mrs. Madden's son-in-law. Why did he do so, and had he a right to?

FAIR POINT OF ATTRACTION FOR AN IMMENSE CROWD

Grounds Thronged With Strangers and Citizens--Good Races and Grand-stand Performances---Big Programme This Evening.

As an annual fixture of [illegible]fulness and entertainment the [illegible] Fair is gaining [illegible] popularity which [illegible] with the successive [illegible]. The announcements that [illegible] for this year will be the most [illegible]ful yet have proven true each [illegible] with the exhibition under its present capable and energetic Board of Directors.

To-day is the main day of [illegible]. A visit to the different places [illegible] the exhibits have been placed [illegible] enough to satisfy one that [illegible] quality and quantity the [illegible] easily superior [illegible]. In all departments [illegible] evidence of great [illegible] and activity on the part of the exhibitors and nearly all the exhibits this year are increased to a far greater extent than was expected by any of the directors.

The various excursions to the city brought very large crowds and the presence of a multitude of strangers is a feature of the big gathering in attendance. The hotels and restaurants of the city had a red letter day supplying them meals. There was no rush to the grounds this morning as there was nothing of special interest to attract but this afternoon the cars did an immense business and big crowds thronged the park.

The men with the games are endeavoring to attract the fair visitors and the midway people are offering bright promises to prospective patrons.

From the first entrance to the grandstand everything is bright and attractive and the different exhibitors have their wares from pins to ploughs arranged in such a manner that they are displayed to the public to the best advantage.

The main building has a particularly prosperous showing of exhibits this year including excellent representation in the seeds, fruit and vegetable line. The poultry tent has an exhibit much larger than the one last fall and extra pens have had to be made for the sheep and hogs. The horsemen have the accommodation limit with their animals and there are seventy-five horses up town for which there are no stalls. In fact everything is on a big scale this year the word big applying in every way to the attendance and exhibits.

The grand stand performance is one of quality and the races this afternoon proved very interesting to the large audience of spectators. The speeding in the ring events were as follows;

1—Trot or pace, 2.40 class, one mile heats, 3 in 5. Prize $150.

2—Trot or pace, 2.22 class, one mile heats, 3 in 5. Prize $200.

BRILLIANT BILL FOR TO-NIGHT.

To-night the most spectacular and entertaining amusement bill that has ever been arranged for the fair will be given. The grounds will be brilliantly illuminated and the full band of the 57th regiment will provide the musical part of the programme.

The programme in full will be as follows:

FRIDAY EVENING.

Grounds brilliantly illuminated with electric light.

SPECIAL EXHIBITS

Brinton Carpet Co.

One of the prominent exhibits in the main building is made by the Brinton Carpet Company, who use a large space to display their products. They show a small representative range of what they are making in Peterborough, in high-class Axminster, Wilton and Brussels goods. The shades on exhibition are largely green, with the crushed strawberry in design worked into the fabric. With the idea of making helpful suggestions to the public they have carried out some ideas in curtains, fabrics and fabrics for wall coverings, ornamented with [illegible]. These are placed in [illegible]lls, and their effect when harmonized with the carpet and wall color [illegible] decidedly well shown. To many Peterborough people it is a revel[illegible] to discover [illegible] such goods [illegible] manufactured in the city, and it is also an interesting fact to all. The carpets made by the firm are handled locally by three leading carpet houses, Messrs. R. Hall Son, A. W. Cressman and R. Fair & Co. The trade extends to all parts of the Dominion, and the demand for Peterborough carpets is increasing at an encouragingly rapid rate.

Peterboro' Business College

With characteristic enterprise shown by Messrs. Spotton & McKone, proprietors of the Peterborough Business College, they have a noticeable space in the main building, where they are making an exhibit and demonstration of the practical work of their institution. Both typewriters and the wonderful adding machine are shown, and the pupil demonstrates, while blind-folded, the touch typewriting taught in the school, which produces speedy work.

The adding machine is a new feature in a business college, the Peterborough College being the first in Canada to add one of these expensive machines to its equipment. An investment of $425.00 is required to instal one of these machines.

Chatham Vacuum Cleaner

The public are familiar with the exhibition of the Chatham Kitchen Cabinet with its multitude of conveniences and it can again be seen in a handsome ten[illegible] at the main building. This year the exhibit also includes the Chatham Vacuum Cleaner, shown both in hand and motor power styles.

This cleaner takes the dirt out of the carpets right to the floor and gives them a bright new appearance, also cleans curtains and all upholstered furniture perfectly.

Another feature is the fireless cooker which roasts, bakes, fries, boils, steams and stews without fire. Meat is placed in the cooker raw, and as nothing escapes it comes out much more tender and juicy than when cooked by fire. By all means call and see the exhibit.

Mr. G. King, travelling representative is in charge. During the fall he will do house cleaning around town, and orders may be left at 386 1-3 Water street.

The Pedlar People

Something that is rather newer in Peterborough than its merits warrant it should be, is shown in a striking exhibit made by the Pedlar People of Oshawa, the largest manufacturers of metal building material in America. Mr. W. H. Bishop has the exhibit in charge, and is glad to explain the merits of the different lines shown to all who are interested. His principal article is the Oshawa, which is a four lock style, and all nails covered. It is made of galvanized steel, will not rust, and is guaranteed for 25 years. Another noticeable item is the expanded metal lath, which has decided advantages over the old wooden material generally used, and the cost when put on is just about the same thing. Its use allows of considerable less plaster being used, the keying being so much easier to put through the steel lath than the wooden style. It also makes a fireproof wall, which also applies to the metal shingle and a better insurance rate is the result. Many other choices are shown from the long list turned out by the Oshawa factory, not the least being the Pedlar Culvert, metallic walls and ceilings can be bought either direct from the factory or from the trade. The new mill lately put up by the Peterborough Lumber Co., is covered by the Oshawa Shingle. RECEIVED BADLY SPRAINED ANKLE

Mr. Art Bell of Nassau Was thrown Out of Waggon Horses Became Frightened

Mr. Arthur Bell, who resides on his farm, a short distance east of Nassau, met with a painful accident Wednesday afternoon, while driving his spirited team of horses. Mr. Bell and his father were driving past the house, just as a rain storm commenced. He called to Mrs. Bell for his rain coat, and while he was in the act of receiving the coat from his wife the horses became frightened and dashed away. The wagon was overbalanced and both occupants were thrown out against a fence. Mr. Bell received a badly-sprained ankle and was also badly shaken up. His father did not receive any serious injuries. This is the second misfortune Mr. Bell has been called upon to bear within a short time, his home being destroyed by fire several months ago.

The Younger Set

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS,

Author of "The Fighting Chance," Etc.

Copyright, 1907, by Robert W. Chambers

TO-MORROW the Review commences the publication of a new serial "The Younger Set," from the pen of that gifted author, Robert W. Chambers. Have you read "The Fighting Chance," "The Firing Line," and "The Danger Mark"? If you have read one Chambers story you do not have to be urged to read his other books. "The Younger Set" is by many considered his masterpiece. Do not miss it. The first installment will appear in the Review to-morrow and a generous portion of the fascinating tale will be published each day. The securing of "The Younger Set" means a treat for readers of the Review.

Interwoven with this fine, gripping story of a splendid girl and a real Man—one of the most charming love stories of recent years—are the author's views of some of the problems of Society. Divorce, gambling, marital unhappiness, are here treated as they enter into the lives of men and women possessed of wealth and social position. If the writer seems harsh in his characterization of the older members of the "smart set," he is tender and hopeful in his views of the incoming generation. In the "younger set," according to him, lies certain hope of regeneration of the wealthy and fashionable world. As he sees those who will sit on the thrones of power, their hands are clean, their hearts are pure, their ideas and aspirations are worthy. When they shall take their mature places in Society's ranks, it will acquire a new tone and a better and worthier view of life and its problems and responsibilities than now prevail.

Nothing Too Good

WE have had over ten years experience in supplying Toric Lenses to our most particular patrons. This form of lens is increasingly popular in all the large cities of America and especially in the United States, where the manufacturers have large capital and the best facilities for turning out accurate work. We are particular to have only the best, and judging from the increased number which we now supply, we deem our care in this regard is appreciated. There is nothing too good for the eye.

PEARY CLIQUE ARE AFRAID COOK MAY PROVE CLAIM

Supporters of Second Pole Discoverer Are Making Every Effort to Discredit Dr. Cook and His Backers—Trying to Prove Bradley a Gambler.

New York, Sept. 18.—The exploiters of the Commander Peary news, which has so frankly and openly characterized Dr. Cook's assertion that he had discovered the north pole as a lie, and that Peary could prove it, are beginning to fear that Peary's proof will not be forthcoming.

Then too, they take due cognizance of the dignified manner in which Dr. Cook has received such reports.

Their discomfort is apparent in several ways. Their agents throughout the country have been ordered to search the records and wire anything that would tend to show that E. R. Bradley, Cook's backer, was a former gambler, or was run out of Fort Worth, Texas, and ruled off or barred from racing his horses on several American tracks. They are also endeavoring to show that Bradley advanced ten thousand dollars to equip and provide for the expedition on a "gamble" that he would realise a quarter of a million dollars on Cook's lecture tour.

These, with other facts, the Metropolitan Press learns, are being collected for a grand attack on Dr. Cook, and his backer. The object is obviously apparent.

Nor is despair alone depicted in this quarter. The Peary Arctic Club, of which Peary is a member, have taken steps to organize a reception for the explorer, and many of their members are said to be opposed to the stand that Peary has taken. They do not believe he can disprove Cook's claims.

LITTLE SON GIVES CLUE TO THE NANAIMO MURDER

Nanaimo, B.C., Sept. 18.—"I know who killed my papa, and I know who my next papa will be," was the reply made by the six-year-old son of the murdered man, Gus Carlson, when told that his father was dead.

This, together with information secured during an interview of several hours' by Sergeant Murray, of the provincial police, with Annie Hoult, a sister of Mrs. Carlson, was the cause yesterday morning of Constables Keen and Cassidy driving to South Wellington, a suburb of this city, and returning with a man named Holmes, aged 20. He at one time boarded with the Carlson family, but who was ejected from the house by Carlson, who threatened to kill him if he caught him on the premises again.

Holmes will probably be charged with murder, and Mrs. Carlson with being his accomplice. Mrs. Carlson is weak physically, and could not possibly have herself carried out the murder.

ENDS LIFE WITH RAZOR

Woodstock, Sept. 18.—Wm. Sutherland, an esteemed citizen, committed suicide in Lindsay's Grove, just south of the city limits, yesterday by cutting his throat with a razor.

The deceased left his home on Francis street about 8 o'clock yesterday morning, telling his folks that he was going for a stroll. As he did not return, his family became anxious and friends were sent in all directions. About three o'clock Mrs. Goodall, a neighbor, found Sutherland under a tree with a gash in his throat. She notified Chief Thompson and he and the coroner proceeded to the spot. Sutherland was quite dead. He was about 55 years of age, had been in poor health for some time and was out of work.

LOCAL OPTION AT BRANTFORD

Brantford, Sept. 18.—Representing the Citizen's League, Henry Yeigh, W. G. Banton, Rev. F. J. Maxwell yesterday petitioned the City Council asking for the submission of a local option bylaw at the next municipal elections. The bylaw will receive the necessary readings Monday next, as the aldermen—11 to 4—were elected on the league ticket.

For a clumsy forgery, Albert Taylor, aged 19, was sentenced to six months in the Central Prison here yesterday. He had a check for $4.50 and added the numeral "1," securing $14.50 at the Bank of Hamilton.

THE WHISKEY WAS UNDER STRENGTH

Guelph, Sept. 18.—Despite the fact that they swore that their Imperial whiskey was as it had been sold to them when sealed, and that it had not been changed or adulterated in any way, and despite the fact that their story was believed by the court, J. Zinger of Four Corners, and W. W. Beitz, of the Imperial Hotel, were yesterday fined $20 and costs each for selling whiskey not up to the standard of the label on the bottle of 22 under proof.

The whiskey was analyzed at 24 under proof, or better than the best barrel goods. According to the law, Magistrate Saunders said he was absolutely precluded from giving any other verdict.

"The law is a hardship on you, I believe," said his worship, "but I can do nothing but convict. I would like to see steps taken to have the law changed. The certificate of the analysis is absolute evidence, under the law, and apparently your only protection would be to test the whiskey before selling it."

LORD BERESFORD IN NEW YORK

New York, Sept. 18.—Admiral Lord Charles Beresford was the guest of honor yesterday at a luncheon given at the Lawyers' Club under the auspices of the Pilgrims of the United States. In a brief address Lord Beresford took occasion to refer to the European situation. He remarked that as far as Great Britain was concerned the situation looked somewhat "red ahead."

He added that in view of this situation, there was nothing else to do but for the nation to come forward with a great scheme of Imperial defence.

"What we want," continued the admiral, "is that we shall hold what we have. Supremacy at sea means life or death for the British Empire."

MUTILATED THE CORPSE

Toronto Man Charged With Cutting Head From Body for Evidence.

Toronto, Sept. 18.—Charged with mutilating the body of his son-in-law, Frank Anthony, of 543 West Adelaide street, an employe of the Gurney Foundry Co., was yesterday arrested by Provincial Constable Hughes of Orangeville, and taken to that town on the 4.45 C.P.R. train.

The warrant was issued by James Pattullo, police magistrate of Orangeville.

The circumstances which led to Anthony's arrest arose from the result of a trial in Orangeville last spring At the assizes Jeremiah Morrison, proprietor of the Dufferin House, who had for his counsel H. L. Drayton, K.C., of Toronto, was sued for damages by Mrs. Wm. Gray for the death of her husband, which she alleged was due to severe treatment at the hands of the hotelkeeper. The jury rendered a verdict in favor of the defendant.

Evidence in the case was given by Drs. James and T. H. Henny, who performed the postmortem on the body of Wm. Gray, and after the trial the remains were interred.

Anthony states that a couple of days after the trial he obtained an order from Thomas Stevenson, J.P., to exhume the body and for the purpose of obtaining expert evidence so that Mrs. Gray might appeal against the verdict of the jury had the head brought to Toronto for examination. The wound, which Mrs. Gray alleges to have caused his death, was inflicted on the head. Gray died last fall, months after he had received the alleged injury.

The head is still in Toronto and the trunk in the grave at Orangeville.

FRUIT GROWERS ELECT OFFICERS

St. Catharines, Sept. 18.—Delegates to the American Pomological Convention concluded with a trip through the Niagara fruit district yesterday afternoon, visiting several farms near Queenston and on the lake and river road to and from old Niagara. To-day they will conclude by a visit to the Experimental Farm at Guelph.

Officers were elected as follows: President, L. A. Goodman, Kansas City, Mo.; first vice-president, T. V. Munsen, Denison, Texas; chairman of executive, C. L. Watrous, DesMoines, Iowa; chairman general fruit committee, S. A. Beach, Ames, Iowa; secretary, John Craig, Ithica, N.Y.; treasurer, L. R. Taft, Agricultural College, Michigan; assistant secretary, L. B. Judson, Ithica, N.Y.; executive committee, C. L. Watrous, Des-Moines, Iowa; W. Barry, Rochester, N.Y.; C. W. Garfield, Grand Rapids, Mich.; C. L. Tabor, Glen St. Mary, Fla.; W. T. Macoun, Ottawa.

FALSE TEETH CAUSED DEATH

Ottawa, Sept. 18.—At the inquest on the body of Edward Keating, who was supposed to have been electrocuted at the fair grounds Thursday in endeavoring to pull down the Nasser airship, which had become entangled in electric wires, it developed that Keating could have been revived had he not swallowed an upper set of false teeth.

Nasser's assistant, who was resuscitated, received a heavier voltage than did Keating.

TEN THOUSAND PEOPLE VISITED PETERBOROUGH FAIR YESTERDAY

Receipts for the Day Totalled $2,000, Which Established New Record--Immense Crowd Both Afternoon and at Night---Everybody Happy.

Gymnasts and Acrobats and Mlle. Leo's Trained Dogs Provided Superior Vaudeville.

Manœuvres by 24th Field Battery a Feature of the Evening Performance —Fair Surpasses Expectations.

The receipts at the Peterborough Fair yesterday totalled $2,000. This breaks all previous records, in fact it is doubtful if the gate receipts for the whole exhibition ever totalled so much before. Early in the afternoon it was seen that the crowd was going to be a record-breaking one, and when the receipts had been totalled up at six o'clock it was found that a little over $1,200 had been taken in. This made everyone happy.

"The night show is good for $500," said President Leary, which shows that the genial president, while a good man to have at the head of the fair, is a poor guesser. The receipts at night were very close to $800, the grandstand alone bringing in $250. This brought the total receipts for the day up to $2,0000.

Two thousand dollars in receipts means that ten thousand people visited the fair yesterday. This is also a record.

There were 6,500 present in the afternoon and 3,500 at night.

Of all the fairs that have been held in Peterborough, the one this year occupies the premier place in every respect. Yesterday was the principal day of the exhibition, and a panorama of the crowd from the judges' stand or any other place of vantage was sufficient to assure one that the army of spectators was one that established precedent in the matter of attendance. Incoming trains brought hundreds of visitors from neighboring points to the city, and southbound cars and other vehicles were all bound for the one place—the fair grounds. And all who attended were enthusiastic in pronouncing the exhibition one of great interest, and were highly pleased and satisfied with the big bill of fare, with its many courses that was served up to an expectantly hungry public.

The system and thoroughness of the directors in their multitudinous arrangements was very evident in the way all the details of the fair were carried out. They have every reason to be congratulated on the success of the fair, both from the standpoint of the public, the exhibitors, and the men who had space reserved on the grounds. The latter did such a business that they will have every reason to speak of the Peterborough Fair as a big and good-money exhibition.

The ice cream cone syndicate found such a thriving trade that the demand exceeded the supply, while the man with the "ocean wave" did such a business that he must have imagined he was taking in the day's proceeds of an ocean liner.

The pens, poultry tent, and main building attracted many interested sight-seers and experts in various lines of exhibits and the races and grandstand performance drew thousands of spectators. The grandstand held one of the biggest, if not the biggest crowd, that has ever honored its benches, and those who didn't seek the accommodation provided there swarmed the field and track. There was quite a congestion on the track at the end of each special attraction, and some difficulty was found in getting the course clear before the races started. The city and special constables did good work, however, in relieving the situation, and no inconvenience or accidents resulted.

A slight mishap occurred in front of the grandstand in the afternoon, when Mr. Jos. Staples, of Ida, had his buggy somewhat damaged by colliding with another vehicle, but this was not due in any way to an overcrowded track.

EXCELLENT RACES.

The two classes, the 2.40 and the 2.22 brought out big and well matched fields for the speeding in the ring events. In both classes the sport was exciting and very much appreciated by the spectators. There were mixed heats in the 2.22, which made it necessary to have an additional one, Holland Boy winning the last three of the four in splendid performances. Holland Boy is 24 years old, and displayed remarkable form and staying powers for a horse that has seen as many racing seasons as he has. He showed a fast, clean-going race yesterday and came under the wire in each heat with lots to spare. Bourbon Brooks managed to annex the first mile, thus qualifying for second place, regardless of the results of the other heats.

In the 2.22 the superiority of the Keswick stock was shown when Lou Keswick, owned by A. J. Ashmore, of Lindsay, took the first money in straight heats. Keswick stepped in great fashion and never looked in danger of losing the leading position at the finish of any of the heats. Jennie Hal was a nice second, also getting the place in successive heats. The race was a classy one and appealed to the crowd, which were very enthusiastic at the finish of this as well as the other heats.

Holland Boy was greeted with loud cheers in the 2.40, when he pounded down the stretch in the last heat in the van of the field of six steppers a winner of the heat and race.

The races were well looked after by the judges, who got the drivers into their places with as little delay as possible, and insisted on the starters getting away in clean fashion. As is common in all races there was the tendency of some of the drivers to score ahead of the pole horses from the advantage that might be gained if the men in the sulky could have gotten away with it, but a damper was put on any tendency for these too ambitious starters, when the man up for Queen's Bourbon was fined $5 for the offence.

The races were interesting and well conducted and the management is to be commended on their success. Dr. Sinclair, of Cavan, made a very efficient starter.

SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS.

The Park Booking Company, of New York, is responsible for the furnishing of the splendid vaudeville features of the fair, which were superior this yyear to the grandstand show of any previous season. The work of the seven acrobats was finished and clever, and the trained dogs and monkeys with Mlle. Celina de Leo got away with stunts which delighted and surprised the crowd and showed the canine artists to be unusually well trained and confident doggies.

The tumbler-gymnasts made their first appearance and did some very fine work in difficult groupe formation and balancing, and then later loosened up in an interesting and skilful acrobatic turn.

The trained animals, which, by the way included an educated monkey, caught the fancy of the children, and won the applause of the grown folks also. The four-footed entertainers did seemingly impossible tricks, and besides demonstrating their wonderful sagacity, provided no end of comedy by their amusing capers.

The dogs did almost everything but talk and turned flip-flaps and trick somersaults, and executed other difficult acrobatic stunts that amazed and astonished the big audience.

Music was given by the 57th Regimental Band during the afternoon and the band played a bright programme. Mr. Joseph Halpany asked the crowd to not take him home in Harry Von Telzer's tuneful comedy song, and they thought so much of it they insisted on him staying for a cordial encore.

An event that made the people laugh was ex-Mayor Yelland's dog race. A couple of over ambitious canines made the circuit ahead of the signal, there drivers being unable to control them at the start, and the dog that finished in the lead in the first lap proved a regular Dan Patch claim for initial honors in the second half against fresh competitors.

SCENES IN THE COUNTRY OF MOORISH INSURRECTION.

PLUCKY WOMAN CAUGHT BURGLAR

Vancouver, Sept. 17.—Coming home from a shopping trip with her arms loaded with bundles, Miss Nelson opened her front door to see a pair of stockinged feet attempting to hide from view. Without the least hesitation the woman dropped her packages and grappled with the man, who struggled desperately to get free. She proved the stronger and finally marched her prisoner out to the sidewalk, where she hailed a passing man.

"Hold this man till I call the police," said the woman.

"Anything to accommodate you, madame," replied the man, but just what transpired between the man and his captive is unknown. When the lady returned after informing the police, both were gone.

CORONER'S JURY SAYS SCOTT SHOOTING WAS JUSTIFIABLE

Investigation Into Death of Harvey Scott Results in Verdict That Woman's Deed Was in Self-Defence—Woman Had Hard Life.

London, Ont., Sept. 18.—"That Harvey Scott came to his death on the 13th day of September, 1909, by a shot fired from a revolver in the hands of Mrs. Wesley Scott in justifiable defence."

The above was the verdict of the coroner's jury which met at Thorndale to enquire into the cause of the death of the late Harvey Scott, who was shot on Monday morning last.

The hall was crowded to the doors. At first it was the intention to use a smaller hall, but many were present who could not be accommodated by the smaller one, and a collection was taken up in the crowd to pay for the bigger place.

Wesley Scott, the husband of the woman now under arrest on a charge of murder, gave some of the most important evidence. His father owned the house in which he lived. He worked on the farm and received a salary of $130 per year. He ate his meals at his father's house, while his wife was left to get her own. This state of affairs has existed for years, he said.

To a question as to whether or not his wife's meals were sometimes pretty scant, he said that he was not there to see.

"Father was a man of very violent temper," said the witness. Many times he had abused the witness' wife, threatening to strike her. He also used vile language, so vile, the witness said, that it could not have been worse. He knew that his father had made improper proposals to his wife, as she had complained to him. His wife was much afraid of him, and he was, too, as on many occasions he had ran away when his father was after him.

The day before the shooting the old man hit him with a pail and then went to hit him with a club, but he ran away and the old man threw the club after him. He showed the jury marks where his father had struck him.

On different occasions he said his father had come down to his place with a gun and fired at his dog and chickens.

Mrs. Harvey Scott, widow of the deceased, told of hearing Mrs. Wesley Scott and her husband quarreling shortly before the shooting.

"I did not pay much attention to them as I did not want to be mixed up in their quarrels," she said.

She later went to the son's house, some time after the shot was fired. She asked "who did this?" and the reply she received was, "I did it. He is out of the road, and I'll be out of the road, too. You can all have your money now."

Joseph Vining, a neighbor and the first to know anything of the shooting, said that he was called by Mrs. Wesley Scott. She was on the road. She told him to go to the house and he would see what was the matter. This was in answer to his query of what was the matter.

MR. ASQUITH WANTS FIGHT

Issues Challenge to House of Lords — Suffragettes Throw Toy Bombs and Cut up Generally

Birmingham, Sept. 19.—Mr. Asquith, the Premier, last night addressed a great budget demonstration here. He declared that the House of Lords was impotent in finance, and that the Liberals were eager for a fight should the House of Lords venture to reject the budget.

The meeting was remarkable because of the frenzied behavior of the suffragettes, who threw top bombs and wielded axes during the proceedings. Two of the women climbed to the roof of a building adjacent to Bingley Hall, where the meeting was held, and loosened tiles and bricks with axes and pelted the police below. Several persons were hurt. The suffragettes threw missiles which smashed windows in the train in which Premier Asquith was departing from the city after the meeting. Several of them were arrested.

LONDON GRANT IS CANCELLED

Ottawa, Sept. 18.—The Canada Gazette gives notice of a cancellation of a reservation of 92,000 acres of land to the Peace River Colonization & Land Development Co.

Under the terms of an order-in-council of July 27, 1900, it was required that the company would place 1,200 settlers on homesteads within the tract. Fifty were to be located within three years after the survey, and 100 within each succeeding five years. Four years later conditions were changed, the company being given twenty years in which to locate the settlers, who were to be given free homesteads.

The company having failed to comply with the conditions of the lease the Minister of the Interior decided that it would be in the public interest to cancel the grant.

FEARED SOME OF THEM WILL DIE

Cobourg, Ont., Sept. 18.—At a barn-raising on the premises of Matthew Linton, near Plainville, a pole which supported a scaffolding gave way, and fifteen men fell thirty feet to the floor below, the scaffolding falling upon them. Two sixteen foot timbers, ten by ten, also crashed.

Six men were badly injured, all well-known citizens of Hamilton Township. Hampton Minifie has a broken nose and ribs and other injuries; Archie Bowman, ankle sprained, cut about the head; Richard Nelson, terribly bruised and otherwise injured; Charles Jibb, head cut, and internal injuries feared; Harry Brisbin, bad cut in back of head; Mr. Austen, school teacher, arm broken.

Others who fell were injured, but not seriously. Drs. Irwin and Field were called from Cobourg to attend the men.

Frost Kills Corn.

Chatham, Sept. 18.—The recent heavy frosts have done immense damage to the corn in Kent.

Out through the Townships of Howard and Orford, the corn has all been dried up and in many of the fields not a green leaf is to be seen.

In some parts of the county the corn has matured, and is being cut, but in the majority of cases the corn had not yet matured. As corn is the principle feed for the Kent County hogs the early frost is a most serious misfortune.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

The abdication of the King of Greece is regarded as inevitable.

Sixty thousand men are engaged in the fall manoeuvres of the French army.

Bishop McCloskey of Kentucky, the oldest Catholic bishop in the United States, is dead.

Mansell Reese was killed and another man badly injured by the fall of part of a mine roof at Coal Creek.

Dr. J. Mark Baldwin, formerly of Toronto University, has been appointed head of the Mexican National University, with practical supervision of the national system of education.

The Attorney-General of Quebec has ordered an investigation into the death of Joseph Silloux of St. Andre Argentine, Que., who was shot dead while in company with one Sailerman.

Coroner Scott and the police are trying to discover the identity of the person who threw a shoe-box containing the body of a murdered baby from a train near Niagara University on Thursday afternoon.

Several Methodist district meetings have passed resolutions regretting the granting of a charter to the Metropolitan Racing Association, and calling for an amendment to the criminal code governing race-track gambling.

A tree only five inches thick, blown across the Great Northern tracks on one of the switchbacks on the Granby Mine Hill, near Phoenix, B.C., caused an accident Thursday night which resulted in the instant death of Roderick Olsen, aged 22, fireman, and the death, after a few hours' suffering, of Engineer John Lobner, aged 25.

LITTLE YORK IS ABANDONED

Toronto, Sept. 18.—An employes' special will be inaugurated on Monday next by the Grand Trunk to carry trainmen residing in East Toronto to and from Mimico.

A conference of the officials was held yesterday, and it was decided that owing to the suddenness of the move of the yards from Little York to Mimico it would only be fair to the men effected who have their homes in East Toronto to give them free and rapid transportation to and from their work.

It is understood that this will only be a temporary arrangement, and that the men will be asked to move to Mimico or Belleville wherever their work is located. It is quite probable that the majority of the men will be moved to Belleville, as it is proposed to make that city the main switching point.

Grand Trunk officials announce that East Toronto has been definitely abandoned.

THE IRISH BILL PASSES COMMONS

London, Sept. 18.—The Irish Land Bill which was introduced in Parliament on March 30 by Augustine Birrell, Chief Secretary for Ireland, passed through its final stage in the House of Commons yesterday by a vote of 174 to 51.

The House of Lords probably will pass the measure after modifying the clauses regarding compulsory acquisition of land.

Mortgage bonds and debentures of the railroads of the U. S. and Canada, Mexico and the Argentine, as well as the funds of all foreign Governments were included in the list of securities in which the trustees of estates purchased from life tenants under the Irish land bill may be [illegible] invest this purchase [illegible]

LATE NEWS FROM MANY LOCALITIES

Postal Employe Pardoned.

Kingston, Sept. 18.—Bishop of Ottawa, a former postoffice employe, released from penitentiary after serving six months of a three years' term for opening letters, was pardoned because of the discrepancy in terms given others for like offences.

In Ottawa, another offender was sentenced to only three months in jail by Magistrate O'Keefe, who, it seems, was away when young Bishop was sent up by another magistrate. An employe in Lindsay for a somewhat similar offence was in jail only an hour.

It was considered that Bishop had been too severely punished altogether, as compared to the punishment given others, and the Justice Department decided to free him.

Building Falls, Two Workmen Killed.

Chicago, Sept. 18.—By the collapse of the three-storey brick building at North Sawyer and Milwaukee avenues yesterday, two men were killed and twenty were seriously injured.

Editor Guilty of Libel.

St. John, N.B., Sept. 18.—After having been out for more than two hours, the jury in the case of Bruce McDougall, publisher of "Free Speech," accused of defamatory libel, found the prisoner guilty on four counts.

Want Canal Dredged.

Kingston, Sept. 18.—There is an agitation to have Wolfe Island canal dredged out and reopened for navigation. The canal, about three miles long, used to be six feet. It was dug sixty years ago, and used till 1890.

Fire at Metcalfe.

Metcalfe, Ont., Sept. 18.—About 11.30 Thursday night fire started in the stables of James Simpson, and spread to Simpson's general store, the postoffice and Simpson's dwelling and Weaver's bakery.

Canadian Service to Mexico.

Ottawa, Sept. 18.—The contract between the Government and the Elder-Dempster Steamship Co. for a mail and freight service between Canada and Cuba and Mexico has expired, but it will be renewed.

Meanwhile an application is now before the Government for an all-the-year round service between St. John, N.B., and the West Indies and Mexico. The present line runs from Montreal in summer and Halifax in winter.

Effects of Imperial Preference.

Washington, D.C., Sept 18.—The imports from the United States into New Zealand fell off nearly 48 per cent., during the first quarter of 1909 as compared with the first quarter of 1908, attributable almost entirely to the action of the preferential tariff.

$2,000 Refund of Conscience Money.

Ottawa, Sept. 18.—The groanings of an uneasy conscience has resulted in a considerable addition to the Federal exchequer.

The Minister of Finance yesterday acknowledge the receipt of $2,000 "conscience" money.

Orville Wright's High Flight.

Berlin, Sept. 18.—Orville Wright, flying in his aeroplane here yesterday in the presence of the Empress, Princess Louise, Prince Adelbert and Prince Augusta broke the record for high flight. He attained a height of 765 feet.

Why Rosebery Left Liberals.

London, Sept. 18.—In a preface which ex-Premier Lord Rosebery has written in a pamphlet reproducing his Glasgow speech, he declares that it is untrue that he left the Liberal party. On the contrary, the Liberal party left him and went ahead with alarming velocity and made a new brand for the party at every general election.

Two Stratford Runaways.

Stratford, Sept. 18.—Two Stratford boys, Russell Stewart and Roy Pitcher, aged 15 and 12 respectively, ran away from home Thursday. It is thought their objective point may have been Toronto, where the police have been communicated with.

U. S. Treasurer Resigns.

Washington, Sept. 18.—United States Treasurer Charles H. Treat has resigned from that office to take effect in October.

Perjury Charge Fails.

Brockville, Sept. 18.—The prosecution failed in the remaining two charges of perjury preferred against Fred Howarth and Newell T. Service for swearing to alleged false affidavits by which the local option bylaw, passed in the Township of Escott last May, was quashed. The prisoners in their declaration had affirmed that Alex. Kirkwood had accompanied one Cornelius McAvor into the booth and showed him how to vote. Kirkwood swore that the statement was false, and the officers in charge of the poll upheld his story to the extent of saying he was not present at the time McAvor voted. The evidence was conflicting, the defence witnesses holding that Kirkwood did enter the poll with the voter and instructed him how to mark his ballot for the measure.

Squirrels as Gluttons.

I once came upon several squirrels in a good feasting on the fragments left by a large picnic party. They had gorged themselves so much that I could easily have caught them as they flopped up the trees nearest. They looked as though they had been finishing the dregs of the beer bottles as well as eating the cakes and other things.—Edinburgh Scotsman.

MY LADY DAFFODIL.

How She Happened to Wear Her Yellow Gown That Night.

By VIRGINIA BLAIR.

[Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

In Miss Priscilla's garden there was a clump of daffodils.

"I am going to pick all of them," said Judy Perkins, who was Miss Priscilla's niece.

"Please don't, Judy," said Miss Priscilla faintly.

"Why not?"

"Because," was Miss Priscilla's woman's reason.

Judy looked at her. "Tell me," she urged. "You are blushing, and you can't have any secrets from me, Aunt Pris."

Miss Priscilla beamed. It was such a new delight to be bossed by this beautiful being who had come all the way from Europe to the little country village to see for the first time her father's sister.

"Tell me," Judy repeated and drew the little lady down beside her on the garden bench.

Judy listened intently while Miss Priscilla stammered out her little romance. "So you and he always sat on this bench by the daffodil bed, and you wore a little yellow dimity gown, and he called you 'My Lady Daffodil?'"

"Yes." Miss Priscilla's voice was dreamy. "And he used to quote some verses that ended:

"And then my heart with pleasure fills
And dances with the daffodils."

"Why didn't you marry him?" Judy murmured.

"There was a misunderstanding," Miss Priscilla said, "and he went away, and I haven't heard from him since, and that was twenty years ago."

Judy enveloped the shabby black figure in a big hug. "Dear Aunt Pris," she said, "and you have been alone and lonely all these years, while I have been having a good time."

"You couldn't know," Miss Priscilla said, "that after father and mother died I invested all of my money in a mining scheme that failed."

"No; we didn't know," Judy said, "and you have scrimped and saved and gone without pretty things while I have simply squandered piles of money on gowns."

"The one you have on is a beauty," Miss Priscilla said. "You look like a rose."

Judy laughed. "The rose and the daffodil," she sang. "We belong in your garden, Aunt Pris."

"Miss Priscilla," said some one from the other side of the fence, "may I have a rose from your garden?"

"I told you last night you couldn't, Bobbie," Judy retorted.

"Don't quarrel," Miss Priscilla expostulated. "Come up presently and have lunch with me."

As she left them Judy stood looking after the slender, old fashioned figure. "Did she ever tell you about the daffodils, Bobbie?"

"No."

"He was her lover and he went away—and his name is Constantius Mercer."

"Do you know," Bobbie said, "there's a man at the hotel named Mercer—C. Mercer?"

Judy grasped his hands across the fence. "Bobbie, boy," she said, "suppose it should be the same one—and suppose he is coming back here to look up Aunt Pris."

"She must have changed awfully in that time," Bobbie said. "She—she isn't very pretty now, you know, Judy."

"She's beautiful," Judy said defiantly. "Her hair is lovely and her eyes"—

"Constantius is probably old and bald and ugly—but of course that doesn't count."

"Well, one doesn't exactly look for beauty in a man"—

"If one did one might be disappointed," Judy murmured pointedly. Then she went on, "If it is Constantius he'll probably be over this evening, Bobbie."

"Why."

"Because she said he always came at twilight, and—and lovers don't forget such things, Bobbie."

"Don't they?" Bobbie demanded with some interest. "Will you remember that I always came at high noon in time for lunch, Judy?"

"Aunt Pris," Judy said a little later when they were at lunch, "I'm going to get the dinner tonight and I want it late. Bobbie's coming and I'm going to put on style."

Bobbie looked up in amazement, but Judy's eye warned him. "You are to come at 7:30," she said. "I want to show you what a fine cook I am."

After Bobbie left Miss Priscilla protested.

"Please," Judy began, "let me get the dinner and—and I want to dress you up and have you play lady for once in your life. You are going to wear a pretty gown tonight," Judy said decidedly. "Come on upstairs and choose one, Aunt Pris."

Once in Judy's room that enthusiastic maiden dumped on the bed a dozen gowns before she found the one she sought.

"There," she said at last, as she took down a fluttering fluffy thing of pale yellow chiffon. "Put that on and see how you look, Aunt Pris."

"Oh, my dear," Miss Priscilla protested, But Judy commanded, and soon Miss Priscilla was incased in the wonderful gown.

"But your hair's wrong," Judy decided and pulled out hairpins and curled and patted and puffed the shining brown locks into a wonderful coiffure—topped with a gold comb.

"Why, it's just the way I used to wear it," Miss Priscilla said.

"And now you are to take a book and go down to the garden seat and stay there until I call you to dinner."

A half hour later Bobbie appeared at the kitchen door.

"Judy," he said in an awed voice, "I didn't know clothes could make such a difference."

"What?" asked Judy, abstracted. She was deep in the mysteries of mayonnaise.

"Miss Priscilla is down by the daffodil bed in a yellow gown, and she looks like a girl with her hair done that way. And Constantius is headed for the garden. He is a good looking old duffer, Judy."

"I hope he has piles of money," Judy said.

"I'll run back and dress," Bobbie said. "But I wish you'd let me get the Lady of the Roses if he gets My Lady Daffodil, Judy."

"Go 'way," said Judy, but her eyes were kind.

There were golden shadows across the grass as Bobbie went toward the gate, and Miss Priscilla's gown made a spot of gold in the dusky corner where the daffodils grew. And at the gate Bobbie met Constantius, but the man scarcely bowed. His eyes were on that golden spot in the dusky corner.

"My Lady Daffodil," he said softly.

Miss Priscilla turned, started up, and her eyes were like stars.

"Connie"— she gasped, and then Bobbie fled.

And when he crept back later he found shades on the silver candlesticks.

He produced a great bunch of daffodils and Judy put them in a silver bowl in the center of the table.

"Judy, this is my old friend Constantius Mercer," said a happy voice.

Constantius held Judy's hand and looked down at her. "Priscilla and I have been wondering how you happened to make her wear that yellow gown today."

"A little bird told me you were at the hotel."

"A little bird?"

"Bob-o-link," said Bobbie from the other side of the table.

"Oh," and Constantius grasped the other's hand. "I told you I knew Miss Perkins?"

"Yes," said Bobbie, "and I told Judy, and thereby hangs the tale."

But Constantius was not listening—hand in hand with Miss Priscilla he was looking at the daffodils that nodded under the golden light.

And Judy, watching the old lovers, turned her eyes presently on her young lover and then her hand went out to him and behind the backs of the others he bent and kissed her.

Willing, but Helpless.

"Shave," was all he said, and he snapped it out as if he wanted to be let alone during the operation.

"You oughter have a hair cut, sir. Needs it badly," said the barber.

"No; I want a shave," said the man.

Everything was quiet for the next few minutes, and the barber scraped away. Then, the bristles removed, the barber ran his hands through his hair, preparatory to combing it. That seemed to remind him of something.

"Hair's getting thin, sir. Shall I put on some follicular freshener?" he inquired.

"No!" snapped the man.

The barber fussed about some more and then, "Try a facial massage—just what you need," he said.

"No; I only want the shave," said the man firmly.

This appeared to get past the barber, for as he was flirting with the combs and brushes and looking over the customer's cranial development he remarked in a friendly and kindly tone, just as if the idea had that moment occurred to him, "You oughter have your hair cut, sir."

The tired man's patience was all gone now. "Hang it," he exclaimed, "if you are so anxious to cut somebody's hair, why don't you cut your own? It's four times as long as mine."

Sadly the barber looked at himself in the glass. His locks were best described by the mid-Victorian terms "ambrosial and umbrageous."

"If I could I would," he answered.—New York Press.

To Was or Not to Was.

"Dear me, now!" exclaimed the nervous old lady with the seventeen packages and the parrot, bound for Cockle-on-the-Shell. "What did the guard say was the next station? Did he say Cockle-on-the-Shell?"

"Excuse me," remonstrated the girl from Girton. "You mean what is the next station. It's still a station, you know."

"You're wrong, madam," interposed an octogenarian. "What is was, isn't it?"

"Is is was?" asked the Girton girl sharply.

"Don't be ridiculous!" snapped the nervous old lady. "Was may be is. But if was was is, then is isn't is or was wasn't was." She passed her hand across her fevered brow. "If was is, was is was, isn't it?" she continued. "But if is is was, then"—

"Listen!" interposed a fifth. "Is is, was was, was was was, is is is."

"Oh, well, anyway," cried the old lady. "Is the next station my station—Cockle-on-the-Shell?"

"No, madam," replied the octogenarian. "But it was. We have just gone by it."—London Scraps.

A Candid Retrospect.

"Why are you in this prison, my friend?" asked the philanthropist.

"It was the result of my own folly."

"In what way were you foolish?"

"I didn't employ the right kind of a lawyer for my case."—Washington Star.

Sixty-nine cases of scarlet fever were reported in Barton township, but the epidemic is now over.

AN AUTHOR'S START.

When Marion Crawford Began His Career as an Author.

Marion Crawford I had known since he was a lad of fourteen years. I, too, was a youngster in those days. We were living in a New Jersey town and he came there to visit his aunt, Mrs. Adolphe Maillard, a sister of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe. Although he came from Italy he dressed as an English lad, with high hat, Eton jacket, wide collar and long trousers. You can imagine the sensation that he made in that quiet New Jersey town. We had had kings and princes as our neighbors, but a young boy in a high hat was unknown to us and therefore much more of a novelty. From those days, which were filled with youthful escapades, I did not see Frank Crawford, as he was then called, until he was a full grown man and had knocked about the world a bit. His uncle, the well known Sam Ward, brought him to the office of the Critic, then consisting of a single small room over Dandell's dry goods store in Broadway, New York. "This lad wants to be a writer," said his Uncle Sam. "I wish that you would give him a chance to learn the business." We gave him the chance, not only for old times' sake, but because we liked his looks. "That fellow can do anything he cares to," I remarked after he left the office. So we let him write. He wrote book reviews, editorials and even poetry, and after that he wrote "Mr. Isaacs." You know the rest. From that on it was easy enough. He won out and we knew that, though we had given him the chance he wanted at the time that he wanted it, he would have found it quick enough anywhere else. But he never forgot what he chose to regard as a favor.—Jeannette L. Gilder in Putnam's.

The Servant Question.

In England the proportion of men to women indoor servants is as one to three or four. In France the reverse is the case, parlor maids being unknown, the one femme de chambre being lady's maid as well as housemaid. The housework—sweeping, dusting, etc.—mainly falls upon the manservants. One element entailing much extra work for servants in England is absent in a French house. This is the staying guest, the succession of visitors. Outside private hotels and in the handsome flats of fashionable quarters there is, indeed, no room in Parisian households for friends. The words "dine and sleep" or "week end" visits have not found their way into French dictionaries, nor have dine and sleep or week end guests yet become French institutions. It is easy thus to understand why three or four servants suffice in France, while in England a dozen would be needed for people of similar means and position, and where three or four maids are kept in England only a general servant is kept in France.

Momentous Trifles.

The greatest events are often drawn by hairs. Rome was saved by the cackling of some sacred geese. The life of Napoleon was saved from the "infernal machine" because General Rapp detained Josephine a minute or two to arrange her shawl. A jest of the French king was the death of William the Conqueror. The destruction of Athens was brought about by a jest on Sulla. Some witty Athenian, struck with his blotched face, called him a "mulberry pudding." A spark from a candle falling on a cottage floor was the cause of the fire that destroyed London. Lafitte, the great banker, was a pauper. He attributed his rise in life to his picking up a pin in the streets of Paris. The invention of glass is ascribed to some Phoenician merchants lighting a fire on the sands of the seashore. Vulcanized rubber was discovered by the accidental mixing of crude rubber and sulphur on a cook stove. The dog Diamond by upsetting a lamp destroyed papers of Sir Isaac Newton that had been the toil of his life.

Married.

"Now, tell me," said the doctor, "do you ever hear a buzzing noise in your ears?"

"Of course, doctor," replied the patient. "I thought you knew her."

"Eh? Whom?"

"My wife."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Married on Deathbed.

Mr. F. Cornell and Miss Gertrude McNeil, had arranged to be married in Sydney, New South Wales. On the eve of the wedding the bridegroom was suddenly seized with illness, and as his condition grew worse, he asked that the ceremony might be carried out without delay. The couple were accordingly married, and Mr. Cornell, who had been gradually sinking, expired a few days later.

A Profitable Verse.

Victor Hugo was even more successful than Tennyson as regards money matters and left over £200,000 at his death. A large proportion of this was derived from fiction, for "Les Misérables" alone brought him in £16,000, but even allowing for this it seems probable that his poems and plays were more remunerative than those of his great English contemporary. Neither Tennyson nor Hugo, however, can equal the record of James Smith of "Rejected Addresses" fame, who was better paid for a trifling effort of verse than any poet since the world began. At dinner one evening he met Strachan, the king's printer, who, although crippled with age and gout, proved excellent company. The next morning Smith wrote to him:

Your lower limbs seemed far from stout
  When last I saw you walk.
The cause I presently found out
  When you began to talk.
The power that props the body's length,
  In due proportion spread,
In you mounts upward, and the strength
  All settles in the head.

Strachan was so delighted with the compliment that he immediately added a codicil to his will leaving the author £3,000. Smith was therefore paid for his poem at the rate of £375 a line.—London Chronicle.

LIBRARY SLEEPERS.

They Have to Take Their "Snooze" With One Eye Open.

When is a sleeper not asleep? Answer: When he's an expert in "snoozing" in the reading-room of the public library. Then he can sleep and stay awake, at least to all practical intents and purposes. He can doze off in blissful slumber and never nod a nod. If he is a regular expert he can look so wide awake that he will fool the vigilant policeman whose duty it is to wake him up, and that is what he, the "snoozer," tries to do.

"You got to watch 'em," said the officer after he had caught one of the snoozers in the act. "They come in here, take a magazine from the stands, get off in some corner, spread the paper open on their knees, lay their hands on it and away they snooze. Unless you're on to 'em they'll fool you every time. Ah, there's another one!"

He pointed out a distinguished-looking individual who sat upright in a chair near the Randolph street wall. Said individual looked the part of a college professor minus a college. His brow was high and shiny, and his head was inclined forward just enough to suggest a great mind lost in the mazes of thought. And he wore glasses. That was his long suit.

The glasses were blue, dark blue. They hid the eyes behind them from the gaze of a critical world and the vigilant policeman, and they were turned point blank on the copy of The Fortnightly Review that lay in the snoozer's lap. No one but a vigilant policeman used to catching snoozers would have known the difference. But when the officer placed his hand on the spectacled one's shoulder there was a jerk that told the story.

"Sound asleep," said the officer. "You can't sleep here."

"I was not asleep, sir," said the distinguished individual. "I was merely pondering, sir, merely pondering. However, I will stay awake in the future."

"You'd better," warned the officer. "If you don't how can you read. That's what you come up here for, of course."

"Sarcasm," retorted the sleeping student, "is the weapon of the cultured man. In the hands of the hoi polloi it degenerates into mere blackguardism."

"G'wan," said the officer. "Don't you call me names. What do you think of that guy putting on glasses to hide his eyes?"

The rules read that he who reads in the public library must stay awake. Nobody is permitted to sleep. But the hobo and the unemployed man with small taste for magazine literature and great need of sleep have found this rule most irksome. The reading room is a good lounging place, but it's a hard thing to ask of any man that he read modern magazines for two or three hours at a stretch; hence the snoozing system. The lounger, with the aid of a magazine used as a prop, pits his skill against the vigilance of the officer in a game to see whether he shall snatch half an hour's blissful slumber. Sometimes he wins. Sometimes he has but closed his eyes when a rude hand on his shoulder brings him back to life. The use of blue glasses ought to be a great aid to the snoozer.

Arithmetically Demonstrated.

"A man should sleep at least eight hours a day."

"It can't be done," answered the weary looking citizen, "not when one of your neighbors runs a phonograph till midnight and another keeps a rooster that crows at 5 a. m."—Washington Star.

Better Name.

"A great many so called strap hangers are rarely so fortunate as to get hold of a strap."

"Yes; lots of 'em have to clutch each other's garments for support and in reality are only coat hangers."—Kansas City Times.

Stung Again.

"I don't believe in hiding my light under a bushel," remarked young Sapleigh.

"You would be foolish to do so," rejoined Miss Slashem, "when a pint cup would more than hide it."—Chicago News.

But Not Crooked Ones.

"These suburban gardeners with their airs make me tired. They are a disreputable lot, anyway."

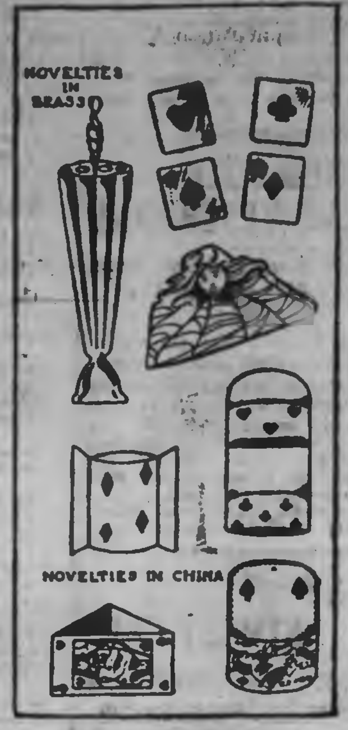
"How so?"

"Aren't they all professed rooters and grafters?"—Baltimore American.

FOR THE CARD PARTY.

Suggestions For the Hostess In Search of Bridge Prizes.

The hostess who provides original and appropriate prizes for the little home card party is regarded as a charming and resourceful mortal by her guests. It is considerable of a task, however, to obtain satisfactory souvenirs of this sort, and the accompanying little sketch may therefore prove of service to some weary maid or matron on a quest for bridge or euchre prizes. The group of brass designs includes a photo frame with characteristic card decoration, an umbrella stand in which four rain protectors may be placed and an odd pin tray with a girl's head for the handle and a sort of spider web body.



ATTRACTIVE BRIDGE PRIZES.

The china collection consists of a white tray with decorations of card emblems, a triangular box for odds and ends, similarly ornamented, and match holders.

Among other things to be noted this season in china is a fruit set in Royal Saxe ware, consisting of a dish and six plates, white, with realistic decorations representing apples, pears and peaches. Then there is an individual breakfast set, including a covered bowl for eggs, toast rack and salt and pepper shakers. A decided novelty is a relish dish in the form and coloring of a peacock with outspread tail.

THE BEDROOM IN SUMMER.

Place mirrors so that the direct rays of the sun do not fall upon them. The strong sunlight gives the glass a milky appearance which can never be entirely remedied.

The light single blanket that nearly every one has may be made into pleasant summer coverlets by covering with a silkoline slip tied here and there to keep it smooth. This protects the blanket and is easily washed.

A trained nurse of long experience emphasized the necessity of keeping mirrors out of the sick room. The patient should never be allowed to look into one, as the ravages wrought by illness in one's own face give a shock which it is hard for the nurse to soothe away.

It is a good plan in making feather pillows to have the feathers first put in a case or bag of cheesecloth. Then the ticking cover can easily be laundered. If one wishes to wash the feathers it will be found a simple process if they are left in their cheesecloth covering.

Every bedroom should if possible be furnished with three lights, one on each side of the toilet table or dressing bureau and one by the bed for reading by night. These may be elaborate or simple, as one chooses, but unless a room is richly furnished and something out of the ordinary is desired then those that are the plainest and least noticeable are best.

Many times girls are hampered by ugly furniture that they had no hand in buying, by wall paper that was the bad dream of some decadent designer, by lack of money to spend for pretty little touches that give charm to a room. But they need not be discouraged, though beauty of line and color seems a blank impossibility for which it is useless to struggle. Perfect neatness and order, fresh, crisp curtains and a plant growing in the window give an inviting air to the place, though the curtains are muslin and the plant but a sweet potato in a jar of water.

Are Soups Digestible?

There are varied opinions about the digestibility of soups. Some physicians disapprove of them for weak stomachs, and all physicians condemn them for obesity.

Milk or cream soups—purees they are called—are wholesome and easily digested. But meat soups have a tendency to give an oversupply of uric acid just as has meat itself. Therefore those with a tendency to rheumatism or diabetes should eat sparingly of it.

Soup is thought to be more digestible if it is eaten very slowly. Hold each spoonful in the mouth for a few seconds before swallowing. This simple precaution has in many cases enabled those who thought they could not eat any kind of soup to take it without bad effect.

SLANG OF THE BRINY

MANY OLD PICTURESQUE TERMS ARE PASSING.

The Introduction of the Steam Tramp Freighter Has Done Much to Destroy the Fine Color of the Seaman's Talk—When Sails Are Asleep—How a Sailor Describe the Pickings of the Deep.

Just as much of the romance of the sea faded with the transition from wood to iron and seems likely to suffer eclipse in an age of steam, so the jargon of the old-fashioned forecastle has become obsolete with the craft to which it referred. The newly joined apprentice is still sent aft to the grinning mate to ask for the "kye to the keelson." Here and there a salt-bitten veteran, conscious that the times are out of joint, interlards his discourse with phrases which have come direct from Elizabethan navigation. The strains of an old sea chant enliven on occasion the cheerful click of the capstan as the ship warps through the dock gates. But Hans and Carl, who have invaded the modern forecastle in ever-increasing numbers, are not in the line of tradition and would be hard to put to it to run out a guess rope or to describe a double Spanish burton. It would be useless to look for the "bridles of the bowline" in the hard driven tramp of to-day, with her stumpy funnel and masts, which are merely derrick standards. For the sea terms of the old-time mariner are disappearing with the lofty spares of the ships he sailed in and the interlacing rigging for every rope's end, of which he had his particular name.

Yet certain of the old words and phrases are not without distinction. The cable is paid out to the "bitter end." A sail is "asleep" when there is just sufficient wind to keep the canvas full. No doubt the apt word was suggested to the ancient navigator by a windless day on the line, when the canvas swung heavily against the mast (every flap of the mainsail half a crown out of the owner's pocket), and each creaking block and tackle made its own separate noise. Then as a light breeze spread over the water the ball bellied out, ropes went taunt and a silence fell upon the ship. The "dolphin striker," which supports the bowsprit stays, and in a deep laden ship plunges under water as she courtesies, is fitly named to any one who has watched a shoal of lively fish play around the bows on a tropical night, crossing and recrossing just in front of the advancing stem and leaving rings and trails of phosphorescence in their wake. The "heave of the sea" is not an unpoetical way of expressing the allowance which must be made in the day's run for the diversion from course caused by the set of the ocean swell.

There was a wealth of detail in the mariner's vocabulary. The anchor may be a bower, a steam or a kedge, leaving out of account the yachtman's "pick," and has a shank, a stock, a crown, a throat, a fluke, and a bill. Sea poetry has familiarised us with it when a-weigh, but it also a-peak, when the ship is hove short and rides directly over it. It "comes home" as it breaks ground, being "shod" if so much soil adheres to the flukes as to prevent it from again biting. When it is raised clear of the bottom it is "a-trip"; when the stock is about to break the surface of the water it is "a-wash," at which time the cheery cry of "heave and a-wash" used to urge the crowd at the capstan on the fo'c'sle head to a final effort. And when brought up to the cathead it is said to be "a-cockbill."

Yards also are a cockbill when swung at an angle to the dock. In a square rigged ship it is a sign of mourning when she lies in port with her yards topped alternately in opposite directions. It was also the custom on the death of an owner to give the hull above the water line a coat of blue paint. Then as a more economical spirit prevailed a thin streak of blue around the topsides was thought a sufficient observance. And while the usage is rapidly dying out, for the steam tramp has no time for unprofitable sentiment, the narrow blue ribbon may still be occasionally seen on the old-fashioned vessels of conservative owners. Just as in the days before the shipping auctioneer's lists were broadcast a boom at the masthead was held sufficient notice to all and sundry that the vessel so distinguished was for sale.

Flotsam and jetsam, describing respectively articles which are water borne or sunk, are familiar enough, but how many have heard of "lagan," the complement of the phrase, under which term come such things as are sunk under water but buoyed so that they may subsequently be recovered. That a dog-watch is kept on board (possibly on the catheads), and that the mainsail may be goose-winged is common knowledge, but the most painstaking etymologists might have difficulty in locating the "bees on the bowsprit end." The "timoneer," for the helmsman, is French in an easily recognized garb. So also is "garbart" for a light craft or barge, and the ordinary use of the word in Scottish waters to-day is a relic of the "Auld Alliance." The "tot," which was a small measure used for serving out grog, and the "holiday," or scamped piece of work, have quite taken place in storekeeping parlance; but more abstruse are the "raxing irons" and "raven hooks" of the old-time carpenter, which he used when he "chinsed" the decks. Stern galleries, with their ornamentation of filage, munnions and counter rails, have long since disappeared. Only in the most ancient of craft is there a trace of the head boards and floral scroll work in the recesses of her forecastle, lit by a dim slush lamp. An old mariner may be discovered who can discourse in obsolescent phraseology of her "ordnance, apparel, munition, and furniture," and grumble at an age which has shifted the balance of power to a handful of greasy mechanics.

..STYLE IN GLASSES..

There is no reason why persons with defective vision need disfigure their faces by wearing glasses of unsightly shape, entirely out of harmony with the contour of their features. There is style in glasses just as there is style in everything else to wear. There is some style or mounting that is "just the thing for your face" if you can only find it, and we are in a position to tell you all about all the different mountings, for we make frequent visits to the leading factories, and keep pace with all the improvements in mountings and lens grinding. We will take pleasure in helping you select a mounting to carry your lenses, that will be becoming, comfortable and secure.

We are showing now one of the Newest ideas in mounts, and we are selling a lot of them. We can adapt these to suit any person. When you have tried all other eyeglass mounts without success, come to us, we will guarantee to fit you to your entire satisfaction.

The uncut lenses we use are from the AMERICAN OPTICAL CO., the largest Optical House in the world. We buy these only in "First" quality, and grind them any shape or size. All work guaranteed.

BIG DAY ON STREET CARS

Carried 9000 Passengers Yesterday—Every Car Was on the Job

Four hundred and fifty dollars in fares is pretty fair for one day.

That is the amount raked in yesterday on the street cars of the Peterborough Radial Railway Company, and represents the contributions of nine thousand passengers. Besides that nine thousand there was probably a large number, who "bumped the bumpers" on a five cent scale to the fair grounds.

The company had all its cars out, including the trailers, and on George street the traffic was heavier than it has been any Fair day since the exhibition was inaugurated, and an immense business was also done on the lines tributary to the main street.

NEWS OF THE POLE HUNTERS

Special to the Review.

North Sydney, Sept. 18.—Word was received from Peary at Labrador that he leaves to-day and will arrive here on Tuesday. Cook reaches New York on Monday.

"The Younger Set"

To-day the Review commences the publication of a new serial, "The Younger Set," by Robert W. Chambers, author of "The Fighting Chance," "The Firing Line," "The Danger Mark" and other stories. "The Younger Set," is of absorbing interest from beginning to end and will no doubt be much appreciated by readers of the Review. Read the opening chapters and be sure you do not miss a single issue of your paper.

MR. GEO. MONCRIEF RETURNS FROM WEST

After a splendid trip as far as Victoria, B.C., Mr. George Moncrief, of Smith, returned on Thursday. He thinks well of the middle west, of the coast and the Island of Vancouver. He speaks in high terms, also particularly with regard to its climate, the scenery and its lumber and mineral wealth, but the fruit and land are not to compare with that here. Prices of food are surprisingly high. They may be put down as from five to ten time higher than here. Its costs to live there than here, and salaries are high also.

Will Preach at Bensfort

Rev. Mr. Brown, of St. James' Methodist church, will conduct the anniversary services at Bensfort church to-morrow.

Rally Day at St. Paul's

The session of the Sunday school at St. Paul's to-morrow will be in the form of a Rally Day. All those identified with the Sunday school are asked to be present. The subject of the sermon in the morning will be "The True Function of the Sunday School."

Tramps Numerous

The investigation made by Inspector Miller in connection with the mysterious death of the man near Grafton Station has shown that the tramp fraternity are numerous in the county of Northumberland. Barns showed that vagrants had lately been there, and a building burned near Grafton is believed to have been the work of one of these vagrants.

Asked For Assistance

Abner Colby, the old man who appeared in the Toronto police court yesterday morning, and later was given a ticket to the city, arrived here this morning. He called on Mr. F. W. Miller and asked for help, so that he might get to Lakefield and enter the County House of Refuge.

Satisfactory arrangements were made and the unfortunate man is probably by this time in comfortable surroundings.

Wm. McPhail, of Campbellville, Ont., is looking for his son, S. Calvin McPhail, who disappeared from a homestead 65 miles west of Zealandia, Alberta.

thy. Evidently the aim is to produce something that will live, and become more valued, as time goes on.

Special attention is given to ladies' or women's drapery, and the lighting or chemical effects on ladies' gowns. Care in this direction is appreciated by the fair sex, and it therefore follows that this part of the work is carefully studied out at Roy's.

A large variety of enlarged views of Peterborough and vicinity, a specialty that has made the Roy Studio famous, are also shown. These enlarged views are largely used for wedding and Christmas presents, the recipients valuing such gifts highly.

FRIDAY FAIR NOTES

The best yet.

Weather was ideal.

Which was an agreeable change.

Record crowds at both sessions.

The county did its share all right.

Citizens are beginning to sit up and take notice.

There will be a nice surplus. The management are pleased.

The horse races were the centre of interest for many. They pleased the crowd.

Wanted—A few side-shows. They would add to the gayety of the midway.

The money to be paid out in prizes will be about three hundred dollars more than last year.

A few more electric lights would add to the attractiveness of the grounds. It will be better next year.

It was a good-natured, good-looking, good-mannered crowd that thronged the grounds both afternoon and evening.

The "Ocean Wave" did a great business. The ages of the patrons ranged from five to fifty—perhaps some older.

There was a big demand for the ice cream cones. There were none left early in the evening. "You eat them as you walk along," read the sign.

THE FAIR OF 45 YEARS AGO

Was Held on the Property Where Court House Now Stands—Horse Races on Water St.

Many old residents of Peterborough who visited the fair yesterday must have noticed a remarkable change in the programme to the one prepared and carried out forty-five years ago, when the exhibition was held on the property where the court house now stands. At that time it was not necessary to secure special attractions to make the fair a success. The residents of the county at that time took farm produce, and the securing of first honors was better than all the free attractions that could possibly be secured. The horse races took place on Water street, as did also the showing of cattle, which is a big contrast to present day conditions.

The progress which the city has made from that time accounts for the big change, but it is safe to say that if some of the old folk who were on the grounds yesterday were asked to state which fair they preferred the answer would be "Give me the old-time one."

THAT WATCH OF YOURS

Is in many respects similar to a railway engine. Let an engine be run without oil or cleaning and before long it will stop dead. Upon examination it will be found that the friction and wear and tear has ruined the machinery, and it is fit only for the scrap iron heap. Likewise your watch. You put it in your pocket, and while there is a kick in it, you, in your mistaken economy, do not consult the watchmaker, and consequently rob your watch of years of good service and also much of its former accuracy. The time-keeping qualities of a good watch are maintained and often improved by timely and skilful attention. If you have been one of the neglectful ones call around and see us.

TEN THOUSAND PEOPLE VISITED FAIR YESTERDAY

fire department made a run on the track for the benefit of the spectators and made a smart turn-out.

NIGHT PERFORMANCE

Three thousand five hundred people were at the grounds to see the evening performance and they were more than pleased with the entertainment provided. The attendance surpassed all expectations and added a big sum to the gate receipts for the main day.

The booths all did a big business and the main building was thronged all evening. The performance in front of the grand stand was even more elaborate than in the afternoon. The 57th band supplied the music and the acrobats and gymnasts and Mlle de Leo's trained dog and donkey appeared in their acts and received an enthusiastic reception. The Peterborough fire brigade made a fine showing and Chief Howard and his gallant fire fighters got a big hand from the crowd.

The 24th Field Battery went through a series of manoeuvres that were a revelation to the crowd. The "midnight alarm" and "Victoria cross ride were cleverly executed and the tug-of-war and wrestling on horseback were both of the most exciting nature. The "midnight alarm" which consists of the surprising of the bivouac party by the enemy, showed how important it is for the soldier to work with despatch. Driver Frith got first place, he being the first member of the bivouac party to dress, saddle his horse and ride away.

Sergeant Guerin's party won the tug-of-war, two pulls out of three and the wrestling on horse back was declared a draw. The spectators enjoyed the sport immensely.

The battery carried out the manoeuvres under the direction of Sergt.-Major Fee. The boys won hearty applause by their fine work.

SPECIAL EXHIBITS

T. Barrie & Co.

Delightful as the weather has been since the opening of the exhibition, the cool spells that have already visited this section of the country have turned the peoples' thoughts to warmer wear for the days that are to come, and the fine exhibit of T. Barrie & Co., furriers, attracts a great deal of attention. One of the central spaces is filled with a magnificent display of the richest furs, made up in the newest designs for all kinds of purposes and wear. A new thing in furs is the Persian lamb semi-fit, long coat for the ladies, which is shown on a form and catches the ladies' eyes at once. Suggestions of what to wear in furs this season are plentiful, such as Persian lamb muffs and ties, mink muffs and ties, etc.

The mink ties in full skin effect are a special feature and a catchy novelty.

A very noticeable section of the exhibit is that occupied by the fur-lined coats for men and ladies, with sable, mink and persian lamb collars.

The linings are especially rich in appearance this season, made up of the Hampster lock squirrel and muskrat skins. The coldest weather is provided for by the big men's coon coats and other fur garments.

The space is luxuriously floored with fur rugs and the walls hung with rugs and coat linings, the whole comprising one of the most costly exhibits on the grounds. Mr. W. W. Armstrong is in charge and gives enquirers and sightseers courteous attention.

White & Gillespie

Doubtless anticipating a record-breaking Fair and attendance, with their usual foresight, Messrs. White and Gillespie have put up an attractive exhibit in a tent on the main drive in front of the hall. Here they are showing several lines that the general public hardly knew were carried in stock by this popular firm. The Dairy industry is catered to to a large extent by the firm, and it is this branch that is being exploited at the 1909 Peterborough Industrial Exhibition. Foremost, of course, is placed the Simplex Separator, which has a well earned reputation all over the country for doing perfect work, and for its durability as well. The Simplex is a very rapid machine, and has a capacity ample to meet all demands on it. The Eureka Sanitary Churn is a fit companion to the Separator, its use following immediately in the natural course. In this article the firm are also fortunate in having a churn that they can unhesitatingly recommend, and which has had its qualities proven by the most severe tests. Another adjustment of the modern dairy is the Eureka root cutter, without which much of the value of the roots is lost in feeding. Also indispensable to dairy cleanliness is the Wyandotte Cleaner, a powder that has magical properties for the purpose intended. The International Stock Food for poultry and stock of all kinds, completes the exhibits, which is one of special interest in these days of keen competition to produce the best possible in the dairy. The exhibit is in charge of Mr. R. A. Peters.

Lang & Maher

The first position on the Midway is occupied by the clothing exhibit of Lang & Maher, proprietors of the 'Daylight Store,' and clothiers to 'men who know.' The exhibit comprises all the very newest things in men's clothes, the new shades of brown and grey for fall wear being given prominence. Messrs. Lang & Maher make a strong point of selling clothing that will give lasting satisfaction, and instead of feeling regret when a customer comes in after having worn a suit for about two years, that it is still good and no chance for another sale, they simply congratulate themselves on having achieved their object.

The showing in the exhibit includes a very complete line of suits and overcoats for both fall and winter wear. The high quality used in their make-up is evident, even to the inexperienced, while behind every garment sold by the Daylight Store is the sterling reputation of Messrs. Lang & Maher.

All over the grounds the big signs of the firm are very much in evidence in all kinds of possible and seemingly impossible places. They tell the qualities of the Lang & Maher goods, and are also an evidence of the progressive spirit of the firm in pushing their business.

G. Walter Green & Co.

The Toronto papers told of the very fine display of saw-mill machinery made by Messrs. G. Walter Green & Co., manufacturers of this city, and a good part of the same exhibit may be seen here also. Mr. Green puts a small army of men to work, and in a short time has a number of machines set down on the ground for inspection, but placed, levelled, squared up, and running, a practical demonstration of the real usefulness of the portable machinery. The principal machine of those shown is the improved O. B. portable saw-mill, which is quickly set up and in running order, ready to take hold of a log of any ordinary size, and reduce it to lumber or timbers, as is required. A number of these outfits are in use in this locality, and giving eminently satisfactory results. Beside it is another machine, called a double edger, which squares two edges of a board and sizes it at one time.

The shingle machine is an interesting thing, and looks as though the operation of cutting shingles by its use would be a very simple one. Companions to the shingle machine are the shingle jointer and packers, which completes an outfit that turns the blocks into shingles, all cut, jointed, packed and bundled, ready for market.

A No. 2 lath mill and bolter turns the slabs and small timber into laths, and produces a revenue from what would otherwise be of little value. Among the smaller articles shown are pumps, the original product of the factory, and pumps of different kinds. The outfit is seen in motion, the motive power being supplied by two gasoline engines.

J. J. Turner & Son

On the spot that is always occupied by the mammoth exhibit of Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons is again seen the usual high-class outfit this firm can be depended upon to show when they take the trouble to do it at all. No half-way measures will do, and the great interest shown in the different styles of tents and camping outfits by visitors to the fair, proves the wisdom of the effort.

The chief feature of the exhibit this season is the collapsible or folding cottage tent, which is so complete in its conveniences that campers who carried such an outfit into the wilderness would have the home comforts right with them, and could defy heat, cold, rain or mosquitoes. The cottage is floored throughout, and its sides, with the exception of the doors and windows are composed entirely of wire mosquito netting. This has a covering for night or storms of canvas that is put on by means of automatic buttons, and can be quickly removed or replaced. The front screens are hinged at the top, and can be raised up, and with the canvas screens on them, form a front verandah, under which the campers may sit in front of the cottage. There are real doors and windows, and the interior is partitioned off by curtains into several apartments. Beside the cottage is shown a silk prospector's tent, and a hunting tent, with sleeping outfits for outdoor bush life.

A good deal has been read of the consumptives' window tent, and here it is shown, and its practical use demonstrated. Needless to say, this novel appliance received a good deal of attention from interested visitors.

A display of horse blankets, rugs and waterproof goods, the manufacture of Messrs. Turner & Son, completed an exhibit that the owners, as well as the citizens of Peterborough, may well be proud of. The exhibit is the same as was shown, and most favorably commented on at the late Toronto Industrial Exhibition.

City Music Co.

The centre of attraction in the main building is the piano exhibit made by the City Music Co. The Evans piano player piano kept up the strains of music, rendering the most difficult compositions in artistic style, showing that the operator has perfect control over the instrument and is able to correctly interpret the idea of the writer. Music always draws the crowd and the evident merit of the pianos shown by this company held the attention of music lovers. Foremost among the high class instruments shown is the Newcombe piano, which is an exact duplicate of the piano that was given the highest award at the Jamestown Exposition. Not much change has been made in pianos for many years, but the new features embodied in this style are decided steps in the march of progress. The chief feature is the Howard supporting truss, which does away with the heavy back posts, while making a much stronger frame than the cumbersome old style. It also leaves the sounding board clear of all instruction, thus allowing the tone to come out clearer and stronger. The compensating bar is another new improvement used exclusively in the Newcombe piano, and during the exhibition was thoroughly investigated and admired by a large number of musical critics who could easily see the benefits derived from its use.

The Evans piano fully sustained the reputation it has gained in the hands of the City Music Co. in Peterborough.

The Sherlock Manning piano is a new one to this district, and was shown for the first time. It has a good appearance, very neat style of case, and the tone is very clear and rich. Mr. Ruse, the manager of the company stated that the piano was fully up to his expectations, and he looked for it to be a popular instrument when better known. The organs made by the Sherlock Manning people however, he considered the best made in Canada, as their exclusive features put them considerably in advance of all others. They will sustain the tone longer than any other organ made.

Louis Mendel's Photographic Gems

The fine arts section had a unique exhibit of photography from the studio of Mr. Louis Mendel, George St. His work and his style represent results that have been largely influenced by his recent visits to Germany and the United States, where he had the privilege of coming in contact with some of the ablest professionals of the world. The sketches and full prints shown in this exhibit were particularly admired, because of the new process which is said to be known only by a few gifted photographers. A gum print, by Mr. Mendel, was also a new process seen by him while in Europe. A rare photo printed on Japanese paper, quite novel in its effects and giving to the silk drapery a realistic appearance, was another of the gems of this collection. The special prints are in various sizes and were framed in Circassian walnut, rosewood, oak and gold. In the children's pictures the posing is unique and natural. A head sketch in a long panel frame is shown, in which the colored effect, after Harrison Fisher, is very fine.

Singer Sewing Machines

Visitors to the main building could not fail to see the big exhibit of Singer Sewing Machines, the old reliable household necessity, that is so perfect there seems to be no room for improvement. One of the most prominent corner spaces in the main building, was occupied by the exhibit under the charge of the local representative, Mr. J. W. Stuart, and the assistant manager, Mr. C. B. Coons. Several of the very latest models were shown, prominent among them being a machine finished in the popular weathered oak style. Improvements brought out by the Singer Sewing Machine Company are usually in the form of attachments, and the latest is the "darner," which may be attached to any lock stitch sewing machine, and is not necessarily sold in connection with the Singer only. Purchasers of the darner are given free instructions in its use at the store on George street.

The booth is profusely decorated with the large lithograph in colors supplied by the Company, and is an attractive spot.

The Roy Studio

Always on hand with a large and notable exhibit, the Roy Studio has excelled its former records at this year's big fair. This is probably noticed especially because the popularity of the Roy work is always growing. A remarkable feature of the exhibit is the large number of out-of-town faces that are seen depicted in the photographs shown. This in itself attests the fame the studio is winning abroad as well as at home, and is a significant sign of the growth of its scope. While keeping fully abreast of all that is progressive in photography, and using every modern appliance known to the art, there is an entire absence of the impressionist style or freak photogra-

A Treat For Peterborough

One of the biggest musical attractions to appear in this city this season will be John P. Slocum's presentation of Julian Edwards' famous musical comedy "The Gay Musician," which will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House on Wednesday evening, September 22nd.

"The Gay Musician" is now in its second season, and last year it ran for one hundred nights at Wallack's Theatre, New York, to capacity audiences. It has also been presented in the leading cities of the country at the principal theatres and everywhere it met with lavish praise from the public and the critics. The charm of "The Gay Musician" is that it is of a neat and most refined order, and vulgarity finds no place in its presentation. In Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Pittsburg, St. Louis and other large cities "The Gay Musician" proved to be the hit of the season and its present tour only embraces what is known as 'city time' for engagements of one or more weeks.

Manager John P. Slocum whose name has been so closely identified with the leading musical successes of the past ten years, has for this season engaged a powerful singing company and chorus as well as surrounding them with a most lavish scenic environment and gorgeous costuming.

The caste of "The Gay Musician" is a notable one in every respect, and includes names of singers who are prominent in New York. Special attention has been paid by Manager Slocum to the selection of the show-girls' chorus, singers and the dancers, the best in the theatrical field being secured.

In the caste of principals are Frances Lee, the grand opera prima dona, who was educated by Oscar Hammerstein, the famous impressario, for her career; Jacquette Du Barry, a popular French singer, Harry Benham, the baritone, for a long time with Henry W. Savage's companies; Richard Karl, the noted basso; Roger Gray, a favorite Broadway comedian and dancer; Margaret Crawford, who is well-known as a character actress and singer; Lee H. White, formerly of the Gaiety Theatre, London; W. Fiave Ryan, connected with many notable successes in New York; Freda Kiingee, the ingenue, and many others as prominent on the stage.

The engagement here of "The Gay Musician" is an event of more than ordinary interest, and there is every reason to think that its appearance in this city will be rewarded by hearty support at the hands of the public.

"The Younger Set"

To-day the Review commences the publication of a new serial "The Younger Set," by Robert W. Chambers, author of "The Fighting Chance," "The Firing Line," "The Danger Mark" and other stories. "The Younger Set," is of absorbing interest from beginning to end and will no doubt be much appreciated by readers of the Review. Read the opening chapters and be sure you do not miss a single issue of your paper.

MRS. RORER ADVISES.

That During the Warm Weather the Menu Be Lightened.

The entire digestive process must receive careful attention during the heated season, says Mrs. Rorer, to keep it in healthful action. First of all, foods must be of very good quality and simply cooked. Heavy meats and fatty foods should be cut down to the minimum, and to keep up the bulk substitute in their place succulent green vegetables, such as new peas, string beans, cooked cucumbers, summer cabbage, tomatoes and all fresh fruits.

Salads, if they are properly made and are served at meals without meats, are ideal summer foods. One gets the nourishment of the egg in the mayonnaise dressing, the necessary fatty matter in the oil, which, mixed with a succulent green vegetable and whole wheat bread and butter, give an ideal meal. In winter we spread our bread thickly with ~~butter and take~~ two salads a day with a goodly quantity of oil and very little acid. In summer we take a smaller quantity of oil and a little more lemon juice. By acids is not meant pickles or food preserved in vinegar, but daintily made salads, with a little vinegar or lemon juice.

In arranging for hot weather meals it is wise to cook enough vegetables in one day to last for two. Thus you may live a whole day without a fire, provided you make your tea and coffee on the table.

Raw starch is not digestible by man, therefore such vegetables as rice, potatoes and cereals containing starch must be boiled until the starch cells are ruptured. One may cook potatoes enough to last two days. If they are mashed, simply reheat them next day with a little milk, or if they are boiled whole, make them into a salad and serve with pressed or cold meats.

Pressed meats, on account of their density and seasoning, keep much longer than roasted or boiled meat. Pressed beef, veal loaf, chicken and fish are all sightly and appetizing. Fish, however, should be used the day it is prepared; nor will chicken and veal keep so long as beef. Cold meats garnished with greens are far more appetizing than large joints. Do not have a Christmas dinner on the Fourth of July; it spoils the appetite, and those who eat it are uncomfortable, overheated and ill.

Among the lighter dishes for hot weather are stuffed vegetables, which take the place of meat. Tomatoes, squash and cucumbers are all palatable stuffed with nuts and breadcrumbs or hard boiled eggs and breadcrumbs. Green vegetables give little nourishment, it is true, but they certainly are appetizing and satisfying, and if we are not at hard labor they are far better than so much overnutritious food. Curries are now and then admirable hot weather foods. They stimulate the digestion—slow at this season of the year—and if properly used hasten the absorption of food. But this does not mean that highly seasoned foods are to be used regularly.

Soups may be omitted during the hot term, unless they are served cold. Half a cup of fruit juice at the beginning of the meal in place of soup seems in better keeping and more appetizing.

Crisp lettuce leaves and finely shaved cabbage may be dressed with French dressing and served once or twice a day. Cold leftover vegetables, string beans, peas and cauliflower, may be served the second day with French dressing. After the peas are nicely seasoned and dressed they may be put into peeled tomatoes. With a bit of cheese and brown bread you have an admirable luncheon. A glass of buttermilk or koumiss, with brown bread and butter, makes a delightful luncheon on a hot day. Thickened sour milk, clabber, with brown bread and butter, or cold chocolate with brown bread and butter is a sufficient luncheon on a hot day.

Suffrage Cookbook.

That favorite argument of the "antis" that suffrage is likely to masculinize women and that the suffragists are not domestic loving creatures is being refuted in a brand new way. The suffragists of the state of Washington have issued a cookbook that provides recipes equally good for attracting the mind and the appetite. It is a big volume and bears the simple title of "The Washington Women's Cookbook," but it is much more than this name would indicate. Of course it is bound in the suffrage colors—two yellow banners on a white ground, one with the legend "Votes For Women" and the other "Good Things to Eat," to show that these are not incompatible.

There are about 700 recipes between the covers, each declared to be a potent argument in itself and each contributed by some suffragist of Washington. Scattered through the volume there are also many bright quotations in favor of equal rights, and at the end there are a little history of the suffrage movement and an explanation of "How Washington Women Lost the Ballot." This last is an interesting bit of political history written by a woman lawyer of Seattle, who charges the opponents of the cause with having manufactured and used bogus ballots, a copy of which is printed.

At So Much "Per."

The host was one of the newly rich of the vainglorious kind, and he was explaning to his dinner guests the cost of the dessert.

"This pineapple, f'r instance, cost me $12, and—er—Mr. Jones, can I offer you a slice?" "Yes, sir, you may," rejoined Jones. "I will take about 25 cts' worth."

J. M. KILBOURN, President of Lakefield Portland Cement Company, Limited; Owen Sound Portland Cement Company, Limited.

J. B. BOOTH, Ottawa, Director of Grand Trunk Pacific Railway.

GEORGE E. DRUMMOND, Montreal, Director of Molson's Bank; Canada Iron Corporation, Limited.

J. S. IRVIN, Ottawa, Managing Director The International Portland Cement Company, Limited.

HONORABLE W. C. EDWARDS, Ottawa, Senator, Director of Canadian Bank of Commerce, Director of Toronto General Trusts Corporation.

W. D. MATTHEWS, Toronto, Vice-President The Dominion Bank; Director of Canadian Pacific Railway.

R. W. KELLY, New York, President of The Vulcan Portland Cement Company, Limited.

HONORABLE ROBERT MACKAY, Montreal, Senator, Director of Canadian Pacific Railway; Director of Bank of Montreal.

W. R. WARREN, New York, Director of The Vulcan Portland Cement Company, Limited; Shawinigan Water and Power Company, Limited.

W. H. E. BRAVENDER, Calgary, Vice-President of Alberta Portland Cement Company, Limited.

E. M. YOUNG, Allentown, Penn., Vice-President of the Lehigh Portland Cement Co.

HONORABLE GEORGE A. COX, Toronto, Senator, Director of Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company; Canadian Bank of Commerce.

W. M. AIKEN, Montreal, Director Montreal Trust Compony.

CHARLES H. CAHAN, Montreal, President Western Canada Power Company, Limited.

The Canada Cement Company, Limited, is a new Company which has been incorporated for the purpose of taking over the undertakings, properties and businesses of the following Companies, now doing business in Canada, as manufacturers of Portland Cement and like products, viz:

The Lakefield Portland Cement Company, Montreal, Quebec.
The Lakefield Portland Cement Company, Lakefield, Ontario.
The Owen Sound Portland Cement Company, Limited, Shallow Lake Ontario.
The Alberta Portland Cement Company, Limited, Calgary, Alberta.
The Belleville Portland Cement Company, Limited, Belleville, Ont.
The International Portland Cement Company, Limited, Hull, Quebec.
The Vulcan Portland Cement Company, Limited, Montreal, Quebec.
The Lehigh Portland Cement Company, Limited, Belleville, Ontario.
The Canadian Portland Cement Company, Limited, Marlbank, Ont.
The Canadian Portland Cement Company, Limited, Port Colborne, Ontario.

The Canada Cement Company, Limited, by means of contracts already made, proposes to acquire control of a majority of the shares of the capital stock of the following Companies:—

The Western Canada Cement and Coal Company, Limited, Exshaw, Alberta, and
The Eastern Canada Portland Cement Company, Limited, Quebec.

The plants, which will be owned or controlled by the new Company, are believed to be among the best constructed and most efficiently equipped on this continent; and, under a competent central management, not only will a uniform standard of quality be secured in the combined product, but an equable standard of prices may be maintained throughout the whole country. These plants will have a total capacity in excess of 4,500,000 barrels of Portland cement per annum.

ESTIMATED EARNINGS

The following may be regarded as a conservative estimate of the earnings of the Company:—

NET EARNINGS

The estimated annual net earnings of the Company, based on the quantities of cement being sold, during the present year, by the companies comprised in the merger, and on the costs of manufacture under existing conditions, amount to $1,900,000

FIXED CHARGES

Interest on $5,000,000 of First Mortgage Bonds, at six per cent. per annum	$ 300,000
Sinking Fund payment on bonds, two per cent. per annum	100,000
Preferential Dividend of 7 per cent. per annum on $10,500,000 Preference Shares....................	735,000
		$1,135,000
Leaving available for dividends on Ordinary Shares of the Company....................		$765,000

The Canadian Market for Portland Cement

The demand for Portland Cement in Canada has increased remarkably during the last five years. In 1904 the total consumption of Portland Cement in the Dominion was 1,694,988 barrels, of which 784,630 barrels were imported. In 1908 the consumption, notwithstanding the general industrial depression, was 3,134,338 barrels, and no less than 3,495,961 barrels were manufactured in Canada. Existing trade conditions indicate that the consumption during 1909 will largely exceed that of 1908.

The increase is not abnormal, nor due to merely local causes. In the year 1888, it is estimated that less than 200,000 barrels of cement were manufactured on the North American Continent; and the enormous growth of the business is shown by the fact that in 1908 approximately 55,000,000 barrels were produced. The manufacture of Portland Cement commenced in Canada in 1888, but until 1904 the importations into Canada of the foreign product exceeded the Canadian production.

The report of John McLeish, B.A., chief of the Division of Mineral Resources and Statististics of the Department of Mines, Canada, on the production of cement in Canada during the calender year 1908, furnishes the following comparative statement:—

Calendar Year	Canadian		Foreign	Total
	Manufactured	Consumed	Imported into Canada	Consumed in Canada
	Barrels	Barrels	Barrels	Barrels
1904	908,990	910,358	784,630	1,694,988
1905	1,541,568	1,346,548	917,558	2,264,106
1906	2,152,562	2,119,764	666,931	2,785,695
1907	2,491,513	2,436,093	672,630	3,108,723
1908	3,495,961	2,665,289	469,849	3,134,338

Great as has been the development of the Portland Cement industry in Canada since 1904, it is only reasonable to assume that this growth will be largely exceeded in the immediate future, and for many years to come. The enormous public works in progress and in contemplation, including Railways, Canals, Bridges, Harbor Improvements, Piers, Wharves, Docks, Piles, Pavements, Building Foundations, and Buildings, etc., will all require proportionately large quantities of the manufactured products of the new Company. The hydro-electric developments throughout the country will increase the demand, while the rapid substitution of reinforced concrete for other materials in the building trades will render necessary an increased production on the part of the new Company.

Objects of the Merger

According to the returns made to the Dominion Government by the cement manufacturers, the average price at their works obtained by them in 1908 was $1.39 per barrel. This was the lowest price ever reported by the Canadian mills. In 1906 the average price was from $1.65 to $1.70, and in 1907 about $1.60. At the begining of the present year it was realized by a number of the manufocturers that, even without any increase in prices, the business could be rendered much more profitable by a merger of several of the larger competing companies on a conservative basis. The Canada Cement Company, Limited, is the outcome. The new Company will own or control cement-producing plants at the central points of distribution from the St. Lawrence River west to the Rocky Mountains; and, by securing a more efficient organization which will be able to regulate the distribution of the manufactured product from these central points to the centres of consumption, large economies in the present cost of freight, which represents a large percentage of the ultimate cost to the consumer, will undoubtedly be effected. The establishment of one executive office in the City of Montreal, and the elimination of competitive salesmen, middlemen and brokers is also expected to effect a considerable saving in the costs of the Sales Department under the new management.

Forms of application can be obtained at any office of the Royal Trust Company or of the Royal Securities Corporation, Limited.

Nothing Too Good

WE have had over ten years experience in supplying Toric Lenses to our most particular patrons. This form of lens is increasingly popular in all the large cities of America and especially in the United States, where the manufacturers have large capital and the best facilities for turning out accurate work. We are particular to have only the best, and judging from the increased number which we now supply, we deem our care in this regard is appreciated. There is nothing too good for the eye.

ACCOMMODATION FOR CONSUMPTIVES

Extensions Have Been Made at Muskoka Sanitorium

The National Sanitarium Association have completed further building extensions at Muskoka, adding 40 beds to their present accommodation, and bringing the total available beds in the Muskoka homes up to 250.

In affiliation with the Muskoka Institutions are the Toronto Free Hospital for Consumptives, and King Edward Sanatorium for Consumptives. These institutions are situated about five miles from Toronto, in a delightful position near the Humber. Here further building has been going on, bringing the accommodation in these homes up to 150. In other words, with in the Muskoka and Toronto institutions, there are now 400 beds.

In Muskoka, patients in the incipient stages of tuberculosis are accepted, and in the Toronto institutions, those in the advanced and far advanced stages of the disease. Patients are accepted from any part of the province, and with these additional beds there is now no waiting list. Patients are accepted promptly on completion of application papers. Information pertaining to any of these institutions may be obtained by writing to J. S. Robertson, executive secretary, 347 King street west, Toronto, Ont.

The Souvenir.

Miss Golding—Here's your ring. I have decided that I can never be your wife, so the engagement is off, and I shall expect you to return everything you may have in your possession that belongs to me.

Mr. Hamlin—All I have is a lock of your hair and a photo. I don't suppose you care anything for the photo, but the lock of hair you will no doubt want to preserve as souvenir.

Miss Golding—As a souvenir of what?

Mr. Hamlin—Of the time when you were a brunette.

The Naples Cigar.

"While you're in Naples," said the captain, "be sure and smoke a Naples cigar. You see, they are the most curious cigars in the world. Each of those pretty Neapolitan girls who make them is given 500 tobacco leaves, and with those 500 leaves she is expected to turn out 600 cigars. So that is why in Naples you see men as they smoke calmly removing from their cigars bits of rag, small sticks, cotton waste and lumps of clay. 'See Naples and die' the saying goes, but it ought to be changed to, 'Smoke a Naples cigar and die'."

Curran's Grim Joke.

"I cannot sing; I really cannot," protested the famous Lord Norbudy of "hanging fame" to a pretty and pressing hostess. "I have neither words nor voice."

"You are too modest, chief justice," said Curran, who was standing by, "for I know hundreds that have hung on your words and thousands that have been transported by your voice."

Saving Even Unto Measles.

The impecunious man weighs about two hundred. When he called he said to his hostess tremulously:

"Is that a case of measles across the way?"

"Yes," said she.

"I am sorry," said he. "But I can't call here till it is all over. I couldn't afford to have the measles. It would take so many of them to cover me."

KELSEY HEATING

¶Is your home warmed satisfactorily? If not, the chances are that it will pay you to discard the old apparatus entirely and replace it with a KELSEY.

¶The principles of hygienic heating and fuel economy are better understood now than when thousands of heaters in use were built. The KELSEY is the embodiment of the highest attainments of heating engineering.

¶The KELSEY Zig-Zag Heat Tubes of which the fire box is formed and by which greater volumes of air are warmed and FORCED to every part of the house than is possible in any other heater, saves you enough in coal bills to more than pay for the change, to say nothing of the comfort of having your house kept at just the right temperature from top to bottom all the time. WEDDING BELLS

BOWLES--LOUGHEED

A quiet but very pretty wedding was solemnized at three o'clock Wednesday afternoon, when Lillias J. Lougheed, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Lougheed, of Bathurst street, was united in marriage to Mr. Albert E. Bowles, of Winnipeg.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. I. G. Bowles, of Barrie, brother of the groom. The bride, who was given away by her father, looked charming in a gown of ivory Duchess satin, with embroidered net and tulle veil, caught with orange blossoms. She wore a pearl and sapphire necklace, the gift of the groom, and carried a bridal bouquet of roses and valley lillies.

The brideamaid, Miss Laura L. Lougheed, sister of the bride, was daintily attired in pink silk volie with trimmings of red and satin, and carried pink roses. Mr. A. K. Pringle, of Toronto, assisted the groom. The wedding march was played by Miss Vida Lougheed.

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a pearl and turquoise brooch, to the groomsman, a pearl stick pin. During the day many telegrams were received extending heartiest congratulations and best wishes.

After the wedding breakfast the bridal party and guests drove to the wharf, where the happy couple left on the 5.15 boat for New York, Philadelphia, and Atlantic City. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Bowles will leave shortly for their future home in Winnipeg.—Toronto Star.

The groom is a brother of Mrs. E. A. Pearson, of this city.

Queer Ending to Strike.

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 18.—The second strike of workmen employed at the plant of the Pressed Steel Car Co., which was declared Monday, was brought to an abrupt end yesterday.

The climax was remarkable. Having notified the foreigners that they intended to march into the mill carrying the Stars and Stripes, 2,000 American workmen who were not favorable to the strike, assembled early and cheering enthusiastically started toward the plant. On the way 1,500 Croatians and 600 Italians joined them. When the gates were reached 1,000 Slavs, Russians and Poles, who had threatened trouble if the men attempted to enter the works, also fell into line.

Army Balloon a Success.

Montlucon, France, Sept. 18.—The fall manoeuvres of the French army, in which 60,000 men are engaged, are attracting particular attention on account of the work of the dirigible balloon Republique. Although the field of operation is hilly and wooded, the Republique ascertained and disclosed to the defenders the plan of the enemy's campaign, and prevented them from falling into a skillful trap.

Girl Cremated In Prairie Fire.

Melita, Man., Sept. 18.—A prairie fire, which started near the farm of W. A. McKinney Thursday night, on the Lander-Broomhill extension, resulted in the death of Miss Alpha McKinney, aged 18, who is supposed to have been overcome by the smoke. Neighbors found the charred body. Her father is away in Iowa attending his mother's funeral.

Bandits Hold Up Train.

Leadville, Colo., Sept. 18.—A daring attempt by three bandits to rob the second section of Denver and Rio Grande passenger train No. 5, was made about 11 o'clock Thursday night four miles west of Malta, a small station near Leadville. The express car was dynamited, but no booty was secured.

Robinson's Trial Monday.

Sudbury, Sept. 18.—James Robinson, Mrs. Robinson and Tommy, their son, will receive their trial in Sudbury at the coming fall assizes, which opens Monday, Sept. 20, at 1 p.m. James Robinson will probably be charged with three separate charges of incest.

Canadian Clubs Federate.

Montreal, Sept. 18.—The Canadian Clubs' Organization was completed yesterday when W. H. D. Muller of Montreal, was elected president; C. R. McCullough, Hamilton, vice-president; with J. D. Mitchell, Winnipeg, Mayor Chisholm, Halifax, and C. F. Wade, Vancouver, as members of the executive.

Sterling Bank In Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Sept. 18.—The presence in the city of F. W. Broughall of the Sterling Bank, Toronto, has given rise to a report that the bank will open offices here. It is also stated that negotiations for a site are under way.

Dynamited Safe.

Neosho Falls, Kansas, Sept. 18.—Three robbers yesterday dynamited the safe of the Neosho Falls state bank and escaped with $3,000 in cash. The robbers exchanged shots with the city marshal.

Brakeman Killed.

Guelph, Ont., Sept. 18.—Harry Parker, a brakeman on the Grand Trunk, was run over by a shunting train near Moorefield, and his body almost cut in two just below the waist line.

Veteran Pilot Retires.

Kingston, Sept. 18.—Owing to ill-health, Capt. James Allen, veteran pilot on the River St. Lawrence, has retired. He has been sailing for 54 years.

Sold Liquor to Miners.

Brockville, Sept. 18.—A local bartender was fined $10 and costs yesterday in the police court for selling liquor to minors, who testified against him.

A DETECTIVE MAY BE SENT TO SPRINGVILLE

To Investigate the Mystery Surrounding the Finding of Skeleton in Woods Near Kendry

The Springville investigation is not dead yet. Crown Attorney R. E. Wood, K.C., is now in communication with the Attorney-General for the purpose of having a detective sent down to investigate the case.

It has been found on close examination that the right leg was broken between the ankle and the knee. Both bones were broken, and it is presumed the limb was fractured before the body was placed in the bush.

The constable's theory is that the man was thrown from a train and that the neck was broken at that time. Then the body was picked up and carried into the bush and left there, and that the Paris Green and razor were placed in their respective positions later for the purpose of making the mystery more baffling.

NERVOUS DISORDERS

Promptly Cured By the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

If your hand trembles or is unsteady, remember that this is a sure and early sign of your nervous system being at fault. The mischief may develop slowly to a worse stage. You feel unaccountably weak and weary after exertion; you lose flesh; you turn against food and suffer palpitations and indigestion after eating. At times your are intensely irritable, greatly depressed and easily worried. Sometimes sharp pains shoot down your spine and legs and probably neuralgia robs you of your sleep at night. These are some of the troubles that indicate the presence of nervous disorders. If these troubles are neglected they result in complete nervous collapse and possibly paralysis. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have won a great reputation by curing all forms of nervous disease. The nervous system depends entirely upon the blood supply for nourishment; when the blood is thin and weak and nerves are affected as described. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually increase the supply of good red blood, feed, strengthen and tone the nerves, enable them to perform their functions and dispel all signs of a breakdown.

Mrs. Jas. H. Ward, Lord's Cove, N.B., says; "About two years ago I suffered so much from nervous prostration that I was little better than a helpless wreck. I suffered from headaches and a constant feeling of dizziness. The least unusual move would startle me and set my heart palpitating violently. I had little or no appetite, and grew so weak that I was hardly able to drag myself about, and could not do my housework. In every way I was in a deplorable condition. As the medicine I had been taking seemed to do me no good, my husband got a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I had only been taking the Pills for a couple of weeks, when I seemed to feel somewhat better, and this encouraged me to continue the treatment. From that on my strength gradually but surely returned, and in the course of a few more weeks I was once more a well woman, able to do my own housework and feeling better than I had done for years. I have since remained well and feel that I owe my good health to the healing powers of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Every other weak, sickly, worn out, nervous person should follow the example of Mrs. Ward and give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial. These Pills will send new blood coursing through the veins and bring brightness and energy to the weak and despondent. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. [illegible]

The Daily Review

SATURDAY, SEPT. 18, 1909.

TRIBUTE

The Globe's editorial on the share Canada is to bear or not to bear in the burden of empire, in another column, is a sad evidence of lack of faith in the idea of empire. That the Globe has gone as far as it feels warranted in going in favour of the empire, is evident from the little kick it gives at Quebec, which is as much as to say that even if Quebec does not relish it, yet it will say what little it finally did say, in spite of Quebec. But what the Globe says is not enough. To begin with, the Globe speaks of our contribution, whether by money or ships, as "tribute." It is not tribute. That word means servitude, whereas Great Britain gives us the utmost liberty of action in the matter. How, then, can our contribution justly be called "tribute." It is offensive so to speak. The affection, nay, the enthusiasm, which we ought to feel and most, of us, we hope, do feel for the cause of a united empire, is not a feeling of paying "tribute," not a tribute of money but of sincere affection. That the Globe can use such an expression in this connection shows how very far the Liberal party has gone on the road to independence. It is an unhappy revelation. It must be corrected at once, for those who entertain that feeling may feel assured that when the cry goes forth that the empire is at war, Canada will swing in under the red flag and respond to the word of command without pausing to make fine and insulting distinctions or to designate love as "tribute." No amount of such insinuation will turn us from the imperial idea—the longing for the full and national fruition of our long-awaited development. The Globe is clearly on the side of the disunionists.

TRIBUTE AND SELF-GOVERNMENT

(The Globe.)

It cannot be said that a clear line of demarcation separates the Conservative and Liberal parties on the question of the fleet. Mr. Borden, the Conservative leader, is distinctly committed to the formation of a Canadian fleet, but a section of the Conservative press seem inclined to force his hand and commit the party to the principle of an annual tribute for the support of the British navy. The unvarying policy of that section of the press is, in every case to await Government action and then take the other side. Wherever it is possible, too, the impression is conveyed that the Governments' course is dictated by Quebec, and that it has its origin in "disloyalty" to British interests. In this controversy on the fleet no public man or public print need have any hesitation as to what side he should take.

Whatever may be the preferences of Quebec on the matter, we have no doubt as to what side English-speaking Canada will be found upon. There was a time when it was the accepted doctrine that colonials could not be wholly trusted with the management of any branch of their public service. Even the postoffice until comparatively recent years was manned in its higher offices by civil servants appointed by the Home Government. No one will feel like regretting the fact. We got the services of experienced officials, and at all events the Canadian Parliament eventually secured complete control over them and administered the revenues which its own people raised. Every service of the Federal Government for more than a generation has been wholly under the direction of Parliament, and the proposal that with respect to one national service, we shall go back to the ancient regime could only be made by some belated survivals of the Family Compact days. Such a piece of reactionary old-fogyism has not been previously proposed in our time, and we much mistake the temper of the English-speaking people of Canada is they are prepared to admit that the struggle for self-government was a mistake, and that we are prepared to ask the Parliament of Britain to help us manage our affairs and spend the people's taxes for us.

One would like to divide the outlook of those who favor the tribute idea. How long do they imagine the tribute arrangement would continue? Even the least hopeful of them must be persuaded that in no long time, as time is considered in the life of a nation, Canada will be a country of thirty millions of inhabitants. Do they really believe that a proud country of that proportion will be content to contribute ten or fifteen millions a year for sea defence and not have a single ship on the ocean that it could point to as distinctively belonging to it? The thing is unthinkable. The answer will probably be that by that time we would have started out own navy. If so, should we not start now? We spend nearly six millions a year on our land defences. According to the super-loyal wing of the Conservative press we should hand that sum to the British authorities and ask them to manage our militia for us. If we must eventually manage our own navy the sooner we begin learning the better it will be for Canada and the better for the Empire. That is the view taken in Britain itself, and the view taken everywhere except among a few rancorous party journals to whom nothing is too precious or too sacred to be kicked into the partisan arena.

THE CANADIAN CEMENT CO

The biggest merger of the kind, and probably of any kind ever successfully made and carried out in Canada, is the cement merger, whereby twelve of the cement companies merged into one great company to be known as the Canadian Cement Co., Limited. It will control the production and sale of cement, which in the form of reinforced concrete or as plain concrete, is the modern utility product of the present age. That it will "pay" is doubtless an assured fact, and the rate guaranteed investors is high enough to attract the buying public. It looks good, as the saying is, and the market will be neither unsteady or a failing one.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The estimated wheat yield of the west is 17.3 bushels per acre.

Maritzburg, South Africa, Monday.—A ton of oranges and a ton of naartjes have been shipped to Canada by the Government, with a view to capturing the market there.

Christians take great credit to themselves for what their belief has done for them. There are no slaves amongst Mohammedans. All Mohammedans are free and equal and sober.

Our fellow Canadians who speak the French language, are largely in favor of the Board of Control for Montreal. They have decided not to be stampeded by Le Bulletin in favor of a Board of Boodlers. It is a hopeful sign.

The Review is indebted to Lieut.-Col. Greenwood for several very interesting numbers of the Transvaal Weekly Illustrated. They have the colour question and the race question over there, and are looking forward to a religious question also.

The award of the lawn and garden judges speaks of the improved appearance of the city. Such spots as Mr. Logan's at the creekside are a delight to the eye, and are in great contrast to the curling rink lawn in Charlotte street, the Brock street lawn (east side) and the government lawn at the armories. If there had been a prize for weeds the last-named would have got it.

Guelph Mercury: Driven from state after state on the other side, the gambling element is turning toward Canada as the only place open to them, and Canada cannot be too quick about slamming the door in their face. The American bookie is worse than the American pickpocket, for, while the light-fingered gentry will pick your pocket, the bookies corrupt morals and arouse the passion for gambling among the young men of the land, in addition to causing the bank raids of the "easy mark" element. The Federal Government should wait no longer than the next session to prepare legislation calculated to bar most effectively the introduction of this evil.

What Mr. Foy did Mr. Murphy could have done but didn't.

There is likely to develop a religious war in Canada if the battle of Armageddon is to be fought soon as some suppose. Where are "the meek" these days? Also those who do not think that all is lost unless they reinforce the Almighty and rescue His kingdom from destruction. So-called religious people are, in many instances, doing more to spread irreligion than the irreligious are, by a good deal. If the "kingdom" is not of this world, why act as if it were a part of Manchuria or a Philippine island, or even more to the point of comparison, the North Pole.

Will the new management of the Intercolonial be a success? This is a question now being asked by many people in the Maritime Provinces, and indeed in other parts of Canada. The general impression so far is not overly favourable. To overcome the evils of a quarter-century even such good men as the present commission will require much time. Besides it is doubtful if they have enough power to enable them to use the pruning knife thoroughly. Lopping off a few small twigs on the outer edge of the tree is not likely to make much change. The only really effective method would be to give the commission absolute power to hire and dismiss. This they will never have, so long as the politicians have their present ideals and policies.—Canadian Courier.

A GOOD YARN.

How a Ship at Sea Would Have Foundered, But—

He was a sailor, an old sailor, therefore a good story teller.

"Well," he was saying, "we were jogging along down under when a thunderstorm overtook us, and the very first flash of lightning struck the deck amidships and bored a hole as big as my leg right down through the bottom of the vessel."

"And she foundered, of course."

"No, sir. The water began rushing in, and she would have foundered, but there came a second flash, and a bolt struck the fore to'gallant mast. It was cut off near the top, turned bottom end up, and as it came down it entered the hole and plugged it up as tight as a drum. When we got down to drydock we simply sawed off either end and left the plug in the planks."

The children belonging to a family living in a certain rural district heard that their father had that day been elected county sheriff and went home from school wild with excitement.

"Ma," one of them asked as the event was being discussed, "are we all sheriffs?"

"Of course not," returned the mother, with dignity. "It's only me and your pa."—Woman's Home Companion.

A Peripatetic Restaurant.

The eating stall is quite an institution in China, says a writer in The Wide World Magazine, and the average Chinaman thinks nothing of stopping and having a feed at a street restaurant. The proprietor carries the whole of his stock in trade on his shoulders. The stall itself consists of two cylindrical boxes attached to a yoke or pole. One of these boxes usually contains a fire, on which John cooks weird dainties into the composition of which it is unwise to inquire, for the Chinaman has a scientific appetite—that is to say, he will eat anything that in any way forms food. Squeamishness is a sensation unknown to him. The keepers of these street stalls sell good fruit, excellent pastries and simply delicious sweets at a price so low that it would astonish even the proprietor of an Italian restaurant.

Municipal Amenities.

A member of the Isle of Wight board of guardians thus answered a colleague from whom he had received what he took to be an insult: "I am not a bigger fool than you are, and I do not come here to be made a target for a censorious, cantankerous, scurrilous, insolent and illiterate cad from a Ventnor stable. Mr. Chairman, if you will allow him to turn upon me the rapier of insult, I shall plunge into him the dagger of sarcasm, and it will not be my fault if it does not go to the hilt!"—St. James' Gazette.

Something About Moose and Deer

It is now pretty well known among hunters that the best deer hunting country in Ontario is on the line of the Canadian Northern Ontario and that hunters receive special attention. Mr. C. Price Green, Passenger Agent of the line is a hunter himself who goes right with the parties and looks after them, in fact be located most of them. This year the line will be opened north of Sellwood into the midst of the Moose Country, they are reported very thick, the Engineers say that they have never seen anything like it, the Moose season up there opens October 15th, fifteen days before the Deer. We have something special on a new place that will take three parties of deer hunters

Chapter 1

"YOU never met Selwyn, did you?"

"No, sir."

"Never heard anything definite about his trouble?" insisted Gerard.

"Oh, yes, sir!" replied young Erroll. "I've heard a good deal about it. Everybody has, you know."

"Well, I don't know," retorted Austin Gerard irritably, "what 'everybody' has heard, but I suppose it's the usual garbled version made up of distorted fact and malicious gossip. That's why I sent for you. Sit down."

Gerald Erroll seated himself on the edge of the big, polished table in Austin's private office, one leg swinging, an unlighted cigarette between his lips.

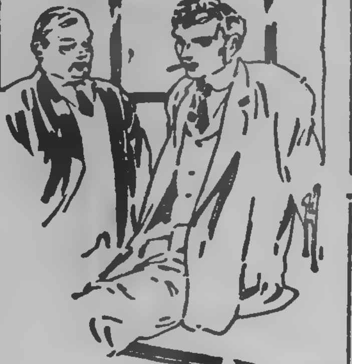
Austin Gerard, his late guardian, big, florid, with that peculiar blue eye which seems to characterise hasty temper, stood by the window, tossing up and catching the glittering gold piece—souvenir of the directors' meeting which he had just left.

"What has happened," he said, "is this. Captain Selwyn is back in town—sent up his card to me, but they told him I was attending a directors' meeting. When the meeting was over I found his card and a message scribbled, saying he'd recently landed and was going uptown to call on Nina. She'll keep him there, of course, until I get home, so I shall see him this evening. Now, before you meet him I want you to plainly understand the truth about this unfortunate affair, and that's why I telephoned your gimlet eyed friend Neergard just now to let you come around here for half an hour.

"In the first place, Captain Selwyn is my brother-in-law — which wouldn't make an atom of difference to me in my judgment of what has happened if he had been at fault. But the facts of the case are these." He held up an impressive forefinger and laid it flat across the large, ruddy palm of the other hand. "First of all, he married a cat! C-a-t, cat. Is that clear, Gerald?"

"Yes, sir."

"Good! What sort of a dance she led him out there in Manila I've heard. Never mind that now. What I want to know is how he behaved—with what quiet dignity, steady patience and sweet temper under constant provocation and mortification he conducted himself. Then that fellow Ruthven turned up—and—Selwyn is above that sort of suspicion. Besides, his scouts took the field within a week."



Gerald Erroll seated himself on the edge of the big, polished table.

He dropped a heavy, highly colored fist on his desk with a bang.

"After that hike Selwyn came back to find that Alixe had sailed with Jack Ruthven. And what did he do—take legal measures to free himself, as you or I or anybody with an ounce of temper in 'em would have done? No, he didn't. That infernal Selwyn conscience began to get busy, making him believe that if a woman kicks over the traces it must be because of some occult shortcoming on his part. In some way or other that man persuaded himself of his responsibility for her misbehavior. He knew what it meant if he didn't ask the law to aid him to get rid of her. He knew perfectly well that his silence meant acknowledgment of culpability, that he couldn't remain in the service under such suspicion.

"And now, Gerald," continued Austin, striking his broad palm with extended forefinger and leaning heavily forward, "I'll tell you what sort of a man Philip Selwyn is. He permitted Alixe to sue him for absolute divorce, and, to give her every chance to marry Ruthven, he refused, to defend the suit. That sort of chivalry is very picturesque, no doubt, but it cost him his career—set him adrift at thirty-five, a man branded as having been divorced from his wife for cause, with no profession left him, no business, not much money—a man in the prime of life and hope and ambition, clean in thought and deed, an upright, just, generous, sensitive man, whose whole career has been blasted because he was too merciful, too generous to throw the blame where it belonged. And it belongs on the shoulders of that Mrs. Jack Ruthven—Alixe Ruthven—whose name you may see in the columns of any paper that truckles to the sort of society she figures in. I meant you to understand that Selwyn is every inch a man, and when you have the honor to meet him keep that fact in the back of your head among the few brains with which Providence has equipped you."

"Thanks," said Gerald, coloring up. He cast his cigarette into the empty fireplace, slid off the edge of the table and picked up his hat. Austin eyed him without particular approval.

"You buy too many clothes," he observed. "That's a new suit, isn't it?"

"Certainly," said Gerald. "I needed it."

"Oh, if you can afford it, all right! How's the nimble Mr. Neergard?"

"Neergard is flourishing. We put through that Rose Valley deal. I tell you what, Austin, I wish you could see your way clear to finance one or two"—

Austin's frown cut him short.

"Oh, all right! You know your own business, of course," said the boy, a little resentfully. "Only as Fane, Harmon & Co. have thought it worth while"—

"I don't care what Fane-Harmon think," growled Austin, touching a button over his desk. His stenographer entered. He nodded a curt dismissal to Gerald, adding as the boy reached the door:

"Your sister expects you to be on hand tonight, and so do we."

Gerald halted.

"I'd clean forgotten," he began. "I made another—a rather important engagement"—

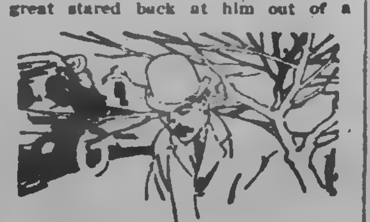
But Austin was not listening—in fact, he had already begun to dictate to his demure stenographer, and Gerald stood a moment, hesitating, then turned on his heel and went away down the resounding marble corridor.

"They never let me alone," he muttered. "They're always at me—following me up as though I were a schoolboy. Austin's the worst—never satisfied. What do I care for all these functions—sitting around with the younger set and keeping the cradle of conversation rocking? I won't go to that infernal baby show!"

He entered the elevator and shot down to the great rotunda, still scowling over his grievance, for he had made arrangements to join a card party at Julius Neergard's rooms that night, and he had no intention of foregoing that pleasure just because his sister's first grownup dinner party was fixed for the same date.

* * * * * * *

Meanwhile Captain Selwyn was sauntering along Fifth avenue under the leafless trees, scanning the houses of the rich and great across the way, and these new houses of the rich and great stared back at him out of a thousand casements as polished and expressionless as the monocles of the mighty.



Sauntering along Fifth avenue under the leafless trees.

And, strolling at leisure in the pleasant winter weather, he came presently to a street stretching eastward in all the cold impressiveness of very new limestone and plate glass.

Could this be the street where his sister now lived?

As usual when perplexed, he slowly raised his hand to his mustache, and his pleasant gray eyes, still slightly bloodshot from the glare of the tropics, narrowed as he inspected this unfamiliar house.

The house was a big, elaborate limestone affair, evidently new. Winter sunshine sparkled on lace hung casement, on glass marquise and the burnished bronze foliations of grille and door. He mounted the doorstep, rang and leisurely examined four stiff box trees flanking the ornate portal, meager vegetation compared to what he had been accustomed to for so many years.

Nobody came. Once or twice he fancied he heard sounds proceeding from inside the house. He rang again and fumbled for his cardcase. Somebody was coming.

Nina Gerard.

The moment that the door opened he was aware of a distant and curious uproar—faraway echoes of cheering and the faint barking of dogs. These seemed to cease as the man in waiting admitted him, but before he could make an inquiry or produce a card bedlam itself apparently broke loose somewhere in the immediate upper landing—noise in its crudest elemental definition—through which the mortified man at the door strove to make himself heard: "Beg pardon, sir; it's the children broke loose an' runnin' wild-like"—

"The what?"

"Only the children, sir; fox huntin' the cat, sir"—

His voice was lost in the yelling dissonance descending crescendo from floor to floor. Then an avalanche of children and dogs poured down the hall stairs in pursuit of a rumpled and bored cat, tumbling with yelps and cheers and thuds among the thick rugs on the floor.

Here the cat turned and soundly cuffed a pair of fat beagle puppies, who shrieked and fled, burrowing for safety into the yelling heap of children and dogs on the floor. Above this heap legs, arms and the tails of dogs waved wildly for a moment, then a small boy, blond hair in disorder, [illegible] to his [illegible] and, setting [illegible] head [illegible], shouted, "Hi [illegible]! Hark away forrard! Take [illegible]! Now, Tatters! After him, [illegible]! Get on there, Schultze! [illegible] him, Stager! Tally-hoo!"

[illegible] broke loose.

[illegible] which encouraging invitation the [illegible] a waddling dachs[illegible] a [illegible] and an Irish terrier [illegible] Selwyn's newly creased trou[illegible] and the small boy, rising to his [illegible], became aware of that astonished [illegible] for the first time.

"Steady, there!" exclaimed Selwyn, [illegible]ing his walking stick to a brisk bayonet defense. "Steady, men! Prepare to receive infantry and doggery—" he added, backing away. "No quarter! Remember the Alamo!"

The small boy with the blond hair stepped forward and dragged several [illegible] from the vicinity of Selwyn's [illegible].

"This is the Shallowbrook hunt," he explained. "I am master of hounds; my sister Drina, there, is one of the whips. Part of the game is to all fall down together and pretend we've come croppers. You see, don't you?"

"I see," nodded Selwyn. "It's a pretty stiff hunting country, isn't it?"

"Yes, it is. There's wire, you know," volunteered the girl, Drina, rubbing the bruises on her plump shins. "Kit-Ki makes a pretty good fox, only she isn't enough afraid of us to run away very fast. Won't you sit down? Our mother is not at home, but we are."

"Would you really like to have me stay?" asked Selwyn.

"Well," admitted Drina frankly, "of course we can't tell yet how interesting you are because we don't know you. We are trying to be polite"—and, in a fierce whisper, turning on the smaller of the boys—"Winthrop, take your finger out of your mouth and stop staring at guests! Billy, you make him behave himself."

The blond haired M. F. H. reached for his younger brother. The infant culprit avoided him and sullenly withdrew the sucked finger, but not his fascinated gaze.

"I want to know who he ith," he lisped in a loud aside.

"So do I," admitted a tiny maid in stick-out skirts.

"Well," said Selwyn, "as a matter of fact and record, I am a sort of relative of yours, a species of avuncular relation."

"What is that?" asked Drina coldly.

"That," said Selwyn, "means that I'm more or less of an uncle to you. Hope you don't mind. You don't have to entertain me, you know."

"An uncle?" repeated Drina.

"Our uncle?" echoed Billy. "You are not our soldier uncle, are you? You are not our Uncle Philip, are you?"

"It amounts to that," admitted Selwyn.

One by one the other children came forward to greet this promising new uncle whom the younger among them had never before seen and whom Drina, the oldest, had forgotten except as that fabled warrior of legendary exploits whose name and fame had become cherished classics of their nursery.

"I infer," observed Selwyn blandly, "that your father and mother are not at home. Perhaps I'd better stop in later."

"But you are going to stay here, aren't you?" exclaimed Drina in dismay. "Don't you expect to tell us stories? Don't you expect to stay here and live with us and put on your uniform for us and show us your swords and pistols? Don't you?"

"We have waited such a very long time for you to do this," added Billy.

"If you'll come up to the nursery we'll have a drag hunt for you," pleaded Drina. "Everybody is out of the house, and we can make as much noise as we please! Will you?"

"Haven't you any governesses or nurses or something?" asked Selwyn, finding himself already on the stairway and still being dragged upward.

"Our governess is away," said Billy triumphantly, "and our nurses can do nothing with us."

"I don't doubt it," murmured Selwyn, "but where are they?"

"Somebody must have locked them in the schoolroom," observed Billy carelessly. "Come on, Uncle Philip. We'll have a first class drag hunt before we unlock the schoolroom and let them out."

Before Selwyn understood precisely what was happening he found himself the center of a circle of madly racing children and dogs.

When there was no more breath left in the children and when the dogs lay about, grinning and lolling, Drina approached him, bland and disheveled.

"That circus," she explained, "was for your entertainment. Now will you please do something for ours?"

"What am I to tell you about—our missionaries in Sulu?" said Selwyn.

"In the first place," began Drina, "you are to lie down flat on the floor and creep about and show us how the Moros wriggle through the grass to bolo our sentinels."

"I don't want to get down on the floor," he said feebly. "Is it necessary?"

But they had discovered that he could be bullied, and they had it their own way, and presently Selwyn lay prone upon the nursery floor impersonating a ladrone while pleasant shivers chased themselves over Drina, whom he was stalking.

And it was while all were passionately intent upon the pleasing and snakelike progress of their uncle that a young girl in furs, ascending the stairs two at a time, peeped perfunctorily into the nursery as she passed the hallway and halted amazed.

Selwyn, sitting up rumpled and cross legged on the floor, after having boloed Drina to everybody's exquisite satisfaction, looked around at the sudden rustle of skirts to catch a glimpse of a vanishing figure, a glimmer of ruddy hair and the white curve of a youthful face half buried in a muff.

Mortified, he got to his feet, glanced out into the hallway and began adjusting his attire.

"No, you don't!" he said mildly. "I decline to perform again. If you want any more wriggling you must accomplish it yourselves. Drina, has your governess—by any unfortunate chance—er—red hair?"

"No," said the child, "and won't you please crawl across the floor and bolo me—just once more?"

"Bolo me!" insisted Billy. "I haven't been mangled yet!"

"Let Billy assassinate somebody himself. And, by the way, Drina, are there any maids or nurses or servants in this remarkable house who occasionally wear copper tinted hair and black fox furs?"

Looked around at the rustle of skirts.

"No. Eileen does. Won't you please wriggle"—

"Who is Eileen?"

"Eileen? Why—don't you know who Eileen is?"

"No, I don't," began Captain Selwyn, when a delighted shout from the children swung him toward the door again. His sister, Mrs. Gerard, stood there in carriage gown and sables, radiant with surprise.

"Phil! You! Exactly like you, Philip, to come strolling in from the antipodes—dear fellow!" recovering from the fraternal embrace and holding both lapels of his coat in her gloved hands. "Six years!" she said again and again, tenderly reproachful. "Alexandrine was a baby of six— Drina, child, do you remember my brother—do you remember your Uncle Philip? She doesn't remember. You can't expect her to recollect. She is only twelve, Phil"—

"I remember one thing," observed Drina serenely.

Brother and sister turned toward her in pride and delight, and the child went on: "My Aunt Alixe; I remember her. She was so pretty," concluded Drina, nodding thoughtfully in the effort to remember more. "Uncle Philip, where is she now?"

But her uncle seemed to have lost his voice as well as his color, and Mrs. Gerard's gloved fingers tightened on the lapels of his coat.

"I never dreamed," she began—"the child has never spoken of—of her from that time to this! I never dreamed she could remember"—

"I don't understand what you are talking about, mother," said Drina, but her pretty mother caught her by the shoulders, striving to speak lightly. "Where in the world is Bridget, child? Where is Katie? And what is all this I hear from Dawson? It can't be possible that you have been fox hunting all over the house again! Your nurses know perfectly well that you are not to hunt anywhere except in your own nursery. Such a household, Phil! Everybody incompetent, including me; everything topsy turvy, and all five dogs perfectly possessed to lie on that pink rug in the music room. Have they been there today, Drina, while you were practicing?"

"Yes, and there are some new spots, mother. I'm very sorry."

"Take the children away!" said Mrs. Gerard to the nurses. She bent over, kissing each culprit as the file passed out. "What do you think of them? You never before saw the three youngest. You saw Drina when you went east, and Billy was a few months old. What do you thing of them? Honestly, Phil."

"All to the good, Ninette; very ornamental. Drina and that Josephine kid are real beauties. I—er—take to Billy tremendously. He told me that he'd locked up his nurses. I ought to have interfered. It was really my fault, you see."

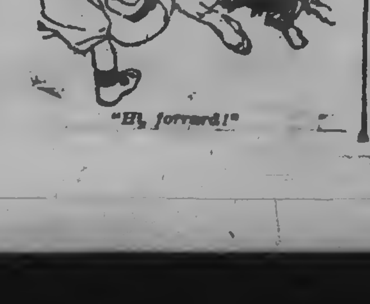
"And you didn't make him let them out? You are not going to be very good morally for my young. Tell me, Phil, have you seen Austin?"

"I went to the trust company, but he was attending a directors' confab. How is he? He's prosperous anyhow, I observe," with a humorous glance around the elaborate hallway which they were traversing.

"Don't dare laugh at us!" smiled his sister. "I wish we were back in Tenth street. But so many children came—Billy, Josephine, Winthrop and Tina—and the Tenth street house wasn't half big enough, and a dreadful speculative builder built this house and persuaded Austin to buy it. You're going to stay here?"

"No; I'm at the Holland."

"Of course you're to live with us. You've resigned from the service, haven't you?"



"Hi, forrard!"

He looked at her sharply, but did not reply.

A curious flash of telepathy passed between them. She hesitated; then:

"You once promised Austin and me that you would stay with us."

"But, Nina"—

"No, no, no! Wait," pressing an electric button. "Watson, Captain Selwyn's luggage is to be brought here immediately from the Holland! Immediately!" And to Selwyn: "Austin will not be at home before half past 6. Come up with me now and see your quarters, a perfectly charming place for you, with your own smoking room and dressing closet and bath. Wait, we'll take the elevator—as long as we have one."

Smilingly protesting, yet touched by the undisguised sincerity of his welcome, he suffered himself to be led into the elevator—a dainty white and rose rococo affair. His sister adjusted a tiny lever; the car moved smoothly upward and presently stopped, and they emerged upon a wide landing.

To be continued.

WAYS OF THE LION.

Its Capacity For Making Itself Invisible In Dim Light.

"In the wild state one seldom sees a lion either in repose or majestically alert," writes a correspondent of The London Times. "A glimpse the hunter may get of him, standing magnificently rigid when suddenly disturbed in early morning at his kill of overnight, and more seldom it has been given to a man to watch one, himself unobserved, gazing from an eminence at the grazing herd. But the lion is a nocturnal animal, possessing an extraordinary capacity for making itself invisible in dim light. Many a sportsman has testified to the experience of being unable to see a lion on a night not altogether dark, though it was so close that its breathing was plainly audible, and many a native of Africa has fallen victim to the sudden onslaught of what, as he passed it a few feet away, he took to be only a small bush or the blot upon the darkness made by a tussock of grass.

"The literature of big game shooting contains perhaps no incident more bloodcurdling than the experience of Dr. Aurel Schulz, who, when with his gun bearer he was stalking a hippopotamus at night found that a lion was in turn stalking them. By chance the gun bearer noticed that a bush behind them had a queer way of being always about the same distance in their rear. In spite of the moonlight they could not be certain that it really was a lion, but when, to test it, they turned upon their tracks, immediately the shadowy thing swept, dim and noiseless, in a wide semicircle, so as to plant itself again behind them. So, one going backward with his face always to the lion, the hunted hunters made their way back to camp, hippopotamuses having ceased to interest them."

As to the moral character of the beast, the same writer continues: "It has been said of the lion that he attacks only those who withstood him, scorning to strike one who fled or sued for clemency, wherein in real life if you run from a lion he will chase you; moreover, that full grown men only were his enemies, that he would not harm babies. But in the lion house one may see any day the eyes which look so indifferently on the men and women who come and go before the cages light up with sudden savagery as some small child toddles alone across the floor. The lion has learned that men and women are not for him, but this smaller creature—nice antelope size, soft and helpless—presents itself to the royal mind as easily killable."

The Game of Mum-Budget.

One cannot help thinking that the mysterious old English game of "mum-budget" must have been a premonition of the silence which chancellors of the exchequer in later centuries would succeed in keeping each year about their financial intentions. At any rate, we shall probably never know what mum-budget really was, although thousands have puzzled over Slender's words to Shallow, "I come to her in white and cry 'mum'; she cries 'budget,' and by that we know one another." According to Cotgrave, "to play mum-budget" meant "to be graveled, put to silence or a nonplus," and it is supposed to have been some children's game in which silence was called for. But, considering the frequency of allusions to it from before Shakespeare's time until "Hudibras," it is strange that all knowledge of its nature should have been lost.

Past Finding Out.

'Well, well, Neighbor Weaver, I see as how ye's got a new hired man over to your place," remarked Uncle Charlie Seaver as he leaned over the pasture fence and accepted a chew from his friend's tobacco pouch. "Somethin' peculiar about the way that feller walks. Is he a mite lame?"

"Huh, dingbusted if I know whether the cuss's lame or not," ejaculated Mr. Weaver, expectorating into the pigweed beside the fence. "To tell ye truth, Neighbor Seaver, I never seen the cuss move fast enough so's I could find out. Thet hired man may be lame in th' nigh leg, as ye say, but I guess we'll never know the truth. Huh!"

Absentminded.

The keeper of the zoo was smiling over a newspaper account of a monkey that had died of love.

"It's a good story," said the head keeper. "This reporter has an original turn to him. He's like the western jury.

"A westerner, you know, once hung himself to the bedpost by his suspenders, and the verdict of the coroner's jury ran:

"'Deceased came to his death by coming home full and mistaking himself for his pants.'"

Found Famous Nugget.

The discoverer of the famous "Welcome Nugget" has died in the Ballarat Benevolent Asylum, Australia, aged 74. He returned to Ballarat three years ago, poor and in ill-health, and was compelled to seek shelter in the asylum. The "Welcome Nugget," one of the largest pieces of natural gold in the world, was taken from Bakery Hill, Ballarat, in 1858. It was found at a depth of 180 feet. It weighed 2,217 oz. 16 dwt., and was sold for £10,500.

Only Medicine That Did Any Good

After Suffering Tortures For Years, This Lady Found Happy Relief In "Fruit-a-tives".

Frankville, Ont., June 11th, 1908.

"I have received most wonderful benefit from taking "Fruit-a-tives." I suffered for years from headaches and pain in the back, and I consulted doctors and took every remedy obtainable without any relief. Then I began taking "Fruit-a-tives" and this was the only medicine that ever did me any real good. I took several boxes altogether, and now I am entirely well of all my dreadful headaches and backaches.

MRS. FRANK EATON

I take "Fruit-a-tives" occasionally still, but I am quite cured of a trouble that was said to be incurable. I give this testimony voluntarily, in order that others who suffer as I suffered may try this wonderful medicine and be cured."

(Signed) MRS. FRANK EATON.

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50 or trial box, 25c —or sent post-paid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

CANCER DEFINED.

The Theory of the Medical Experts of Columbia University.

According to the experts on cancer of the medical faculty of Columbia university, that dreaded disease is neither contagious nor infectious. As one of them expressed it, "you could breathe cancer, wallow in cancer, handle cancer with cut hands and not be in the least danger of contracting the disease, simply because cancer is not a germ disease."

Shorn of every scientific term, or, as one of the experts said, expressed in "primary grade" English that the most unlearned may comprehend, the following is what cancer is:

One of the myriad cells of which our tissues are composed fails to grow normally. It is either too large or too small. This abnormality of size pushes other cells around it out of plumb. These misplaced cells conglomerate into a mass of cells that, by reason of their abnormality, fail to receive proper nourishment. This lack of nourishment causes these abnormal cells to decay, thus forming a tumor or cancer. These abnormal cells, as they multiply, will go on knocking normally growing cells out of position, and as soon as this occurs these normal cells also become abnormal and begin to decay.

This process will continue at an ever accelerating rate, the decayed part growing and growing until the patient becomes so weak from the burden that he dies.

There is only one effective treatment so far devised—cut the tumor or cancer out as soon as possible after it is discovered. Nothing else will stop the decay of cells. Cancers have long, spreading roots. Every bit of this root must be cut out or the misplaced cells will begin growing faultily again and the cancer will reappear. If every bit of the root is extracted there is no likelihood of the reappearance of the cancer.

Because of the "ethics of the profession" the experts who imparted the information on cancer declined to permit the use of their names.—New York World.

"Sliding to Base."

At one time the slide was on the principle of getting there—to the coveted base—quick. The runner slid head first, like a football man tackling, and arrived in the center of a huge tornado of dust that admitted of no possible delusion as to his whereabouts. Now—and this is a McGraw invention; he calls it the "fall away" slide—the plan is to arrive not only fast, but also as invulnerably as possible. The runner slides feet first and well behind the bag. His right leg is straight ahead, as a brake, and his left leg, extended at right angles to the body, just touches the bag with the tip of the toe. The whole body is away from the tagger; he must touch the toe to tag the man out. For hours I watched McGraw line up his men and send them in turn at the bag to practice the "fall away" slide. It was much like the falling on the ball of a football squad and the result to the muscle much the same, I should judge, from the rueful countenance of each man as he rose.—Everybody's Magazine.

PHYSICAL CULTURE

"SALUTE, young ladies!" And at the sound of the fencing master's voice a score of girls swing into position, bodies that were inert quiver with excitement of a coming bout with foils, eyes sparkle with excitement, and there follows a ring of steel against steel, telling that the fencing lesson has begun.

"It is marvellous what I have been able to accomplish with my class," confided the enthusiastic master during a rest in the daily practice. "When I took them six months ago they were awkward and ungainly, hardly a single movement had grace and attractiveness. Now look at them. Are they not quick, sinuous, alert and well developed young ladies? Where could you find a more graceful carriage, a greater amount of suppleness and lightness? Ah, believe me, there is nothing in all the list of exercises so beneficial to the feminine figure as fencing, and no girl should neglect taking lessons with the foils for at least one year if she looks forward to a successful social career, where grace counts for almost as much as beauty.

"Fencing lessons will do more for the improvement of the feminine outline than any other exercise. A girl who is too stout cannot fence well, so if she practises regularly the surplus fat disappears as if by magic. And the girl that is too thin for the present beauty standard fills out wonderfully after she has had a few months' hard work with the foils. Fencing seems to smooth out all the imperfections of contour. And that is not its greatest advantage. The quick movements required in practice will quicken the sluggish temperament. Fencing improves the vision, because a fencer must learn to see quickly and the body learns to move in the most graceful attitudes: Fencing means grace. One cannot become expert with the foils without acquiring sinuous and attractive poses, and the movements learned in this sport are used unconsciously in every other. A good fencer will develop into a good dancer. To be able to dance, however, does not mean that one can fence right off, but the various positions will come more readily to the beginner who understands the art of dancing than to the novice."

GIRLS' schools invariably include fencing among their list of exercises, and the classes are always popular. In the expensive schools high priced fencing masters are employed and the girls are taught to handle the foils with such skill that they can parry and thrust with their brothers. In the city there are a few excellent clubs for the purpose of promoting interest in this noble art. Tournaments are frequently held, and exhibitions which are a credit to the teachers and pupils are given during the fencing season.

For a girl who has grown a bit rusty on fencing and needs only a few pointers the following will be found useful, and even the amateur who wants to learn the art of fencing will find them of great value:—First of all the fencer should learn how to grasp the foil. This should be held firmly so that a quick strain from the adversary's thrust will not loosen the hold, yet it should not be gripped or the hilt clutched in the hand. Too firm a hold will strain the wrist and forearm. Let the hand lie flat on the convex part of the hilt, forefinger extended along the foil and the other fingers curled about the hilt and resting flat against the left side, touching each other lightly.

There is a great deal of science in the grasp of the foil, for through her blade the fencer understands her opponent's play and her sword must be free to ward it off with lightning quickness.

THE first attitude assumed by the fencer as she steps forward or to the centre of the field before placing herself on guard is as follows:—Stand with the body erect, heels just touching and toes pointed out, the right toe in a straight line with that of the opponent and the left foot at a sharp angle to the right. While the body is held erect it is swung slightly to the right, thus presenting a three-quarter view to the adversary. The sword hand is held on a line with the head. The left arm is allowed to swing at the side, not close to the body, however, and with the palm of the hand turned outward.

The salute is a picturesque posture and is a preliminary to the battle. While in the position just described the fencers stand at the correct distance from each other, this being determined by the length of arms and foils, and the arms of both fencers fall gracefully at their sides, the buttons on the foils just touching the floor. They should strike it a little toward the left of the right foot. At a signal both fencers step forward, raising the right arm until it is on a level with the top of the head, blades extended. The hands then drop to a line with the chin, almost touching it and the blades continuing upright. With a quick movement they sweep downward and to the right, this being one of the most attractive and graceful of the fencing movements.

With another quick movement the blade is brought forward and the tip of the foil grasped in the left hand, both arms raised over the head, and after a second or two the left hand falls to the side slowly and half bent, elbow down and the hand on a line with the ear. It is held some distance from the head, fingers pointing upward, while the right hand falls into position for "on guard" and the signal for the struggle to begin is given.

THE position of "on guard," the second in the series, is equally interesting. Lower the right hand from first position, turning the knuckles downward and move the blade so that the left hand grasps it lightly. Then raise both hands slowly and gracefully above the head, allow the left hand to loosen its grasp and fall into position at the back of the head, keeping the arms bent and half outstretched so that the open palm is on a level with the head. Then move the right hand to the front, just a trifle below the breast and to the right, with the elbow coming close to the body. Hold the foil in a horizontal position so that its tip is on a line with the eyes. Now advance the right foot about eighteen inches, being careful to keep the right heel on a line with the left, and allow the weight of the body to fall equally on both feet, so that one leg feels no more strain than the other. In this position the body is well balanced, yet poised so that the quickest possible movement can be made without any difficulty.

The lunge or extension now follows, and this is one of the hardest to manage. Stretch the right arm from its former position close to the body until it moves straight out at the same height as the shoulders. The body should never be the least bit rigid in this position, in fact pliability is one of the greatest qualities of the skilful fencer. Neither should the body be bent in this movement. Advance the right foot a trifle, keeping the knee directly in line with the instep. Do not lean forward or backward, except when advancing or retreating, and be sure that the body is upright. One of the easiest errors to fall into is bending as the body retreats or advances. When there is no one at hand to call attention to such errors the fencer is apt to acquire bad habits, and for this reason class work is excellent practice.

IN moving forward or backward the start is always made with the right foot and followed by the left. One of the first rules given by the instructor is to take small steps, never long strides. The position can be changed or shifted by bending the right knee forward or straightening it. This will move the body forward or backward, the distance of the movement depending upon the degree of the bend. When retreating or stepping backward always start with the reverse foot, that is, with the left and follow with the right.

FENCING terms are unintelligible to the novice. "Tierce" means when the fencers have their foils crossed with points upward and blades to the right of each other. When in the same position with the sword points to the left of each other the fencers are engaged in "quarte." A lunge in "tierce" is thrusting to the right and high, in "quarte" the same movement is made with the swords to the left.

The regulation fencing costume is one of the most picturesque of athletic attire. Short skirts are essential and sometimes they are accordion pleated. The plain gored skirt is as practicable as any. School girls often wear their gymnasium suits, and when they practice in the open air they don sweaters. The athletic field or the lawn outside the gymnasium is an excellent practice ground for the fencing classes and instructors have found that girls like the open air work far more than they do foil practice indoors.

A College Girl's Touring Equipment.

IN anticipation of a trip of several weeks' duration through a region where first class hostleries are conspicuously absent a college girl of practical mind has provided herself with a number of small and easily packed conveniences.

Into a flat dressing case of pigskin lined with morocco and fitted with tooth and soap boxes she has found space for a manicure set, a sanitary closed case containing a hair brush having a celluloid plate under the bristles to insure easy cleansing, a package of non-scented dry shampoo powder for freeing the hair of oil and dust, a metal box holding a tiny powder puff, a securely fastened wooden case for quarter ounce screw top bottles of ammonia, peroxide and witch hazel and a silk lined morocco heart-shaped affair holding four sterling silver ribbon runners and thread reels. A bevelled mirror set into the back of a four by eight inch black seal envelope purse which holds stationery, a fountain pen and its filler is protected by a feather weight rubberized silk raincoat and hat and a dark hooded kimono which can be folded into an infinitesimal amount of space.

In addition to the toilet conveniences the travelling case accommodates a pint coffee pot of dull copper with a removable inside percolator, a nickel teapot, which may be tilted to regulate the beverage to the desired strength, a poacher which cooks six eggs and a non-explosive alcohol chafing dish lamp which generates its own gas.

Birthday Dolls.

THE girl who wishes to remember the birthday anniversary of some small feminine relative or friend will find a visit to the doll emporiums entertaining and instructive. Instead of the conventional baby features and garb, dolls now have faces of varying ages and are dressed accordingly.

There are replicas of the "summer girl," golfing, tennis, yachting and motoring enthusiast, bride, widow, French maid, waitress and cook—all suitably garbed, Japanese tea room attendants, Dutch, Eskimo and Indian children, with different types of faces and in native costume, and infant dolls, have countenances modelled from life by expert artists.

Everything that an American doll wears is now to be purchased ready made. There are fashionable frocks, gowns, bath robes, wraps, rubberized rain coats, Leghorn, straw, chiffon and lace hats and every imaginable accessory.

SOME SMART HATS EASILY TRIMMED

IT is somewhat a pity that the lingerie hats are no longer worn—they were so universally becoming, so attractive to make one's self and withal so singularly appropriate with the style of simple morning dress for which they were designed. However, no fashion can remain forever in favor, and the straw hats with large Alsatian bows of lace bordered lawn that are now so smart are certainly extremely effective.

It is rather a fad among young girls this year to be decidedly "sporty" in appearance on the tennis court or golf links, and, in fact, for whatever form of outdoor fun or exercise they may pursue, the costumes contrasting sharply with the charmingly pretty and girlish frocks and hats which are donned in the afternoon. Soft brimmed, comfortable Panama straws are worn again for riding, tennis and all forms of more or less strenuous exercise, but, unfortunately, only a girl with curly hair can look attractive in a Panama, for this hat requires to be worn far down on the head in a way which hopelessly flattens straight hair.

With the hair worn low on the neck or in a braid down the back a wide brimmed sailor is almost invariably becoming, and this year both white and black sailors are in vogue, the later being, perhaps, the more fashionable. Mushroom sailors are still in evidence, but flat sailors are more in demand than was the case last year.

White duck and pique hats, severely plain, with only a lawn scarf and bowknot or large rosette as ornamentation, are delightfully cool and light. There is no hat, in fact, which so well takes the place of an embroidered linen or batiste morning hat.

With simple gowns of linen or gingham altogether the prettiest hats this year are those either of natural colored linen ornamented with an enormous bowknot of plain or bright colored ribbon or the wide brimmed chip straws trimmed with large double bowknots of finest lawn or mull bordered with Valenciennes or baby Irish edging.

These new hats are, fortunately, no more difficult for a girl to make and trim herself than were the lingerie hats of a few summers back. First a good straw shape must be found, which, if too mushroom in effect, can be raised up on the head by means of a flat bandeau or velvet "halo." It is almost always possible at this time of the year to find a good untrimmed sailor shape in white, yellow, black or any colored straw desired.

The large bowknot is then made of finest French mousseline or perhaps a sheer embroidered batiste, the lace edge gathered in slightly to give a softer look. Any girl can surely make a pretty double loop or Alsatian bowknot, this being placed just in the centre of the hat, with one end of the knot left sufficiently long to encircle the crown.

This model can be carried out in any color or combination of colors that may be desired, and it is not a bad plan to have for one hat several different bowknots of various shades to change according to the gown with which the hat is worn.

Linen and pique wide brimmed flat hats are not so very difficult to do and are certainly worth attempting, so smart are they this season.

First a good wire shape must be procured, and this has only to be covered with a piece of linen of the desired shade. The best and safest way of covering a flat wire shape is by cutting first a good pattern in paper or cambric, this being done by placing a piece of the material over the top of the hat, cutting a slit in the centre so that it can slip down over the crown, and then, when the material fits flat on the brim, cutting it even around the edge of the brim.

The lining for the under side of the brim is made in the same way, the only difficult part being the neat joining of this facing. The top of the crown, of course, must be perfectly smooth and flat, but the sides of the crown can be hidden by the material or ribbon of which the bow is formed.

There are any number of variations possible in this style of hat—shirring about the crown and brim, cording, rows of tucks, all add to the charm of the model, but for a beginner the simple design is unquestionably the best.

A hat is undoubtedly the most important part of a costume, but an expensive hat is not necessary, at any rate in the summer, when a girl has plenty of time to turn out any number of fascinating hats. Even if she has not sufficient talent to make for herself a large, dainty Alsatian bow, she can then find a becoming straw shape in white or yellow and have made and wired a number of different colored ribbon bowknots, which she can change each time a different colored frock is donned.

FASHIONS FOR HOME MADE LINGERIE

DIMITY instead of plain nainsook or fine linen is just now extremely popular for all kinds of underwear, and for the girl who makes all or a great part of her own lingerie this is a fad well worth knowing of, for dimity, having a pattern of its own, calls for far less trimming than a plainer fabric. Dimity of a pretty check or stripe design requires little more adornment than a single edging of lace and perhaps some little tucking, whereas all batiste undergarments are profusely trimmed with hand embroidery and countless insertions of lace.

Both night dresses and chemises are ridiculously simple to make, and if a girl will only keep herself supplied in these two departments of her lingerie she will have sufficient saved to buy what else she may desire. The prettiest pattern for a summer nightgown is square cut, low neck, with short kimono or cap sleeves, the only trimming being a flat band of beading sufficiently wide for a one-inch ribbon about the neck and the same at the end of the sleeves. An edging of lace an inch or less in width and perhaps a few rows of tucks run below the beading will make as attractive a nightdress as could be desired. This gown slips on over the head, the ribbons being tied in front at each corner, so that there are no troublesome buttonholes and button slips to make.

It is an excellent plan to buy one night dress of an especially pretty design and good fit as a sample from which to cut the others. If, however, a girl does not feel that she can expend so much as a really pretty gown costs she can buy a paper pattern which will answer all requirements and is, in fact, easier to cut from.

For chemise and corset cover as well as night dress a square neck is now preferred to a round or V shape. Not only is the square more becoming, but over this shape the waist will be found to fit better and also give a wider shoulder line.

If a chemise is worn instead of a corset cover it must not be longer than a few inches below the waist, else it will cause the skirt of the dress to fit badly. A girl cannot commence too young to see to it that her underskirts and corset cover fit smoothly in order that her outer dress will look trim and neat and all unnecessary fulness and wrinkles be avoided. For this reason a fitted corset waist is preferable to a chemise, which, unless it is fitted in at the waist with the lower part or skirt added separately below a band of beading, is sure to interfere with the fit of the shirt waist and skirt worn over it.

Cheap lace is of all things to be avoided on underwear, and if a girl cannot afford a really good Valenciennes she should content herself with fine embroidery. For a young girl the most attractive undergarments are of a sheer quality of linen, trimmed only with hand scalloping and perhaps some simple design of hand embroidery. The open English embroidery is now preferred to the French and Swiss work, and this is of course the most effective. Also Irish lace, or rather baby Irish edging and insertion, have taken the place for the moment of the finer Valenciennes, which, exquisitely pretty as it is when first put on, never looks well after the first washing. Irish, on the other hand, is, if anything, improved by soap, water and ironing.

When she is making her own lingerie a girl should always turn out her undergarments in complete sets and not wear a lace trimmed chemise with an embroidered corset waist or a petticoat trimmed with one kind of lace and a waist of another design.

Naturally, too, of course, all garments must be trimmed with the one shade of ribbon. This summer white ribbon is preferred for the under waist and petticoat when a gown of sheer texture is worn, and satin is now in vogue rather than the wash ribbon formerly so fashionable. The satin, however, must be double faced.

It is as important to-day for a petticoat to have its band of inch wide beading with ribbon run through as for the corset waist itself to be thus adorned. Beading can always be added to a skirt above the flounce, and if the skirt itself is of sufficiently good quality and trimming it is well worth while to add this little finish should the skirt have been bought without it.

Silk shirts are decidedly costly, but to make are comparatively inexpensive, and for warm weather are both hygienic and comfortable. Cut from any silk or pongee pattern. The undershirt can easily be finished at the neck with a narrow beading and an edging of lace. With a little ingenuity a tiny wreath or small floral spray can be drawn on the shirt and easily embroidered, thus making this garment the equal of the most expensive article of its kind to be found in the shops.

TWO CAPTAINS.

One Dies For His People, the Other's People Die For Him.

Ruskin in his "Essay on War" says: "It is wholly inconceivable to me how well educated princes who ought to be of all gentlemen the gentlest and of all nobles the most generous and whose title of royalty means only their function of doing every man 'right'—how these, I say, throughout history should so rarely pronounce themselves on the side of the poor and of justice, but continually maintain themselves and their own interests by oppression of the poor and by wresting of justice, and how this should be accepted as so natural that the word 'loyalty,' which means faithfulness to law, is used as if it were only the duty of a people to be royal to their king and not the duty of a king to be infinitely more loyal to his people.

"How it comes to pass that a sea captain will die with his passengers and lean over the gunwale to give the parting boat its course, but that a king will not usually die with, much less for, his passengers—thinks it rather incumbent on his passengers in any number to die for him—think, I beseech you, of the wonder of this!

"The sea captain, not captain by divine right, but only by the company's appointment; not a man of royal descent, but only a plebeian who can steer; not with the eyes of the world upon him, but with feeble chance, depending on one poor boat, of his name being ever heard above the wash of the fatal waves, not with the cause of a nation resting on his act, but helpless to save so much as a child from among the lost crowd with whom he resolves to be lost, yet goes down quietly to his grave rather than break his faith to those few emigrants.

"But your captain by divine right, your captain with the hues of a hundred shields of kings upon his breast, your captain whose every deed, brave or base, will be illuminated or branded forever before unescapable eyes of men, your captain whose every thought and act are beneficent or fatal from sun rising to setting, blessing as the sunshine or shadowing as the night—this captain as you find him in history for the most part thinks only how he may tax his passengers and sit at most ease in his cabin."

The Vanity of Criminals.

Criminologists speak of the braggart vanity of the criminal. It is true of erotic offenders, perhaps. But the thief will tell of the number of times he has fooled the police merely by way of self justification. He admits the premise that he was a fool ever to become a criminal, and he recounts his triumphs only to indicate to you that at least he is not an absolute idiot. Also criminologists point out the childish vanity of the criminal who bedecks his person with jewels when he is prosperous. In this the criminal is no vainer than his honest brother. But jewels are about the only sort of property that he can safely possess, as was the case with the Jews in the old days when they were the driven race. The criminal may not with any safety become a bank depositor, and he is usually too much of a spendthrift to carry a roll of cash. But he finds that if he is arrested and can show some handsome diamond ornaments and a valuable watch he will have no difficulty in securing a good lawyer and a bondsman, and will have a fighting chance for acquittal at his trial.

Saltmaking In Spain.

The Spanish method of producing salt, as employed near Cadiz, is by allowing the sun to evaporate the water from what are known as "pans" small ponds prepared for the purpose of a uniform depth of about eighteen inches. These are flooded directly from the sea three or four times a year, and in time there is left a deposit of about three inches of salt, which is piled in the open in the form of small pyramids until sold. This method has the advantage of being inexpensive and of not requiring machinery. The only requisite are a hot sun and a soil which will not permit the water to filter through, as the salt in solution would then be lost. Something depends also upon the analysis of the water. For instance, the water of the Mediterranean has a greater specific gravity than that of the Atlantic.

Loyal Women's Guild.

The Loyal Women's Guild, at its annual meeting held recently in Pretoria, reported that the care of the graves of those who fell in the war and the general exercise of benevolence showed that the guild was an active force in the Transvaal. Lord Methuen, the commander-in-chief of the military forces, who was present, paid a warm tribute to the noble work of the South African ladies who undertook to look after the graves, and said that the resting places of their fallen comrades were thus for ever marked in the history of the Empire.

Two boys attempted to rob an old hermit, John Albert, aged 82, who lives alone at Erie Beach.

SCIENCE AND INVENTION

STUDY OF STARS AND PLANETS

Astronomers from the World Over Visit Sir William Huggins and His Observatory.

The pioneer in the study of the stars and planets by means of the spectrum has been Sir William Huggins, the recent president of the Royal society, and his observatory at Tulse Hill is visited by astronomers all the world over as the birthplace of the new astronomy. More than a generation ago the announcement by Kirchoff that the chemical constitution of the sun had been analyzed (after the manner we have indicated) by the spectroscope set Mr. Huggins on the track of discoveries which have revolutionized methods of stellar research. The difficulties at the outset in the construction of a successful star-spectroscope were enormous. Imagine the light received on the earth from a first-magnitude star, such as Vega, which is only about the one-40,000,000,000th part of that received from the sun! It was necessary to attach a spectroscope to the eye-end of the telescope, so that it would be carried with it, with its slit in the focal plane. Then, by means of a small reflecting prism placed before one-half of the slit of the spectroscope, light from a terrestrial source at the side of the telescope could be sent into the instrument together with the star's light, and so form a spectrum by the side of the stellar spectrum for convenient comparison with it. The chemistry of the solar system was shown to prevail, essentially at least, wherever a star twinkles. Further, elements which play a chief role in terrestrial physics—iron, hydrogen, sodium, magnesium, calcium—were found to be the first and the most easily recognized of the earthly substances in the stars. To quote the astronomer's own words, "The observatory became a meeting-place where terrestrial chemistry was brought into direct touch with celestial chemistry. The characteristic light-rays from earthly hydrogen shone side by side with the corresponding radiations from starry hydrogen, or else fell upon the dark lines due to the absorption of hydrogen in Sirius or in Vega. Iron from our mines was line-matched, light for dark, with stellar iron from opposite parts of the celestial sphere."

HOW TO MAKE SIMPLE STILL.

A Contrivance to Distill Water Is Made From a Test Tube, Some Hose and a Bottle.

A still to distill water can be made from a test tube, some heavy rubber hose and an ordinary bottle. Secure a stopper for the test tube, and bore a hole through the center, into which fit a small hollow tube. The bottle is also fitted with a stopper containing a hollow tube, and both bottle and test tube connected with a hollow rubber tube. The test tube is partially filled with water and supported or held over an alcohol lamp. The bottle should stand in a basin of cold water. When the water in the test tube begins to boil the steam passes over to the bottle, where it condenses. The basin should be supplied with cold water as fast as it begins to get warm. The rubber tube will not stand the heat very long and if the still is to be used several times a metal tube should be supplied to connect the test tube and bottle.

NOVELTY IN SAFETY RAZOR.

Latest Improvement Can Be Manipulated Same as Old Fashioned Unprotected Blade.

The introduction of the safety razor was undoubtedly welcomed by a great many men who found it impossible to shave with the old-fashioned razor without cutting their face. In direct variance with this is the regular fact that those men who formerly used the old-fashioned razor successfully were unable to shave with the safety razor without injuring the face. The difference in the methods of handling the two razors readily accounts for this. A Reading man became acquainted with the fact, and accordingly designed the safety razor shown here, which in form closely resembles the old-fashioned razor, and is manipulated in mostly the same manner. A guard is provided, as in the ordinary safety razor, which is attached directly to the handle, the blade of the razor being detachable, and having two sharp edges. The guard is also double-edged, to protect both edges of the blade. Obviously, as one edge becomes dull the other can be brought into use, and when both are dull an entirely new blade substituted.

Value of Pigeon Post.

The pigeon post is proving a valuable adjunct of civilization, even in these days of fast trains and steamships and wireless telegraphy. The isolated lighthouse of Maatsuyker island is 75 miles southwest from Hobart, Tasmania, in a direct line and 90 miles by steamer, and since January 21, 1908, 12 homing pigeons have kept up communication with the mainland, three being regularly liberated every three weeks. The first message left the lighthouse at ten a. m. reaching Hobart at 1:30 p. m. The service has been generally satisfactory, though not all messages have reached their destination; and it probably saved the life of an assistant at the lighthouse, as an urgent message brought much-needed medical relief from Hobart in 12 hours.

To Prevent Boiler Scale.

Boiler scale is prevented in the process of F. A. Lart, an English experimenter, by simply passing through the working boiler the moderate current of any ordinary dry or wet electrochemical primary battery. The current hastens the deposition of solids in mechanical suspension and the precipitation of those in chemical solution, and the resulting mud contains only loose particles of the lime, magnesia or other impurities from the water. Tests are suggested to determine the working value of this process.

Changes in Comet.

The changes in progress in a comet are now shown on a screen in moving pictures. Morehouse's comet was favorably situated for observation in England during last autumn, and as this body gave an unusual opportunity for studying changes the astronomer royal had photographs made at frequent intervals so as to obtain a cinematograph record. One series shows the alterations that took place in a period of about nine hours.

THE ELECTRICAL WORLD

MEAT CUTTER RUN BY MOTOR

Largest Machine of Its Kind in the World Operated by Electrical Current.

It is interesting to note that a meat cutter, which is claimed to be the largest ever made, has been recently changed from steam equipment to direct connected motor drive, because of the delays formerly experienced in getting up steam, which materially reduced the output of the grinder. The meat cutter in question has a 434-inch bowl and six knives, each of which has a cutting edge 18 inches long. The power is supplied by a 20-horsepower motor.

In the factory where this outfit is installed the capacity is 25,000 pounds of sausage a day. This cutter can handle the entire output if desired, as it has a capacity of 250 pounds in five minutes.

One of the main reasons for the change from steam to motor drive was the saving in the expense for attendance of an engineer, as well as the greater convenience when motor driven. The direct eliminates belts, shafting, pulleys, etc., and effects a substantial saving in wear and tear.

Wireless Telegraph in China.

Consul Gracey, writing from Tsingtau, says in regard to the plan for using wireless telegraphy in China:

"The acting president of the board of communications has sent an order to the telegraph administration in Shanghai directing it to obtain from foreign firms tenders for wireless telegraphic installations which the government desires to establish between the Altai mountains and Ahslen, in the northwest of Chinese Turkestan.

"The question of a wireless telegraph installation in the interior was pointed out by the administration as one of the most important needs of China to-day. It is said the board considers it practically impossible to establish the ordinary land lines across the great deserts between Peking and the extreme northwest, but the natural difficulties could be surmounted by the use of wireless. Balkson's system is considered by the board to be the newest and most efficient, and the administration was instructed to make the necessary inquiries and was also given a list of questions as to the technical matters which it was its business to answer."

STRAWBERRIES ARE DYNAMOS

English Electrician Discovers Process Whereby Fruit Becomes Electrically Charged in Simple Way.

Strawberries and all other fruits, nuts and vegetables are small electric dynamos as discovered by an English electrician. The process whereby fruit becomes electrically charged is most simple. Negative electricity is supplied by the earth to the soil, and the extent of such conductivity varies with the degree of moisture in the soil. Dry earth is a non-conductor, a fact strongly evident from the truth that unless the roots of the plant secure a certain percentage of moisture the plant dies. The moisture in the soil provides the sap which, spreading upward, flows to the uttermost extremities of the plant through the different arteries existing for such circulation.

The earth is always charged with negative electricity and the air with positive, the charging of the earth being secured by water. When the leaves begin to burst forth they become charged with negative electricity from the earth. As the leaf expands it also becomes inductively charged with positive electricity from the air, as likewise do the flowers. When the fruit commences to form, however, nature provides an impermeable insulator represented by the rind or peel enveloping the fleshy portion of the fruit, but at the same time the negative charging continues from the earth to the center or core through the stalk, this central negative cell being insulated from the positive fleshy cell by a thin skin.

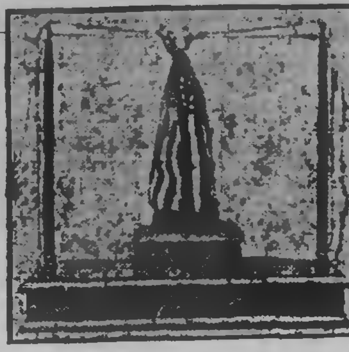
New Flexible Non-Metallic Conduit.

A new flexible non-metallic conduit, known as "wire duct," has been invented, for which there should be a very wide field, if all the claims made for it can be substantiated in practice. Its fiber inner tube is attached to the middle tube by means of a helical [illegible], which entirely prevents its being pulled out on wires being threaded through it; and the whole, while entirely non-conducting, has great flexibility and strength to resist both tensile strain and abrasion.

ELECTRIC CURRENT TO UNVEIL

Insures Removal of Drapery Without Fear of Ludicrous Failure and Embarrassment.

The unveiling of a statue under ordinary circumstances is a very impressive occasion, but it is frequently rendered ludicrous by a failure at a very critical moment. Often the drapery which is used to hide the lines of the memorial refuses to respond to the tugs and pulls given at the cords which were designed to draw the fabric away. This sort of mishap is no less embarrassing than when the material falls of its own accord in advance of the set time, says George J. Jones in Scientific American. Having witnessed several such accidents, an electrical engineer employed in the department of the interior at Washington, set about some time ago to devise some method of performing this operation by the use of the electrical current, so as to render such occasions free from accidents. Recently he announced the completion of his self-assumed task.



The Statue Covered.

The scheme calls for the erection of two poles placed on either side of the monument with a stout wire cable stretched from top to top. The ends of the cable pass down the side of one pole and are secured near the bottom. Held slightly away from the pole, the cable acts as a guide for counterweights. Mounted on the cable are two swivel pulleys, each supporting a wooden staff balanced therefrom. Flags are generally made use of for the purpose of hiding the lines of the statue until such time as it is desired to reveal them to the assemblage, and in the the electrical process the bunting is secured from these sticks. The flags hanging from the sticks completely encircle the statue. The lengthwise edges of the flags are supplied with small magnets and corresponding armatures, the magnets being connected in series, and the current from a few batteries is sufficient to hold the edges of the flags together, even in the face of a strong wind. This current is conveyed through a small insulated wire. When all is ready one of a pair of touch-buttons, placed at a convenient point, is pressed. The flags open like a book, and for a few seconds they remain as an effective background to the memorial. The second button is then pressed, and the flags move off under the action of the weights, toward the poles, leaving a free and unobstructed view of the statue.

The Statue Unveiled.

The inventor of this scheme had an ambitious desire to put the scheme to a severe test at the unveiling of the Franklin statue in Paris. He submitted a plan to the American ambassador. His suggestion was that the ceremony be made a double one, the actual pressing of the button being done at Philadelphia, Pa., at the meeting of the American Philosophical society, by some distinguished electrician who might attend the gathering or by some of the descendants of Benjamin Franklin, several of whom are still residing in that city. There was not sufficient time, however, to make the necessary arrangements, which would require much correspondence.

To Determine the Kind of Current.

At times it is necessary to know whether the current in a circuit is alternating or direct, and as the generator may be miles away at the other end of the line an easy method of determining this on the spot is desirable. A reader of Popular Electricity suggests the following method: Hold a small magnet near an incandescent lamp burning on the circuit. If the current is alternating the filament will vibrate. If it is direct the filament will bend slightly toward the magnet but will not vibrate.

North Pole Expeditions.

Canada, Denmark, France, Germany, England, Russia, Sweden and the United States were, in 1908, represented among the 12 expeditions which were struggling toward the North pole. Eight leaders were veterans—Peary and Cook of the United States, Bernier of Canada, Erichsen and Rasmussen of Denmark, Charcot of France, Shackelton of England and Geer of Sweden.

INDUSTRY AND MECHANICS

NOVEL MEANS OF LOCOMOTION

Motorcycle with Rider Standing on a Foot Platform Between the Rear Wheels.

In the accompanying illustration is shown the motorcycle of the future. One that is easily handled, operated and steered. The two-wheel motorcycles now in use are entirely too cumbersome and unwieldy to give good service, whereas the three-wheeled vehicles overcome these faults. The operator is shown between the rear wheels on a small platform carried by the drop frame. In front of the foot platform is the motor, having connections with the rear wheels. The steering apparatus is connected directly with the front wheel, so that it can be conveniently manipulated. Levers for regulating the speed are also close to the hand, while additional clutches, operating the brakes, are adjacent to the foot. For speed and comfort for short distance riding this motorcycle will in all probability be found superior to the ordinary motorcycle.

FATE OF A PERPETUAL CLOCK

Its Curious Mechanism and Construction and Singular Disappearance After Reaching China.

In the eighteenth century an ingenious jeweler named John Cox of Shoe Lane, London, constructed a clock which was rendered perpetual by a cleverly contrived attachment which utilized the rise and fall of the barometer to supply the necessary energy.

The movement of the mercury actuated a cogwheel in such a manner that whether the mercury rose or fell the wheel always revolved in the same direction and kept the weights that supplied the movement of the clock always wound up. The barometer bulb dipped into a mercury cistern. The cistern hung attached to the extremities of two rockers, to the left end of one and the right end of the other.

The bulb was similarly attached to the other extremities of the rockers, which are thus moved every time there is a change in the amount of mercury in bulb and cistern respectively. The rockers actuated a vertical ratchet, and the teeth were so arranged that the wheel they controlled could only move in one direction, whether the ratchet ascended or descended.

The clock itself was an ordinary one, but of very strong and superior workmanship, and was jeweled with diamonds at every bearing, the whole being inclosed in a glass case which while it excluded dust, displayed the entire mechanism. The fate of Cox's clock was brought to light in a work called "Travels in China," published in 1804 and written by John Barrow.

In this book it is stated that in the list of presents carried by "the late Dutch ambassador" were "two grand pieces of machinery that were part of the curious museum of Cox." One of these apparently was this perpetual clock, and it was taken by the Dutch embassy to China, where in the journey from Canton to Peking both the instruments suffered some slight damage. Efforts were made to repair them at Peking, but on leaving the capital it was discovered that the Chinese Prime Minister Ho-tchang-tong had substituted two other clocks of very inferior workmanship and had reserved Cox's mechanism for himself.

Nonductile Metals.

A difficulty in making filaments of nonductile metals, like tungsten, has been ingeniously overcome in a new patented process of the Siemens-Halske firm of Germany. The tungsten or other filament metal is inclosed in a thin coating of ductile metal, and the whole is drawn through a die-plate until the required fineness is reached. The coated filament, attached to a conducting support, is then mounted in the lamp bulb. The air is exhausted from the bulb, and an electric current is turned on, when the heat quickly drives off the ductile metal, leaving the refractory filament.

Electricity in Fertilizing Industry.

Several representatives from European concerns interested in the manufacture of nitrogenous fertilizer from the air are in this country looking for options on good water power for hydro-electric development in connection with the fertilizing industry.

NOVEL HANDY BUTTER CUTTER

One That Divides Pound Into Number of Small and Equal Slices for Table Use.

Among the infinite variety of devices that lighten the housewife's burdens and add to the attractiveness of the dinner table is the butter-cutter devised by two men of the state of Washington. Nor is this cutter useful in the home alone. In fact, it is probably of more real use in hotels and restaurants, where many pounds of butter have to be cut in a day, and where an equal portion to every customer is a diplomatic necessity. The apparatus consists of an oblong frame, slightly larger than a pound of butter, with handles at each end. Running through the center of the frame lengthwise is a thin sharp strip of metal, the edges pointing out. At right angles to this, and crossing the frame at close intervals, are other knifelike strips. The device is placed over a pound of butter and pressed down through it, dividing the lump into about two dozen equal squares.

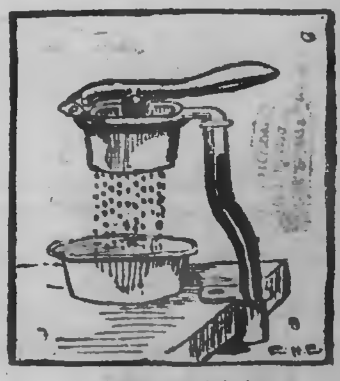
NEW UTENSIL FOR KITCHEN.

Invention That Combines Functions of Fruit Press and Colander, Simplifying Culinary Tasks.

A new piece of kitchen furniture has recently been invented, which combines the functions of the fruit press and colander, with which it will be found possible to greatly simplify many of the culinary tasks. It is designed for removing seeds and skins from grapes, tomatoes and apples, ricing potatoes, extracting juices from fruit, smoothing laundry starch and a hundred other uses which will suggest themselves from time to time to the ingenious housekeeper. The device is mounted on a tinned malleable iron standard, which is provided with clamps by which it is firmly attached to the table with a single motion of the lock lever.



An Improved Grinder.

The broken view shows the interior of the receptacle, and the spiral blade which operates as a press, the pressure being regulated by the tension spring. The bowl of the colander is of steel.

Disappearing Muslin.

A Madras physician was buying muslin for a turban in a Detroit department store.

"None of this is fine enough," he said. "In the turban I have on there are 40 yards. But 40 yards of this would give me a head like a Saratoga trunk.

"Indian muslin is very, very fine. It must be fine enough to disappear if it is to pass our A1 test. Yes, fine enough to disappear."

He smiled.

"It's true," he said. "The test is this: The muslin is spread on grass over night. In the morning, when everything is dew-drenched, if the muslin isn't practically identical with the dewy gossamer covering the lawns—in other words, if it isn't invisible—it is discarded and must be sold as 'seconds.'"

Sterilizing City Water.

For sterilizing a city's water supply the novel plan is proposed of using powerful mercury-vapor lamps with quartz tubes, which should be so placed that every particle of water should remain two minutes within a few inches of a lamp. The large proportion of ultra-violet rays was shown in 1906 to have great germ-destroying properties. Recently Courmont and Nogier have proven that most disease bacteria in water within 12 inches of a lamp are destroyed in one minute, and that much contaminated water is completely sterilized in two minutes.

Electricity in Theater.

Within the past few years electricity has been utilized to produce some of the most remarkable stage pictures it is possible to conceive. Without the faithful agency of electricity the theater would lose half of its scenic attractions.

THINGS WOMEN HATE.

Some Words of Wisdom a Female Would Tell Man.

For better or for worse, no man ever yet understood a woman or ever will. Men may know this, but they do not realize it or they never would imagine that they could improve a woman by telling her about shortcomings.

A woman hates to be corrected by a man.

A man! Thoughtless, thankless, in[illegible] man! This world would be a happier place if you ceased to go about trying to make women more sensible.

The sensible woman gives man his due. She admits he is stronger—stronger physically, stronger in mind. The very sensible woman admits that he should use his heaven sent power. Man should be the wise lord of women. He should be her steps. Men object to the mare who is the better horse. But women hate to be forced to be chiefly responsible for pulling the cart of matrimony.

Woman, I say—and I do not speak as a fool—likes well enough to be lorded. What she hates is weakness in a man. She hates lack of decision. Finding it, she develops into a bully. Then, if only the poor, henpecked husband knew it, there is nothing in the world more ardently desired by the pecking hen than that the worm should turn and bully her and overmaster her and force her to give in.

And now I have some eight or nine other wise words to speak to you, O humorless man! And I say to you that women like men who do things. Unless you should make a false deduction I will put it this way. A woman hates a man who does nothing.

It is given to all men to do. A women seldom has compunction in taking the money that a man has inherited and will share with her, but the man who cannot make money and can do nothing but part with it she holds in low esteem. It is another example of the lacking humor of men that they should laugh at women who fight for the hair of a Kubelik or kiss the ground trod upon by a conqueror.

O man—selfish, egotistical, swaggering being—listen again, and get understanding! Woman loves you and knows that you cannot love her as she loves, and she likes you to enjoy yourself and be happy.

But—

She hates you to forget to say, as you were wont to say, how well her dress becomes her, how charming she is looking to-night. She hates you to forget her wedding day—she can never forget it. She hates you to interfere with the baby, because you know nothing about it. She hates to be left behind to mope when you go off on your holiday.

And she hates the way you worship your pipe. It is not fair that men should have always the consolation of their pipes and women only the consolation of their tears. Tobacco is fragrant, but tears are bitter.—London Express.

The Anniversary of Waterloo.

If nothing else perpetuates the memory of Waterloo it will be the little ceremony which on every anniversary of the great battle has to take place at Windsor—that is to say, the Duke of Wellington for the time is bound, as the condition of his tenure of Strathfieldsaye, to present to the sovereign of these realms a little French flag—a tri-color—which is then hung up over the Iron Duke's bust in the guard room over against that of the Duke of Marlborough, whose living representative must perform corresponding feudal service with a French royalist flag on the 13th day of August, the anniversary of Blenheim.—London Chronicle.

The Changing Sky.

One of the most surprising results of the cross motion of the fixed stars, as projected on the background of the sky, is the gradual falling to pieces of the familiar constellations. The stars are moving in all sorts of directions, some faster and some slower, and the inevitable consequence must be that in a few centuries the whole face of the heavens will be so changed that if we could come back again to our earthly life we should not recognize them. Of course a very long period of time will be required to produce a very great transformation.

Thiers and MacMahon.

M. Thiers disliked Marshal MacMahon and never lost a chance of saying something to the soldier's discredit. "Aha," he said on one occasion, standing with his back to the fire in his drawing-room as he was wont, "have you heard MacMahon's last? He went to the hospital to see some invalid soldiers. 'And what has been the matter with you?' he asked a patient. 'Scarlet fever, mon general.' 'Ah! Bad thing that! It either kills a man or makes an idiot of him. I have had it; I ought to know!'"

Afridis Making Trouble.

Reports from the Northwest frontier of India state that several Afridi clans are collecting in the Tirah Valley for the purpose of attacking the Khuda Khels on account of tribal grievances. A gang of outlaws is also reported at Khost, intending to raid British territory. VACATION WORK.

Dainty Things That Can Be Made With the Needle.

MODISH HANDMADE STOCKS.

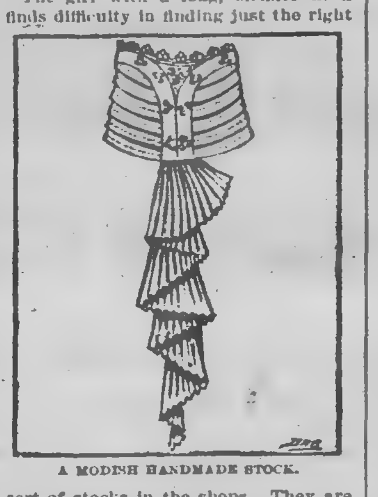
Coat Sets Decidedly Smart Accessories to Add to the Summer Wardrobe. Black and White Effects Always Good Style—A Tucked Blouse.

Vacation time never spells idleness for the average woman. She may rest from her usual occupation, but if she is like most women her hands cannot lie idle in her lap. Vacation means only time to do something different, something that she hasn't had time to do through the year. That is why, for every one but the woman who uses her needle in her profession, needlework is particularly popular in the summer months. Every woman likes to make dainty things with her needle, but the business woman and the teacher seldom find time throughout the year for any but the most necessary sort of sewing. A button here or a skirt braid there and a few holes mended is the extent of her efforts in this direction.

But with the long summer afternoons of vacation time the busy woman finds time for many a bit of fine sewing.

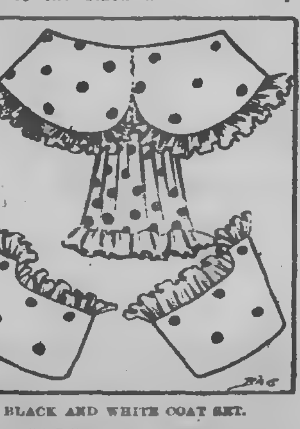
Neckwear is always well worth the efforts of the needle worker.

The girl with a long, slender neck finds difficulty in finding just the right sort of stocks in the shops. They are too large around and not high enough. A good design for such a stock shows the neck part made of fine batiste in hand run tucks. It is trimmed with narrow bands of Irish insertion, which is laid around the top of the stock until it reaches the front, where it is curved downward to the bottom. A touch of hand embroidery is added to the V shaped opening of the tucked batiste which shows in the front, and the whole is edged with narrow Irish crochet. The plaited jabot attached to the stock is of fine net.



A MODISH HANDMADE STOCK.

For some decidedly smart accessories to add to her summer wardrobe a girl would do well to make herself a black and white coat set. Such a set is especially effective with a suit or dress of the black and white shepherd's plaid which is now so smart. The Dutch collar and turnback cuffs are made of heavy white linen, embroidered in black coin dots. A little jabot of the same is worn with the collar, and the whole set is edged with finely gathered lace or plaitings of fine mull.



BLACK AND WHITE COAT SET.

After studying all the elaborate blouse models shown in the shops the woman of taste is apt to revert to the simple style of fine tucks and a sparing use of good lace or embroidery insertion. A dainty blouse for summer could be made of fine white batiste, with hand run tucks, forming a yoke, and a row of insertion on either side running from the shoulder to the waist.

Laundry Convenience.

A woman who is doing over her house and adding a new laundry has hit upon a plan for indoor drying that will mean less terror on rainy wash days.

Around two sides of her laundry she has run a shelf about six or eight inches wide at the height of a low plate rail. Under this shelf are hooks, any number of them, on which the clothes can be hung when they cannot go on the lines out of doors.

The shelves are convenient places to stow irons, pots and pans that are not in everyday use, boxes of soap and all the other odds and ends that are so cluttery in a closet.

There are few sorrows that a salad cannot solace, and the woes are not many which will not vanish, at least temporarily, before a carefully chosen dessert. The "food cure" is the best in the world for moods.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lindabury, of Simcoe, celebrated the 48th anniversary of their wedding yesterday.

GARDEN ENTERTAINING.

Feasts and Sewing Parties Among Flowers and Trees.

Bacon once said in his quaint way that a garden was the purest of pleasures. One modern American woman who calls her garden her hobby has made it a most useful hobby. There is a great difference between hobbies. Some are a nuisance to the possessor and his or her friends. Some persons ride their hobbies for their own pleasure, but no one else's. Some make a hobby a means of giving pleasure to every one around. One of the latter kind is a woman who writes in Suburban Life about her garden reception room.

"When I was a younger woman," she says, "an experienced entertainer gave me this good advice: 'When you entertain people let your hobby, if you have one, help you out.' So when my garden came to be one of my chief delights I conceived the idea of giving garden parties."

Her first party was held in the evening, with Japanese lanterns and decorations, but though the guests had a good time the beauty of the garden was lost in the darkness. This experience taught her that daytime is the time for a garden party.

One morning she looked out at the garden and saw that it was perfect. The syringas were in bloom, the roses were at their loveliest, and the blossoming honeysuckle was everywhere. Straightway she sat down and issued fifty invitations for a garden party for that afternoon.

"One thing I soon learned about garden parties," she says, "and that was that you cannot issue your invitations even one day before. Perfect weather and a dry lawn are absolutely necessary, and even a slight shower will wreck all one's plans."

Out on the lawn, shaded by huge trees, small tables were arranged, each one covered with a rose doily and adorned with a huge bunch of roses. In the summer house, which was a bower of climbing roses, two girls in fluffy pink dresses served punch. The ice cream was pink and white, and the little white cakes were ornamented with pink roses.

One July day she had a sewing party. The garden was a mass of phlox then—white, pale lavender and salmon pink. There were verbenas and balsams, too, heliotropes and poppies, and in the midst of the bloom the guests sat on comfortable veranda chairs, with rugs under them to protect the fidgety from possible bugs, and sewed a little, talked a great deal and ate cakes and ices.

When this woman has callers and the weather permits she serves tea on the lawn. Sunday suppers, weather permitting again, are eaten there in summer, and they are the pleasantest meals in the week. Whenever a guest comes from the city to stay overnight the breakfast table is spread among the flowers, with a rug to protect the breakfasters from the dewy grass. "As my porch is not screened," says this resourceful woman, "I find it impossible to serve meals on it except early in the spring, before the fly season. But on the lawn, away from the house, the flies are not troublesome."

PURE FOOD IN THE HOME.

Patronize Only Honest Grocerymen Who Cover Their Wares.

In the warm season every housekeeper should formulate her pure food domestic rules and regulations, says Dr. Kate Lindsay in Housekeeper. If dependent upon the milkman for milk, select a conscientious dealer who can be depended upon to furnish clean and pure milk. If the milk is a home product, be just as careful to have it pure, fresh and clean. See to the health, feeding and stabling of the cows as carefully as the best dealer does to his. Patronize only honest, cleanly grocerymen who have covers to all their bins, showcases and other food receptacles and who keep the lids shut and have all food retainers dust, insect and vermin proof. Pure food means clean food. Clean food will mean a health and life saving measure to many thousands in the warm months. But to prevent food adulteration it must be practiced from the producer to the consumer, for the latter can so handle his supplies that all the care of the producer, manufacturer and middleman can be annulled. There is a source of canned food contamination often overlooked, and many cases of lead poisoning result from this cause. As soon as the tin cans used for the foods are opened they begin to rust and oxidize and form poisonous metal compounds which are very detrimental to health. Whenever a metal can of fruit or vegetables is opened it should be emptied at once and put into a glass dish or a porcelain one with a cover. Do not leave metal spoons in either fruit or vegetables.

Sauce Piquante.

Put one tablespoonful of capers into a mortar with the same quantity of chopped Spanish onion. Pound them to a smooth paste and then add, still pounding, one cupful of vinegar, two teaspoonfuls of made mustard, two teaspoonfuls of sugar, two teaspoonfuls of anchovy extract and one tablespoonful of tarragon vinegar.

A tablespoonful of mushroom catchup is an improvement, but if that is added the quantities of anchovy and tarragon vinegar may be slightly reduced.

Frozen Bananas.

Cut four bananas crosswise in thin slices, add two-thirds of a cupful of powdered sugar, let stand an hour, then add one quart of water and the grated peel of a lemon. When the sugar is dissolved put all in a freezer and freeze as you would ice cream.

WOMAN'S RIGHTS IN NORWAY

Miss Guia Krog, a Pioneer, Tells What Her Sex Has Gained.

Miss Guia Krog, a prominent Norwegian delegate to the quinquennial meeting of the National Council of Women held in Toronto this month, said recently to a New York Sun reporter:

"The women of Norway have had municipal suffrage and have been eligible for all municipal offices for the last nine years and next fall will exercise their rights as full voters for the first time. Though we speak of it as universal suffrage, we don't really have the same rights to the ballot as the men have at present.

"Before 1898 the men of Norway had suffrage with the taxation qualification. On that date they got universal suffrage. Next fall the women of Norway will begin to vote just about on the same terms that the men did before 1898, with the advantage that married women can vote on the taxes paid by their husbands and unmarried women on those paid by their parents. That is better than the men started with, you see.

"The women of Norway have served on juries for upward of five years. Often a woman is elected as foreman. We serve in all sorts of cases, just as the men do. They look upon us women of Norway as being interested in the welfare of our country aside from our sex. We have no children's court as yet. In its place we have a body of officers, men and women, elected by the municipal authorities to look after the welfare of the children.

"There may be women elected to parliament next fall, but I hardly expect it. You see, with us the Conservative party is very much stronger than the Liberals or the Social Democrats. Our ablest women, those who might be elected to parliament, belong to the Liberals. I hardly expect them to get in.

"One thing we who have worked for suffrage in Norway have noticed—that a good many women held back, refused us their assistance, but now that the work is accomplished they come forward with enthusiasm and are eager to take part in it. I believe the same will be found to be true here in the United States."

PEARY'S CABIN BOY AWARE OF SUCCESS OF DR. COOK

William Pritchard Heard of Doctor's Arrival at the Pole From Cook Himself While at Annotok Guarding the Stores—Kept the Information From Commander Peary.

Battle Harbor, Labrador, by Marconi wireless telegraph via Cape Ray, Nfld., Sept. 20.—One of the men on the steamer Roosevelt, at least, knew long ago that Dr. Frederick A. Cook had claimed to have reached the pole. He is William Pritchard, cabin boy and assistant cook on the Roosevelt, who remained at Annotok with Boatswain Murphy to guard the stores.

Pritchard had not spoken to anyone on board of Dr. Cook's achievement, but when confronted Saturday, just prior to the sailing of the Roosevelt from Battle Harbor, with a wireless message from mid-ocean that Dr. Cook said Pritchard knew the whole story of his dash for the pole, the youth admitted that he had learned from Dr. Cook the details of the final march, and that Dr. Cook had explained to him the route he followed.

Whether Boatswain Murphy also was informed of Dr. Cook's success, Pritchard did not know, but unquestionably Harry Whitney, who was at the storehouse when Dr. Cook returned from his dash with the two Eskimos, is conversant with all the facts. Whitney did not disclose this interesting piece of news to Commander Peary, and Pritchard kept it from Peary during the entire voyage of the Roosevelt to Battle Harbor.

Pritchard said that he was at the house at Annotok with Whitney and Cook, while Murphy was at Etah. He heard Dr. Cook describe to the New Haven sportsman how he went to the pole and remained there April 21 and April 22, or April 22 and 23. Dr. Cook used a map to illustrate the route followed.

Asked why he had not repeated this on board the Roosevelt, Pritchard said that Dr. Cook told him to say nothing about his having been at the pole until the Roosevelt reached civilization.

New light was thrown on the polar controversy yesterday on the arrival of the steamship Tyrian from Battle Harbor.

It was commonly reported at Battle Harbor that Peary had some differences with Whitney, who decided that, instead of returning to Sydney on the Roosevelt, he would do some shooting in Greenland.

Friends of Dr. Cook here point out that when Commander Peary on his return from the pole sent for Prof. McMillan, who had gone to establish a base of supplies at Cape Morris, Jessup, he did not mention in his letter to the professor anything of his discoverey of the pole. The message which was made public by Prof. McMillan at Battle Harbor read:

S.S. Roosevelt, April 28, 1909.—My dear McMillan—Arrived on board yesterday. Northern trip was satisfactory. There is no need of Greenland depot. Captain came on board the 24th. Concentrate all your energies on tidal observations, and line soundings north from Cape Morris, Jessup. Use intended supplies for me for this purpose.—Commander Peary."

EIGHTEEN-YEAR OLD GRANDSON WAS EVIDENTLY THE FAVORITE

London, Ont., Sept. 20.—Considerable interest attaches to the will of the late Harvey Scott, who was shot by his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Wesley Scott.

His wife, Mrs. Susan Scott, gets $1,000 and $50 per year. Wesley Scott gets $500. Alfred Scott, Harvey's oldest son, gets $25. Arthur Scott, eldest son of Alfred Scott, aged 18, was evidently the favorite, as he is left the entire farm of 300 acres of fine land, complete with large barns, full stock of implements, and a large number of thoroughbred horses and cattle. All told, this must be over $25,000. Arthur's youngest brother gets $600.

By the terms of the will Wesley Scott will either have to come to some arrangement for renting or buying the little house and small plot of land he has had since his marriage or else move away.

Wesley's daughter, Clara, aged 15, has been working out, and stated that her grandfather had always treated her most unkindly. Once when she was a little girl he set a big dog on her when she was passing on the road in front of his place.

Apparently most of the family put up with the old man's abuse for fear he would cut them off when dividing up his property.

WANT TO HAVE INSPECTION OF CHINESE AT VANCOUVER

Washington, Sept. 20.—Acting Secretary McHarg of the Department of Commerce and Labor, has directed that hereafter the inspection of Chinese coming from the Orient and seeking admission through Canada, will be made at Vancouver, B.C. The present "land border ports" of entry for Chinese are to remain open for the entry of Chinese coming from the Orient, furnished at Vancouver with certificates of identity, and for the examination and admission of a small number of Chinese not from the Orient, desiring to enter from Canada.

Mr. McHarg has ordered that notice be served on the Canadian Pacific Railway of the Department's intention to modify the agreement of Feb. 23, 1908, to this extent. This agreement was entered into with a view to efficient control of the immigration of Chinese through Canada, and American transportation lines complained that under the agreement the business of carrying Chinese destined to eastern ports was steadily falling into the hands of the Canadian Pacific, to the serious injury of the American lines.

IS INDICTED FOR GRAFT

Wilkes-Barre, Sept. 20.—The grand jury which has been investigating the charges of grafting in connection with the building of the court house, made a final report Saturday to the court. The jury recommended that County Commissioners George Smith, Walter McAvoy and Silas Jones; County Comptroller James N. Norris; Architects McCormick and French; Inspectors Michael Lynch and Chas. Norris, and about a dozen contractors, electricians, plumbers, etc., be indicted by the next grand jury for fraud, conspiracy and malfeasance in office.

In a previous report the grand jury returned true bills against Frank Carlucci, the principal contractor, and Orsti Gormigli, a sub-contractor, in which they were charged with defrauding the county out of $20,000 on a plastering contract.

SUFFRAGETTES ARE IN PRISON

Birmingham, Sept. 20.—Ten suffragettes were brought up in the Police Court Saturday, in connection with the disturbances on the occasion of Prime Minister Asquith's visit and speech Friday night. They were charged with disorderly conduct, assaulting the police, and throwing stones. Eight were remanded and two were sent to prison for a month because they threw missiles at the train in which Asquith was traveling.

Policemen gave evidence to the effect that the suffragette roof-climbers were without their shoes and hence as nimble as cats. One policeman was knocked off the roof to the roof of a lower adjoining building. Another policeman got a black eye.

When the women had been arrested and taken to the detention prison they smashed the windows of their cells.

MILLIONAIRE MARRIED HIS HOUSEKEEPER

Auburn, N.Y., Sept. 20.—Auburn's wealthy citizens received a surprise yesterday in the statement given out that John H. Osborne, a retired millionaire manufacturer, aged 77, had married Charlotte E. Lyster of Madoc, Ontario, who had been housekeeper to the aged widower for the past three years.

The ceremony was performed yesterday morning, after City Clerk Hanlon was found to issue a Sunday license, and Rev. Norton T. Houser, of St. Peter's Church, officiated.

The marriage was performed at the groom's bedside, as he is seriously ill with heart trouble, and the physicians advised postponing the ceremony, which was to have taken place at Madoc next month.

AN ENGLISHMAN KILLS HIMSELF

Montreal, Sept. 20.—There is an English civil engineer, Thos. Evans, dead at the General Hospital to-day, having shot himself upon his arrival in the harbor on board the steamship Corinthian from London last night.

Evans, who was accompanied by his wife, and was a first-class passenger, intending to tour the Dominion. After the shooting, he said that it was accidental, but his wife denies this. He died yesterday.

Declined to Sell to "Bell."

Cobalt, Sept. 20.—The shareholders of the Temiskaming Telephone Co. voted against the sale of the company, to the firm of Montreal brokers who recently offered $1.10 a share for the stock. Though nothing is officially known, it is generally believed that the Bell Co. was behind the offer. As a protest against the action of the meeting, Arthur Ferand, one of the directors, immediately resigned from the board.

GATE RECEIPTS AT EXHIBITION MADE NEW HIGH WATER MARK

Totalled $2,546.85 With Saturday's $750.55, Representing Attendance of 15,000--The Number of Exhibits Unprecedented--Horse Racing and Vaudeville Were Features.

The big attendance on Saturday at the Peterborough Fair, following the immense crowd of Tuesday gave the directors unbounded encouragement and satisfaction, and the gate returns show the exhibition to be the best attended one by a most substantial margin of any yet held. The receipts on Saturday at the gate alone amounted to $750.55, making the total amount collected through this source of revenue $2,546.85.

The programme on Saturday in general, with the exception of the races, in which the 2.30 class and free-for-all were the events, was practically the same as the one the day before, and was apparently received with just as large a measure of appreciation.

The directors are naturally more than pleased with the results of their efforts and organisation, and are indebted to the general public for the splendid support the exhibition was accorded. The task of getting the fair in its present position and securing the full confidence of the exhibitors and patrons of the fair has been an onerous one, as things were at a pretty low ebb when the present board assumed the management of the exhibition. Now that everything is running smoothly and such a generally interesting and pleasing exhibition is given, it seems quite reasonable to predict, in view of its annually increasing success, that the Peterborough Fair will have a more prosperous year each fall until it is ranked with the leading exhibitions of the smaller cities of the Dominion. Now that the fair has retained a firm footing this seems quite a reasonable prophecy, as this is one of the leading centres in this part of the province.

This year in practically all classes the exhibits exceeded those of former seasons, and it was a difficult matter to secure adequate accommodation for the placing of them. Both the judges and the public are congratulating the directors on the extent and quality of the different exhibits.

There is no doubt that no more successful, and probably none as successful races were ever given at the fair as the classy events of this season. The events on both Friday and Saturday's racing brought a big entry list of fast steppers and the public grew quite enthusiastic over all the races. On both days sport of a highly interesting character was given and the judges performed their duties in a manner thoroughly satisfactory to the horsemen and their insisting on clean conduct and the generally businesslike way in which they performed their duties were appreciated by the spectators.

On Saturday there were races in two classes the 2.30 and the free-for-all. The opening heat was in the former event in which there were six starters. The horses were particularly evenly matched and finished the halves and miles in as close a cluster as a happy family. None of the horses that got places found them easy and it was hard and fast racing for every foot of the track.

Lou Keswick took the big purse in three straights and trotted a beautiful race. Mr. Ashmore's fast one stepped for the money, however, and Jennie Hal gave spirited opposition, coming under the wire a good second in all the heats.

Wallace W. in the free-for-all, seconded Lou Keswick's consecutive wins. Planet came in for the second purse getting it in two straights in the first two heats. In the last heat Patterson sprang the racing sensation of the fair. He had not been making a money-getting showing in the free-for-all when in the last heat he suddenly uncovered a great bunch of speed and went a fast and even-going mile finishing second and giving Wallace W. a real race for first place in the heat. "Gillie" Kearns was the man behind and he certainly sent Patterson over for an exciting clip in the final mile.

The results;

2.30 CLASS

Lou Keswick	1	1	1
Jennie Hal	2	2	2
Tom Tarrif	3	3	6
Dr. Mack	5	4	3
Sparkle	4	4	6
Lulu Chimes	6	5	5

Time—2.25, 2.24 1-4, 2.24 1-2.

FREE-FOR-ALL.

Wallace W	1	1	1
Planet	2	2	3
Patterson	5	5	2
Silver Tail	4	3	4
Harry Direct	3	4	5

Time—2.19 3-4, 2.19 1-2, 2.20.

THE DOG RACE.

The second and deciding heat of Mr. Yelland's dog race was run off and caused the usual amount of excitement and fun. The start on Saturday was much better than the one on Friday and there was an exciting finish. Stevenson and Mongraw fought it out for first place, and after awhile Clare Stewart and another boy came up the track for third, both using the whip freely and Stewart was in a fair way to lose had not his dog fought the other and thus gained an advantage.

Stevenson won both races and first money. Geo. Mongraw and Clare Stewart will divide second and third money.

The judging of harness horses was continued in front of the grandstand during Saturday afternoon and a big lot of very fine horses were shown especially in the single carriage and roadster classes. The lady riders brought out three young ladies.

On the whole the performance in front of the grandstand was never before equalled. There was something doing all the time and the delays were remarkably short.

A CHARACTER STUDY OF COMMANDER PEARY.

INFANTICIDE CHARGE LAID AGAINST TORONTO WOMAN

Police State That Mrs. Maud Turner Offered to Adopt the Child of Mrs. Annie Authers Along With $60 and That She Strangled It.

Toronto, Sept. 20.—Charged with the murder of an infant, Mrs. Maud Turner was arrested last night by Detectives Mackie, Wallace and Kennedy at 39 Wood street, where she had been living for two weeks.

She came here from Niagara Falls, where it is alleged she strangled a five-days-old baby girl entrusted to her care and threw it out of a New York Central car window.

The baby was born to Mrs. Annie Authers of Greenview avenue, Toronto, on the 11th inst. Two advertisements appeared simultaneously in a Toronto paper in July, one offering a child for adoption, the other agreeing to take a child "with money." Mrs. Turner answered the former and the two women got into communication with the result that Mrs. Turner agreed to adopt the baby which was born on the 11th of September in the Burnside Maternity Hospital. Mrs. Turner had received $60 by that date. On the 12th Mrs. Turner visited friends of Mrs. Authers to whom she gave her address as a house on Wilton avenue, and her 'phone number as north 5,364, which the police discovered afterwards to be at 39 Wood street.

On the 17th inst., a despatch from Niagara Falls told of the finding of a dead baby on the track of the N.Y.C. railway. It had been strangled and thrown from a window. On its back was the name "Authers" and the Toronto police discovered that Baby Authers was born in the Burnside Maternity Hospital on the 11th. They concluded that the Authers' baby had been murdered and followed the clues in their possession to the Wood street house. Mrs. Turner was questioned last night. She admitted that she had got the money for adopting the baby and she still had it. Pressed by the detectives, she declared she had given the child to another woman, but she was unable to give the address of the woman, although she had known her for years.

Mrs. Turner was locked up and will answer to the charge of murder. She gives her address as 869 Pierce avenue, Niagara Falls.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

George James, aged 14, son of Richard James, of Victoria, was instantly killed Saturday by being impaled on a pitchfork.

Ernest Holmes and George Phillips, who recently escaped from the Industrial School at Mimico, were captured at Belleville after a stiff fight.

Trains are again running over the C.P.R. bridge at Rossport, Port Arthur, part of which collapsed and slid into the lake Friday afternoon.

Lord Strathcona is on his way by special train from Montreal for Halifax, to pay a visit of three hours and a half to Governor Fraser. He will be back in Montreal early Tuesday.

Four burglaries were committed on Saturday night at the Toronto Shoe Co., Marshalls' grocery store, Clark & Crawford's hardware store, and the Michigan Central Station, Niagara Falls, Ont.

The Canadian Northern has purchased Anacis Island at the mouth of the Fraser River, 20 miles from Vancouver. It contains 900 acres, and will be a site for shops, elevators, etc., for freight shipping.

Cecil P. Drake, John D. Strong and Harold M. Lewis, three young bank clerks of Victoria, B.C., were arrested Saturday at the Waldorf-Astoria at the request of the chief of police of Victoria.

Frightened by the explosion of a gas stove, Theodore Variate and his wife jumped from a third story window yesterday morning in Montreal. The man was instantly killed and the woman was injured.

The body of a man aged about 35 years was found floating in Little Sturgeon River, near North Bay, and on being taken from the water evidence of murder were seen in a vicious gash in the neck, evidently a stab wound.

FAIR WAGES ON THE G.T.P.

Ottawa, Sept. 20.—An important light upon the complaint made by trades unionists, that the contractors on the mountain section of the Grand Trunk Pacific are not paying standard wages, and that that is the cause of the shortage of labor, at which the company is protesting, is given in a report to the Minister of Labor by J. D. McNiven, one of the fair wage officers of the Department.

An investigation of the wages paid showed ordinary laborers received $2.50, $2.75 and $3 a day and were only charged 25 cents a meal or $5.25 per week for their board, though they had to provide their own blankets and bedding for use in bunk houses given free of charge.

The majority of the laborers are foreign born and unable to speak English, but by means of those who could, the fair-wage officer came to the conclusion that there is no general complaint, and that on the whole the men seemed perfectly satisfied and content.

His final conclusion is that the rate of wages is fair, reasonable and should not be interfered with.

W. T. R. PRESTON CONTINUES HIS ATTACKS ON MISSIONS

He Declares That Protestants in Japan Approach the Japanese as if They Were Ignorant Savages—Christianity Should not be Tacked on to Education, Says Trade Commissioner.

Toronto, Sept. 20.—Our missionary work in Japan has been a failure and it is time for a change. I know, of course, that the ecclesiastical class don't want to change anything, nor do they want suggestions from laymen, but I would pull up the present system, root and branch, and recall 75 per cent. of the missionaries. The hundreds of thousands of dollars appropriated to missions would be better employed in paying native evangelists."

Thus spoke W. T. Preston, the returned Canadian Trade Commissioner to Japan, in the Queen street Methodist Church on Sunday morning, returning to his attack on Protestant missions in that country.

He said it was not his ambition to launch a controversy. He had been shocked on discovering the true condition of affairs while residing in Japan, and felt that he could not conscientiously remain silent.

Mr. Preston, who was introduced by the pastor, Rev. C. O. Johnston, as a layman Christian worker, spoke from the text, "And the kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdoms of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ." In order to bring about the fulfilment of the prophecy, an active missionary spirit was necessary. It was the missionary spirit that had kept aglow the Christian religion through past ages.

When the kingdom of the Mikado was thrown open to the world, foreigners found a people waiting anxiously to learn more of life and conditions beyond the seas. They were recurrent periods of pro and anti-foreign feeling in the history of Japan, and there were evidences now that the anti-foreign feeling was returning.

Dealing with the history of Protestant missionary effort, the speaker said the church had proceeded on the plan of combining religion with education. Many Japanese had been educated in our schools, but very few of them had fallen under the influence of Christianity. "Tack religion on to anything and it will take second place," said the speaker. It was becoming more and more evident that the only way to reach the hearts of the Japanese was through their own people. The Roman Catholic Church had realized that fact as early as the 16th century, when about a million of a population of nine millions were converted through the medium of a native priesthood, but ranks of the converts were broken up by massacres in the early part of the 17th century.

The Protestant Church had failed to see the difference between the kaffirs of Africa and the Japanese, who in reality were our equals intellectually and our peers in some other ways. By failing to recognize the superiority of the Japanese character, Protestant missions had failed. It had endeavored to place the Japanese evangelists on the same footing as it had placed converts in India or Africa. Japanese evangelists, who had spent ten years preparing for the work, were being paid by the church at the rate of $240 to $270 per year, and probationers about $100, or less than a Jinriksha man. The result was that all over Japan were Christian Japanese who were out of the ministry for the sole reason that they could not maintain their families on the salaries allowed. The speaker had talked to many persons, both native Christians and visiting foreigners in Japan, and failed to find one who approved of the missionary system in force. They all felt that the work could be carried on and the people reached much more effectively through native evangelists.

FIFTEEN ACRES OF LUMBER WAS DESTROYED BY FIRE

Midland, Sept. 20.—Yesterday morning the entire stock of lumber, amounting to about 15,000,000 feet, together with slabs, edgings, lath etc., in the Chew Brothers mill yards went up in smoke, leaving the yard of fifteen acres an ash heap.

About nine o'clock fire was discovered in a lumber pile on the east side of the yard, a few feet from the esplanade on the water front. The brigade and hundreds of citizens were soon on the scene, but a stiff breeze was blowing and the flames spread rapidly. Through heroic efforts the mill was saved, although it was ignited a number of times. The stables were consumed, and the office had a very close call.

The firemen worked like trojans for seven hours and late last night there was still a number of piles burning away on the westerly side of the yard.

The loss is about $250,000. The lumber was owned by a number of firms and was partially insured.

The Penetang fire brigade was sent for and gave material aid.

JOHNSON SENDS GREETING TO TAFT

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 20.—President Taft came to the Twin Cities of Minnesota Saturday, and with the shadow of death hanging over the governor of the state, received a cordial but not a demonstrative welcome.

The critical illness of Governor Johnson, probably the most popular executive Minnesota has ever known, entered deeply into the spirit of the day. President Taft was deeply affected. Soon after his arrival he received a message of personal greeting from Governor Johnson. Coming by dictation from the lips of a man who was reported at the time as having but the frailest chance of life, it called out an immediate sympathetic response from Mr. Taft.

WAS LEGALLY WED TO NEGRESS

Fayetteville, N.C., Sept. 20.—A. G. Thornton, a character well-known in the reconstruction history of this state, is dead. He was a man of wealth and so far as known, the only white person in North Carolina ever legally married to a negress. He married Elsie Hargrove by permission of the military authorities in control of the state at that time. The marriage was afterwards legalized by the constitutional convention held in 1868. He lived for many years as a negro, and his funeral will be conducted from a negro church.

ONE DROWNED; OTHERS BURNED

Mount Clemens, Mich., Sept. 20.—Theodore Englander, jr., 18, son of the pastor of the local German Lutheran Church, was drowned Saturday night. Ray de Kay and Ray Groesbeck were badly burned about the hands and 22 seniors of the Mount Clemens High School, many of them girls, had a narrow escape from death when the 44-foot gasoline launch Saratoga, on which the party was returning from a picnic at Tashmoo Park, burned to the water's edge in the mouth of the Clinton River.

Brakeman Loses Leg.

North Bay, Sept. 20.—Stanley D. Strachan, aged 26, brakeman, was caught under the wheels of a freight train while switching at Latchford yesterday morning and had one leg badly crushed, amputation below the knee being necessary.

MR. JOHN G. A. LEISHMAN.

New York, Sept. 19.—Here on two months' leave of absence, John G. A. Leishman, formerly Ambassador at Rome, arrived on the New York, of the American line, having embarked at Cherbourg. Mr. Leishman said that it was his first absence in two years. On July 4 he presented his credentials to King Humbert at the palace in Rome, and the King called attention to the day and its patriotic significance.

Mr. Leishman said he was sorry and surprised at the controversy that has arisen over the discovery of the North Pole between two good Americans. He will go to see Secretary Knox, and later visit his home in Pennsylvania.

SOME NERVOUSNESS EXISTS AT ATHENS

Athens, Sept. 20.—The political situation in Greece, while calmer, continues to cause grave anxiety in diplomatic circles. There are not wanting careful prudent men who predict that King George will still be forced to abdicate, although there is no personal feeling against him.

The choice of the military party, which is now really in power, is Prince George, grandson of the present King and son of Crown Prince Constantine. He is 19 years old.

The British fleet is lying off the Piraeus.

Potatoes are reported to yield [illegible] bushels to the acre at Strathmore.

LAW AND ITS ADMINISTRATION

President Taft bids fair to make his administration as remarkable as that of Mr. Roosevelt. The latter opened the war on the money-hog and stock gambler. The former wants law and its administration made less of a farce, less of a burden upon the people than at present it assuredly is. Strange as it may seem, yet in criminal law till recently appeals were not permitted, except direct to the minister of justice. This was satisfactory. Why was it nto continued? The civil law meanwhile continued to be the stumbling-block to all but the man of means. For a poor man to go to law except in the Division Court means ruin, if indeed he could get a lawyer to take up his case without a retainer, and in due time a further payment or refresher. The administration of law should be nearly free as possible, and in all criminal or quasi-criminal affairts it should be absolutely free. It is easy to protect the free administration of law from abuse. There need be no difficulty about that. If President Taft succeeds in his endeavor he will have done more for the People even than Mr. Roosevelt.

WHY MEN AVOID CHURCH

In the U.S. no less than thirty million people put themselves down in the census as having no religion. In the average Protestant church the attendance of men is very small. In Canada it is the same thing. A careful review of the situation reveals the fact that men don't attend church because they do not care about it. They regard the Christian faith as a myth. Painful as it may be to say so, the average man agrees with Prof. Elliott. The Christian religion does not command his attention as botany or astronomy does, because he does not see the results. Christians on the whole appear to him just as scrappy, selfish and hypocritically crooked as the worst of those who are not Christians. The "careless one" says, "Let a man lead a good life, he will be all right. If he isn't then so much the worse for religion." He will, in spite of all, run loose from form. It is the results that he goes by and nothing else. Wherever attendance is voluntary the same thing is taking place. The so-called Higher Criticism is no higher than the average man's criticism. It is the same thing. He regards Christianity as an outgrowth of time and open to his scrutiny. Until he gets more faith or belief in it he will not attend. There are too many other places of attraction to go to. Emotion is being superseded by reason. Then it must be remembered that most people believe that all living things have developed from the simplest form of activity or life. This conflicts with the teaching of Scripture, which teaches that man was made perfect from the beginning. We are simply giving what we know to be the reasons for the poor attendance at church noted by the Examiner and others and not in any sense necessarily our own. The next duty of the churches will be to show that God and man do communicate, and unless the old belief with humane modifications is re-established, we fail to see how the Gospel as a form of belief, rather than a principle of conduct will be, in the future, influential in the lives of men. All churches have many within their folds who refrain from showing a scepticism which they feel. The present age appears to be one of effort. It will be necessary, apparently, for all churches to re-establish the propaganda if they are to maintain their former status in the world. Men will think and they are not easily frightened. Hell has lost its terrors. Men boldly judge God by their own standards. Men may worship Goodness or feel that they ought to do so, but the concrete claims of Christianity do not seem to impress them. Without faith in the old creeds most people are left without a developed standard of conduct. This will be supplied it is to be hoped, after long years of travail in the present state of uncertainty and dependency.

PROTECTION

The simple principle is overlooked by protectionists, that, if a nation, by tariffs or otherwise, excludes a certain product of a foreign country, thereby encouraging home production of that commodity, the country must finally produce correspondingly less of some other article, which otherwise would have been exported to pay for imports of articles produced abroad. And since the exotic industry encouraged at home must, in the great majority of cases, be less adapted to the resources of the country than the industries which its people would pursue under a state of unobstructed trade, it stands to reason that protection, as a general and permanent policy, must stultify and injure the community that adopts it. —The Farmers' Advocate.

The general principle of freedom of trade to which the Advocate refers, is as a general principle, correct enough. No protectionist denies that. It is the same with other general principles. But when general principles are violated, the practisers of those principles must observe the still more fundamental principle of necessity. Necessity is the mother of Protection. To offstand the U.S., Germany, etc., Canada adopted it. The general adoption of it has turned it from a violation of the F. T. principle into an adjuster or equalizer of world-wide trade conditions. As such it has taken the place of free trade, and in the course of time it will be so recognized by all. That it is not a foolishness is proven by the fact of its use by the great nations of the world and Great Britain is no exception since the embargo and the Patents Act are of that character. The Advocate should discuss the whole question in all its bearings and then possibly its conclusion will be a different one.

EDITORIAL NOTES

In the present discussion of Christian Science, etc., in the columns of the Review, Mr. Todd seems to say that everything leading to salvation is comprised in leading the Christian life.

CIRCLES AND CIRCUMSTANCES.

Events That Led Up to the End of the Estrangement.

By BELLE MANIATES.

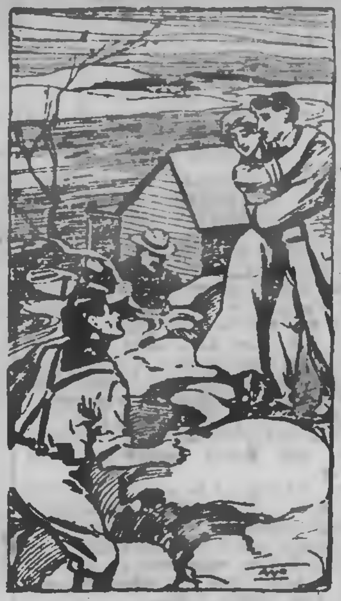
[Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

As the wake of a ship looks to be but a zigzag line of many tacks which, united, make a straight line, so the retribution of Syra Greenbury was wrought by self evolving circles. The first infinitesimal ring was the acquisition of a suitor by Molly Greenbury, and all the unwritten laws of courtship yielded to the lovers the exclusive use of the front porch.

The only member of the Greenbury household actually discommoded by this arrangement was Syra himself. His worthy spouse clung to the inside of the house day and night.

"Just as lieve set back as front," philosophically remarked Syra as he betook himself to the back porch.

He grumbled, however, over his limited space. The back porch was a receptacle for the icebox, washing machine, plant stand, lawn mower and sprinkling pot. His wife renewed her hopes of his building the long desired, long deferred summer kitchen, a structure Syra considered superfluous.



MARY STOOD WITHIN THE HARBOR OF GEORGE WINTERS' ENCIRCLING ARM.

Toward midsummer his place of pipe was again invaded. Kitty Greenbury, the third daughter, became the proud possessor of a "steady" who plainly meant business. So did Kitty. Willing to be relieved from the support of at least one of his many daughters, Syra stood ready to remove all obstacles from the path of true love.

"You can have the side porch, Kitty," he offered.

"There ain't room for two chairs," objected Kitty.

"I guess one chair will do," was the laconic reply.

"We ain't going to be cooped up by all that stuff," declared tart tempered Kitty. "I am going to swing a hammock."

"Guess you will have to build, Sy," suggested his wife.

The next day the delivery of a load of lumber brought joy to the heart of Mrs. Greenbury, and when Syra came home that night he began the erection of his building down on the river bank.

"For land sakes, what are you going to build a summer kitchen down there for?" demanded Mrs. Greenbury.

"This ain't no summer kitchen. It's going to be a place for me—just me—and I ain't going to be rooted out by any feller."

Work was begun in earnest. Kitty's steady took off his coat and fell to work. The building when completed consisted of one apartment and was adorned by a spacious "stoop," which faced the river. Molly and her lover resumed possession of the front porch, and Kitty adorned her precincts with hammock and porch pillows.

Mary, the eldest daughter, shunned the moonlight, which invoked memories too sweetly sad. But on the day the new building was completed she became active for the first time in months. When Syra came home at night and went out to inspect the pride of his heart he uttered an exclamation of delight. Blue and white rugs were on the floor, filmy curtains festooned the windows, Syra's two favorite pictures, a portrait of Lincoln and one of Queen Elizabeth signing a death warrant, adorned the walls. A long table covered with a gay scarf was strewn with the weekly and biweekly papers. A couch, easy chair, a receptacle for pipe, tobacco and matches constituted the furnishings.

"Say, Mary, even if I did build it just for me, it's always open to you," declared Syra.

She took him at his word and fell into the habit of sitting out there in the evening with her father. She was Syra's favorite daughter, and they spent many an evening there in silence, he puffing at his pipe and she gazing through the low hanging boughs at the moon path on the waters. He was guiltily conscious of her thoughts, for he had put the bitter into her sweet.

He had engaged in a fierce dispute over politics with George Winters and had ordered him from the house. George had then urged Mary to consider herself banished also and come to a home of their own. Mary, sad, but dutiful, would not consent. Winters' temper was tempestuous, and the angry young lover left town, sending Mary word that she or the "old man" must make the next move. The three remained firm in their silence. One faint glimmer of hope remained with Mary.

The long, icebound winter that followed brought no encouragement to this hope.

In the early spring everything loosened save Syra. The river which found its serene and sluggish way past the Greenbury domicile received the accumulation of snow and ice. Heavy rains added new impetus, and the shallow stream became at once rapid and noisy. One morning it leaped up the bank and beat at the walls of Syra's little retreat. The Greenburys began the work of transferring the furnishings from the little summer house.

"I am glad the house is so far from the river," observed Mrs. Greenbury as the river rose to the level of the yard.

Mary's watchful eyes filled with tears as she slipped out for a last farewell to the doomed little place. The young Greenburys reluctantly departed for school, and Syra, who had deemed it wise to remain at home and guard his fortress, was doing some carpentry work when he heard a warning shout from a neighbor. He rushed into the yard in time to see the waters circle about the little structure and sweep it downstream.

"Mary is in there!" cried his wife, wringing her hands.

In corroboration of this prediction Mary came out on the porch of the little house as it went around the bend in the river. Syra rushed along the bank until he came to a boat. He leaped into the boat and shoved off. His little craft was whirled through the waters and around the bend of the river. Then he saw the smokehouse some distance ahead. Syra's progress was impeded by a congestion of driftwood through which he desperately pushed his boat. When he rushed downstream again the house was far in the lead.

His boat moved so swiftly that the scenes on the shore were like moving pictures. The little town of Mendon, ten miles from home, soon appeared. The knowledge that a dam was only six miles farther brought to him a shuddering faintness. Then his thin lips made a straighter line than ever. His craft should follow the house, now a mile ahead, wherever fate should lead it. Another bend in the river shut the object of his pursuit from his strained eyes. Again his course was temporarily stayed by collision with a mass of wreckage, and it was some time before he rounded the curve.

His heart leaped. The little house was safely lodged on shore, and a big flat bottomed boat was being rowed toward him.

"The girl is safe," the oarsman assured him.

His little boat was brought alongside the smokehouse, and he followed his rescuers up the embankment to where Mary stood within the harbor of George Winters' encircling arm.

"Oh, father!" she cried with a breathless laugh as she ran to him.

George followed doubtfully.

"Well, George," said Syra grimly, extending the hand of reconciliation, "you said 'either Mary or the old man' must come to you. And we've both come, you see."

A direct steamship line will be established between St. John and West Indian ports.

He Set the Example.

A gentleman was once entertaining his friends at a grand dinner. He was a sad boaster and was often guilty of describing deeds that he had done when an officer in the army which those who knew him well felt sure were greatly exaggerated. He was in the midst of some such anecdote when the butler brought him word that a man wished to see him.

"Tell him I am engaged with my friends and can see no one," said the gentleman pompously.

The butler retired, but soon came back to say that the man was most urgent in wishing to speak to the gentleman and said he had been in his regiment at a famous battle where he owed his life to the officer.

"Show him in, show him in," said the host, much gratified. "This good fellow says I saved his life at X.," he added, turning to his guests as the old soldier came in. "How was it?" he went on. "For I am sure I forget. In the heat of battle one does brave things almost unconsciously."

"It was like this, your honor," said the soldier. "I owed my life to you, for I certainly should never have thought of running away if you had not set me the example."

Why He Married Her.

"Out of the strong came forth sweetness" might be said of many famous soldiers. That Lord Lawrence of Indian fame enjoyed an earthly paradise in his home may be seen by the following anecdote: His lordship was sitting in his drawing room at Southgate, with his sister and others of the family, all engaged in reading. Looking up from his book, in which he had been engrossed, he discovered that his wife had left the room. "Where's mother?" said he to one of his daughters. "She's upstairs," replied the girl. He returned to his book, and, looking up again a few minutes later, put the same question to his daughter and received the same answer. Once more he returned to his reading; once more he looked up with the same question on his lips. His sister broke in. "Why, really, John, it would seem as if you could not get on five minutes without your wife." "That's why I married her," he replied. To this admirable woman Lawrence whispered with his dying breath, "To the last gasp, my darling!"—London Chronicle.

YOUR BACKACHE WILL YIELD

To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Rockland, Maine.—"I was troubled for a long time with pains in my back and side, and was miserable in every way. I doctored until I was discouraged, and thought I should never get well. I read a testimonial about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and thought I would try it. After taking three bottles I was cured, and never felt so well in all my life. I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all my friends."—Mrs. WILL YOUNG, 6 Columbia Avenue, Rockland, Me.

Backache is a symptom of female weakness or derangement. If you have backache, don't neglect it. To get permanent relief you must reach the root of the trouble. Nothing we know of will do this so safely and surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Cure the cause of these distressing aches and pains and you will become well and strong.

The great volume of unsolicited testimony constantly pouring in proves conclusively that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has restored health to thousands of women.

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge.

A PAIR OF SURPRISES

They Came With a Talk About the Girl's Engagement.

By JEANNETTE WALDEN.

[Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

The girl made a droll effort to match her steps to the strides of the tall, grave man with whom she was walking.

Their caddies followed somewhat hopelessly in the rear, bristling with the implements of golf.

"Hal, I never saw you in such a horrid hurry," laughed the girl, "and I never saw you look so—so cross." She raised to his a fair face glowing from exercise and blue eyes dancing with teasing imps.

"Oh, how thoughtless of me, my dear." The man slackened his pace abruptly and looked down at his companion with an indulgent smile—a smile which lighted up his face with a flash of pleasure, though it faded quickly, leaving the shadow of painful contemplation.

"Out with it, friend," encouraged the girl, glancing up at him through a maze of blond ringlets. "Are you in love?" Her voice died out on the last word, as if frightened at its own audacity, and her color spread to her temples. But she walked on gayly beside her meditative escort.

"Vivian"—the girl's name as he uttered it was charged at once with a tender sympathy and a portentous seriousness—"I have something on my mind which concerns you as much—perhaps more than it does myself. In fact, I've brought you out here today to talk with you about it. I can think better in the open."

"I wondered why you had condescended to come," laughed the girl, still apparently unimpressed by his mood. "Do you know it has been ages since you have ventured so far from home with me?"

"Press of business," apologized the man weakly.

"And that interesting woman," supplemented the girl, "whoever she is."

The man ignored her challenge. He seemed too deeply troubled to respond to trivialities. "Well, Vivian, shall we go to the club veranda for our talk or seek some hammock on the links, with a bush to shelter us from this over-familiar breeze?"

SHE SPRANG UP AND TURNED HER BACK, MOVING SLOWLY AWAY.

"Right here in this little depression, with the white rock shelf to sit on," and the girl was comfortably ensconced before the words were out of her mouth, the bright scarlet of her jacket adding a touch of brilliancy to the landscape.

"But, Hal, what's the use of telling me if it's hard for you to talk about it?" There was sympathy as well as absolute confidence in the deep blue eyes. "You have always decided for me and taken care of my business. I can't do half as well for myself as you have always done for me."

"Thank you, dear." As he gravely bowed he bared his head, exposing his closely cropped wavy brown hair lightly streaked with gray. "But this is a personal matter," he continued as he seated himself beside her. "A guardian, however useful, does not in this enlightened age make or break an engagement."

"But I am engaged already—at least I think I am. But that reminds me—I haven't heard from Tom for a long time."

She spoke with an air of unconcern, while her companion observed her closely.

"What if I should tell you that it seems best to postpone your marriage, Vivian?"

"I should say that would be perfectly jolly!" exclaimed the girl, with a sincerity that was wholly unaffected.

"I know, Vivian, you have never been in a hurry to set the day, but what if—what if"—he watched her narrowly—"I should say that it might be best for you to annul the engagement to Tom Rowland—for a time at least?"

The girl leaned over and rested both hands upon his knee, looking steadily up into his solicitous gray eyes. "It would make me happier than anything else in the world."

"Vivian! You don't love him, then?"

"I do not, Hal."

"Well, then, I'm relieved," he said earnestly.

"Why do you say that? Why are you glad?" It was the girl's turn to be intense.

"Because, dear, he has proved himself unworthy of you. Do you wish—do you care to know"—

She shook her head. "Don't tell me anything unpleasant, please. But is it only on my account that you are glad—is that all?"

She sprang up and turned her back, moving slowly away, while he watched her with puzzled surprise.

"Vivie, child, come back!" he called.

She turned and came swiftly to her seat upon the rock.

"You won't hide anything from your best friend, little girl?"

"Hal, do you doubt me? I have not cared for Rowland—not as I should—since the first month I came to your mother's home, and that is over a year now."

He took her hand in his own.

"You have cared for some one else, then?" His tone was casual, but a sudden light came into his eyes.

She flashed him one look from fluttering eyelids.

"You, Vivian—you, darling—love an old fellow like me! I can't believe it. Tell me, dear." He took both her hands in his.

She looked up then unflinchingly. The color fled from her face, leaving it pure ivory. "It is so," she said simply.

For a second they gazed into each other's eyes.

"But what about the woman?" teased Vivian.

"What woman?" he asked blankly.

"Why, the one who has been taking you away so much of late, keeping you downtown to dinners, inviting you out every other evening to the club, causing you auto trips to the country and making you work whole Sundays at the office?"

"Oh," he laughed, "you—you are the woman who has kept me away. I knew that I couldn't see so much of you and be loyal to Tom Rowland. So, you see, little girl, you were not the only one in love."

"But come," he added as he raised her to her feet; "let's carry the good news to mother. She will be overjoyed to learn that she is not to lose you."

SHETLAND PONIES.

Raised With Profit In Several States. Their Good Points.

The business of raising Shetland ponies has become a profitable and important industry in several states. The little animals seem to thrive better in the northern and middle states than in the extreme south, doubtless because of their origin in the rigorous climate of the Shetland islands. This is true only with reference to their breeding, for the Shetland pony is a true cosmopolitan, at home in all lands and in all climes, and is perhaps unequaled by any other animal in points of hardiness and endurance. In describing a Shetland's points an authority writes as follows:

"The head should not be too fine, and the eye should be prominent, the ears of good size and set well forward. The neck is thick and crested high up, so that the impression is conveyed that the crest extends right up to the ears. This gives appearances of great strength in the neck and, added to the broad shoulders, enables the pony to draw great weights. The neck should be of good length and the back, of course, short. The rib should be very well sprung, any indication of slabsidedness favoring of the Icelander. The quarters should be as round as an apple and the tail set on moderately high.

In short, the Shetland pony should pass muster when judged by the points of a horse, and there must be no appearance of delicacy about him. Nothing effeminate will do for a Shetland stallion. A poor neck is a fatal fault, and for the same reason nothing coarse will do for a mare. The geldings should be a sturdy medium between the two. Another fatal fault is an inclination to legginess. In fact, short legs are so characteristic of the Shetland that a leggy one is a rarity to be met with, and if a pony is really leggy he is certain to have Icelander blood in his veins.

A WELL BRED SHETLAND.

"So in selecting a pony look for one that is short legged, sturdy in build, thick in the chest, strong in his neck, round in his quarters, pleasant faced and with a nice mane and foretop. The foretop should come between the ears from the top of the crest, and the pony's legs should be sound and strong. The pastern should be springy and the action smart and trappy as possible. The eye will in the most of cases disclose the disposition, but it is very rarely indeed that a pure bred Shetland is either pigheaded or vicious."

Silo Notes.

The silo is a sign of dairy prosperity.

A cow to the acre is not impossible when silage is fed.

Silage makes splendid sheep feed when used judiciously.

The time is coming when silos will be as numerous as corncribs.

The man who has the largest milk checks is the man who feeds silage.

The silage fed cow is very easy to pick out, especially in the early summer or late spring.

Remember it's easier to fill and easier to feed from two small silos than one large one. The silage will keep better too.

The silo is appreciated at no season more than just between winter and summer feeds. The hay is usually low, and the cattle are hungry for green, succulent feed. Silage bridges over the season and brings the stock out in good condition.—Kimball's Dairy Farmer.

Streaky Butter.

Streaky or mottled butter may be caused by the salt or it may be due to the working of the butter. The salt is so evenly diffused in the finest kind of butter that, as is shown by a microscope, every grain is surrounded by a film of clear and transparent brine, which points out the necessity of avoiding the overworking of the butter before the salt is added. In the first working every particle of the milk should be got rid of, but enough clear water should be left to dissolve every grain of salt in twelve hours before the next working. If this is done there will be but little danger of streakiness in the butter, but to get the best results the salt should be very finely ground.

Bokhara Sheep.

The department of agriculture is seriously considering the introduction into this country of Bokhara sheep, from which comes the fur called Persian lamb. All astrakhan fur is now raised on territory tributary to the Caspian sea. The best fur is taken from the lamb when it is only four or five days old. The Bokhara sheep also makes good mutton.

Constable Emmerson, of Hamilton police force, was taken off his beat and operated upon for appendicitis.

WHETHER grown for market or for home use only, it is important that the potato crop be made to yield as much as possible. With the right kind of care yields of 200 to 500 bushels to the acre can be obtained, making this one of the most profitable crops that can be grown. Even with the most careless treatment the tuber frequently yields most generously.

The potato is very particular in its soil requirements. A rich sandy loam is the best soil. Not all farms have such a soil, but almost any soil can be so prepared as to make a fairly good potato patch. Two things are essential, mellowness and plenty of moisture. Clay is too heavy, and sand dries out too rapidly. Soils which contain too much clay or too much sand can be greatly improved for the production of potatoes by the addition of humus. The ideal way to prepare a field for potatoes is to seed it to clover for at least a year, manure it heavily, plow it up and plant it to corn. In the fall the corn can be cut for silage or fodder, so that it can be plowed before winter. The plowing should be fairly deep. Two diskings and a harrowing or two the following spring make an ideal seed bed for potatoes.

Potatoes are not raised from seed, but from the swollen underground stems that we call tubers or potatoes. Any piece of a tuber that contains an "eye" will grow and produce more of its kind. A potato vine grown from a piece of a tuber is really not a new plant, but part of the old one. If outside conditions are the same the plant will be the same and produce the same kind of a crop. There is much less tendency to vary in plants propagated in this way than in those raised from seed.

Large Versus Small Potatoes.

Because of the fact that the potato is not a seed it has been claimed that small potatoes would produce just as good crops as large ones. Growers often sort out and plant the tubers that are too small for market. The outcome of four or five years of such selection almost always means a decreased yield. If the potatoes planted were small only because they did not have a chance to develop they would produce nearly as good results as larger ones from the same hill. If, however, they were small because they came from a hill of tubers all of which were naturally small they would produce mostly small potatoes like themselves. For this reason it is not safe to plant the small tubers. Another important point is that there is not enough food material in a small potato to give the sprout the kind of a start that it needs to produce a good yield. It is the stocky, vigorous hills that are full of large potatoes when digging time comes. The start the plant gets while it is first making its way to the surface of the ground largely determines the vigor with which it will continue to grow throughout the season.

The experience of most potato growers is that it is best to plant medium sized tubers, about the size of a hen's egg or larger, cutting each one into four pieces. In experiments that were conducted along this line quarters gave a yield of seven bushels to the acre more than two eye pieces and fifteen bushels more than one eye pieces.

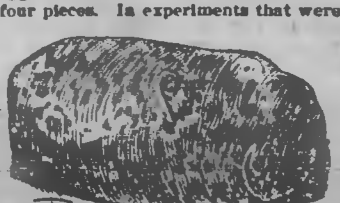

FIG. XV—WELL SHAPED SEED POTATO.

The seed potatoes should be kept in a dark place until planting time to keep them from sprouting as much as possible. New sprouts will grow if the old ones are broken off, but they will not be as strong. If the seed is at all scabby it should be treated before planting. This is done by soaking the tubers for two hours in a solution of one pound of formalin to forty gallons of water. Afterward the potatoes should be spread out to dry and then cut. The cutting should not be done until just before planting, as otherwise they will shrivel and lose some of their vitality. The plan of getting the seed potatoes cut several weeks or even days before planting is not to be commended. Even if the seed thus prepared is kept in a dark cellar the starchy part of the tuber is certain to lose much of its freshness, and the vitality of the seed may be impaired.

Planting.

Early potatoes should be planted as soon as the ground can be worked. The later varieties, which comprise the bulk of the crop, should be planted about corn planting time or a little later. In the corn belt it is most convenient to mark off the rows with the corn planter. Where land is high and it is desired to work it to its fullest capacity the rows may be as close as three feet. Where ten or more acres are grown a potato planter will soon pay for itself. Where the acreage is smaller than this two or three neighbors can often combine to purchase such a machine.

Where hand planting is practiced the rows should be opened with a stirring plow to a depth of four to six inches. The practice of dropping the tubers in a cultivator track and covering them lightly is responsible for many of the low yields. Potatoes send up a strong sprout that is able to penetrate six inches of soil easily, and the roots need to be well down in the moist earth. After the tubers are dropped the stirring plow may again be brought into use to cover them; or a disk cultivator may be used. The main thing is to get them covered deeply. After covering two or three harrowings should be given to level the ground and kill any sprouting weeds.

The cut tubers should be dropped from twelve to sixteen inches apart, one in a place. The amount of seed to use per acre will depend on the price. If seed potatoes are not too expensive it pays to be liberal with them. Where medium sized potatoes are cut into quarters and dropped every fifteen inches in rows three and one-half feet apart twelve to fifteen bushels per acre will be needed.

On western farms, where land is cheap and labor scarce, potatoes are often planted in rows both ways. This can be readily done by running a planter wire across the field and dropping a piece of potato at each button on the wire. The wire is moved at each end as in planting corn. When planted in this way half a tuber instead of a quarter should be dropped in a place. Such a plan will not give as good a yield as drilling, provided the drilled potatoes are kept free from weeds. The checked potatoes can be cultivated both ways and kept clean with but little hand labor and will yield more than a weedy patch planted twice as thick. The feasibility of the plan depends entirely upon the relative cost of land and labor.

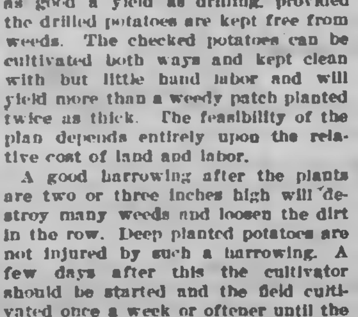

FIG. XVI—POTATOES LEFT IN PILE.

A good harrowing after the plants are two or three inches high will destroy many weeds and loosen the dirt in the row. Deep planted potatoes are not injured by such a harrowing. A few days after this the cultivator should be started and the field cultivated once a week or oftener until the blossoms appear. It pays to hoe or pull any weeds that come up in the rows. No one thing will reduce the yield of potatoes more than weeds. The ground should be left nearly level at the last cultivation. Deep planting makes hilling unnecessary.

Spraying For Insects and Diseases.

The potato beetle is the one serious insect enemy of the potato crop. The most prevalent disease other than scab is blight. This affects the leaves, causing them to turn black and curl up. Both blight and beetles can be readily controlled by spraying with bordeaux paris green mixture. This is made as follows: Four pounds copper sulphate, four pounds fresh lime, four ounces paris green and fifty gallons of water.

Dissolve the copper sulphate in twenty-five gallons of the water and the lime in the rest. Then pour the two solutions together. Make the paris green into a paste with a little water and stir it into the mixture. It pays to have a good hand sprayer to apply this solution or a power machine if many acres are grown. A hand sprayer can be bought for $5 or $6. If equipped with two nozzles so as to take two rows at once it will not take more than an hour to go over an acre. The entire expense, including the labor, will be repaid several times over by the increase in yield. Three or four sprayings will be sufficient, starting about the time the plants are six inches high and continuing at intervals of a week or ten days until they are in bloom.

Digging the Crop.

Where a large acreage of potatoes is grown or where several neighbors each raise a few acres every year, a digger is a paying investment. It leaves the tubers on top of the ground in good shape to be picked up and gets practically all of them. Where only a few are grown they can be forked out, but this is a slow job. The most common practice is to plow them out. By picking them up after the plow, then harrowing twice and picking up after each harrowing, few will be left. If the field is so located that the hogs can be turned in on it, they get all that were missed. As soon as dug, which should be before severe freezing weather, the potatoes should be piled up and covered with straw and dirt. Here they may be left until the ground begins to freeze, when they may be put in the cellar or hauled to market. If the pile is on a well drained place it may be covered with a foot to eighteen inches of straw and as much dirt and safely left till spring. There are many potato growers, especially those of foreign extraction, who never keep their crop in any other way. While the dry indoor method has numerous advantages, such as readiness for use in all weather and convenience of handling, there is much to commend the outdoor storage plan. There are even those who contend that the flavor of the tuber is only to be maintained by storing it in the pit.

William Galloway, of Melfort, Sask., fell 10 feet from a scaffold and was killed.

Four-year-old Beatrice Robertson, of Hamilton, upset a kettle and was severely scalded.

..STYLE IN GLASSES..

There is no reason why persons with defective vision need disfigure their faces by wearing glasses of unsightly shape, entirely out of harmony with the contour of their features. There is style in glasses just as there is style in everything else to wear. There is some style or mounting that is "just the thing for your face" if you can only find it, and we are in a position to tell you all about all the different mountings, for we make frequent visits to the leading factories, and keep pace with all the improvements in mountings and lens grinding. We will take pleasure in helping you select a mounting to carry your lenses, that will be becoming, comfortable and secure.

We are showing now one of the Newest ideas in mounts, and we are selling a lot of them. We can adapt these to suit any person. When you have tried all other eyeglass mounts without success, come to us, we will guarantee to fit you to your entire satisfaction.

The uncut lenses we use are from the AMERICAN OPTICAL CO., the largest Optical House in the world. We buy these only in "First" quality, and grind them any shape or size. All work guaranteed.

WORKMAN FELL OFF LADDER

At the New Public Library Building—Fell About Fifteen Feet

A workman named Johnston, employed at the new Public Library building, fell off a ladder about two o'clock this afternoon, but fortunately his injuries were not severe. The ladder is used by the workmen in descending to and ascending from the cellar and Johnston was about to step on to the landing at the top when the ladder tilted and he lost his footing, falling on the hard ground below, a distance of about fifteen feet. The Dan Spence ambulance was summoned and the injured man was taken to his apartments at the Grand Hotel.

HARVEST HOME AT PARK ST.

The Harvest Home services at the Park street Baptist church yesterday were a grand success along all lines. The artistic decorations reflected great credit indeed upon the committee in charge. The arch designed by Mr. Archie Jackson was especially fine. Trimmed with evergreens and grapes on the vine, surmounted by palms, it indeed was a thing of beauty, as also was the first display directly in front of the pulpit.

The pastor preached two excellent sermons appropriate for the occasion, and the splendid choir, under the able direction of Mr. J. C. Miller, rendered musical selections in fine form. Mr. S. Pratt contributed an excellent base solo at the close of the service.

In the afternoon Mr. Hassard, secretary of the Y.M.C.A., spoke in a very pleasing manner to the children.

About $300.00 was realised in the offerings.

BAD FOR OUR PORK PROSPECTS

The multiplicity of Britain's sources of food supply is shown by one of the latest consignments to Smithfield market. A shipment of frozen pork arrived from China and was sold quite readily at from 1s. to 1s. 5d. per lb., about 1d. less than English wholesale. Higher prices would probably have been realised if the inspector would have allowed the shipment to be sold in the frozen state, but he insisted on thawing for inspection. Should Chinese pork prove remunerative, it is said there are large supplies to be obtained in China, and a big business will speedily be established. On the same steamer was a large consignment of all kinds of frozen game and wild fowl.—Farmers' Advocate.

CLOTHING CAUGHT FIRE AT FAIR AND MRS. W. F. McMULLEN WAS SEVERELY BURNED

Mrs. W. F. McMullen, who has rooms at 251 George street, was very severely burned at the fair on Saturday afternoon about 4 o'clock. She was walking from the main building when, it is thought, someone threw a cigar stub into the grass near where she was standing. The grass took fire and this ignited her clothing.

A lady friend, who was with Mrs. McMullen at the time, assisted her at once, and soon had the fire out, and she was removed to her home in a cab.

Dr. Gray was called to attend Mrs. McMullen, and states that while it appeared at first that her injuries would likely prove fatal, that she is now apparently recovered to such an extent that she will probably withstand the injuries and the shock.

Mr. and Mrs. McMullen came to the city from Campbellford a short time ago. Mr. McMullen is on the staff of the local agency of the Prudential Life Insurance Company.

LOCAL MAN GETS CONTRACT FROM TEMISCAMING 'PHONE CO.

Mr. W. H. Lytle has been given the contract by the Temiskaming Telephone Company for the re-construction of their plants in New Ontario. The Cobalt system will be the first overhauled, and then several other places will be visited and extensive improvements made. An all-cable system is to be constructed at Cobalt. Mr. Lytle will leave Peterborough to-night or to-morrow morning for the north, taking a gang of men with him. He will be away about three months.

PROVINCIAL OFFICER IS DETAILED FOR THE CASE

Provincial Inspector Miller, of Toronto, came to the city this morning and went out to Springville this afternoon, to examine the skeleton found there a short time ago. Mr. Archie Reynolds, of Springville, county constable, took Inspector Miller to the grave where the skeleton was buried and the grave was opened and an examination of the skeleton made.

The Provincial Officer stated that the examination gave him no clue to work on. He arrived in Springville at about 1.30 and left for Peterborough about 3.30.

NEW SECRETARY OF THE Y.M.C.A. AT LINDSAY

Lindsay, Sept. 17.—Mr. C. E. Bingleman was appointed secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association last night at a special meeting of the directors.

NATIVE OF NORFOLK.

Mr. Bingleman is a native of Norfolk county, residing near Simcoe. In that locality he has spent the greater part of his life and has taken an active interest in the life of the community there.

START IN Y.M.C.A. WORK

He was the son of a farmer and after receiving a good education, he embarked in the dairy business of which he made a success. The active interest he took in Christian work in the community was the ultimate cause of his entering Y.M.C.A. work. The Provincial Y.M.C.A. Board heard of him and the work he was doing and he was doing and he was secured as assistant secretary for the West End Y.M.C.A., Toronto, where he has worked for the past six months.

NEW COLLEGE HAS BEEN ACQUIRED

Peterboro Business College Takes Over the Gibbon

The Gibbon Business College, which was opened here about two weeks ago, has been acquired by the Peterborough Business College. The deal was completed on Saturday and the new college disbands to-day. Apparently there was not room here for two business colleges. Mr. Gibbon is a gentleman of wide experience and much ability and would have succeeded without doubt if the field had been large enough. It is understood that the students of the Gibbon school will continue their studies at the Peterborough College.

OBITUARY

JEAN FRANCES MORRISON.

A bright young life was brought to a close yesterday afternoon, when Frances Morrison, the seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Morrison, passed peacefully away. The funeral took place this afternoon from the family residence, 270 Reid street to Little Lake cemetery.

JOHN THORNDYKE.

After an illness extending over the past four months, John Thorndyke passed away at his late residence, 254 Murray street, at 12.30 o'clock to-day. Last June the deceased was attacked with a paralytic stroke, and since then had on several occasions been afflicted in a likewise manner. Last Thursday he received a fourth stroke, and his condition grew gradually worse until death took place. The late Mr. Thorndyke was born in Hope County and had lived in this city for the past thirty-six years. He was sixty-seven years of age, and had been a carpenter by trade. In politics he was a Conservative. Besides his wife he leaves to mourn his loss, one daughter, Mrs. Wilton Metheral, and one son, Mr. Albert Thorndyke, both of this city. The brothers are Messrs. Robert, of Toronto; Thomas and Edward, of Michigan; William, David and James, who reside in the west. Mrs. Darrock, who also resides in the west, is a sister.

The funeral will take place from the late residence, Wednesday afternoon, at two o'clock, to the Little Lake cemetery. No flowers.

FLOW OF MILK KEEPS UP WELL

According to Report From Contesting Department at Ottawa

August records received at Ottawa from members of cow testing associations, indicate that in most districts the flow of milk is well up to the average. In some localities there is but a very slight decrease from July yield of milk, so light, that the increasing richness shows a trifle higher yield of fat.

In other localities, unfortunately, there is a very marked shrinkage, as much as 120 lb. and even 180 lb. milk per cow less than in July. Many dairy farmers have accordingly vowed that next year will not see them caught without any provision for maintaining the flow, but they have determined to provide some soiling crop, and if possible build a silo, so as to ensure succulent feed for probable hot spells in July and August. Such men are wise.

Some districts have as high averages as 870 lb. milk, and 30 lb. fat in Aug. Such wise dairymen had made provision of suitable feed. Others, less provident, had to be content with a yield of 580 lbs. milk and 21 lb. fat per cow; while here and there the average yield was down to 390 lb. milk and 16 lb. fat. Such men might well copy the methods of their brother farmers, who regularly secure the larger yields. Selection of the best cows can be made intelligently when records are kept of each cow.

EXCLUSIVE MODELS IN SUITS and COATS

ALONG the line of Women's Garments displayed in our commodious department women of fashion are heard to remark about the exclusiveness of style, the variety of cloths, the general air of refinement that pervades the Fall exhibit. This is exactly the aim we had in view, in the selection of our stock of women's ready-to-wears—to get away from anything else shown—to keep away from the ordinary kinds. "We Have Succeeded" is the general verdict as gleaned from the remarks that we've heard during our Autumn Openings of last week.

When you decide on one of our Suits from $25 to $57, a coat from $20 to $40 you can rest assured yours is the only suit of its identical kind in the city. This is the "key-note to our phenomenal success" in the women's ready-to-wear dept. Of course we have lower priced garments if you desire them—values are just as apparent from the lowest to highest priced outfit. Nothing Too Good

WE have had over ten years experience in supplying Toric Lenses to our most particular patrons. This form of lens is increasingly popular in all the large cities of America and especially in the United States, where the manufacturers have large capital and the best facilities for turning out accurate work. We are particular to have only the best, and judging from the increased number which we now supply, we deem our care in this regard is appreciated. There is nothing too good for the eye.

A Noted Electrician Returns to Peterborough

Those of our citizens who are interested in and amused by good moving pictures, will be pleased to learn that Mr. Milton Bartleman, one of the most experienced operators and electricians in all Canada has returned to the city and will hereafter reside in Peterborough.

Mr. Bartleman is the gentleman who installed the complicated and perfect electric system at the Crystal, Peterborough's leading place for cheap and clean amusement. He has been installing and operating moving pictures places in Nova Scotia during the past few months. Mr. Edwards, proprietor of the Crystal, has been fortunate enough to secure the permanent services of this gentleman for the Crystal so that his patrons may now be sure that the pictures as well as the service there, will hereafter be the very best possible.

To-night the pictures are of the very highest order including "The Cardinal's Conspiracy," an historical romance, "The Stampede," an exciting cowboy story, and "Spring Has Come." Don't fail to see these.

She wins a $350 piano, and is being heartily congratulated by her friends on her success. Miss Logan had a total of 175,341 votes. The four candidates with the highest standing in district No. 11 were:

Miss Minnie F. Logan, 344 King street, Peterborough	175,341
Mrs. R. L. Sturtess, North Bay	140,160
Miss E. Trull, Whitewood avenue, New Liskeard, Ont.	128,817
Mrs. E. McAue, North Bay	86,877

The grand prize in the contest, a house and lot in Toronto, was won by Samuel Dianey, of Baslam, Ont., who had 4,501,828 votes.

Miss Logan desires to thank very heartily all those who assisted her in the contest.

INSPECTOR OF PRISON MAKES A REPORT

Following is the report of the inspection of Peterborough gaol:—

An official visit of inspection was made to Peterborough gaol on Sept. 10th, 1909, when there were 11 male prisoners in custody.

On inspection the general condition of the building, beds and bedding, corridors and cells, yards, closets, drainage, ventilation and water supply were all found satisfactory.

Among the prisoners were some old men who should be provided for in a House of Refuge. It is most unfortunate that this condition has to be again complained of in connection with Peterborough gaol. The county has made provision for its indigents, but the city of Peterborough, instead of providing a House of Refuge, or arranging with the county for the care of its poor, permits these old men to be sent to gaol from time to time, although they have been guilty of no crime.

The food supplied the prisoners is in accordance with the regulations, and the quality is good. There were no complaints in regard to the dietary. The cost of rations for the past quarter was .09 per day. The supplies are obtained by contract.

The prisoners are comfortably clothed. There were 20 suits of prison clothing on hand.

On examining the books I found the entries correctly made and up-to-date.

Attention must again be called to the necessity of providing a more economical heating system for the gaol, and court house. The old stoves should be done away with, and a central heating plant installed. The attention of the County Council should be specially directed to this at once. The heating of Peterborough gaol is most defective.

In several places the walls require painting. It is mistaken economy on the part of the County Council to allow these repairs to be neglected.

My visit of inspection impressed me favorably in regard to the discipline and management of the gaol, which in every part was found clean and in good order.

R. W. BRUCE SMITH,
Inspector.

September 10th, 1909.

Given Over to House of Providence

At the County Police Court Saturday morning Magistrate Edmison made an order in which an unfortunate woman who has been in the gaol for a short time, was given over in charge of the House of Providence. The woman is not of very sound mind.

CANADIANS WANTED TO SEE IT AGAIN

And "The Gay Musician" is Making Tour in Dominion Before Opening in U. S.

Not in many years has any comic opera made so great an impression in Canada, as has Julian Edwards' charming composition, "The Gay Musician", which won so great recognition last season, when presented by Manager John P. Slocum's big company of singers.

So great has been the demand that "The Gay Musician" be heard once more that Manager Slocum has been induced to make a short tour of Canada, previous to his season in the United States, which is limited to the large cities only, with engagements of one or more weeks.

"The Gay Musician" this season, is being rendered by a renowned company of principals, assisted by a bevy of the most beautiful show-girls to be found in New York, together with a skilled ballet of pony dancers and what is considered the "best singing chorus in America." An entirely new scenic production with a wealth of imported and costly French gowns are features of this season's presentation of "The Gay Musician," which will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House on Wednesday evening, Sept. 22nd.

Grand Trunk Pacific Railway

Passenger trains over the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway west, which have hitherto run only to Scott, Sask., are now running west to Wainwright, Alta., 100 miles further west and 766 miles west of Winnipeg. The regular passenger service is now within 115 miles west of Edmonton, and it is stated that through trains from Winnipeg to the Alberta capital will be in operation next month.

St. Luke's Notes

The first sewing meeting of the W. A. will be held at the Children's Shelter on Thursday afternoon. The members are requested to meet at the post office at 2.30.

The rector spoke at both services regarding the new Book of Common Praise, and asked the people to cease from bringing Hymns A. and M., as the new Hymnal, which is authorized for use by the General Synod, would be adopted in the course of time.

The famous "Cup of Tea" song in Julian Edwards' best Comic Opera, "The Gay Musician," at the Grand Opera House Wednesday evening, Sept. 22. Plan now open.

THAT WATCH OF YOURS

Is in many respects similar to a railway engine. Let an engine be run without oil or cleaning and before long it will stop dead. Upon examination it will be found that the friction and wear and tear has ruined the machinery, and it is fit only for the scrap iron heap. Likewise your watch. You put it in your pocket, and while there is a kick in it, you, in your mistaken economy, do not consult the watchmaker, and consequently rob your watch of years of good service and also much of its former accuracy. The time-keeping qualities of a good watch are maintained and often improved by timely and skilful attention. If you have been one of the neglectful ones call around and see us.

T.A.S. WON THE DECIDING GAME IN CITY LEAGUE

Defeated the West Ends on Saturday by 19-4, Making 15 Runs in Two Innings—Laj. Derocher Made His First Hit of the Season in the Last Time at Bat.

The T.A.S. team are the champions of the City Baseball League. By defeating the West Ends by the score of 19—4 at Riverside Park Saturday afternoon, the members of the team demonstrated that they are entitled to all the honors. The work of the pitching department and the batting of the team, which has enabled them to go through the season with but two losses, was very much in evidence, and with this combination the West Ends were up against it, and especially so in the seventh and eighth innings, when the Abstainers made fifteen runs, by clouting the ball to all corners of the lot. Up to the unlucky seventh, the West Enders were holding their own, but at this stage of the game Gus Rose blew up, and any chance they had of winning the contest departed to the clouds following in the wake of their aviated heaver. Minorgan was called upon to fill the vacancy, but his offerings were pummelled in a likewise fashion. Each of the players on the T.A.S. team secured one or more hits, making a total of sixteen. Cahill banged out two three-baggers and Laj. Derocher in his last time at bat, made his first hit of the season—a two-bagger—and although called upon to perform a Ty. Cobb stunt, refused. Flaherty allowed but five hits to his opponents, and the only time he found himself in trouble was in the fourth, when the West Ends secured three of their four runs. Only five errors were marked up against the team, while the West Ends were guilty of sixteen, the majority of which, as the summary shows, proved costly. The attendance of fans at the game was small, and those who were unable to be present can figure out how it happened by the following;—

HAVELOCK WON FROM BRINTON'S IN R. R. HALL TROPHY GAME

In a game in which they had considerably the better of the play Havelock defeated the Brinton Carpet Company's team at the fair grounds on Saturday afternoon, by a score of 3—0. This gives the winners the R. R. Hall trophy. The quality of football provided was well up to the Midland League standard, and both teams gave a good exhibition of the game. The teams battled strenuously for the silverware, and much enthusiasm was shown by the supporters of both aggregations.

The Brinton eleven were handicapped to begin with, owing to the fact that some of their men did not show up in time, owing to a misunderstanding regarding the hour appointed for the game.

A big crowd of spectators saw the match.

RED HAWK FLEW AWAY FROM SIMPSON IN SECOND RACE

Red Hawk, the Penetang Indian, who dropped out of sight after winning a big race down New York way, is back home and is picking up a little coin for a rainy day by running Fred Simpson a series. The first race was on Christian Island, at 12 miles. At the fifth mile Red Hawk lapped Simpson, but got into trouble at eleven and a half miles, and was beaten out by Simpson with one of his ciclonic finishes.

In the second race at 6 miles at Penetang, on a half-mile track, Red Hawk lapped Simpson at seven and a half miles, and won, doing the 6 miles in 42 flat.

BURRIDGE BACK TO THIS CITY

Harry Burridge, who has this season been playing with the Edmonton team in the Western Canada Baseball League, arrived in the city last night from Toronto. Burridge has been under the weather for some time with a sore arm and has lately been receiving treatment in Youngstown. He states that the Medicine Hat team which won the championship of the league this season played great ball, and Edmonton, while strong in the infield, had a poor outfield, which told heavily against them in the race. Jerry Edmonds, he says, played well for Winnipeg, and made a great hit with the fans all around the circuit. Edmonds is at present in Toronto, but intends coming here in a few days.

SPORTING NOTES

The championship of the City Baseball League has been won by the T. A. S. team, which has gone through the season with but two losses. The team has established a creditable record, and are worthy of the honors they have won. Each member has played good ball, and while the pitching staff is the best in the city, the individual work of each man at the bat and in the field was in the majority of the games, better than that of their opponents.

Just to show that there was no hard feeling, Rochester took two games from Toronto Saturday, and incidentally boosted their percentage a few points.

The members of the 57th Regiment are going in for sport. A Rugby team is being organized, and it is understood that the Bugle Band will be represented by a strong hockey team this coming season.

Joe Kelley had nine put-outs at centre field in the game with Newark yesterday.

Ragon pitched and won both games for Rochester against Toronto Saturday.

Rochester has a 14 point lead in the Eastern League race.

RUGBY

CAHILL WON NEILL PRIZE

T.A.S. Shortstop Ran Around the Bases in 14 4-5 Seconds

Bill Cahill, short-stop of the T.A.S. team, won the prize for running the bases in the fastest time at Riverside park Saturday afternoon, his time being 14 4-5 seconds. Craig of the Straths, and Dobson, of the West Ends, were next, each doing the distance in 15 seconds. Only six players entered, their time being as follows;—

Player.	Club.	Time.
Cahill,	T.A.S.,	14 4-5 sec.
Dobson,	West Ends,	15 sec.
Craig,	Strathconas,	15 sec
Shaw,	Strathconas,	15 1-10 sec
Callaghan,	T.A.S.,	15 2-5 sec.
Gibson,	West Ends,	15 3-5 sec.

THE GRIDIRON

It was finally decided that this city will be represented by a senior O.R.F.U. team at a meeting held at the Armouries Saturday night.

Although prospects for a winning junior O.R.F.U. team are bright, no decided action was taken.

A team picked from the members of the 57th regiment may join the ranks of the senior city league and a meeting of those interested in the formation of the league are asked to attend a meeting at the Armouries on Wednesday night.

Lights will be installed at Riverside Park this week, and evening practices will be held.

Rugbyists to the number of thirty held a good workout at the conclusion of the ball game Saturday. Many young players were out.

The Junior City Rugby League will open next Saturday. A double header will be played, Rough Riders vs. T.A.S. and Collegiates vs. Y.M.C.A.

HAVELOCK HAPPENINGS

Special to the Review.

Havelock, Sept. 17.—A small blaze occurred at the residence of Mr. F. Hardy at the west end on Friday, about 1 o'clock p.m., due to a defective chimney. The fire alarm called a large number to the spot and the fire was speedily extinguished with very little damage to the building.

Master Stewart Brinkman, while in the school yard on Thursday morning had the misfortune to fall, striking his knee on the sharp edge of a stone, whereby cutting and bruising it to such an extent that it required four stitches to close up the wound. The cut is in such a place as to make it very painful, and it will cause the boy to be laid up for some time.

Mr. S. J. Fisher, of Campbellford, was in town on business on Thursday.

Mr. Chas. Armstrong was in Peterborough on Friday.

Mr. J. Craig, of London, formerly a resident of town, was in Havelock on business Thursday.

A large number from town and vicinity attended the Peterborough Fair on Friday.

Mr. Isaac Barlow, of town, has been successful in raising a fine plot of sugar cane, the stalks of which are from six to eight feet in height. Mr. Barlow, despite the fact that sugar cane is hard to grow in this section, has grown this with but very little trouble.

Mr. Wm. Andrews has purchased the livery business conducted by W. Holcombe & Son. He took possession on Wednesday.

Dr. Hoskcroft left on Thursday noon for Quebec where he will spend a month fishing and hunting in the vicinity of Lake Wayogamac.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. McGuire, Mr. S. O'Hara, Mr. Thos. Bennet and Mr. Jos. O'Brien, of town, attended the funeral obsequies of the late Mrs. Rich. Nolan at West Toronto on Saturday last.

Miss Eva O'Brien is visiting friends in Toronto.

Mr. Matthews, of Kingston, visited Dr. Gardner for a few days last week.

Mr. Lyddon, who has been employed at McGregor's bakery, left this week for his home at Niagara Falls, where he will visit before leaving for the west.

Rev. Mr. Mellor, of Westwood, was in town on Monday.

Mrs. Thos. Lloyd entertained a number of young people on Friday night last, when a most enjoyable evening was spent.

Mrs. Geo. Buchanan visited friends in Hastings last week.

Miss Annie Bryans has returned from a visit to Toronto.

Miss Ada Holcombe has returned from visiting relatives in Walkerton.

Miss M. McWilliams has returned from visiting at her home in Marmora.

Mrs. Harper, of Roseneath, is visiting Mrs. Jas. Campbell.

Mr. Henry Johnston left on the harvesters' excursion last week for the west.

Miss Bessie Rose has returned from a visit to Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Wright were in Peterborough on Friday.

Miss Sexsmith, of Ottawa, is the guest of her cousin, Dr. Crawford.

Mrs. D. J. Lynch, of Campbellford, is visiting Mrs. A. E. McGuire.

The death of Mary Pearl Webb, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Webb, of Toronto, took place at the residence of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Graham, town, on Tuesday night. The little girl, who had reached the age of twelve years, had been ailing for four months, and peacefully passed away on Tuesday evening. The remains were taken to West Toronto Wednesday afternoon, burial taking place on Thursday. The sympathy of the village is extended to the bereaved parents.

The death of Mrs. R. P. Nolan took place at the Parry Sound hospital on September 9th, at the age of 34 years. The deceased, a former resident of Havelock, had been ill for over four years. The funeral took place at West Toronto on Saturday morning. The late Mrs. Nolan, who resided in Havelock for some twelve years, and who was most highly respected and beloved by a host of friends here, leaves a loving, devoted husband and four little children to mourn her departure, and to whom the heartfelt sympathy of all goes out. The pallbearers at the funeral were Messrs. A. E. McGuire, S. O'Hara, A. Connors, Chas. Connors, Jno. Carmia and Jno. McNamara.

Mrs. Chas. Herrington spent Sunday last with Peterborough friends.

Reeve Kixon was in Peterborough on Friday on business.

Mr. John Roche left last week on a two-month vacation to the Pacific Coast.

Mr. and Mrs. Pye, of Clarksburg, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Wright during the past week.

Mr. Chas. Merk, of Rochester, N.Y., has returned from a visit to his brother-in-law, Mr. Jno. Garrat, of town.

Mr. Leonard Bennet left on Monday to take a course at St. Michael's College, Toronto.

Mr. Oatman Holcombe left on Thursday for Smith Falls, where he has secured employment on the C.P.R.

Mr. R. Dingman has returned from a trip to Toronto.

Mr. Leonard Harrington, of Ottawa, was the guest of Mrs. A. E. McGuire, on Monday.

Mrs. J. W. Bryans is visiting with friends in Peterborough.

Misses Frances and Caroline Scott have returned from a visit to Toronto and Niagara Falls.

Dr. H. C. Kindred, of Havelock, has been appointed associate coroner for the county of Peterborough.

An "at home" will be held in the town hall on Monday evening, Sept. 20th, under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary of St. John's church. Refreshments will be served first, and afterwards a first-class programme will be given.

Mr. M. Neal has moved into the residence lately occupied by W. B. Hart, on Oak street.

The officials of the local township Sabbath School Association held a meeting in the basement of the Methodist church on Wednesday of last week, and decided to establish a Teachers' Training Class in Havelock for the coming fall and winter. They feel that there is urgent need of properly-taught and qualified Sunday school teachers, and it is said that F. O. Nelson has consented to conduct the class, which will consist of whoever desires to enter. The class will be held in one of the rooms of the Public school one night each week.

Two alleys are being kept busy at Parkins box alley on Orange street. Mr. Parkins has put in two alleys to commence with, and if business demands, will add more. The game is played somewhat similar to the regular ten pin bowling alley. Any number of players from two to eight can play a game. Each player bowls three balls in each innings. There are five pins numbered 5, 4, 3, 4, 5, and they are so arranged that the ball striking between any two will knock them both down. This makes it possible to knock down the five pins with the three balls, in which case you count a spare—21. Mr. Alfred Parkins, son of the proprietor, Mr. Mr. G. B. Parkins, will be the manager in Havelock.

Mount Robson

Advices have been received at the Grand Trunk General Offices that Mount Robson, the highest and hitherto unassailed peak of the Rockies have been conquered by a Canadian, the Rev. George Kinney, Methodist minister of Victoria. Mr. Kinney accomplished this remarkable feat unaided on August 13th, and has authentic proofs of the assent. Mr. Kinney started three months ago to climb the mountain and met with innumerable obstacles but eventually reached the summit. Mount Robson is on the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway in the Yellowhead Pass country. It is 13,700 feet high.

Professor Coleman, of Victoria University, has made two attempts to climb this mountain, one in 1906, 1907 and one in 1908, but was not successful at either time.

SEAGRAM HORSE WINS.

Bouquet Carries Off Autumn Cup at Woodbine Track.

Toronto, Sept. 20.—The Toronto Autumn Cup was the feature of the opening day of the Woodbine fall meeting on Saturday, and brought out a game field, hotly contesting to the finish, when Seagram's Bouquet unexpectedly beat Hanbridge, in 2.06 1-5, one and a fifth seconds behind the track record.

The track was in particularly good order, and there was a large and fashionable turnout. In the first race Lady Irma made good her reputation of last spring and won the Tercentenary purse for P. T. Chinn in 1.13 3-5, beating all the favorites at 8 to 1. Amelia Jenks was a general favorite and pulled off the Rosebery purse for her backers. In the Islington purse Zipango took first place, beating Fair Annie in a close race.

First race—Six furlongs, purse $500, for all ages—Lady Irma, 1; Hasty Agnes, 2; Pajaorita, 3. Time, 1.13-5.

Second race—Six furlongs, purse $500, for two-year-olds—Amelia Jenks, 1; The Monk, 2; Bob Co, 3. Time, 1.14 3-5.

Third race, 1 1-8 miles, purse $500, for three-year-olds and up, selling—Zipango, 1; Fair Annie, 2; Joe Rose, 3. Time, 1.56 3-4.

Fourth race—1 1-4 miles, purse $2,500, Toronto Cup, for three-year-olds and up, handicap—Bouquet, 1; Hanbridge, 2; Green Seal, 3. Time, 2.06 1-5.

Fifth race—About two miles, Woodbine Autumn Steeplechase, purse $1,500, for four-year-olds and up—Thistledale, 1; Harrington, 2; Bergoo, 3. Time, 4.06.

Sixth race—1 1-16 miles, purse $500, for three-year-olds and up, selling—[illegible] on, 2; Uncle

THE BREADLESS FOLK.

Baked Loaves Are Unknown In Many Parts of the World.

Baked loaves of bread are practically unknown in many parts of South Austria and Italy, as well as the agricultural districts of Roumania. In the villages of the Obersteirmark, not very many miles from Vienna, bread is seldom seen, the staple food of the people being sterz, a kind of porridge made from ground beechnuts, which is taken at breakfast with fresh or curdled milk, at dinner with broth or fried in lard and with milk again at supper. This sterz is also known as heiden and takes the place of bread not only in Steiermark, but in Carynthia and in many parts of the Tyrol.

In the north of Italy the peasantry live chiefly on polenta, a porridge made of boiled maize. The polenta, however, is not allowed to granulate like Scotch porridge, or like the Austrian sterz, but is boiled into a solid pudding, which is cut up and portioned out with a string. It is eaten cold as often as it is hot and is in every sense the Italian peasant's daily bread. The modren Roumanians are held by many scholars to be descended from a Roman colony—in other words, to be the cousins of the Italians—and, curiously enough, a variation of the polenta, called mamaliga, is the national dish of Roumania.

The mamaliga is like the polenta in that it is made of boiled maize, but it is unlike the latter in one important respect, as the grains are not allowed to settle into a solid mass, but are kept distinct, after the fashion of oatmeal porridge.—Bakers' Weekly.

GAME OF WONDERMENT.

When Played With Skill It Proves Very Mystifying.

It is necessary that only two of the party should have a knowledge of this game and then real "wonderment" is sure to be the result.

The two players agree that a certain word shall be regarded as a signal word. As an illustration, imagine this word to be "and."

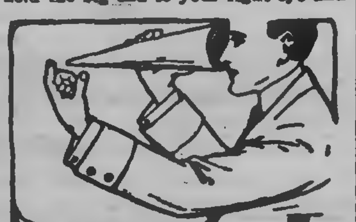
One of the players asserts his belief that he is gifted with second sight and states that he is able, through a closed door, to name any article touched by any person in sympathy with him, notwithstanding that the same person may attempt to mystify him by mentioning a lot of other articles. He then chooses his confederate as being one with whom he may be in sympathy and goes outside.

The player in the room then proceeds to call out perhaps as follows: Table, hearthrug, piano, footstool "and" chair, lamp, inkstand. He then places his hand on the back of a chair and asks: "What am I touching now?" The answer will of course be, "Chair," because the signal word "and" came immediately before that article.

If the players are skillful there is no need for the trick to be discovered.

Deceiving the Eye.

"I saw it with my own eyes," you often hear some one exclaim—as if that proved it. But it doesn't always prove it, for it is perfectly easy to deceive the sight. Take a sheet of paper and roll it up into a cornucopia. Then hold the big end to your right eye and hold up one finger near the little end, but an inch or so to the left of it, and by keeping both eyes open you will seem to see right through the finger, the sensation being that there is a hole cut right through it. This is because while the left eye sees the finger the right one is shut off from seeing it by the cornucopia, and thus the combined image is that of a finger with an opening through it.



SEEING THROUGH YOUR FINGER.

Garibaldi.

In playing this game it must be remembered that Garibaldi does not care for "e's," therefore no word containing the letter "e" must be used in answering the questions asked.

All the players sit in a circle, and the game begins by one asking his left hand neighbor, "What will you give to Garibaldi?" and the answer must be given before the leader finishes waving his hand slowly three times or a forfeit must be paid. Then the one questioned turns to the one next to him on the left and asks him the same question and so on around the circle. For instance, one would give a gun, one a book, one a sword and belt. This last having an "e" in it, a forfeit must be given.

The Turkey Dance.

All the turkeys gathered
On the lawn one day,
Dressed in nice brown feathers,
Looking bright and gay;
There they met and courtesied,
Partners chose at will,
Then with stately stepping
Danced a real quadrille.

Every turkey gobbler
Bowed to turkey hen,
Tiptoed down the middle,
Circled round, and then
Crossed and swung his partner
Back to place and pranced;
Gobble, gobble, gobble,
So the turkeys danced.

Nutrition In Milk.

In nutrition a quart of milk is said to equal a pound of beefsteak or two pounds of bread. A pound of beefsteak costs from 10 to 30 cents and two pounds of bread from 10 to 12 cents.

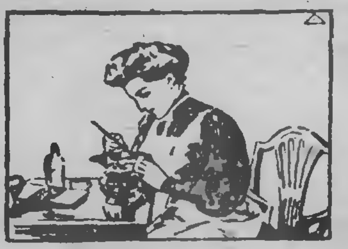
REPAIRING CHINA.

Rare Specimens That Can Be Mended at Home.

SOME TRICKS OF THE TRADE

A Slight Talent For Modeling Is Necessary to Do the Work Scientifically. Homemade Cements That Are Good Substitutes.

When a handsome china cup loses its handle or a spray of flowers its stalk the deficiency can be replaced by a new bit of modeling, cast in a plaster of paris mold. If there is a corresponding stalk intact upon the china the cast for the new one can be made direct by merely oiling the duplicate and pressing a layer of potter's clay over it until it has taken the impression of its shape and then pouring on it a mixture of plaster of paris and water—about the thickness of thin cream—until the clay is covered with a coating of plaster half an inch deep. This hardens very quickly, and when it has been removed and lined out with oil or soapy water all that remains to be done is to fill the plaster mold with molten lead or solder or plaster of paris and gum arabic mixed with hot water until it becomes a thick paste and, when this has hardened, to dislodge it with the help of a blunt penknife and to fix it in position with cement and color it.



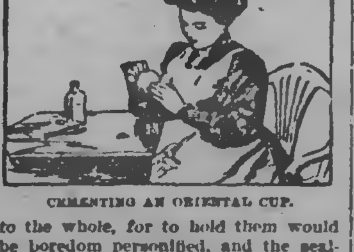
PAINTING OVER A CRACK.

If there is no duplicate from which to make the plaster cast the repairer must rely upon her own inventive genius to construct a little model in the potter's clay, and except where it is a conventional design that is to be reproduced, which must be drawn or traced from a similar bit of decoration and copied exactly—and this is usually the case when it is a piece of the rim of a plate or the lip of a jug that has been replaced—the choice of suitable coloring is also a test of her taste entirely, for the color of other similar parts may be a helpful guide.

Ordinary water color paints are quite satisfactory substitutes for the pigments that are used by professional china painters if the piece that is to be painted is prepared beforehand with a layer of gelatin and covered when dry with a thick wash of Chinese white as a foundation for the colors, and when these have been applied the glazed effect of china is produced by a varnish of gum arabic and water.

The question of cement can be solved by the purchase of one of the excellent mixtures that are concocted by the "trade," if the repairer does not feel disposed to follow the very simple and old fashioned recipe of steeping and stirring an ounce of white isinglass and three-quarters of an ounce of transparent gelatin in a basin containing about six ounces of water and adding rather less than an ounce of acetic acid while holding the basin over boiling water until the mixture warms. This makes a clear cement which can be used for glass as well as china, and it keeps almost indefinitely if it is bottled and corked securely. Before using it it is advisable to warm the bottle in hot water to reduce its contents to a liquid, and the china to which it is to be applied should be warmed to a corresponding temperature.

It saves endless trouble and prevents the very possible disappointment of seeing the piece that has been cemented loosen and drop before the cement has dried if it is given the temporary support of a smear of sealing wax to hold it in position until it has firmly fixed. This support is almost indispensable when there are several fragments to be fitted and joined together before the broken piece can be reunited to the whole, for to hold them would be boredom personified, and the sealing wax is a harmless time saver, for it chips off readily and leaves no mark at all.



CEMENTING AN ORIENTAL CUP.

Small cracks and chips which are not sufficiently destructive to break through the china can be filled in with a tiny quantity of the mixture of plaster of paris and gum arabic that has been mentioned before. Not only does the filling prevent a real breakage, but when painted over it makes the disfigurement invisible.

There is yet another form of china mending—riveting—both simple and the kind that is known as "through and through."

Improving the Flavor.

A squeeze of lemon juice added to sauces, soups, gravies and stews after cooking will bring out the flavor wonderfully and is a palatable improvement.

TURKISH CHAIR COVER.

Comfort For Bathrooms With Up to Date Nickel Fittings.

In the perfectly appointed modern bathroom all that is not nickel plated is white enameled, and while all of the sanitary requirements are thus met, considerable of the old fashioned comfort is left out. A resourceful mother of little children, who objected to this cold comfort after the bath, has made a pair of slip covers for the white enameled chair.

They are of absorbent Turkish toweling in white, perfectly washable, and the maker avers that each week sees one of them sent to the laundry. They do not extend as far as the floor, but form a liberal cover, cut to fit the back and the seat, over which they slip, and reaching six inches below the edge of the seat.

The seams are left wide, so that eventually they will not pull out, and they are bound on the wrong side with broad white tape to prevent fraying.

This should appeal to the mother or nurse whose strength is taxed by stooping daily to reach the child standing on the bath mat. The wee one will be so much more accessible if seated on a normally high chair; but which one of us would think of placing the dripping little thing on a cold white enameled surface? To suggest this most comfortable bathroom accessory is almost to picture a rush on the Turkish toweling counter.

While we are speaking of bathrooms and bath mats, let us insist on the advisability of hanging the flat bath mat to two small brass hooks by two brass rings sewed permanently to its two corners. Where towel space is limited the bath mat is too often folded, instead of being allowed to dry thoroughly.

Every bathroom should be liberally supplied with brass hooks, which will not rust moist articles. Curtain scrim and cotton crape are two excellent materials from which to make face cloths. They are open enough in weave to dry thoroughly, besides having a nice crispness, which acts like a very mild flesh brush to the face.

TIPS ON YOUR TOES.

Cultivate Pedal Beauty For a Number of Reasons.

"To all women who wear pumps and to those who walk much in slippers of the kind that are apt to slip off I say 'Exercise your feet.' Here are some of the rules, and they are good even for the woman who does not wear elaborate footgear," says a pedicurist in the New York Sun.

"When you go to bed at night take your foot in your hand and twist it at the ankle. Work gently, taking care not to strain it, but work it back and forth to give the muscles something to do.

"Stretch your leg out straight in front of you and work your feet in such a way that your toes are bent under your foot. Then straighten them out as straight as you can bend them under again. This is very good exercise for the instep and also for the palm of the feet as I call it.

"Don't go to bed until you have dipped your feet in hot water and be sure to rub some kind of oil into them. You may think you are fattening your feet, but really you are only making them more supple. Your foot can stand a great deal of massage.

"When you go to sleep don't forget your feet. Be sure that there is room for your toes at the foot of the bed. Otherwise you will have a pressure upon the tips of your toes, and this acts precisely the same as short shoes.

"I make a specialty, too, of big stockings. Most women wear stockings too short."

She Became a Suffragist at 100.

The latest recruit to the cause of equal suffrage is Mrs. Dinah E. Sprague of Chicago, who recently celebrated her one hundredth birthday. "I believe women should vote," said Mrs. Sprague, "because it means simple justice. Women are taxpayers as well as men, and taxation without representation is oppression. I wish there had been suffragists when I was a girl, but a hundred years ago women were permitted only to work hard and then were expected to look pretty. The change to the advantage of women in my lifetime has been wonderful. As far as I am able to make out now, women lord it over men. They cannot have too many privileges, however, and that's why I am a suffragist. It's lucky to be a girl in these modern days. She is petted and praised and really has the whole world at her feet. Still, it is only her due. Man had the upper hand too long. It amuses me to see him being pushed into second place, and his proper instruction will begin only when all women are permitted to vote." Mrs. Sprague's father, Dr. Purley Munger, was a surgeon in the war of 1812. She was born in Copenhagen, N. Y., and was married when she was thirty-six years old, or sixty-four years ago. She has been a widow twenty years.

Why Men Wear Trousers.

No living man of this age deliberately chose to adopt trousers. He was forced into them and all other eccentricities of dress by woman. In the very earliest sartorial experience of every man he is swathed in a queer bundle of incoherent bandages by a woman. Later she puts him into cute little dresses so that the neighbors can't tell him from his little sister. Still later she cuts off his curls and puts him into knickerbockers, and he puts on "long pants" when she gives the word and not before. That is all that man has to do or ever had to do with wearing trousers. Woman forced him into them in the first place, and now he is afraid to wear anything else for fear of making a sensation.

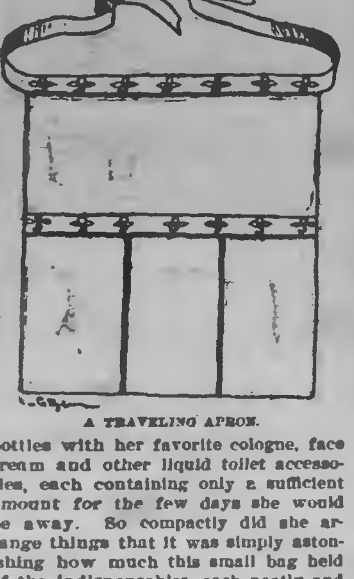
FOR WEEK END TRIPS.

Little Conveniences That Make Traveling a Pleasure.

At this season of the year, when one is liable to fly off on week end visits at a moment's notice, it is an excellent plan to have a little traveling bag always packed and fitted up for these sudden journeyings. One ingenious girl has just fitted up such a bag at small expense. Instead of buying one already furnished she used a bag she had and fitted it with straps to hold her own toilet silver. She filled tiny bottles with her favorite cologne, face cream and other liquid toilet accessories, each containing only a sufficient amount for the few days she would be away. So compactly did she arrange things that it was simply astonishing how much this small bag held of the indispensables, each neatly and conveniently held in place in its own particular nook.



A TRAVELING APRON.

A woman globe trotter who has reduced the science of packing to a fine art has a novel idea for carrying toilet articles. In the back of one-half of her suit case she has a thin piece of cardboard cut the exact size of the case and neatly covered on one side with brown linen. Attached to this foundation are pockets for holding her different toilet things, such as brush and comb, toothbrush, whisk broom and even a compartment for a pack of cards, all made of the linen. On the largest pockets she has embroidered her monogram, so the contrivance is a thing of beauty as well as a joy to the owner. The cardboard is glued to the back of the case, and it is but the work of an hour to take off the pockets and launder them when necessary. This same woman has also made for herself an apron to be worn to the sleeping car lavatory. It is nothing more than a huckaback towel with a fancy border. One end of the towel is turned up half its depth to form a deep pocket, which in turn is divided into compartments, into which the hairpins, rat, puffs and curls or other hairdressing addenda are safely stowed for transit from sleeping berth to lavatory. The top of the apron is finished with the border as a belt and fastened in the back with wide tape strings.

WHAT ONE GIRL MADE.

An Entirely New Idea That Will Appeal to All Lovers of Sport.

A departure from the common bamboo and bead portiere is one made entirely of exploded rifle shells, and the paradox in the case is that the idea was conceived and executed by a girl.

Her small brother had collected several candy boxes of the little shells—22 caliber "longs and shorts"—and these she skillfully made into a set of portieres for the camp in the Maine woods.

She took a strong needle and a cork and drove the needle through the cork so that the tip of the point protruded and the "eye" end was imbedded in the cork.

It was then a simple matter to make a hole in the shell where the hammer of the gun struck the percussion cap. The needle went throught the metal quickly and easily, the cork keeping it rigid while it was being hammered.

The shells were then strung on heavy linen thread which was waxed. Each thread was shorter than the next, and the graduated effect was very good.

The threads were then secured to a section of bamboo fishing rod and hung over a doorway.

Early Days of the Cookbook.

Of the making of cookbooks there is no end. One of the first was the work of Mrs. Elizabeth Raffald of Manchester, England, who was so much of a business woman that she was more than a century ahead of her time. She published her cookbook under the title "The English Housekeeper" in 1769, and it was so popular that it ran through a second edition the same year. A third edition was in press when Mrs. Raffald sold her rights to a London publisher for $7,000. It was a fortune to her, as she had been working for small wage as a housekeeper, but it turned out to be a poor business stroke, for the book ran through thirty-six editions. Mrs. Raffald, however, was resourceful, for she more than doubled her money by issuing Manchester's first directory in 1772. She got out the directory yearly until her death in 1781. Her cookbook was the first in English, and a second was not issued until several years after her death. Many of her recipes still go into cookbooks without alteration.

Her Application.

A teacher, after patiently defining words in a spelling lesson, gave the word "grewsome" to be put into a sentence, with this result from the brightest little girl in the class: "I cannot wear my last summer's dress because I grew some."

Unsimplified English.

These samples of homophony show our language as it may be and often is writ. At home our funny spelling is as odd as abroad.

A rite suite little buoy, the sun of a grate kernel, with a rough about his neck, flue up the rode as swift as eh dear. After a thyme he stopped at a gnu house and wrung the belle. His tow hurt hymn and he kneaded wrest.

The made who herd the belle was about to pair a pare, but she through it aside and ran with awl her mite for fear her guessed would knot weight. But wen she saw the little won, tiers stood in her blew eyes at the site.

The board adjourned to meet two weeks from Wednesday, Sept. 22nd.

LINDSAY WOULD LIKE TO HAVE CANADIAN NORTHERN

Peterborough's efforts to secure the entrance of the Canadian Northern Railway into that city recall the efforts of some Lindsay people to induce McKenzie and Mann, who are building the road, to run their main road, or a branch line, through the town.

Col. Sam Hughes, M. P., was in favor of a branch line from Mount Albert to Peterborough, through this town. He appeared before the town council at one time and impressed upon that body the importance of seeing Mr. McKenzie or Mr. Mann with reference to that route.

Then it was suggested that the main line of the C.N.R. be built from Beaverton through Lindsay to Ottawa, thus affording the railway an excellent grain route from Key Harbor on Georgian Bay, a route very much similar to what the G.T.R. already has, and is further formulating plans for double-tracking, and that of which the C.P.R. has already completed a final survey, as far as Lindsay. Beaverton would then be the junction for the Toronto line.

The C.N.R. officials at present propose building a line from Toronto to Ottawa, which will take in the lake front towns, and this is the railway Peterborough wants to get in touch with. Then another route from Key Harbor to Ottawa has been surveyed by the same railway for a grain route.

Lindsay wants all the railways she can get, and it will take a lot of boosting to induce the men behind the C.N.R. to notice the town at all, even though McKenzie and Mann are natives of Victoria county.—Lindsay Warder.

Saved by Example

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Will you allow me to be a little more explanatory in connection with the resignation of Rev. C. M. Shaw from the Methodist church to join Christian Science, which appeared in your issue of September 14. Evidently some do not understand my statement, which you put as a footnote. I did not in any sense wish to convey the thought that Christian Scientist did not believe in the crucifixion, death and resurrection of Jesus Christ, for we emphatically believe the whole story; and we verily believe it was an important part of Jesus' demonstration of man's at-one-ment with God and that life is eternal.

When you cut the article into half, and ask "what he meant by Christian Science not teaching the vicarious sacrifice." I tried to say in a few words that while others laid great stress on the death of Christ, that we, as Christian Scientists, relied more on His life, accepting him as a way-shower for us to follow, as an example in overcoming all temptations of the flesh, or carnal mind. Believing what St. John tells us in Rev. 21.7, He that overcometh, etc., not a mere believer in another's suffering, but a life lived through Christ in God.

I do not feel that I need take back or apologize for my expression "it is His example and not His sacrifice that is intended to teach mankind." This is not really the phraseology of Christian Science, I, in that case used, the words of one of our most respected citizens, a leader and teacher in one of our Methodist churches. Knowing him to be a leading light, I asked his opinion on the doctrine of salvation. His reply was as follows, as near as I can repeat it: 'I don't believe the blood of Jesus had any more to do with our salvation when it was shed on the cross, than when He walked the streets. I look on His as a perfect example; His example teaching mankind how to live.' This pleased me very much to find an instructor and leader of the orthodox church so in harmony with the teaching of Christian Science, assuring me that we are not so very far apart on the atonement after all. After listening to such expressions from a teacher in the orthodox faith, I don't think our friends in that faith should be very badly shocked at my few words.

Hoping at all events that this explanation may help to narrow the breach that may have been made, that we may be more of the one mind, the mind of Christ Jesus.

Thanking you, I am
Sincerely yours,
R. J. TODD.

Suggests Tests Here

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—I see by Friday's paper that the Galt Water Commissioners put a metre test on a manufacturer with startling results. The result was that for 30 days 21,000 cubic feet of water was used, or for a year about 210,000 cubic feet, or 1,312,500 gallons. The price paid for this enormous amount of water is $10 a year. If a similar test were adopted here it would be interesting to know the result. I am told that there is no way of detecting the amount of water used or wasted, and all that, too, for a nominal sum.

Yours, etc.,
A RESIDENT.

HONORABLE GEORGE A. COX, Toronto, Senator, Director of Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company; Canadian Bank of Commerce.
W. M. AIKEN, Montreal, Director Montreal Trust Compony.
CHARLES H. CAHAN, Montreal, President Western Canada Power Company, Limited.

The Canada Cement Company, Limited, is a new Company which has been incorporated for the purpose of taking over the undertakings, properties and businesses of the following Companies, now doing business in Canada, as manufacturers of Portland Cement and like products, viz:

The Lakefield Portland Cement Company, Montreal, Quebec.
The Lakefield Portland Cement Company, Lakefield, Ontario.
The Owen Sound Portland Cement Company, Limited, Shallow Lake Ontario.
The Alberta Portland Cement Company, Limited, Calgary, Alberta.
The Belleville Portland Cement Company, Limited, Belleville, Ont.

The Vulcan Portland Cement Company, Limited, Montreal, Quebec.
The Lehigh Portland Cement Company, Limited, Belleville, Ontario.
The Canadian Portland Cement Company, Limited, Marlbank, Ont.
The Canadian Portland Cement Company, Limited, Port Colborne, Ontario.

The Canada Cement Company, Limited, by means of contracts already made, proposes to acquire control of a majority of the shares of the capital stock of the following Companies:—

The Western Canada Cement and Coal Company, Limited, Exshaw, Alberta, and
The Eastern Canada Portland Cement Company, Limited, Quebec.

The plants, which will be owned or controlled by the new Company, are believed to be among the best constructed and most efficiently equipped on this continent; and, under a competent central management, not only will a uniform standard of quality be secured in the combined product, but an equable standard of prices may be maintained throughout the whole country. These plants will have a total capacity in excess of 4,500,000 barrels of Portland cement per annum.

ESTIMATED EARNINGS

The following may be regarded as a conservative estimate of the earnings of the Company:—

NET EARNINGS

The estimated annual net earnings of the Company, based on the quantities of cement being sold, during the present year, by the companies comprised in the merger, and on the costs of manufacture under existing conditions, amount to $1,900,000

FIXED CHARGES

Interest on $5,000,000 of First Mortgage Bonds, at six per cent. per annum	$ 300,000
Sinking Fund payment on bonds, two per cent. per annum	100,000
Preferential Dividend of 7 per cent. per annum on $10,500,000 Preference Shares	735,000
		$1,135,000
Leaving available for dividends on Ordinary Shares of the Company		$765,000

The Canadian Market for Portland Cement

The demand for Portland Cement in Canada has increased remarkably during the last five years. In 1904 the total consumption of Portland Cement in the Dominion was 1,694,988 barrels, of which 784,630 barrels were imported. In 1908 the consumption, notwithstanding the general industrial depression, was 3,134,338 barrels, and no less than 3,495,961 barrels were manufactured in Canada. Existing trade conditions indicate that the consumption during 1909 will largely exceed that of 1908.

The increase is not abnormal, nor due to merely local causes. In the year 1888, it is estimated that less than 200,000 barrels of cement were manufactured on the North American Continent; and the enormous growth of the business is shown by the fact that in 1908 approximately 55,000,000 barrels were produced. The manufacture of Portland Cement commenced in Canada in 1888, but until 1904 the importations into Canada of the foreign product exceeded the Canadian production.

The report of John McLeish, B.A., chief of the Division of Mineral Resources and Statistics of the Department of Mines, Canada, on the production of cement in Canada during the calender year 1908, furnishes the following comparative statement:—

Calendar Year	Canadian		Foreign	Total
	Manufactured	Consumed	Imported into Canada	Consumed in Canada
	Barrels	Barrels	Barrels	Barrels
1904	908,990	910,358	784,630	1,694,988
1905	1,541,568	1,346,548	917,558	2,264,106
1906	2,152,562	2,119,764	666,931	2,785,695
1907	2,491,513	2,436,093	672,630	3,108,723
1908	3,495,961	2,665,289	469,849	3,134,338

Great as has been the development of the Portland Cement industry in Canada since 1904, it is only reasonable to assume that this growth will be largely exceeded in the immediate future, and for many years to come. The enormous public works in progress and in contemplation, including Railways, Canals, Bridges, Harbor Improvements, Piers, Wharves, Docks, Piles, Pavements, Building Foundations, and Buildings, etc., will all require proportionately large quantities of the manufactured products of the new Company. The hydro-electric developments throughout the country will increase the demand, while the rapid substitution of reinforced concrete for other materials in the building trades will render necessary an increased production on the part of the new Company.

Objects of the Merger

According to the returns made to the Dominion Government by the cement manufacturers, the average price at their works obtained by them in 1908 was $1.39 per barrel. This was the lowest price ever reported by the Canadian mills. In 1906 the average price was from $1.65 to $1.70, and in 1907 about $1.60. At the begining of the present year it was realized by a number of the manufacturers that, even without any increase in prices, the business could be rendered much more profitable by a merger of several of the larger competing companies on a conservative basis. The Canada Cement Company, Limited, is the outcome. The new Company will own or control cement-producing plants at the central points of distribution from the St. Lawrence River west to the Rocky Mountains; and, by securing a more efficient organization which will be able to regulate the distribution af the manufactured product from these central points to the centres of consumption, large economies in the present cost of freight, which represents a large percentage of the ultimate cost to the consumer, will undoubtedly be effected. The establishment of one executive office in the City of Montreal, and the elimination of competitive salesmen, middlemen and brokers is also expected to effect a considerable saving in the costs of the Sales Department under the new management.

Forms of application can be obtained at any office of the Royal Trust Company or of the Royal Securities Corporation, Limited.

CIVIC REFORM MOVEMENT HAS COMPLETE TRIUMPH

In Sweeping Victory the Supporters of an Honest Administration at Montreal Succeed in Having Number of Aldermen Reduced.

Montreal, Sept. 21.—Civic reform triumphed yesterday all along the line, and there is great satisfaction in consequence among the better class of the people. There were, in fact, no race differences, and neither did religious belief divide up the old city of Mount Royal.

In a word, the grafters are routed, horse, foot and artillery, and every ward represented by members of the Giroux faction has gone overwhelmingly in favor of an earnest attempt to clean up the City Hall.

Coming down to hard facts, the city voted to reduce the number of aldermen by a majority of 17,027, and to establish a board of control by 16,137, while the old city also pronounced in no uncertain sound against the utility board, to be elected by the Council and so championed by the aldermen, the majority against that measure being 10,863.

The following is the detailed vote throughout the city: Aldermanic reduction, 19,570 for, 1,643 against; board of control, 18,575 for, 2,428 against; board of public works, 2,906 for, 13,079 against.

There are 60,000 voters on the civic list, 20,000 being disqualified for failure to pay their water rates, and this is the cause of the immense majority for reform. The French as well as the English went as a sweep against the present regime.

An attempt on the part of a little Sunday sheet called The Bulletin to raise the race cry signally failed, for the French districts rolled up just as large a majority as the English people of the west end.

Great credit is due Senator Dandurand, a Liberal, and ex-Mayor Laporte, a Conservative, for having brought their compatriots to believe that the time for a clean civic administration had arrived.

The campaign has been a long one, for while the board of control scheme became a factor only a year ago, the movement for a better order of things dates back to the old council, known as the reform council, which was in office seven or eight years ago. A good deal of house-cleaning was done at that time, but there were a good many corners not touched, and, after a few years of a different kind of council, the agitation for a change began again, and this time it was not the council which purified itself, but the public got a chance direct to cast its vote.

The board of control is to be a board of five directors, elected by the people direct from the whole city and not by wards. They have no initiative power. The aldermen will, as heretofore, pass the bylaws which are to govern the city, make the appropriations for paving, sewers and all public works. The difference from the present system comes in at this point. The board of control is the executive body which will see that the wishes of Council are carried out promptly and economically.

NORTHCLIFFE GIVES A NEWS SERVICE

Victoria, B.C., Sept. 21.—Lord Northcliffe, editor of The London Times, as a result of his personal visits to Canada, announces that in order that the Canadian press may organise a thoroughly satisfactory world press service, he will place gratuitously at the service of a selected Canadian press agent in London, advance proofs of all London Times and Daily Mail specials five hours in advance of publication. He will also assist in organizing a first-class Canadian press service.

There is a probability of Lord Northcliffe establishing a series of papers in Canada

LOTS OF GRAPES AT THE SHELTER

Mr. Henry Expects to Secure Between Six and Seven Hundred Baskets From Vines

While the caring for of young children is the main object of the officers at the Childrens' Shelter, there is another department which is very well looked after. Some time ago reference was made to the splendid crop of cherries which the trees on the property had produced. Now it's the grape vines. Yesterday Mr. Henry picked 21 baskets, and he expects the total crop to be between six and seven hundred baskets.

PROPOSE TO MEET FRIDAY

Fair Directors Want Accounts Against the Fair Sent In

The fair directors are thinking of holding a meeting on Friday for the purpose of winding up the business in connection with the exhibition recently held. The directors request that all bills be sent in, as it is impossible to adjust the accounts until these are dealt with.

RECEPTIONS FOR RIVALS

Peary is Entering Sydney Harbor — Dr. Cook Warmly Received

Special to the Review.

Sydney, Sept. 21., (Noon)—Peary is entering the harbor, escorted by a large fleet of steamers and small craft, amid a scene of tremendous enthusiasm.

New York, Sept. 21.—Dr. Cook's vessel is in sight of the shore and a great reception is being given him.

PULLED GIRL OFF THE TRACK

Cornwall, Sept. 21.—A gallant rescue was made at Grand Trunk station here yesterday. About one hundred people had gathered to send off Mr. and Mrs. P. Flynn, who were married at St. Andrew's yesterday morning. As the train was approaching, the crowd jostled about, with the result that Miss McIntosh, cousin of the bride, was thrown off the platform prostrate across in front of the train, which was about 100 feet away and running twenty-five miles an hour. The crowd stood powerless. Hugh Kippin, a singer at Starland, saw the lady fall, and rushed to her aid. He dragged her from the tracks as the engine passed, the pilot striking her feet. The airbrakes had been applied, but the train could not be stopped. Miss McIntosh was able to return to her home, uninjured, but very much affected by the shock.

Ship Blew Up.

Manila, Sept. 21.—The British steamer Harlow, Capt. Bruce, reports that on July 27, while 100 miles from Durban, he passed a steamer afire, which was shortly afterwards destroyed by an explosion.

It is supposed that this steamer was the missing British steamer Waratah, which, with 300 persons on board, has not been heard from since July 26.

RATEPAYERS WILL LIKELY VOTE ON PROPOSAL TO BUILD ISOLATION HOSPITAL

The Property Committee will recommend to the City Council that the people be given an opportunity to pronounce upon the proposition to spend $15,000 for an isolation hospital. The committee met last night and decided on this step.

The Council has authority to spend $15,000 without going to the ratepayers, but as practically no work can be done on the building this year the committee is of the opinion that the people should vote upon the matter in January.

According to the plans prepared the hospital will cost nearly $15,000 and cost of maintenance will be around $2,000 per year, the amount depending largely on the amount of contagious disease in the city.

Last night the committee went over the specifications prepared by Mr. Blackwell and adopted them. When the question of what to recommend to the Council came up, Ald. Morgan wanted the matter to go to the people, claiming that was the only fair way. Some of the committee were content to have the work gone on with at once, but when it was pointed out that practically no work could be done this year they all agreed to Ald. Morgan's suggestion.

GOV. EBERHARD SWORN IN

Special to the Review.

Lieut.-Gov. Eberhardt was sworn in to-day as the successor of Governor John A. Johnson, who died in St. Mary's hospital at 3.25 o'clock this morning. The end came for Governor Johnson as he lay peacefully sleeping after four days of fighting for life, following an operation last week for an internal abscess. Mrs. Johnson, who had been at her husband's bedside all through his illness, was with him when he passed away.

ALD. TURNER IS NOT RESIGNING

From the Council—Will Defend Action in the Courts

Ther is no truth in the report that Ald. J. J. Turner will resign his position in the council. Mr. Turner is prepared to defend the action taken against himself by Mr. Kingscote in reference to taking a contract from the city. The contract was for decorating the streets of the city for the Victoria Day celebration, and the amount was $25.

MIDLAND HAS A DISASTROUS FIRE

Midland, Sept. 21.—While the losses of Sunday's lumber fire have not been accurately compiled, it is not thought they will total over $200,000.

The heaviest sufferers are the Graves, Bigwood Co. of Buffalo, who lose about 4 1-2 million feet of lumber, valued at upwards of $60,000. It is well insured. J. L. Burton & Son, Barrie, lose $50,000, including 11,000 railway ties, partially insured; and Burton Bros., Barrie, about $35,000, partially insured. Munns & Cochrane of Sudbury lose $6,000, fully insured. The Log Picking Association had only about 40,000 feet of lumber burned, and the loss will be about $1,000. Chew Brothers lose about half a million feet of lumber, and several hundred cords of slabs and edgings, the loss being placed at around $9,000.

THEIR FAVORITE DID NOT STAY

Windsor, Sept. 21. Rev. Joseph Ryerson, descendant of Egerton Ryerson, founder of the Ontario educational system, will not be returned to the pastorate of Gratiot avenue Methodist Church, Detroit, although 180 of the 225 members want him back, and threaten to withdraw if their wishes are not acceded to. District Superintendent Sweet is authority for the statement that Ryerson will be assigned to some other church. He took farewell of his congregation Sunday.

Selling Skimmed Milk.

Woodstock, Sept. 21.—Charles Ruddick, an Oxford farmer, was yesterday fined $25 and costs for taking deteriorated milk to the Maple Leaf cheese factory. He was prosecuted by the provincial inspector for skimming the cream off the milk before taking it to the factory.

To Act as Concertrators.

Ottawa, Sept. 21.—Jas. A. Gilmour of Brockville, Ont., and Aaron A. R. Mosher of Halifax, N.S., have been appointed members of the board of conciliation and investigation on the differences between the Intercolonial and its round-house employes at Halifax.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

It is not likely that Sir John French will come to Canada to report on the militia until next May.

The Sovereign Grand Lodge of the I.O.O.F. of Canada and the U. S., is now in session at Seattle, Wash.

Peter MacRitchie, aged 35, an employe of the C.P.R. at Fort William, was killed yesterday being struck on the head by a flywheel.

Mrs. Wesley Scott was formally committed on the charge of murdering Harvey Scott at the preliminary hearing of the case at London yesterday.

The London City Council last night decided to take a vote at New Year's as to whether or not the city shall in future be governed by a board of control.

John A. Brown of the Brown Manufacturing Co., Montreal, was found dead yesterday in a marsh near St. Louis, Mo., after writhing there unattended for a week.

An earthquake of moderate intensity occurred at 3.29.38 Sunday afternoon, and continued an hour, according to the record taken from the seismograph at Washington.

Alben Anderson, 13 years old, dead at Shortsville, N.Y. While performing gymnastic exercises in his father's barn on a rope tied to a ladder, he accidentally hanged himself.

Word has been received at St. John, N.B., that the bark Fram, 1,100 tons, has gone ashore on Tatamintac Beach, near Chatham, N.B. She struck on sandy beach and if a storm arises will undoubtedly be a total loss. The crew is still standing by.

Scientists and ethnologists are said to have become much interested in the findings of Prof. A. C. Bouser of Spokane, Wash., College, of a geingko leaf buried near Spokane. Prof. Bouser says this confirms the theory that North America and Japan were connected by land centuries ago.

With the city of New Orleans entirely stripped of wire communications since 3 p.m. yesterday from the world, and reports trickling in from points along the gulf of high tides and hurricanes, it is apparent that the gulf storm has scored heavily in property damage if not in loss of life.

ENTHUSIASTIC CROWDS OF ADMIRERS WELCOME DR. COOK

Explorer is Given Great Reception in His Native Borough —Will not Say Anything Until More of Peary's Statements Are Published.

New York, Sept. 21.—The Oscar II. made her way slowly to quarantine this morning. There Mrs. Cook, accompanied by the two children, Dr. Cook's brother William, Dr. Roswell O. Stebbins and J. Knowles Hare of the executive committee of the Arctic Club of America, waited for a tug on which Dr. Cook was transferred to the steamboat Grand Republic, which carried more than a thousand friends and enthusiasts down the bay to meet him. The Grand Republic brought him to the foot of South Fifth street, where he made his entry into the city by automobile. Bird S. Coler, president of the Borough of Brooklyn, officially welcomed him there.

The greatest reception, however, will be held at the Bushwick Club in Dr. Cook's home section of Brooklyn, about noon to-day. Soon after that Dr. Cook will join his family at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Alexander Begg of Washington, of the National Geographic Society, will represent the society.

Some New York papers were taken on board the Oscar II. last evening containing long reports concerning Peary's achievements. Dr. Cook read them carefully, then said: "There is nothing new here, and I shall wait until something more definite is published before saying anything further on the matter."

Dr. Cook took advantage of the delay last night to send a wireless despatch to his wife, asking her to come down the bay and join him on board, thus avoiding the crush of the public greeting. Mrs. Cook was slightly indisposed, however, and replied by wireless that she would be unable to go.

Peary Delayed.

Sydney, Sept. 21.—Commander E. Peary will not make his entry into Sydney until late to-day. The Arctic ship Roosevelt anchored off St. Paul's Island yesterday, when the explorer found he could not reach port before nightfall. This is about 65 miles north of Sydney.

Mrs. Peary, her daughter, Marie, and little Robert E. Peary undoubtedly met the commander last night, the Peary family having sailed north on the steamer yacht Sheelah.

News that Commander Peary was nearing port and would probably land late yesterday afternoon caused a general cessation of business in the town. Large crowds swarmed into the streets and to the waterfront to greet the explorer. All manner of water craft, from yachts to sailboats, sporting their colors, moved down to the bay.

A tug, gaily decorated, will convey the official welcoming party down the bay. This party includes the mayor of Sydney, Wallace Richardson, the heads of the city departments and other prominent officials. The proposed banquet to the explorer has been held in abeyance until Commander Peary shall communicate his wishes to the mayor.

WHAT ABOUT CITY TAKING OVER THE FALL EXHIBITION?

There is some controversy over the proposal that the city buy grounds for the purpose of holding the annual fall fair on them. The lease on the present property runs out in two years and the fair has become such a profitable institution that it seems desirable that the exhibition should be conducted under the management of the city and the other on a good location between Peterborough and Lakefield. The streets would make connections with both properties.

The matter of the city taking over the fair was introduced last year, but it was too late for action. There is plenty of time to consider it now, however, and to submit a by-law between now and January 1st.

INSPECTOR MILLER AT SPRINGVILLE

"I have nothing to say for publication in regard to the case," was the reply made by Inspector Miller, of the Attorney-General's Department to the Review at noon to-day when a reporter asked him if he had been able to secure any new information about the mystery that has been causing so much comment in the district.

"Have you any theory as to the case?" he was asked.

"There are a number of theories in circulation down there," was the reply, "but I do not care to say what theory I have formed."

"There are some facts in connection with the case that I can tell you in confidence, but which it would not be wise to publish just now," he continued.

Inspector Miller visited Springville yesterday and had the body exhumed and made a careful examination of it and of the clothing. He was in the city at noon and returned to Springville this afternoon armed with a magnifying glass to further examine the clothing in the hope of finding some clues that may lead to the identification of the dead man.

Two stores and the M.C.R. office at Niagara Falls were entered Sunday morning.

MAKING MONEY IN BIG SWINDLE

New York, Sept. 21.—Postoffice inspectors made an unannounced call yesterday in an eastside tenement and arrested Dominico Forte, a young Italian, and the reputed head of the European-American Transfer Co., a concern through which it is alleged that a petty swindle was conducted in which hundreds of Italians throughout the United States were victimized.

According to the inspectors, letters were sent out by Forte to credulous foreigners, stating that a package of jewelry consigned to them had been received, and that the "European-American Transfer Co.," as agent had paid $1.95 duty thereon. The package would be forwarded to its destination upon receipt of $2.95.

The inspectors say that the names of 10,000 prospective "customers" were found in Forte's rooms. The prisoner made a full confession, it is alleged, saying that he was the sole proprietor and that he "was making money as fast as Rockefeller."

A NEW MILLION DOLLAR COMPANY

Welland, Sept. 21. The commissioners of Queen Victoria (Niagara Falls) Park have given permission for another immense undertaking by the Ontario Power Co.

The company will spend over a million dollars in laying another pipe from the gate house to the power house. The new pipe is to be the same diameter as the old, eighteen feet, but instead of being steel, encased in concrete, it will be wholly of reinforced concrete.

It is anticipated that the work will be completed in six months. The long stretch of the park which the pipe will traverse will be torn up.

TORONTO MOTORMAN COMMITTED SUICIDE

Toronto, Sept. 21.—With the knife with which he had slashed his throat still clasped firmly in his right hand, Abraham Cohen, a motorman of the street railway, was found lying upon his face in his bedroom by his mother, who lived with him, yesterday morning. He was dead, and had been so several hours.

Cohen, who was unmarried, lived with his mother, Mrs. Martha Cohen at 437 East King street. No inquest will be held.

Passenger Dirigible Line.

Berlin, Sept. 21.—If present expectations are fulfilled, Germany will have dirigible balloons and aeroplanes carrying passengers between Berlin and the principal cities of the Empire by May, 1910. No less than 20 financial institutions and men of wealth have subscribed to the company's stock.

PROBABILITIES.

Fair to-day; winds increasing to gales from eastward; rain Wednesday.

EXPERTS EXAMINE JOSEPH HUNTER

Lindsay, Sept. 20.—Dr Arthur Jukes Johnston, chief coroner of Toronto, Dr. Clark, of the Toronto Asylum, and Dr. Jeffers, county jail physician, conducted an examination of Joseph Hunter, held on a charge of murder, at the jail on Saturday last. The examination, it is understood, was conducted on behalf of the defence. The Toronto doctors are experts on nervous diseases and on insanity. Dr Jukes Johnston has had a lot of experience with insane criminals, as has Dr. Clarke also.

LOOKS BAD FOR MRS. MAUD TURNER

Special to the Review.

Toronto, Sept. 21.—The police are in communication with fifty women who are believed to have given their babies to Mrs. Maud Turner to adopt. She is under arrest for murder of an infant at Niagara, and the police are working on the theory that some were drowned off Niagara boats.

GOVERNOR JOHNSON DEAD AT ROCHESTER

Special to the Review.

Rochester, Minn., Sept. 21.—Governor John A. Johnson, three times elected Governor of the State, a candidate for Democratic nomination against Bryan last year, and looked on as likely nominee in 1912, died early this morning of heart failure, following an operation last week.

MR. WAINWRIGHT THE NEW MANAGER

Mr. G. C. Wainwright has been appointed manager of the Bank of Ottawa in Peterborough in the place of Mr. Hollingshead, who has obtained extended leave of absence. Mr. Hollingshead has not been well, and has been advised by his physician to take a few months' rest. Mr. Wainwright, who has been in charge pro tem for the past two months, comes here from Ottawa, where he was in charge of the Hull branch for several years. He has been in the service of the bank since entering on the profession, being advanced from time to time. The appointment to Peterborough branch comes as a reward for long service and faithful performance of duties.

MINISTER OF LABOR PROMISES TO HAVE ASIATICS BARRED

Minister at Trades Congress in Quebec Declares That so Long as He is at Head of Labor Department Standard of Living Will be Maintained.

Quebec, Sept. 21.—The 25th annual convention of the Dominion Trades Congress opened yesterday morning with many notables present, including Hon. Lomer Gouin, Premier of Quebec; Hon. W. L. M. King, Minister of Labor; Will Crooks, M.P., Woolwich, England, representing the British Trade Union Congress; Sir George Garneau, mayor of Quebec; George Jones, Atlanta, Ga., fraternal delegate from the American Federation of Labor; Charles L. Baine, Boston, Boot and Shoe Workers' International Brotherhood; Alphonse Verville, M.P., Montreal, and Allan Studholme, M.P.P., Hamilton. There are about 125 delegates here, including 40 from Montreal and 16 from Toronto.

Hon. Lomer Gouin, in his address, declared that the Quebec Government was constructing a high commercial school in Montreal that would be second to none on the continent. The Quebec Legislature was well disposed towards the working classes, and prepared at times to consider matters that might be placed before them by the congress.

Hon. W. L. M. King, Minister of Labor, said he was delighted to meet on the platform such men as Will Crooks, M.P. He outlined the policy of the Labor Department, and paid a tribute to the late D. J. O'Donoghue, who was fair wage officer in his Department.

The prevention of strikes and lockouts was dear to his heart. He was opposed to all kinds of war. He believed in peace. He asked workingmen to bring about a regime of peace, which would set an example to all the other nations of the world.

He hoped the workingmen would feel that with the establishment of a Department of Labor that the Asiatic question would be carefully studied by those in authority. The Government had not received any report from any individual to bring in Asiatic labor to help to construct the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. If such a request was granted it would be refused by the Government.

The Asiatic standard was beneath the Canadian standard, and for that reason and others a head tax had been placed on the Chinese. He thought that some means less obnoxious to China should be brought about to enable Canada to get Chinese markets, and yet be effective in preventing an influx of Chinese to such an extent to be a detriment to the Canadian workers and the standard of living of Canada's people. As long as he was Minister of Labor he intended to uphold the dignity of labor, maintained as it should be.

William Crooks, M.P., asked the representatives of labor not to pay too much attention to promises made by members of Parliament. While he was delighted to meet the Minister of Labor, the Premier of the Province of Quebec, and other prominent men on the platform, he asked the workingmen of Canada to depend entirely on their own labor organizations.

TRADE COMMISSION VISITS OTTAWA

Ottawa, Sept. 21.—Lord Balfour of Burleigh, Sir Daniel Morris and Sir John Dickson Poynder, the British members of the royal commission on better trade relations between Canada and the West Indies, have arrived in the capital. The Canadian commissioners are Hon. W. S. Fielding and Hon. Wm. Paterson.

The Ottawa sitting will begin today, after which evidence will be taken in Toronto, Montreal, St. John, and Halifax. The commissioners will then separate to meet again in the West Indies during the winter or next spring. H. R. Cowell of the Colonial Office is secretary of the commission, and H. McCarthy, C.M.G., is technical adviser.

BARTENDER IS SENT TO JAIL

Kingston, Sept. 21.—For stealing $1 from the till of the British-American Hotel, when employed as a bartender, Herbert Fuller, a young married man, was given 15 days in jail.

The proprietor says he has lost about $500 out of the till in two years. He sent a man into the bar with $1 for a bottle of whisky, when the bar opened up, and then found that Fuller had not put the money in the till nor registered the sale. He asked Fuller for money and the later handed it over. Fuller said he was only paid $7 a week and claimed he was to busy with customers to register up the money before the proprietor dropped in on him.

LATE NEWS FROM MANY LOCALITIES

Burglar Stuck In Chimney.

New York, Sept. 21.—One of a trio of burglars who aroused the household of Capt. Chas. Kohler, at Richmond terrace, Mariners' Harbor, Staten Island, became so tightly wedged in a chimney through which he sought to gain an entrance, that firemen and policemen were summoned to rescue him. He had descended three storeys inside the flue.

TUESDAY, SEPT. 21, 1909.

THE HYDRO-ELECTRIC PROBLEM

The owners of privileges whether water-power or otherwise hang on with a mighty grip to the theory that they ought to be allowed to pick up public utilities and necessities and make their fortunes out of the toll taken from the people. That is the theory of the man with money. The best way to defend the idea of government ownership or governmental protection of the great mass of the people is by boldly standing in the way of all attempts to tie matters up in lawsuits. Those who object to what they are pleased to call the highhanded action of the Whitney Government fail to remember that the people are the makers and unmakers of all laws and that the moment Messrs. Whitney & Co. cease to represent the people they will go the way of all proud flesh and financial greediness. To say that the Government's refusal to grant a fiat or permission to attack the Government through the courts is a violation of Magna Charta is an abuse of words. Magna Charta for the first time gave the people rights and guaranteed them against the abuse of privilege. It is true that the people no more than an individual, is privileged to do wrong, but doing wrong and preventing wrong are two different things. Which is which, it is for the people themselves to say, and to the good sense and honorable feelings of the people this great mission of justice and fairplay must be left. There is no other foundation for government. In fact the popular will is government and to represent is proper, while to withstand is not. It is plain, however, that the point at issue is whether the vast potentialities of wealth shall be given to the few or be reserved for their present and natural owners, the People.

WOMEN'S SUFFRAGE

London Spectator.

"I am not speaking of the rich, nor of the poor, but of the average well-to-do professional man's daughters—girls who have no definite occupations or duties, but who spend their days in athletics or shopping or novel reading and their evenings in playing bridge. Later on, tiring of these pursuits and having proved unsuccessful in the matrimonial market, they whip up their flagging energies in the cause of "votes for women," forgetting that a woman who has shown herself a failure in her own vocation is not likely to be able to handle that of men with any marked success."

Then we are asked to conclude that because a woman has not tied herself up to the first man who proposes she is a failure. That is the theory in New Guinea, where women do the proposing, men considering it beneath them. It is just such absurd illogical talk as the Spectator's that is driving the modern woman-suffragist mad—and no wonder.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Peary's negro attendant does not, after all, seem to give colour to Peary's statements.

The Peterborough Exhibition has found its feet. More power to it. It has taken a long time to grow, but it has at last got upon its walkers.

The Grit press, with a few honourable exceptions, would see the cheap-power-for-the-people scheme tied up in hard knots if it would only get the Liberals back into power in Ontario. It is a poor card.

Contempt of court is a very serious matter. Courts cannot afford to allow themselves to be trifled with. It is better to trust to the mercy and protection of the court than to trust to its lack of memory. It rarely forgets.

This surely is the age of discovery. Some one has found out, and by methods as mysterious as Peary's finding of the North Pole, that Methuselah was not 969 years when he died, but only 78. Is there anything in the Bible which one will presently be permitted to believe as true?—Kingston Whig.

Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson, president of the G. T. R. company, before his departure for England, has uttered plainly and vigorously his dissatisfaction with the slow progress made in the construction of the government section of the National Transcontinental Railway. This utterance may be regarded as the first mutterings of a storm that will break later and be attended with much noise.—Hamilton Herald.

POLENTA.

A Woman Tells of Her Introduction to the Italian Dish.

Did you ever eat polenta? Hear what one woman has to tell you before you say no.

"Just let me tell you about my introduction to this Italian dish. Last summer, after I had closed our camp in the mountains, I was invited to spend the night with an acquaintance who had the next camp.

"She is a charming woman, one who has lived abroad more than in this country. She is devoted to Italy and things Italian, and her cook from southern Italy has been with her several years.

"As I was about to retire my hostess said to me, 'Pardon me, but I didn't think to ask you what you preferred to have for breakfast.' Really, before I had opportunity to frame a reply, she continued, 'We always have polenta; Antonina makes delicious polenta, so I always have it.' I did not know polenta, I was quite sure, but it certainly sounded most attractive, and so I replied, 'I am sure I should like polenta, especially if Antonina makes it,' and I went to my room with my appetite already whetted for polenta made by Antonina.

"The next morning I awaited that meal with the greatest expectancy. The polenta was served, and I tasted it. Was it good?

"It certainly was, but I had eaten it hundreds of times before, only we prosaic Americans call it cornmeal mush.

"Truly, that is polenta. A name makes lots of difference, doesn't it?" she concluded.—Houston Post.

Professional Orators.

When Lord Rosmead, then Sir Hercules Robinson, was governor of New South Wales, in the early seventies, it fell to his lot to admit the erstwhile cannibal kingdom of Fiji as an integral part of the British empire. During the incidental ceremonies he noticed that none of the great fighting chiefs spoke in person and that each of them had a professional orator on his staff. As an Irishman, with a strong sense of humor, Sir Hercules was naturally tickled by such a novel situation, and when he got back to Sydney he repeatedly eulogized the arrangement, pointing out that the man of action was very rarely a man of words and that civilization might very well learn a lesson from Pacific chiefs.—London Chronicle.

Well Trained.

A farmer, finding a motor horn in the road, took it home, determined to turn it to some use. So he taught his poultry to gather for meals at its toot, and all nature may be said to have smiled till one morning a motor car passing the farmyard blew a loud blast. The full strength of the poultry yard instantly ran out into the road and began to pursue the car with all the ardor of railway travelers charging into the refreshment room. At the end of the fifth mile fourteen pullets and three roosters succumbed through exhaustion. The rest are still running.—English Paper.

What's in a Name.

Epicure—Waiter, this steak is positively bad. It must be three weeks old. Waiter—Ah, pardon, monsieur! I have made se mestake and have brought you se venison. Epicure—Venison? Oh, yes! Then you may leave it. (Tastes it.) Ah, to be sure, it is venison, and very nice, too—very nice, indeed!—Town Topics.

The Poor Poet.

"My husband never gets what he should for his poetry," said the poet's wife, with a tinge of sadness.

"Oh, don't be too hard on him," replied the girl absentmindedly.—Yonkers Statesman.

YOU NEED NOT DROWN.

What to Do When Cramp Comes to You In the Water.

Ninety-nine times in one hundred drowning is the result of fright and frenzy. There is a public horror of cramps. Not one case of cramps in one thousand is dangerous if the victim knows what to do and does it. Every long-distance swimmer entering a race expects to get cramps, yet he doesn't drown and he doesn't stop swimming either. He keeps going until his legs are in knots; still, he doesn't sink. He plugs along until there isn't another kick in him, and even now he doesn't go down. Instead of that he rolls over on his back and waits for the boat to pick him up. It may be a minute or it may be an hour, but until the boat comes the expert will be floating around like a ship.

When you catch a cramp in your arms or legs don't get excited. You may yell, but keep yourself under control. Don't exert yourself, for it takes little or no effort to keep afloat. Crush down the feeling of panic. Stretch out your arm or leg, as the case may be, until you are straining to the utmost. Then strain a bit harder, and watch the lumped muscle go down.

The dangerous cramp is in the stomach. When that takes you your breath goes, and you are not able to shout for help or even to articulate a sound. I have known of just two cases among hundreds of thousands of swimmers. When you get that kind of cramp you may as well say your prayers, but you won't get it if you don't eat for two hours before going into the water. Professional swimmers go hungry half a day before entering a race, and they never know such a thing as a stomach cramp.

If a bather in trouble would use common sense he never would drown. The belief is general that three times under water for the drowning person means crape and flowers. It's true if you make the mistake of taking water for air. Hold your mouth shut when you are under water, and you'll keep going down and coming up all day. Don't exhaust yourself struggling. Relax every muscle and don't move a hand. You'll find that you'll never sink lower than your ears, and that in a few seconds you'll rise up until your shoulders are dry. You can keep on doing this indefinitely, but, of course, if you drink water you'll be weighed, and down you'll go.

Lobster Well Diggers.

"Lobsters dispel drought in Australia," said a traveler. "Australian colonists, at the height of a drought, often find their dried springs miraculously flowing again. Fresh water lobsters work that miracle. In every creek and spring, you see, there are large lobster settlements. If these lobsters fail to find moisture they perish; hence when their streams dry up they follow the water down into the earth. They dig, dig, dig—just like our Panama canal workers—and in the end their strong claws pierce through the soft clay covering of some hidden spring, and a rill of sweet, fresh water bubbles up. Some thousands of lobster artesian well borers, working away frantically like that, day and night," he said, "are bound to discover enough springs to break any reasonable drought."

No Pins In China.

When you talk of the awakening of China, its adoption of occidental ways and ideas, one class of business men will not agree with you—the manufacturers of pins. China frankly does not like the slender, sharp pointed instruments considered so necessary by the Caucasian woman, or hooks and eyes. It prefers loops, frogs or the simple string. Even the most persuasive of pin missionaries make very few converts. The great argument in favor of the pin—time saving—does not appeal to the Chinese. If they have anything, it is time. They were having it when our aboriginal ancestors were experimenting with common thorns, which were the pin's ancestors. They do not know what hurry means. They are not so strongly inclined toward applying its definition.—Van Norden's Magazine.

Ready to Do His Part.

An eccentric country squire agreed to employ an equally eccentric rustic to rid his mansion of its plague of flies, the terms being board, lodging and beer for three days. At the end of this period there were more flies than ever, and the squire interrogated his new employe thus: "Why ever haven't you made a start? You contracted to kill all the flies."

"I'm waiting for you, guv'nor," retorted the wily rustic; "you've got to catch 'em first. I only promised to kill 'em."—London News.

Choosing a Doctor by Photograph.

Carlsbad is full of original ideas. Where else can you find the photographs of all the doctors in the place arranged together in shop windows, so that a newcomer can examine the faces and pick out the one whose looks he prefers? To have a medical man with just the sympathetic expression one likes best must surely be a great help to recovery.

Cautious George.

"George, that man across the car is winking at me."

"Which one?"

"The little man. There, see! What are you going to do about it?"

"Guess I'll have to say something rude to him."

"Well, what will you say?"

"I'll suggest to him that he ought to consult an oculist."

Indian Rice Crop.

The final rice crop report shows that Bengal has 17,916,200 acres, against 19,836,300 last season. The normal area is 20,831,800 acres, but there was a lack of rain in Bihar at sowing season. The yield of winter rice in Bengal is estimated at 71,075 tons, against 57,930 tons last year.

HUNTERS
Something About Moose and Deer

It is now pretty well known among hunters that the best deer hunting country in Ontario is on the line of the Canadian Northern Ontario and that hunters receive special attention. Mr. C. Price Green, Passenger Agent of the line is a hunter himself who goes right with the parties and looks after them, in fact he located most of them. This year the line will be opened north of Sellwood into the midst of the Moose Country, they are reported very thick, the Engineers say that they have never seen anything like it, the Moose season up there opens October 15th, fifteen days before the Deer. We have something special on a new place that will take three parties of deer hunters

The Younger Set

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS.

Author of "The Fighting Chance," Etc.

Copyright, 1907, by Robert W. Chambers

"Here," said Nina, throwing open a door. "Isn't this comfortable? Is there anything you don't fancy about it? If there is, tell me frankly."

"Little sister," he said, imprisoning both her hands, "it is a paradise, but I don't intend to come here and squat on my relatives, and I won't!"

"Philip! You are common!"

"Oh, I know you and Austin think you want me."

"Phil!"

"All right, dear. I'll—it's awfully generous of you—so I'll pay you a visit for a little while. You are very kind, Ninette." He sat partly turned from her, staring at the sunny window. Presently he slid his hand back along the bed covers until it touched and tightened over hers. And in silence she raised it to her lips.

They remained so for awhile, he still partly turned from her, his perplexed and narrowing gaze fixed on the window, she pressing his clinched hand to her lips, thoughtful and silent.

"Before Austin comes," he said at length, "let's get the thing over and buried as long as it will stay buried."

"Alixe is here," she said gently. "Did you know it?"

He nodded.

"You know, of course, that she's married Jack Ruthven?"

He nodded again.

"Are you on leave, Phil, or have you really resigned?"

"Resigned."

"I knew it," she sighed.

He said: "As I did not defend the suit I couldn't remain in the service. There's too much said about us anyway—about us who are appointed from civil life. And then to have that happen!"

"Phil, do you still care for her?"

"I am sorry for her."

After a painful silence his sister said, "Could you tell me how it began, Phil?"

"How it began? I don't know that either. When Bannard's command took the field I went with the scouts. Alixe remained in Manila. Ruthven was there for Fane, Harmon & Co. That's how it began, I suppose, and it's a rotten climate for morals, and that's how it began."

"Only that?"

"We had had differences. It's been one misunderstanding after another. If you mean was I mixed up with another woman—no! She knew that."

"She was very young, Phil."

He nodded. "I don't blame her."

"Couldn't anything have been done?"

"If it could, neither she nor I did it or knew how to do it, I suppose. It went wrong from the beginning. It was founded on froth. She had been engaged to Harmon, and she threw him over for Boots Lansing. Then I came along. Boots behaved like a thoroughbred. That is all there is to it—inexperience, romance, trouble. She couldn't stand me, she couldn't stand the life, the climate, the inconveniences, the absence of what she was accustomed to. She was dead tired of it all. I can understand that. And we went under, that's all—fighting each other heart and soul to the end. Is she happy with Ruthven? I never knew him and never cared to. I suppose they go about in town among the yellow set. Do they?"

"Yes. I've met Alixe once or twice. She was perfectly composed, formal, but unembarrassed. She has shifted her milieu somewhat. It began with the influx of Ruthven's friends from the 'yellow' section of the younger married set—the Orchils, Fanes, Minsters and Delmour-Carnes. By the way, I'm dipping into the younger set myself tonight on Eileen's account. I brought her out Thursday, and I'm giving a dinner for her tonight."

"Who's Eileen?" he asked.

"Eileen? Why, don't you—why, of course you don't know yet that I've taken Eileen for my own. Eileen is Molly Erroll's daughter, and the courts appointed Austin and me guardians for her and for her brother Gerald."

"Oh!"

"Now is it clear to you?"

"Yes," he said, thinking of the tragedy which had left the child so utterly alone in the world save for her brother and a distant kinship by marriage with the Gerards.

For awhile he sat brooding, arms loosely folded, immersed once more in his own troubles.

"It seems a shame," he said, "that a family like ours, whose name has always spelled decency, should find themselves entangled in the very things their race has always hated and managed to avoid. And through me too."

"But no disgrace touches you, dear," she said tremulously.

"I've been all over that, too," he said, with quiet bitterness. "You are partly right; nobody cares in this town. Even though I did not defend the suit, nobody cares. And there's no disgrace, I suppose, if nobody cares enough even to condone. Divorce is no longer noticed; it is a matter of ordinary occurrence, a matter of routine in some sets. Who cares except decent folk? And they only think it's a pity and wouldn't do it themselves. If Alixe found that she cared for Ruthven I don't blame her. Laws and statutes can't govern such matters. If she found she no longer cared for me, I could not blame her. But two people mismated have only one chance in this world—to live their tragedy through with dignity. That is absolutely all life holds for them; beyond that, outside of that dead line, treachery to self and race and civilization! That is my conclusion after a year's experience in hell." He rose and began to pace the floor, fingers worrying his mustache. "Law? Can a law which I do not accept let me loose [illegible] risk it all again with another woman?"

She said slowly, her hands folded in her lap: "It is well you've come to me at last. You've been turning round and round in that wheeled cage until you think you've made enormous progress, and you haven't. Dear, listen to me. What you honestly believe to be unselfish and high minded adherence to principle is nothing but the circling reasoning of a hurt mind—an intelligence still numbed from shock, a mental and physical life forced by sheer courage into mechanical routine. I tell you your life is not finished. It is not yet begun! You need new duties, new faces, new scenes, new problems. You shall have them. Dear, believe me, few men as young as you, as attractive, as human, as lovable, as affectionate as you willfully ruin their lives because of a hurt pride which they mistake for conscience. You will understand that when you become convalescent. Now kiss me and tell me you're much obliged, for I hear Austin's voice on the stairs."

"Well, we've buried it now," breathed Selwyn. "You're all right, Nina, from your own standpoint, and I'm not going to make a stalking nuisance of myself. No fear, little sister. Hello"—turning swiftly—"here's that preposterous husband of yours."

They exchanged a firm hand clasp. Austin Gerard, big, smooth shaven, humorously inclined toward the ruddy heaviness of successful middle age; Selwyn, lean, bronzed, erect and direct in all the powerful symmetry and perfect health of a man within sight of maturity.

"Nina's good enough to want me for a few days"— began Selwyn, but his big brother-in-law laughed scornfully:

"A few days! We've got you now!" And to his wife: "Nina, I suppose I'm due to lean over those infernal kids before I can have a minute with your brother. Are they in bed yet? All right, Phil. We'll be down in a minute. There's tea and things in the library. Make Eileen give you some."

Chapter 2

HANDS clasped behind his back, Selwyn stood in the center of the library, considering his environment with the grave, absent air habitual to him when brooding. And as he stood there a sound at the door aroused him, and he turned to confront a young girl in hat, veil and furs, who was leisurely advancing toward him, stripping the gloves from a pair of very white hands.

"How do you do, Captain Selwyn?" she said. "I am Eileen Erroll, and I am commissioned to give you some tea. Nina and Austin are in the nursery telling bedtime stories and hearing assorted prayers. The children seem to be quite crazy about you. I congratulate you on your popularity."

"Did you see me in the nursery on all fours?" inquired Selwyn, recognizing her bronze red hair.

Unfeigned laughter was his answer. He laughed, too, not very heartily.

"My first glimpse of our legendary nursery warrior was certainly astonishing," she said, looking around at him with frank malice. Then, quickly: "But you don't mind, do you? It's all in the family, of course."

A young girl in hat and furs.

"Of course," he agreed with good grace; "no use to pretend dignity here; you all see through me in a few moments."

She had given him his tea. Now she sat upright in her chair, smiling, distrait, her hat casting a luminous shadow across her eyes; the fluffy furs, fallen from throat and shoulder, settled loosely around her waist.

Glancing up from her short reverie she encountered his curious gaze.

"Tonight is to be my first dinner dance, you know," she said. Faint tints of excitement stained her white skin; the vivid scarlet contrast of her mouth was almost startling. "On Thursday I was introduced," she explained, "and now I'm to have the gayest winter I ever dreamed of. And I'm going to leave you in a moment if Nina doesn't hurry and come. Do you mind?"

"Of course I mind," he protested amiably, "but I suppose you wish to devote several hours to dressing."

She nodded. "Such a dream of a gown! Nina's present! You'll see it. I hope Gerald will be here to see it. He promised. I hope you'll like my brother Gerald when you meet him. Now I must go."

Then, rising and partly turning to collect her furs:

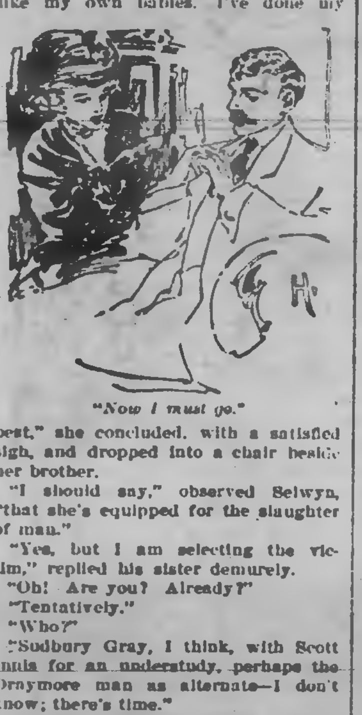
"It's quite exciting to have you here. We will be good friends, won't we? And I think I had better stop my chatter and go, because my cunning little Alsatian maid is not very clever yet. Goodby."

She stretched out one of her amazingly white hands across the table, giving him a friendly leave taking and welcome all in one frank handshake and left him standing there, the fresh contact still cool in his palm.

Nina came in presently to find him seated before the fire, one hand shading his eyes, and as he prepared to rise she rested both arms on his shoulders, forcing him into his chair again. "So you have bewitched Eileen, too, have you?" she said tenderly. "Isn't she the sweetest little thing?"

"She's—ah—as tall as I am," he said, blinking at the fire.

"She's only nineteen; pathetically unspoiled—a perfect dear. Men are going to rave over her and—not spoil her. Did you ever see such hair—that thick, ruddy, lustrous copper tint? And sometimes it's like gold afire! And a skin like snow and peaches! She's sound to the core. I've had her exercised and groomed and hardened and trained from the very beginning—every inch of her minutely cared for exactly like my own babies. I've done my best," she concluded, with a satisfied sigh, and dropped into a chair beside her brother.



"Now I must go."

"I should say," observed Selwyn, "that she's equipped for the slaughter of man."

"Yes, but I am selecting the victim," replied his sister demurely.

"Oh! Are you? Already?"

"Tentatively."

"Who?"

"Sudbury Gray, I think, with Scott Innis for an understudy, perhaps the Draymore man as alternate—I don't know; there's time."

"Plenty," he said vaguely, staring into the fire, where a log had collapsed into incandescent ashes.

She continued to talk about Eileen until she noticed that his mind was on other matters. His preoccupied stare enlightened her. She said nothing for awhile.

But he woke up when Austin came in and settled his big body in a chair.

"Drina, the little minx, called me back on some flimsy pretext," he said, relighting his cigar. "I forgot that time was going, and she was wily enough to keep me talking until Miss Paisely caught me at it and showed me out. I tell you," turning on Selwyn, "children are what make life worth wh"— He ceased abruptly at a gentle tap from his wife's foot, and Selwyn looked up.

Whether or not he divined the interference, he said very quietly: "I'd rather have had children than anything in the world. They're about the best there is in life. I agree with you, Austin."

His sister, watching him askance, was relieved to see his troubled face become serene, though she divined the effort.

"Kids are the best," he repeated, smiling at her. "Failing them, for second choice I've taken to the laboratory. Some day I'll invent something and astonish you, Nina."

"We'll fit you up a corking laboratory," began Austin cordially. "There is"—

"You're very good. Perhaps you'll all be civil enough to move out of the house if I need more room for bottles and retorts."—

"Of course Phil must have his laboratory," insisted Nina. "There's loads [illegible] this [illegible], only you don't mind being at the top of the house, do you, Phil?"

"Yes, I do. I want to be in the drawing room or somewhere so that you all may enjoy the odors and get the benefit of premature explosions. Oh, come now, Austin, if you think I'm going to plant myself here on you"—

"Don't notice him, Austin," said Nina; "he only wishes to be implored. And by the same token you'd both better let me implore you to dress!" She rose and bent forward in the firelight to peer at the clock. "Goodness! Do you creatures think I'm going to give Eileen half an hour's start with her maid and I carrying my twelve years' handicap too? No, indeed! I'm decrepit, but I'm going to die fighting. Austin, get up! You're horribly slow anyhow. Phil, Austin's man—such as he is—will be at your disposal, and your luggage is unpacked."

In the hallway Selwyn and Austin encountered a radiant and bewildering vision awaiting them—Eileen in all her glory.

"Wonderful!" said Gerard, patting the vision's rounded bare arm as he hurried past. "Fine gown, fine girl! But I've got to dress, and so has Philip." He meant well.

"Do you like it, Captain Selwyn?" asked the girl, turning to confront him where he had halted. "Gerard isn't coming, and—I thought perhaps you'd be interested."

The formal, half patronizing compliment on his tongue's tip remained there unsaid. He stood silent, touched by the faint underringing wistfulness in the laughing voice that challenged his opinion, and something within him responded in time:

"Your gown is a beauty; such wonderful lace. Of course anybody would know it came straight from Paris or from some other celestial region."

She colored enchantingly and, with pretty, frank impulse, held out both her hands to him.

"You are a dear, Captain Selwyn! It is my first real dinner gown, and I'm quite mad about it, and somehow I wanted the family to share my madness with me. Nina will. She gave it to me, the darling. Austin admires it, too, of course, but he doesn't notice such things very closely, and Gerald isn't here. Thank you for letting me show it to you before I go down."

She gave both his hands a friendly little shake and, glancing down at her skirt in blissful consciousness of its perfection, stepped backward into her own room.

Later, while he stood at his dresser constructing an immaculate knot in his white tie, Nina knocked.

"Hurry, Phil! Oh, may I come in? You ought to be downstairs with us, you know. And it was very sweet of you to be so nice to Eileen. The child had tears in her eyes when I went in. Oh, just a single diamond drop in each. Your sympathy and interest did it. I think the child misses her father on an occasion such as this—the beginning of life, the first step out into the world. Men do not understand what it means to us. Gerald doesn't, I'm sure. I've been watching her, and I know the shadow of that dreadful tragedy falls on her more often than Austin and I are aware of. You are among your own people, anyhow!"

* * * * * * *

His own people! The impatient tenderness of his sister's words had been sounding in his ears all through the evening. They rang out clear and insistent amid the tumult of the dinner. He heard them in the laughing confusion of youthful voices. They stole into the delicate undertones of the music to mock him. The rustling of silk and lace repeated them. The high heels of satin slippers echoed them in irony.

His own people!

The scent of overheated flowers, the sudden warm breeze eddying from a capricious fan, the mourning thrill of the violins, emphasized the emphasis of the words.

And they sounded sadder and more meaningless now to him, here in his own room, until the monotony of their recurrent mockery began to unnerve him.

He turned on the electricity, shrank from it, extinguished it. And for a long time he sat there in the darkness of early morning, his unfilled pipe clutched in his nerveless hand.

To be continued.

A Million for a New Stomach

It is said that Mr. Rockefeller, one of the world's richest men, offered one million dollars to any physician who would make his stomach strong enough to digest an ordinary meal. With all his money, this multimillionaire is compelled to live on milk and crackers.

What a warning this is to men and women who are beginning to realize that "they have a stomach"!

Slight attacks of indigestion soon develop into acute attacks. The weakened stomach quickly becomes weaker under the continued strain of digesting unsuitable food. Chronic Dyspepsia makes a strict diet imperative, and life miserable.

Yet how unnecessary all this suffering is! "Fruit-a-tives" — that splendid stomach tonic—will give you what millionaires cannot buy, a clean, sweet, healthy stomach which will be capable of digesting any reasonable meal.

"Fruit-a-tives", made from concentrated and intensified fruit juice, acts directly on the stomach, increases the flow of the digestive juices and corrects the faults of digestion.

"Fruit-a-tives" or "Fruit Liver Tablets" is not only a positive and speedy cure for all these troubles. It also acts as a general tonic, building up and strengthening the entire system. Frequently those, who have been cured of Stomach and Bowel Troubles, write to the Company, stating that they are enjoying better health than ever before.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all druggists and dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c.—or may be obtained from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

..STYLE IN GLASSES..

There is no reason why persons with defective vision need disfigure their faces by wearing glasses of unsightly shape, entirely out of harmony with the contour of their features. There is style in glasses just as there is style in everything else to wear. There is some style or mounting that is "just the thing for your face" if you can only find it, and we are in a position to tell you all about all the different mountings, for we make frequent visits to the leading factories, and keep pace with all the improvements in mountings and lens grinding. We will a be pleasure in helping you select a mounting to carry your lenses, that will be becoming, comfortable and secure.

We are showing now one of the Newest ideas in mounts, and we are selling a lot of them. We can adapt these to suit any person. When you have tried all other eyeglass mounts without success, come to us, we will guarantee to fit you to your entire satisfaction.

The uncut lenses we use are from the AMERICAN OPTICAL CO., the largest Optical House in the world. We buy these only in "First" quality, and grind them any shape or size. All work guaranteed.

THE ADMINISTRATION OF LAW

President Taft said recently;—

"But reform in our criminal procedure is not the only reform that we ought to have in our courts. On the civil side of the courts there is undue delay, and this always works for the benefit of the man with the longest purse. What the poor man needs is a prompt decision of his case, and by limiting the appeals in cases involving small amounts of money so that there shall be a final decision in the lower courts, an opportunity is given to the poor litigant to secure a judgment in time to enjoy it, and not after he has exhausted all his resources in litigating to the Supreme Court. The situation is now ripe for the appointment of a commission by Congress to take up the question of the law's delays in the federal courts, and to report a system which shall not only secure quick and cheap justice to the litigants in the federal courts, but shall offer a model to the legislatures and courts of the states by the use of which they can themselves institute reforms.

"Of all the questions that are before the American people, I regard no one as more important than this, to wit, the improvement of the administration of justice. We must make it so that the poor man will have as nearly as possible an opportunity in litigating as the rich man, and under present conditions, ashamed as we may be of it, this is not the fact."

There are few and even they are not lawyers who will fail to agree with this great man. When Sir James Whitney yielded to fear in his efforts to improve the administration of law in Ontario he failed. It is not usual for him to fail, and it may have been only for a time, but as stands, the administration of law in Canada is open to the same objection as in the U.S. In some cases it may not be so bad, but in some it is worse. Surely it would not take a genius to reorganize the administration of justice in the interests of the People. It is not fair to judge of the future by the past. The present and former system of administering the civil law is a work of genius, but of an evil genius. It would be better to cut it all out and start afresh than to leave the people a prey to the rich stock-gambler and financial pirates as they are at present.

ALD. TURNER

Through a technical and unintentional infraction of the law Ald. Turner may feel impelled to retire from the City Council for the rest of this year. The law says that no Councillor shall have a contract with the municipality he represents. This law of course, is right enough. While sometimes, as in this case, it may work a hardship, as a rule it prevents corruption and that is what it was intended for. We were in the Council Chamber when Ald Turner made his technical mistake. The Council was somewhat stirred up as to how the city was to be decorated for the impending celebration. There was no time to be lost. No plans had been made as the City Council had intended to skip decorations, but the people would not have it so. To get the city out of a tangle Ald. Turner said that his firm "would do the work for the bare cost of doing it and, of course, without profit." We thought at the time that he might find himself in a box if anybody wished to take advantage of it. He is a most valuable and straightforward representative. His successor, Ald. Gibson, is no less so. Fortunate is the municipality in the possession of two such thoroughly upright and capable men. As Ald. Turner did the work at great inconvenience and without a cent of profit the Council should bestir itself in the matter. It was done wholly at their urgent request.

DANNY SIMONS IN NEW YORK

The friends of Mr. Danny Simons will be glad to hear that he is making good in New York theatres in a vaudeville act "Teddy in the Jungle," a satire on Roosevelt's lion hunting expedition. Mr. Simons intended to join the forces of "Little Johnny Jones" again this year, but the piece has been sold by Cohan and Harris and passed into the hands of small producers, so Mr. Simons did not carry out his original intention.

When his two months' metropolitan season is finished he will probably accept an offer made him by Lasky, the big vaudeville light, to sign with one of his leading attractions, although he is considering signing a contract to play a part in a big musical show.

AMBULANCE MAY BE RE-PAINTED

The Property Committee are considering the advisability of re-painting the Dan Spence ambulance. That such a step is necessary is not doubted, but the committee are somewhat short of funds. The city treasurer is preparing a statement of the finances of the committee, and the ambulance will be painted if it is found that the funds will stand it.

PRESENTATION TO JUDGE HUYCKE

By Methodist Sunday School at Cobourg — Departure is Regretted

The following is from the Cobourg Sentinel-Star:

Last Sunday was Flower Sunday and Rally Day at the Methodist Sunday school. The church was nicely decorated, the altar and pulpit rails with evergreens and flowers, and the school children as they entered deposited flowers, making the place a veritable flower garden. The children of the school occupied the seats in the centre of the church. The service was mostly a song service, Messrs. Baird, Jacobs and McKendry and Misses Hill and Jewel taking the solo parts. Rev. Dr. Shorey spoke briefly to the children, taking as his theme "Our Father."

In the afternoon the children again assembled and many of the parents and friends also met. Mr. Wm. Henderson, the new superintendent, conducted the opening services, after which Mr. Huycke, the retiring superintendent, reviewed the lessons of the past quarter.

This part of the service ended, Mr. A. Odell, P.S.I., said he had a pleasing duty to perform. We know that this is Mr. Huycke's last Sunday with us. He has been promoted, and must leave our town. We are sorry to lose him, but glad of his promotion. He has been a lawyer for over 20 years and we can learn many things from his life. He has been a very industrious man, and we should all try to be industrious in our sphere. He is learned in the law, and has been recommended as judge in Peterborough. He has been your superintendent, he has been the children's friend; Lord Shaftesbury was the friend of the working children. Mr. Huycke is our children's friend. We cannot weigh his services to our Sunday school; he sacrificed his ease and time to serve the children, and to try to advance the boys and girls of our school. It is impossible to thank him for his services, but we have here a gold watch, and we give it to him with our best wishes for his future, for his wife and children. We wish him every success in the words of Tennyson:

And may there be no moaning of the bar,
When I put out to sea.

He then presented Mr. Huycke with a gold watch.

Mr. Huycke in accepting the watch said: Mr. Odell, and Christian friends, I look back with much pleasure at the 20 years I have spent as superintendent of the Sunday school; I look back with pleasure at the career of the children. Boys and girls, I am no longer your superintendent; I look back at the pleasant time spent, and the loving words spoken and think of those who are here, and others who are gone from us. He would wear this watch as an emblem of the time spent with the boys and girls of this Sunday school. The gold in this watch was not more pure than the love and loud wishes of the children who met here. He thanked all for their kindness. You have a new superintendent. He asked all to be good, to assist him, and to honor themselves.

Rev. Dr. Shorey paid a high tribute to Mr. Huycke, who had given his services willingly. You have given him a token; that watch may be destroyed, but you cannot destroy the affection and regard that prompted the gift. He congratulated him on being raised to the bench, he congratulated the people of Peterborough on getting such a good man as judge.

Mr. J. W. Odell congratulated this church on presenting to the city of Peterborough this man. Big men do not arise in a night, and on behalf of the Presbyterian church he congratulated the Methodists on the finished product you have given them for the judgeship. He spoke highly of the present superintendent, and said he believed in him that they had made a good choice. He extended the congratulations of the Presbyterian church on the honor done Judge Huycke. He trusted the watch would serve him as well as he had served you.

The choir, composed of young people, gave excellent service.

The services were then closed by all singing "God be with you till we meet again."

LAKEFIELD FAIR SEPT. 28th, 29th

The annual exhibition of the Lakefield Agricultural Society will be held in the society's grounds at Lakefield, on Tuesday and Wednesday, September 28th and 29th.

The directors have made quite a number of improvements during the past season. A fine new grand stand having been erected, also a judge's stand and an inner ring for judging horses and cattle in.

They are expecting a splendid exhibition this year. Prize lists, entry forms, etc., may be obtained from the secretary, W. Sterin, Lakefield, or any of the officers or directors.

Bear in mind Friday evening October 1st., the Y. W. C. A. Board are arranging for a social evening with good concert programme. The programme will be announced later.

STILL DRILLING AT OIL FARM

The gas drillers are still boring on the Kincaid farm, and they have reached a depth of 501 feet. The work is getting somewhat easier, and more rapid progress is expected in the future. The gas pocket struck at 200 feet still continues to flow, and is as strong as ever.

St. John's Church Notes

All the societies are getting into shape for the winter's work. The Girls' Auxiliary meets on Monday at 7.30 p.m. The Anglican Young People's Association hold their annual meeting for election of officers on Monday, September 27th. The W. A. meets on Tuesday at 3 p.m. Girls' Guild meet Tuesday 4 p.m. Mrs. Palmer's devotional and social hour for women will again meet on Wednesdays from 3.30 to 4.30 p.m., and hearty personal support should be given to this most excellent work.

On Wednesday at 8 p.m. the weekly evening service will be held. In this connection it is expected that the lectures on "First Aid" and "Home Nursing" will be given from 8.30 to 9.30 p.m. on Wednesday, and those attending the course should consider it their duty to be present at the weekly service.

The choir has resumed its practices at the regular winter hours. The boys on Mondays at 4.15, Thursdays at 7.30 and Saturdays at 9 a.m. Full choir meets on Thursdays at 8 p.m. and choristers are asked to be punctual, as nothing does so much harm to choral practice as members either coming in irregularly or late. The choir is now in good shape, and the singing at the Harvest Festival was of a high order.

The Mission Band meet on Friday of this week, conducted by Mrs. Dutton and Miss V. Foote, at 4 p.m.

The Sunday school is now in full swing, but the superintendent would be glad of several more teachers. Mrs. Macfarlane Wilson holds her bible class in the guild room at 3 p.m. on Sundays, and the men's Bible class with Rev. Canon Davidson teaching, meets in the upper vestry at the same hour. The Junior Brotherhood of St. Andrew's met last Sunday at 4 p.m.

The new Hymn Book of Common Praise is now in use in the choir, and it is a wonderfully useful work, containing within its covers hymns, responses, canticles, chants and music for the communion office. As the New Hymnal will very shortly be used instead of Hymns Ancient and Modern, every family is urged to purchase the edition with music at 75 cents, as the new hymns will be introduced gradually. This important step taken by the church in Canada should lead to a great improvement in our responses and congregational singing, so strongly urged by Rev. Canon Davidson last Sunday morning.

The A.Y.P.A. has undertaken to carpet the upper vestry, and the Executive Committee hope to complete it in a week.

All our young people are asked to join this society and attend the first meeting next week in large numbers.

TRANSFERRED TO WINNIPEG

Mr. A. B. Lambe of C. G. E. Co. Goes West-Formerly Located in Peterborough

The Canadian Electrical News contains the following of local interest;—

The recent removal of Mr. A. B. Lambe, from the head offices of the Canadian General Electric Company, at Toronto to their office at Winnipeg, as manager of that district, is a distinct loss to the eastern engineering circles. Mr. Lambe has been closely identified with engineering interests for almost twenty years, and during that time has acquired a wide and useful experience. While Mr. Lambe's removal is sincerely regretted by a host of friends, it is a source of gratification to learn that the change is very much for his betterment, and that he will assume the management of the company's Winnipeg office, with territory extending from Fort William to Calgary and Edmonton, with a large selling staff under his control.

Mr. Lambe commenced his engineering career with his present company, entering their students' course at Peterborough about 1892. Graduating two years later he became superintendent of the Peterborough street railway, and later on was engaged with the Lima Street Railway Company, of Ohio, and also for a short time with the London, Ontario, Street Railway Company. In November, 1897, he joined the staff of the Canadian General Electric Company, and became associated with the engineering department. After five years he was appointed to the supply department as engineer in charge, and this position he has held since.

Interested in all things electrical, Mr. Lambe was particularly ardent promoting the progress of the Canadian Electrical Association, and has been a frequent contributor to the proceedings of the society.

Big-hearted, kind to a degree, he has made for himself a wide circle of friends who feel that this promotion is but the merited result of a constant loyalty to his employers, coupled with keen foresight and marked business ability. The Electrical News joins his host of friends in wishing A. B., as he is familiarly known, the best the Canadian west has to offer.

THAT WATCH OF YOURS

Is in many respects similar to a railway engine. Let an engine be run without oil or cleaning and before long it will stop dead. Upon examination it will be found that the friction and wear and tear has ruined the machinery, and it is fit only for the scrap iron heap. Likewise your watch. You put it in your pocket, and while there is a kick in it, you, in your mistaken economy, do not consult the watchmaker, and consequently rob your watch of years of good service and also much of its former accuracy. The time-keeping qualities of a good watch are maintained and often improved by timely and skilful attention. If you have been one of the neglectful ones call around and see us.

THE WEST PETERBOROUGH ELECTION PROTEST

The Examiner Makes Serious Error in Publication of Judge's Order—Vindication of the Globe's and Review's Reports.

The Examiner came out last evening with the "varied versions of the motion to commit" as it called them and with what purported to be the order itself. We say that the Examiner has committed a very serious offence in that in order apparently to make its point it has printed under the heading "THE ORDER ITSELF" the judge's order with a change of names and a very important omission that alters the whole meaning of the order. The words left out when taken with others left in and with the names properly inserted, substantiate accurately the Globe's report and Mr. Burnham's contention. Moreover, on Mr. Burnham's examination continued yesterday afternoon, no attempt was made by Mr. Stratton's counsel to give other than the true meaning of the various judgments and orders viz: That while Mr. Burnham must answer as to all charges and with respect to everything necessary to establish the fact that detectives were detectives and nothing more, the law does not require that he shall say anything farther regarding them or expose his sources of information and his witnesses. We publish the recent order as it appeared in the Examiner and below it the order as it really is, putting in capitals the words left out and the names changed in the Examiner, and for what reason they were changed we leave the public to judge. It will be noticed that the words "John Hampden Burnham" in the Examiner's version of the order at line 29 from the beginning should be "James Robert Stratton" and it will be further noticed that the words "all proper questions" towards the end of the paragraph beginning; "1. This Court doth order," in the real order are left out in the Examiner's version of it. Also it will be noticed that in paragraph 2 of the order Mr. Burnham is required to produce correspondence "not privileged" which shows that there is correspondence that is privileged as claimed.

THE ORDER AS IT APPEARED IN THE EXAMINER.

"THE ORDER ITSELF.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE
THE DOMINION CONTROVERTED ELECTIONS ACT AND AMENDING ACTS.

Election for the Electoral District of the West Riding of Peterborough holden on the 19th and 26th days of October, A.D., 1908.

Between JAMES ROBERT STRATTON, Petitioner, and JOHN HAMPDEN BURNHAM, Respondent.

UPON MOTION made this day by counsel on behalf of the above named JOHN HAMPDEN BURNHAM, in presence of counsel for the above named John Hampden Burnham, for an order that the above-named John Hampden Burnham be committed to the County Jail of the County of Peterborough for contempt of court in refusing to answer certain questions asked him on his examination for discovery on the above petition and cross petition and his refusal to produce certain documents upon the said examination, and, in the alternative for an order that the said John Hampden Burnham do attend at his own expense on the adjournment of the said examination on the 20th day of September, 1909, before W. F. Johnston, Esq., the Examiner, and do answer the said questions and produce the said documents; upon hearing read the proceedings in the above petition and cross petition, including the particulars delivered by both parties, and the examination for discovery of the said John Hampden Burnham, and the affidavits of R. R. Hall, (2) Hugh Darke, W. S. Davidson and John Hampden Burnham filed, and the exhibits referred to in the said affidavits, including the certificate of the said Examiner; and upon hearing what was alleged by Counsel aforesaid.

1. THIS COURT DOTH ORDER that the said John Hampden Burnham do attend at his own expense before the said W. F. Johnston, Esquire, on the 20th day of September, 1909, at the hour of two o'clock in the afternoon at the said City of Peterborough being the time and place to which the said examination was adjourned and do answer the following questions arising therefrom:

Q—Was Mr. Sheppard to report to Jno. G. M. Wilson?

Q—On the 25th of October?

Q—When did you learn of that first?

Q—Did you have any conversation with Jno. G. M. Wilson regarding Sheppard?

Q—And as to the work that Sheppard was doing for you?

Q—Did Jno. G. M. Wilson ever report to you the good work that Sheppard was doing for you in the Liberal Committee rooms?

Q—Did he tell you about having paid him this $20.00?

Q—I have mentioned R. M. Waddell, Wilson and Kendrey as having reported to you on the work that R. H. Sheppard was doing for you?

Q—Did any person else report to you on the same subject?

Q—Take charge No. 91—that the respondent, Mr. Burnham in the cross petition, James Kendrey, Herb Kendrey, or Peter Gardiner or Roland M. Waddell paid John Farish, that he was paid money at various times between September 10th and 26th of October, and subsequently thereto, what I ask Mr. Burnham is, during the process of your campaign did you pay any money to John Farish?

Q—How much money did you pay John Farish?

Q—Either before or during or after the election?

Q—Did he report certain informations to you during your election?

Q—Was Mr. John Farish one of your detectives that you paid to whom you made payments yourself, personally?

Q—Did you meet Mr. Farish during the campaign?

Q—Did you talk to Mr. Farish during the time the campaign was on in reference to any work he was doing in the campaign for you?

Q—Did you ever have any conversation with Mr. John Farish during the progress of your campaign?

Q—But you admit that he was paid a very large sum of money?

Q—Have you any correspondence with Mr. John Farish between the 10th of September, 1908 and to date?

Q—With regard to the election?

Q—How much did you in fact pay to Mr. Farish?

Q—And it is for this purpose I want to find out the amount of money that was paid to Farish during the campaign?

2—AND THIS COURT DOTH FURTHER ORDER that upon the said examination of the said John Hampden Burnham do produce all correspondence (if any) between himself and the said John Farish not privileged from production.

3—AND THIS COURT DOTH FURTHER ORDER that in the event of the said John Hampden Burnham making default in attending upon the said examination or in answering the said questions or any of them or procuring the said correspondence he be forthwith committed to the county gaol of the County of Peterborough.

4—AND THIS COURT DOTH FURTHER ORDER that the costs of this motion be costs to the said James Robert Stratton in any event of the said petition and cross petition unless the judges presiding at the trial of the said petition and cross petition do otherwise order.

THIS EXHIBIT WAS INTERESTING ONE

Ontario Dept. of Agriculture Had Educational Display at Peterborough Fair

The Peterborough County branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, which is located at Norwood, had one of the most interesting tents on the city fair grounds. The tent was at all times crowded, and Mr. H. C. Duff, who is the representative of the department, was kept busy answering questions.

A wonderful display of insects and plant diseases appealed to everyone, citizens and farmers alike.

A milk testing outfit pointed out to the farmers the value of taking steps to decide whether or not the individual members of a dairy herd are paying for their board. Weeds, nicely mounted on cardboard, formed an important feature of the exhibit, and many were the questions asked for the best means of eradicating some of the worst pests; Mr. Duff constantly pointed out the benefit of the underdrainage in fighting weeds, particularly the Perennial Sow Thistle. The benefit to be derived from underdrainage was well illustrated by samples of grain which were taken from drained and undrained land.

The distribution of bulletins to inquiring farmers added to the educational feature of the exhibit, and printed signs showed in what way the farmers could make use of the department.

BENEFITTED BY THE FAIR

Business Men Tell of Increased Trade—Praise For the Directorate

The success of the Peterborough exhibition was widespread in its effect and gladdened more than the hearts of the directors. The fair drew nearly ten thousand visitors to the city, and they left a large amount of money here. A cursory canvass by the Review of the leading firms in various lines of business brought but one result. All were enthusiastic in their praises of the benefit of the fair, and told of marked increases in trade during the days it was held. Hotels and restaurants also did a thriving business, and one could scarcely mention a line of business that was not benefitted by the exhibition.

Citizens generally are loud in their praises of the good work of the directorate in putting the fair on a paying basis. Three years ago there was a deficit; to-day there is a handsome surplus.

OPENS BRANCH OFFICE HERE

The Prudential, One of the Greatest Insurance Companies, in the City

Almost everyone has heard of or knows something of the Prudential Insurance Company of America, Home Office, Newark, N.J., often called the Gibraltar life insurance company, because of its use of the Rock of Gibraltar as a trade-mark.

The big company has established a branch office in this city, and is conducting business in both branches of insurance, industrial and ordinary.

About thirty-four years ago industrial insurance was unknown in the United States. Introduced on this continent by John F. Dryden, founder and president, the industrial plan at once found favor with the public.

The life insurance is applicable to every member of the family, from one year of age to seventy.

The premiums are collected weekly from the homes of the insured and are from three cents per week upward, according to the amount insured for, thus bringing the benefits of life insurance protection within the means of the wage-earning population.

Much of the thrift and economy of this same wage-earning population may be traced to industrial insurance. The habit of saving required to meet the weekly premiums unconsciously, but surely, inculcates similar habits of thrift and saving in other directions.

In the ordinary branch all the popular forms of life and endowment policies are issued, in amounts from $1,000 up, and the cost is the lowest, consistent with the liberal provisions of the policy and the high grade of life insurance afforded. As an investment a Prudential policy offers superior advantages.

The high standing of the Prudential makes it possible to do business satisfactorily, because there can be no doubt of a Prudential promise.

The Prudential has seven and three-quarter millions of policies in force, representing nearly a billion and a half of insurance.

In extending its field of operation to this city the Prudential offers a splendid opportunity for our young men to obtain profitable employment. Progress and promotion will be quick if hustle and ability are shown. Any young man desirous of making money and building up a successful future should consult the Prudential's representative here.

Prudential agents will be glad to furnish full and complete information concerning the plans of the Prudential to any one. You should take an interest in life insurance, for it may make a big difference in your family's happiness some day.

WRITER SAYS CRITICISMS OF COBB ARE UNJUST

The criticisms of Ty Cobb that have been indulged in since he crashed into Baker, of the Athletics, at second base in a recent game at Detroit, are wholly without warrant, and thus show a keen lack of fairness and sportsmanship on the part of the Philadelphia and Boston critics, who have been the most severe in their denunciation of this great young player, says a Cincinnati baseball writer. Cobb is no rowdy on or off the field. He is a clean and decent southerner, high-strung and determined, but a gentleman in every sense of the word. He would no more deliberately try to injure a fellow player than he would lose a game of ball on purpose.

When Cobb is playing ball his one idea is the admirable one of winning that game, and he will strain every point to that purpose. He is a wonderful base runner, quite as much on account of his determination as by reason of his speed. He puts on every ounce of steam in everything he undertakes. When he is going for second base his sole object is to get there. If an opposing player happens to be careless enough to get in his way, look out, for Cobb is coming regardless of obstacles. But he has not the slightest intention of crippling anyone, and he would be the last man to go out of his way to injure an opponent. His great value as a player depends to a great extent on his indomitable spirit. His whole mind is bent on winning that game of ball which he happens to be engaged in at the time. Other players of equal speed are not so valuable as Cobb, because they have not his determination. They are more apt to think of themselves and the chance of getting hurt. These are things that never occur to the furious Tyrus when he is on the lines. He gets there because he goes at his task with all his mind and strength and with no other thought but that of victory.

If there were more players of his stripe there would be many more interesting games of baseball. The average player wants to win and he wants to make base hits and steal bases, but there are few who so far forget themselves in the glory and pride of action as Tyrus Cobb, of Georgia. It is a cowardly thing for opposing players and managers to criticise this fellow and his methods, for Cobb does more than any other one player to make things interesting in the American League. If every club had a player like him there would be eight contenders for the pennant every year.

BASEBALL

Unlike most things, baseball did not thrive this year in the great and glorious west. All the teams of the Western Canada Baseball League have quietly died and disintegrated except the Winnipeg Maroons and the Medicine Hatters. The former are picking up a little money for salaries by playing some of the minor league teams of the States, while the Hatters are making a triumphal tour of the Northwestern States, showing those teams that will meet them just what sort of baseball talent good Alberta air will arouse in a team that has become thoroughly acclimated.

Edmonton has died, and the remnants wish only to remember that they have a Rugby team that beats Calgary every year. Brandon, too, have become angels, while Regina has gone back to the bone pile. Moose Jaw silently dropped out of sight under the burden of the flour sandwich which they wore, and all is quiet. But beneath the surface already plans are quietly being laid to have more and better baseball in Alberta and the west than ever before.

TURF

A horseman told the Warder this morning that the gelding, Walter G., owned by Dafoe, of Fenelon, would not be permitted to race here during the fair or on any association track in this Province. This horse is not Little Hector, as stated, but its other owners want identification papers before the gelding is allowed to race. It is hinted that the horse has a low mark and is racing now unmarked. How much truth there is in this rumor would be hard to say.—Lindsay Warder.

RUGBY

The members of the bugle band of the 57th Regiment, at a meeting held last night, appointed an executive committee, composed of Messrs. T. Thornton, J. Seymour and N. McWilliams to confer with the members of the Signalling Corps as to the advisability of both bodies uniting for the organization of a Senior City Rugby team, and to make a report at another meeting, to be held to-morrow evening.

CRICKET

Philadelphia, Sept. 18.—The Gentlemen of Philadelphia defeated the Gentlemen of Ireland to-day by an innings and 168 runs in the first of a series of three cricket matches to be played here.

ATHLETICS

A movement is on foot to organize an Amateur Athletic Association in connection with the 57th Regiment, and a meeting will be held next Monday evening to discuss the question.

It is understood that the officers of the regiment are behind the movement, and there is every reason to believe that such an association would be a success.

SPORTING NOTES

Johnson has begun training again near San Francisco. He says that between now and October 12, the date of the Ketchel mill, he will reduce to 205 pounds. Johnson declares that he was not half fit when he beat Kaufman, and many eye-witnesses of that one-sided affair are inclined to agree with him. One of Frisco's leading sporting men is out with an offer to wager $10,000 against $4,000 that Johnson will beat Ketchel on points in 20 rounds, and $10,000 even that Ketchell will be knocked out.

It seems strange, but nevertheless true, that Jim Jeffries' father is a clergyman.

Dan Patch, the famous race horse, is reported to be ail in on account of trouble with his legs.

Hereafter it is to be the hypnotic for Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, the fighter. He not only believes that he is a hypnotist but he knows it, and in future ring battles he means to demonstrate as much. O'Brien's cousin, Jack Rush, advised him to consult Prof. Robinson, a celebrated Milwaukee hypnotist, and the latter corroborated Rush's belief. O'Brien took a course in hypnotism and is now a pastmaster in the art. O'Brien says he feels confident that he can fix an opponent with his hypnotic eye and thus put the opposing fighter under the spell. After that a knockout will be easy. O'Brien is going to try for a match with Jack Johnson and is certain he can hypnotise the colored pug.

Now the "Has Beens" have come to life. They are composed of an aggregation of ball tossers labelled 1867, and their purpose is to play the T.A.S. City League champions, although the time, the place and the scene has not yet been definitely decided.

The players signed are: Dan McCabe, Art. Johnston, Wally Parnall, Harry Burridge, Chris. Graham, Jerry Edmunds and others.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Easy—East Buffalo Cattle Are Steady to Lower.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—London cables for cattle are higher, at 12 1-2c to 13 1-2c per lb. for Canadian steers, dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 10 7-8c to 11c per lb.

Toronto Junction Live Stock.

TORONTO, Sept. 20.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 103 carloads, consisting of 2135 cattle, 642 sheep and 41 calves.

Exporters.

There were no sales of export cattle reported, all of the drovers holding for Tuesday, when the usual American buyers are expected to be on deck.

Butchers.

Prime picked lots of butchers' cattle were quoted at $5.50 to $5.75, and in fact one extra heifer, weighing 1080 lbs., was bought by James McLaughlin at $6 per cwt., as well as a prime quality cow, 1200 lbs., at $5.75 per cwt.; loads of good, $5.25 to $5.50; medium, $4.80 to $5.15; common, $4 to $4.60; cows, $3 to $4.60; canners, $1.25 to $2.25 per cwt.

Stockers & Feeders.

Only a very few of either class were on sale, a few feeding bulls being about all that was offered. Representatives of the distillery feeders were on the market.

Milkers & Springers.

Fred Rountree was on deck early and picked up a load of over 20 good to choice milkers and springers at prices ranging all the way from $45 to $65 each, and they were good ones at that.

Veal Calves.

Over 40 calves sold at the usual prices, $3 to $6 per cwt., with an odd one or two of extra quality at $6.50. Some of the calves were bought to ship west to a country town that is short of veal.

Sheep & Lambs.

Trade in sheep and lambs was about steady. Export ewes sold at $3.50 to $4 per cwt.; rams, $2.50 to $3; lambs, $5 to $5.75.

Hogs.

As far as we could ascertain from drovers and dealers generally, there is little change in the hog situation, the farmer being boss of the situation, as he has been all summer. That is, if prices are lowered he, the farmer, will not sell.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Sept. 20.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending Sept. 18, were 2975 cattle, 3625 sheep and lambs, 2375 hogs, and 977 calves, while the supply for local consumption this morning consists of 1457 cattle, 2250 sheep and lambs, 1200 hogs and 550 calves.

A weaker feeling developed in the market this morning for cattle and prices were fully ¼c per lb. lower than a week ago. This was attributed to the increased receipts, the larger percentage of common stock and a lighter demand than last week.

The attendance of buyers was large on account of the fine cool weather and as they all wanted a few cattle a fairly active trade was done. A feature of the market was the display of a few loads of very choice northwest ranch cattle, which met with a good demand at $4.90 per cwt. There was no demand from exporters, owing to the fact that cables were again weaker and noted a further decline in prices of ¼c to ½c per lb., and even at this reduction trade in Liverpool was very slow. The top price realized in this market for choice Ontario steers was 5¼c; good, 4¾c to 5c; fair, 4c to 4½c; medium, 3½c to 3¾c, bulls, 3¼c to 4¼c, and canners, 1½c to 2c per lb.

A somewhat easier feeling prevailed in the market for hogs, owing to increased supplies and prices, as compared with a week ago, show a decline of about ¼c per lb. At this reduction there was a good demand from packers and dealers and a brisk trade was done, with sales of selected lots at $8.25 per cwt. weighed off the cars. Cable advices from Liverpool, London and Bristol reported trade in Canadian bacon slow and the feeling easier in sympathy with the weakness in other brands, but prices show no change, as compared with a week ago.

A feature of the market for small meats is the weaker feeling in lambs and prices have declined ¼c to ½c per lb. since this day week on account of the very large receipts and the prospects of the same keeping up for some little time to come.

At the above reduction the demand from butchers was good and an active trade was done at 5¾c to 6c per lb. An easier feeling also prevailed in sheep and the top price realized was 3¾c per lb. The demand for calves was good, of which supplies were limited and the undertone to the market was strong, with sales of grass-fed stock at 3½c to 4½c per lb.

At the Canadian Pacific livestock market the receipts for the week ending Sept. 18 were 4200 cattle for export account and 1850 cattle, 2150 sheep and lambs, 1800 hogs, and 425 calves, while the offerings on the market this morning for sale consisted of 750 cattle, 1555 sheep and lambs, 250 hogs and 175 calves.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, N.Y., Sept. 20.—Cattle—Receipts, 4400 head; good, active and strong; common, slow and 10c to 25c lower; prime steers, $6.65 to $7; shipping, $5.75 to $6.60; butchers, $4.50 to $6.60; heifers, $3.60 to $5.50; cows, $2.75 to $5; bulls, $2.75 to $4.75; stockers and feeders, $3.25 to $4.60; stock heifers, $3 to $3.50; fresh cows and springers, $2 to $3 higher, $25 to $65.

Veals—Receipts, 1400 head; active and 25c higher; $6 to $9.75.

WRESTLING

It appears that a local middle-weight is half anxious for a match in private with Charles Fraser, the wrestler who is staying at Manvers and whose challenge appeared in this paper. Mr. Fraser asks that arrangements for this bout be made with the sporting editor of the Review or by letter addressed to him at Manvers.

A High Toned Umpire

During the ball game between the newsboys and the bootblacks, on Murphy's vacant lot, the umpire had occasion to resent an unjust reflection on his character. "Youse to de clubhouse!" he roared at the offending player.

"Aw, come out uv it," retorted the snappy player; "dere aint no clubhouse on dese grounds."

"Den crawl in a sewer pipe and draw on yer imagination, youse lemon piefaced mut!" cried the haughty official. "I ain't goin' ter change me style uv expression ter accommodate yer jay surroundin's!"

Herman Long, for many years shortstop of the Boston National League team, died at Denver, Col., yesterday of tuberculosis. His body will be taken to Chicago for burial. Long was well-known from 1890 to 1900. In the last few years he played in Western League cities.

Several seasons ago Long played for the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Mount Robson

Advices have been received at the Grand Trunk General Offices that Mount Robson, the highest and hitherto unassailed peak of the Rockies have been conquered by a Canadian, the Rev. George Kinney, Methodist minister of Victoria. Mr. Kinney accomplished this remarkable feat unaided on August 13th, and has authentic proofs of the ascent. Mr. Kinney started three months ago to climb the mountain and met with innumerable obstacles but eventually reached the summit. Mount Robson is on the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway in the Yellowhead Pass country. It is 15,700 feet high.

Professor Coleman, of Victoria University, has made two attempts to climb this mountain, one in 1906, 1907 and one in 1908, but was not successful at either time.

Chinese Smuggled From Toronto.

New York, Sept. 20. Leung Poy and Leung Suey, Chinamen, who were arrested Saturday morning by the police in a freight car of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad at the freight pier on the North River, are held in $1,500 bail each for unlawfully entering the country. The Chinese came from Toronto, and say they paid $300 for their passage in the freight car.

Collision Near Sarnia.

Sarnia, Sept. 20. Shortly before noon yesterday the American steamer Lackawanna of the Mutual Transportation Co., bound down, with a cargo of ore, flour and shingles, got into a mix-up in the rapids opposite Point Edward with the steamer Shenandoah, resulting in the Lackawanna being rammed, tearing a hole in amidships.

"MAN ALONE SHALL WOO."

To This Decree Gertrude Atherton Attributes Woman's Deceit.

I think there is little doubt that this world old statute that the man alone shall woo has more to do with keeping down the mental and moral tone of woman, with cultivating her ignoble talents for deceit and intrigue than any of the other forces which she finds arrayed against her, says Gertrude Atherton in the Delineator for August. It is not the softening influence of the matrimonial and maternal states that works so many miracles, but the abrupt removal of the necessity to practice a demoralizing self control, to appear something that she is not, to still much ugly anger and resentment. I have known many girls, plentifully endowed with good looks and charm, to confess that they have "lain awake nights scheming how to get that man," only in nine cases out of ten to find him later on quite unworth the trouble.

We are all familiar with the selfishness, the slyness, the lack of real frankness, in what might be called the threshold girl—anywhere between seventeen and nineteen. This is nothing worse than the mating instinct driving her blindly until she has learned to play her part with taste and tact. During that period she gropes about in her still childish brain for those qualities that will enable her to hold at least her own in the great game and she is the more befuddled because of that curious tradition that a girl must seem other than she is.

Of course with only this old standard of feminity, and being still fluid and plastic, the poor things more often than not model themselves upon some favorite heroine of romance and are only knocked into shape by those indefatigable partners, life and time. Some of our western girls, it is true, have a disposition to rush at a man with both arms outstretched—one sees it constantly among the second class hordes traveling in Europe. And this I infer is the primitive impulse of almost primitive tribes to get what they want in the shortest time possible. But even these girls, when they are walking more thoughtfully in their twenties, when they are "young ladies," evolve a far finer set of adolescence and cultivate those qualities which when persisted in long enough make them more than a match for any man.

PLANS OF THE SUFFRAGISTS.

Mrs. Belmont Forming a New Society. Ida Husted Harper to Edit Progress.

Details have been announced recently concerning the campaign to be waked from the new headquarters of the National Suffrage association on the seventeenth floor of 505 Fifth avenue, New York.

The association is to occupy five rooms, the largest of which extends across the full width of the building. Opening from it at one side is a small room for mailing purposes and on the other side will be the private office of the president, the Rev. Anna Shaw. The adjoining rooms will be given up exclusively to national press work and editing the paper Progress.

The next two rooms will be occupied by the New York state headquarters. The Fifth avenue front will be divided into two rooms, the largest of which will be used as a library and reception room. The other will be the headquarters of a new society now being formed by Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont.

The headquarters will be in charge of Professor Frances Squires Potter, who has just been elected corresponding secretary of the National Suffrage association.

Mrs. Ida Husted Harper has been made chairman of the national press committee and will edit the paper.

KITCHEN KRINKLES.

If a portion of your turnips are too small to pare boil them first and then rub the skins off with your hands.

The next time you use gasoline to clean any delicate fabric add a little cornmeal. The meal will scour out all the spots.

If food is scorched in the cooking remove the pan from the stove and place it in a larger pan of cold water. Then place a dish towel over the pan. The towel will absorb all the scorched taste from the steam and when placed on the table there will be no taste of the scorching.

If you have never tasted potatoes baked in the following manner then you have never really tasted baked potatoes. Before baking let them stand in a pan of cold water for about an hour, then place them in the oven and bake in the usual manner. The steam so generated will make them cook more rapidly.

Though the average housekeeper apparently isn't aware of the fact that a waste basket in the kitchen is a useful thing the fact remains that it is. Try one under your kitchen table in which to throw all wrappers from parcels and other odds and ends that cannot be placed in the garbage or in the ash pail. It is also a good idea to hang a small bag over the kitchen table and use it as a receptacle for odds and ends of string and cord.

Packing Hats.

In packing your hat for the summer vacation see that the crown is well stuffed, so it will not become crushed.

It is not necessary to use tissue paper for this. Stockings, handkerchiefs and other soft articles of clothing will answer the purpose quite as well.

If the hat boasts of ribbon loops see that these, too, are kept in shape with crushed tissue paper.

Pin the hat carefully into the trunk, so it will not slip around in transit.

Hon. John F. Dryden, President,
The Prudential Ins. Co. of America,
Newark, N.J.

My Dear Sir:

Permit me to thank you, and through you The Prudential Insurance Company of America, for the very prompt receipt of checks for $50,000, in full cash settlement of claim on the life of my father, Peter Fenelon Collier, who demonstaated his belief in Life Insurance in The Prudential by carrying policies in your Company for several years.

Proofs were completed and checks delivered the same day, and your Company did everything possibie to effect a quick payment of claim.

Assuring you of my appreciation,
I remain,
Yours very truly,

Robt J. Collier.

POINTS FOR THE HORSEMAN

W. R. Gilbert, the well known live stock authority, gives the following valuable points on treating simple ailments of horses:

Perhaps the most urgent cases of any and ones calling most for immediate treatment are the results of accidents, and of these I will speak first.

The most common accidents are perhaps sprung tendons and the throwing of the curb. The latter usually arises from the formation of the hocks, but this is not invariably the case, instances of the curb frequently arising from a slip on a piece of slippery ground while the horse is galloping, from a sudden strain or from the takeoff of a jump being bad. In such cases he generally shows great lameness at once. On arriving at his stable an enlargement is discernible immediately below the point of the hock or hocks, where the seat of the curb rests, and treatment cannot be resorted to too promptly. If taken in hand at once the animal may reasonably be expected to regain his soundness in the course of a week or so. It is hardly necessary to say that perfect rest is required after having been rubbed well with any spirit.

When delay in treatment has unavoidably occurred cold water is the best thing if it can be applied with sufficient force through a hose or from a pipe for from fifteen to twenty minutes. This may be followed by an application of one ounce of corrosive sublimate dissolved in one ounce of spirit of wine, applied with a paint brush at night and washed off the next morning with strong salt and water. It will not blister, and it is not necessary to cut the hair off the leg.

Sprains of all sorts naturally call for rest and a proper course of treatment, but there is for immediate use a good and simple liniment which should be rubbed in daily until proper surgical aid can be obtained. It is composed of camphor, three drams; oil of rosemary, three drams; turpentine, three drams; mercurial ointment, three ounces.

For wounds and cuts a capital wash is made of copperas, one teaspoonful; fine gunpowder, two teaspoonfuls; white vitriol, two teaspoonfuls. To this add a quart of boiling water and let the mixture stand till cool.

It is often necessary to plaster a wound up before a veterinarian has time to arrive, and therefore it may not be amiss to give a simple recipe for making sticking plaster. It is as follows: Tallow, two ounces; burgundy pitch, four ounces. Spread on linen while hot. To make an effectual blister melt the following ingredients over a slow fire till dissolved and then with the fingers rub the paste into the part affected: Cantharides (pulverized), four ounces; turpentine, two ounces; English rosin, two ounces; beeswax, two ounces.

Greasy heels are common complaints of the stable, but one for which it hardly seems necessary to call in advice, the remedy and, still more, the prevention being so simple. Sudden changes of temperature or diet are very likely to produce them, and horsemen should be very careful after washing the legs to dry them thoroughly, more especially if they have used warm water.

Underbred horses grow more hair about their fetlocks than well bred ones, and in such cases it is advisable not to clip their heels quite close and to guard against grit, dirt and damp. Horses with poor constitutions or those out of health are naturally more liable to be affected than others and therefore require the more care to protect them against grease or cracked heels.

When one is found to be suffering from grease a laxative should be given and a warm poultice be applied for several days to the part affected, this being changed every five or six hours. Every time it is changed care should be taken to cleanse the wound well with warm water and a solution of chloride of lime or zinc. Afterward an astringent application may be used. It may be made from either of the following: Equal parts of sulphate of zinc and sugar of lead dissolved in water or two drams of sulphate of zinc, one pint of water and enough flaxseed meal to make a paste. Soak a pledget of tow in the solution and fix it in its place by means of a bandage.

Milk Value of Corn Fodder.

Trials at the Vermont station show there is no material difference in milk producing value between immature and mature corn fodder when compared on the basis of dry matter. The same results were secured with silage made from mature and immature corn. A pound of dry matter of the immature corn produced the same results as a pound of dry matter of the mature corn. This suggests that if corn is cut too early the farmer loses too many pounds, and, on the other hand, if cut too late too much in the way of coarse butts is wasted.

The Dairyman's Silo.

With the excessively high price of mill feed the dairyman should turn to the silo. It is the cheapest food he can get for his cows. And the silo is not an expensive thing to build. With a little help any farmer can do it. Good land will produce ten tons of silage per acre and at a cost of only $1.50 per ton when it is landed in the silo. Silage gives juicy food all winter and thus takes the place of pasture and soiling for that season. Every farmer with milk cows should have a silo.

Son of a Lord In Jail.

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 20.—Norman Scott, aged about 35, son of Sir John Scott of Cardiff, Wales, was Saturday sentenced to three months' imprisonment as a common vagrant by Magistrate Daly. Scott had already served a six months' term at Regina. He positively refuses to work. He has held several good positions, which he secured through the influence of his father, but has lost them all.

Great Finds at Thibet.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 20.—Col. Kozloff's Mongolian expedition, equipped by the Russian Geological Society, has returned after 20 months of exploration in the region of the Andes Mountain range in Thibet.

The chief discoverey made was of the ancient city of Kharakhoto, called by the Chinese Sianmin, which the Manchurians destroyed more than 500 years ago.

New Companies.

Ottawa, Sept. 20.—Letters patent have been granted to the following companies: The International Shoe Machinery Co. of Canada, Ltd., capital, $400,000, head office, Montreal. The Hamilton Cold Storage & Ice Co., Ltd., capital $250,000, head office, Hamilton.

Sir Thomas Bent Is Dead.

Melbourne, Australia, Sept. 20.—Sir Thomas Bent, Premier of Victoria, is dead. He was an Australian by birth, and has been Premier, Treasurer and Minister of Railways of Victoria since 1904. He was created a K.C.M.G. in 1908. In 1907 he was authorized to visit England, with a view to arranging for cheap transportation of emigrants to Victoria.

Sold Unripe Grapes.

Beamsville, Sept. 20.—Inspector Baker of the fruit division has issued a summons against Robt. O. Konkle, a Clinton Township farmer, for putting unripe champion grapes in the hands of Randall & Falconbridge, fruit dealers of Grimsby.

Innocent Bystander Shot.

Woodstock, Sept. 20.—At noon Saturday, in front of the postoffice, in Plattsville, E. Pudder, who had a rifle in his hand, had some warm words with John Holmes. During the argument the rifle either dropped out of Pudder's hands or he threw it down, and it discharged. The bullet entered the leg of H. G. Murray, school teacher, just above the ankle.

Aged Couple Victims of Gas.

Chicago, Sept. 20.—The two weeks' honeymoon of two aged inmates of the German Baptist Old People's Home of this city ended tragically on Saturday, when Julius Menzel, 78 years old, was asphyxiated, probably accidentally, by illuminating gas. By his side was his wife, Mariana Menzel, 85 years old, unconscious. She will die.

Inland Revenue Decreases.

Ottawa, Sept. 20.—During Aug. 1 the revenue of the Inland Revenue Department was $1,235,500, a decrease of $31,027, as compared with August, 1908.

LEGALLY A CORPSE.

Therefore He Could Not Possibly Have Been Murdered.

It was the custom in the good old days in Great Britain and Ireland to hang condemned men for half an hour and then hand them over to their friends. A man named Mahoney was hanged in this way. At the end of half an hour his body was given to his friends, who put him in a coffin they had brought with them and galloped off with him on a cart. But before they were out of sight of the gallows authorities the corpse in the exuberance of his joy sat up in the coffin and shouted, "Hooroo!" A "pal," terrified lest this exhibition of vitality should cause the executioner to come after them, hit the hanged man playfully on the head with his stick, remarking, "Kape quiet, ye spalpeen." The silencing was so effectual that the victim of it never woke again, but was well and truly "waked" that same evening.

There was no doubt that the blow on the head killed him. The facts came to the knowledge of the authorities, and a justice was appealed to for a warrant for the culprit's arrest on a charge of murder, but the justice refused it, explaining that as the man was dead, having been hanged for half an hour and given up to his friends legally a corpse, it was impossible that he could have been murdered.—London Tit-Bits.

THE AFRICAN MARKET.

Prices That Wild Animals Bring In the Interior.

The prices of wild animals naturally fluctuate with the demand. An excessive supply of rhinoceroses would soon reduce the market value. Five for sale at any time in the world would glut the market, for one cannot sell a rhinoceros every day. The maintenance of wild animals is costly and they soon eat their value in food, so that every day they are on the hunter's or the dealer's hands he is losing money.

After the animals are captured they have to be transported to the coast. This adds greatly to the cost. Delivered at Nairobi or Port Florence, which are inland and practically on the African hunting field, a baby rhinoceros of the prehensile lipped species will bring from $375 to $500, a giraffe from $250 to $500 and a baby hippopotamus from $250 to $450, elands and most of the large antelope from $125 to $200, elephants from $375 to $875, lions and leopards, with the exception of the black species of the latter, from $100 to $425, according to size and condition. The gorilla and the square muzzled (or so called white) rhinoceros can be sold at auction by telegraph. Their value might run from $5,000 to $30,000, according to the bidding.—Hampton's Magazine.

Diplomacy.

Sunday passed, Tuesday rolled around, and still his tall form did not loom in the vestibule when the cuckoo clock was sounding 8. Thursday he came, and the beautiful girl was burning with wrath.

"So this is the way you neglect me!" she hissed. "What have you to say for yourself? Why didn't you come?"

"I couldn't," faltered the young man. "I had the dyspepsia, and the doctor advised me not to come."

"What—the doctor told you not to come to see me because you had the dyspepsia?"

"Well, he told me to keep away from all sweets."

The next moment she had him seated on the parlor sofa, telling him he was the nicest young man in the world. —London Express.

PETERBOROUGH TO HAVE LADIES' COLLEGE; PLANS COMPLETED

Peterborough is to have a Ladies' College. This was decided to-day, after conference with many of the leading business men of the city, and those connected with the educational interests of the district of which Peterborough is the natural centre. Messrs. Spotton and McKone, proprietors of the Peterborough Business College, are behind the movement, and from the energetic way in which these gentlemen handle the business of the present college, the success of the new venture is assured. Splendid premises have been secured, and all conveniences necessary are provided in the commodious suite of rooms lately occupied by the Peterborough Club.

The Ladies' College will be separate from the Business College, but will be affiliated with it under the business management of Messrs. Spotton and McKone. A lady principal of large experience and strong personality will be in charge of the classes. She will be a university graduate and a specialist in English and Moderns. The subjects taken up will be English, grammar and composition, as well as French and German. There will also be classes for drawing, art subjects and physical culture, and a light course in mathematics, if desired. From the encouragement they have received those behind the scheme are satisfied there is a demand for such an institution. Active preparations are now in progress, and the school is expected to be ready to be open for pupils at an early date.

Canadian Pacific Railway Special Notice

Change in train schedule commencing on Sept. 20th. Local train will leave Peterborough at 7.55 a.m. for Toronto, arriving there at 10.20 a.m., ten minutes earlier.

KNOX CHURCH YOUNG PEOPLE

Held Interesting Meeting Last Night-An Instructive Address

Mr. Gordon Hall presided at the meeting of Knox Church Young People in the absence of Mr. Patten, last night. The devotional exercises were carried out, also the business part transacted. The chairman then called upon the Rev. J. H. Keith to speak. The address, most interesting, but brief, was upon the life and work of the late Dr. George Mathieson, one of Scotland's greatest preachers. He was also an author and hymn writer. He became blind at the age of 18 years, but yet became a learned and clever pastor, a most notable preacher. The speaker referred to one of the hymns, giving a touching incident that took place before the doctor composed it, and after it was composed.

During the evening Miss Mamie Menzies and Mr. A. C. Davenport sang a solo. One of Dr. Mathieson's hymns closed an enjoyable meeting. A special invitation was made to the young men that had lately came from the Old Country to make themselves at home in the society.

MR. JOHN MOLONEY DIED TO-DAY

This afternoon one of our oldest and most prominent citizens, Mr. John Moloney, passed away at the ripe old age of 80 years. He had been an alderman of the town, a successful merchant, clerk of the county court, and local registrar of the High Court of Justice. He was very well known and highly esteemed. Announcement as to the funeral will be made later.

SONS OF SCOTLAND

Clan Alpine Camp, S.O.S., had a splendid meeting on Monday, at which a number of new members were initiated. A very pleasing address was given by Bro. Morris, Grand Camp representative, showing the remarkable progress of the Order and the benefits derived by being members. Mr. Morris is called away to Havelock at present, but being impressed by the splendid probabilities of Peterborough Camp, is coming back, and hopes all the brothers will in the meantime impress on every Scotchman the necessity and duty of becoming a member of this great Order, so that the "Heather" will be ready for firing.

"The Debtor"

"The Debtors," in which Digby Bell and Kathleen Clifford are the stars, was played for the first time in America on September 6th, at Buffalo. The play is an adaptation of a German comedy which has been running for two solid years in Berlin. The characters and much of the incident are taken from Charles Dickens' story of Little Dorritt. The Buffalo newspapers recognized the new play as the most meritorious and important dramatic production of several seasons. The play, with its present company, will begin a run in New York within three weeks. Its New York opening is delayed only until a Broadway theatre is vacated by an attraction now nearing the end of its run. Meanwhile "The Debtors" is being played in 'temporary time,' so that the effect of rehearsals may not be lost by idleness, and the caste is a specially selected one, four members having been engaged in London, Eng. Without the slightest exaggeration it can be stated that a most unusual opportunity to see a production of the highest merit is presented in the visit of "The Debtors" at the Grand Opera House Monday, September 27. It is a 'Broadway show' and a production far superior to those usually seen on tour.

CROWDED OFF THE SIDEWALK

A Prominent Citizen Sends the Following Letter to the Review

To the Editor of the Review.

I wish to enter a protest, as vigorous as is possible, to do so, against the wanton administration of the police force of this city. I have from time to time during the past few months, especially on Sunday evenings, been in the habit of taking a walk, accompanied by a lady friend, on some of our principal thoroughfares, and the state of affairs that presents itself to the pedestrian is, to say the least, shocking.

Let me describe as briefly as possible what George street looked like on Sunday evening, the 19th inst. At the corner of Charlotte and George—as it constantly is—were to be seen thirty-five young men, by actual count, standing in double file, one file with their backs to the building the other on the outer edge of the sidewalk. Proceeding north and immediately in front of the City Hotel, the exact same conditions were found. Continuing north to Hunter street, in every store door entrance were to be seen from three to eight loungers. At the intersection of George and Hunter—the north-east corner—a crowd had taken complete possession of the whole sidewalk and were holding a post-mortem examination over the remains of a plate glass sign, which had been wreched from off the wall of the building and smashed to pieces on the pavement, and it was with no little difficulty that a passage was effected through the rabbling crowd. The return journey down George street presented the self-same appearance.

Now, Mr. Editor, I would like to ask the Chief of Police of this city if this state of affairs should be allowed to continue to exist, for let me say that the conditions as stated above have been in evidence throughout the whole summer. If the pedestrian was allowed to go on his or her way unmolested it would not be so bad, but this seems to be out of the question where groups of young men are to be found together. This applies particularly to the young lady who might be without an escort, for I have time and again seen them insulted. I now come to the question, when is a policeman supposed to be on duty? for this is the pivotal point of the whole situation. During the numerous strolls which I have taken this summer never but once did a cop put in an appearance on George street between the hours of seven and eight o'clock, and here is where I maintain the Chief is lax in his duty. I have spoken to him in the police station on three different occasions about this matter, but the deaf ear has been turned to my pleadings.

In conclusion I submit that the taxpayers of this city are paying good big salaries to our force, and are not receiving anything like the protection that the situation demands. Furthermore, if the existing state of affairs is not remedied at once, I shall bring the whole matter before the proper authorities.

Yours truly,
CITIZEN

WEDDING BELLS

LOUGHLIN—MORROW.

A quiet wedding was solemnized this morning at six o'clock, at St. Peter's Cathedral, in which Miss Josephine Morrow, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Morrow, 469 Water street, was united in marriage to Mr. James Edwin Loughlin, of Winnipeg, the Rev. Father McColl officiating. The bride was attired in a dress of white broadcloth, trimmed with silk braiding, and wore a white hat with plumes, and was given away by her father. She was assisted by her sister, Miss Stella Morrow, who wore a rose colored dress with hat to match. The groom was supported by Dr. McCauley, of Montreal. After the ceremony the bridal party drove to the home of the bride's parents, where a wedding breakfast was served, after which the newly married couple left on the eight o'clock C.P.R. train for a trip to the coast. They will reside in Winnipeg, where the groom holds a responsible position as western representative of Greenshales, Limited, Montreal. The bride travelled in a costume of wine colored cloth and beaver hat. The guests from outside points were;—Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Gough, Mrs. John O'Brien and Mrs. Walker, of Lindsay; Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Gough and the Misses Kathleen and Lillian Gough, of Toronto, and Mr. John Morrow, of Montreal.

PEARY DODGES RECEPTIONS; SAYS HE WANTS NO FETES

Sydney, N.S., Sept. 22.—Commander Robert E. Peary will accept no invitations to receptions and no public honors until the question of the discovery of the North Pole has been decided by scientific authorities. This he made known last night in a statement for publication. He is acting upon the advice of Gen. Thomas H. Hubbard and Herbert L. Bridgman, president and secretary respectively of the Peary Arctic Club.

Commander Peary was asked when the public was likely to get a decision on this subject and he replied: "I do not know, but what I have to say will not be very long delayed. Whether my statement will be issued in one week or two weeks, depends on circumstances."

The explorer left Sydney at seven o'clock this morning and will reach his home on Eagle Island on Friday morning.

The reception of Commander Peary yesterday began when the Roosevelt edged her way past Low Point, eleven miles down the bay, and continued all the way to the harbor and until the commander reached the Sydney Hotel, where he made a short speech.

"Eleven times I have left Sydney for the north," said the commander. "Once I brought back the largest meteor ever found; the last time I brought back my farthest north, and this time I have brought back the North Pole." A civic address was then presented.

AUSTRALIA GETS READY

Is Preparing for Her Share in Imperial Defence — Big Force Provided for

Melbourne, Australia, Sept. 22.—(C.A.P.)—Minister of Defence Cook moved the second reading of the defence bill in the House of Representatives, giving effect to the decisions of the Imperial Defence Conference.

He said that in addition to the announced naval proposals, the scheme would eventually give a force of 200,000 well-trained soldiers, with a second line of 115,000. A compact expeditionary force would be provided for overseas service. The estimated total annual cost will be $12,500,000. All the military and naval forces will be interchangeable with the forces of other states of the Empire. Compulsory service at first will be limited to the closely-populated areas.

Asked For Drink; Is Fined.

Chatham, Sept. 22.—Augustus Cartier was fined $10 for asking for a drink while on the Indian list. He did not get it, but was fined for trying to. Five other Indian listers were fined yesterday morning. The list now numbers 136 names.

WAS "INSPIRED" TO BURN BARN

Cornwall, Sept. 22.—Walter William Hall of Matilda, who is in jail here on a charge of arson, came before Judge O'Reilly to elect for trial. Asked if he was guilty he said that in a way he was, as he had been inspired to burn A. H. Beckstead's barns and rambled along something to the effect that there was scriptural authority to suck the eggs, burn the barns and marry the girl. He was remanded for examination as to his sanity.

GALT MAY BUY ELECTRIC PLANT

Galt, Ont., Sept. 22.—Galt Council is considering a proposition to buy the local electric lighting plant, referring the matter of an estimate of its value to E. B. Mervill, C.E. The price asked by the Galt Gas, Light Co. is $67,000. This does not include the waterpower at the dam, an auxiliary property earning $1,474 a year in rentals. The town could make good use of this power in connection with its municipal-owned waterworks.

The council have decided to enlarge the market and to experiment with oil on the roadways.

DR. COOK REFUSES TO DISCUSS HIS RIVAL, COMMANDER PEARY

Discoverer of Pole Says He Will Not Speak Until Rival is on the Ground to Answer Him —Has Much to do Before He Can go North Again—Selling Autographs at $10 Each—New Land Must be Explored.

New York, Sept. 22.—"I have come from the Pole. I have brought my story and my data with me. I have not come home to enter into arguments with one man or with fifty men, but I am here to present a clear record of a piece of work over which I have a right to display a certain amount of pride.

"I am perfectly willing to abide by the final verdict on this record of competent judges. That must be the last word and that alone can satisfy me and the public.

"Furthermore, not only will my report be before you in black and white, but I will also bring to America human witnesses to prove that I have been to the Pole."

Such is the sum and substance of the first message Dr. Frederick A. Cook brought home in person to America yesterday.

At five o'clock in the morning, the explorer was on deck. There was an anxious wait at quarantine while the tugs bobbed nervously about, the newspapermen on board them shouting broken queries through megaphones at the black sides of the Oscar II., high above them. Dr. Cook lowered a signed statement in a pail to The Associated Press and resumed his walk to and fro, to and fro, up and down the landward rail.

The tug bearing Mrs. Cook and her two daughters came alongside, and, while the heavy swell running ground her fender against the plates of her big sister, Dr. Cook clambored nimbly down the Jacob's ladder, and with no concern for the cameras trained on him, made a rush for his wife. For the moment, he even missed the children, who stood a few feet away, until his wife silently led him to them. Then, as he lifted his youngest daughter to his shoulder, the silent, watching crowd that lined the rails of the Oscar II. broke into a storm of cheers.

As he stepped ashore it was noticeable that no representative of the nation, the state, or the city was there to greet him. Bird S. Coler, president of the Borough of Brooklyn, had welcomed him on the Grand Republique for that borough, but the city of New York sent no official representative. But sincere and enthusiastic to the point of tumultuousness, his welcome may be best described as a neighborly affair, devoid of official significance.

Brooklyn's reception of Dr. Cook had all the element of a riot except violence. From the moment the Grand Republique moored up to her landing and the explorer, flanked by militiamen and police, fought his way into an automobile, until he left the Bushwyck Club last night for the Waldorf-Astoria in New York, the surging crowds taxed the capacity of the police and more than once got out of control.

Along the five miles of avenues through which the explorer passed the mounted police were continually fighting a way for Dr. Cook's automobile, when they were not stemming the massed thousands who seemed to have only one object—to break loose and embrace Dr. Cook.

After an hour's rest, during which Mr. and Mrs. Cook were entertained at luncheon by a woman's committee, the club house doors were thrown open and a public reception began.

Outside the police did the best they could to mould the crush of people into a single file. Those who were not squeezed out of line got into the front door of the club, filed through the billiard room, where Dr. Cook stood, a wreath of flowers about his neck, and passed out the back door. It had been decided that there should be no handshaking. Dr. Cook bowed pleasantly to everyone, occassionally breaking through and grasping the hand of some old friend.

The crowd disposed of, there remained the newspaper men. John R. Bradley, Dr. Cook's backer, who had taken affairs in hand, said Dr. Cook would grant the reporters just three minutes.

"What reply have you to make to Commander Peary's assertion that you did not reach the Pole?" was the first question.

"None whatever. I will have nothing to say about Commander Peary in any form until he returns to New York and is here to defend himself." Cook's answer was delivered in a decisive tone.

"I intend to stay in New York for the present. There I will complete my work. I shall not make any arrangements for lectures, and I have not yet decided whether I shall deliver any before my work is done.

"As to further explorations, much will depend on Mrs. Cook. I shall, however, probably not go again to the North Pole, although I may proceed on a northern expediiton for the exploration of the new land we saw on our journey. That is a task which must be carried out."

Dr. Cook has decided that owing to the overwhelming demand for autographs, he will make a uniform charge of $10 each, the proceeds to be divided equally between Explorers and the Arctic Clubs, to be utilized for future explorations.

Cook Thanks Canada.

Ottawa, Sept. 22.—The following message has been received at Government House:

"Steamship Oscar II., via Cape Race, Sept. 17, 1909. Governor-General of Canada, Ottawa: I wish to thank you for sending ship Arctic, 1908, Captain Bernier, with supplies. Kindly express to the people of Canada my heartfelt appreciation for their liberal help. (Signed) Dr. Cook."

SAYS REMITTANCE MAN IS ONE OF WORST NUISANCES

Quebec, Sept. 22.—The Labor Congress yesterday settled down to work. The report of W. R. Trotter, British agent, was read relative to misrepresentation to undesirable intending immigrants from the British Isles. It declared that Canada does not want, first of all, and pre-eminently, the "remittance men," who live on remittances from long-suffering relatives at home.

There was another class, in every way respectable, composed of professional men and tradesmen, for whom there was no work in Canada.

"The men wanted in Canada are those who have some knowledge of agriculture," said the report. "There are many openings for such men, but they must be careful. Canada is a new country and its people are full of hope. It is suffering from honest exaggeration.

"It is suffering, too, from a worse evil—from a superabundance of real estate agents and speculators in land. It is, however, so good a country that exaggeration can but harm it, and we, who have no land to sell, are doing it the best service we can when we tell the truth about it."

INVESTIGATING BOMB OUTRAGE

Toronto, Sept. 22.—The bomb episode which ended so disastrously for Sam Lee's restaurant at 209 York street last week, was pretty well cleaned up in the Police Court yesterday, when Herbert Wilkinson and Trooper George Woodward were released, and William Smith, husband of one of the waitresses in the eating house, was committed for trial to the sessions. This was done on Smith's confirmation of the story of the other two men that Woodward had given the bombs to Smith earlier in the evening, and that Smith had told them later that he had set off one in the restaurant and thrown the other into the hallway.

THREE KILLED IN RAILWAY WRECK

Patee, N.H., Sept. 22.—Three were killed early yesterday when the Montreal express, from Montreal for Boston, crashed into the rear of the disabled Quebec express, Quebec for Boston, near this station. The dead are: Engineer John P. Callahan, Fireman George Parmenter and an unknown tramp.

The trains were traveling only five minutes apart, and when the auxiliary engine on the Quebec express gave out the following train could not be warned.

BIG TIMBER DEAL AT THE COAST

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 22.—President Shaughnessy to-day will take up with the principals a big deal for timber at Cowichan Lake. A. B. Kurtz, president of the American Financial Securities Co., is the principal, and 5,400 acres are involved. The cost will be about $7,000,000, and half a million more in developing. This deal will dispose of practically the last heavy timber in Cowichan Valley. The price of logs advanced a dollar during last week. The C.P.R. has let additional contracts for clearing 6,000 acres of agricultural land in Vancouver Island, near Trench Creek.

DEATH FOLLOWS ATTACK BY HOGS

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 22.—An unusual tragedy occurred at Chilliwack, in which James R. Hoskin, aged 25, son of an Anglican clergyman at Mansfield, England, lost his life.

Hoskin, in company with Charles Carter, a farmer, was driving pigs to market along the highway, when the animals became uncontrollable. One of them attacked him. Hoskin lost his footing and several other animals immediately jumped on him and gored him with their tusks. Carter ran for help, and three men, armed with clubs, finally drove off the hogs. Hoskin died from shock.

CLERICS IN PLENARY CONCLAVE AT QUEBEC EXPRESS THEIR LOYALTY

At Luncheon at Spencerwood, King and Pope Are Toasted Together—Message to King Declaring Loyalty of Canadian Catholics.

Quebec, Sept. 22.—Yesterday's proceedings of the plenary council opened with a synodical mass in the Basilica, at which the celebrant was Mgr. Meunier, administrator of the diocese of London, Ont., which see is at present vacant. At 9 o'clock the fathers of the council went into secret conclave, and at noon left for Spencer Wood, where they were entertained at luncheon by his honor the Lieutenant-Governor, together with Sir George Garneau, mayor; Sir Lomer Gouin, Premier, and members of his Cabinet, and Chief Justice Sir Francis Langelier.

A joint toast to the King and the Pope was proposed by the Lieutenant-Governor, who, in pointing out that it was the custom to propose only the royal toast, said: "But owing to the solemnity,—yes, the solemnity—of the occasion, I feel that we may depart from custom. His Excellency, the Apostolic Delegate, in his reply to the address of the citizens of Quebec the other day declared that the union of the religious and civil authority contributed not only to the salvation of souls, but also to the prosperity of the country.

The orchestra played the national and papal anthems, and Mgr. Sbarretti, apostolic delegate, replied, endorsing the remarks of Sir Alphonse Pelletier. He was happy to say that the Province of Quebec gave to the whole world an evident proof that a cordial understanding between the church and the state was advantageous to the temporal as well as the spiritual welfare of nations.

"I am pleased to declare again," said Mgr. Sbarretti, "that the church has always taught this perfect submission to the civil authority. I wish to give new proof in the message of loyal fidelity that the archbishops and bishops of the Dominion assembled in plenary council, have addressed to His Majesty King Edward VII., and in the reply that His Majesty has deigned to send us himself."

His Excellency then read the following message to the King and his Majesty's reply:

"To His Majesty King Edward VII., London:

"The apostolic delegate and the Catholic archbishops and bishops of Canada, in plenary council assembled in the city of Quebec, desire to convey to Your Majesty the expression of their own loyalty and that of all your other Catholic subjects in the Dominion, as well as their grateful appreciation of the religious and civil liberty which they enjoy under your gracious rule, all pray that your reign may be long and peaceful.

(Signed) "Monsiegneur Sbarretti,
"Apostolic Delegate."

The following was the reply received from His Majesty direct:

"Thank your excellency and the archbishops and bishops associated with you for your telegrams of loyalty, which is in all the best traditions of the church of which you are the hierarchy and of the Dominion, where you are assembled. It is my constant desire that religious and civil liberty should always be enjoyed by my subjects in all parts of the Empire."

Ex-Cashier Acquitted.

Brockville, Sept. 22.—A jury at the Assizes, after being out five minutes, acquitted Miss Grace Henderson of the charge of stealing $3,500 from the Thousand Islands Railway at Gananoque. Loose management in the office and poor bookkeeping were proven by the defence as the causes of the shortage. Miss Henderson, as cashier, using the money to cover up "I.O.U.'s" of her superiors.

Port Arthur Bylaw Voting.

Port Arthur, Sept. 22.—The bylaw to grant a gas franchise was beaten by reason of there not being enough votes cast. The vote was 447 for, and 231 against. A total of 856, a majority of the possible votes was required. The bylaw to grant twenty more acres as a site to the Port Arthur Steel and Wagon Works stood 584 to 100. Eight other bylaws for local improvements passed.

AN EXPLORER FINDS NEW TRIBE

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 22.—On board the whaler Jeannette, which arrived in this port, heavily laden with furs, blubber and tales of the frozen north, was W. J. Bower, an Arctic explorer, who reports the discovery of a new tribe of people never before seen by the eyes of a white man.

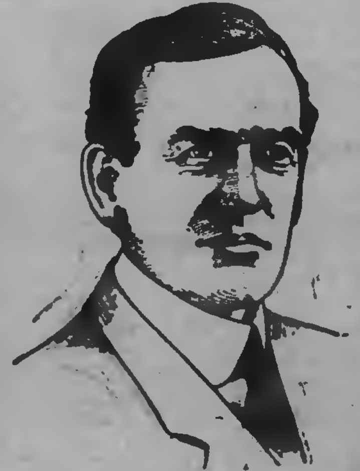
The new tribe of Eskimos, according to Bower, live on a point of Prince Albert Land. They call themselves Nunancsotics, are tall, and look like the North American Indians. The explorer was cordially welcomed by the strange tribesmen, and he procured many rich furs from them. On this trip Bower lost one eye through the bite of a spider.

THE DEATH OF GOV. JOHNSON

Minnesotan Who Might Have Led Democrats is Gone

Rochester, Minn., Sept. 22.—Governor John A. Johnson, three times elected governor of Minnesota, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President in 1908, and looked upon by many throughout the country as the probable Democratic national standard bearer in 1912, died at St. Mary's Hospital at 3.25 o'clock yesterday morning, following an operation last Wednesday.

His last words were to his wife:



THE LATE GOVERNOR JOHNSON.

"Well, Nora, I guess I'm going; we have made a brave fight."

John A. Johnson was the first native Minnesotan to be chosen governor of the state, and of that distinction he was prouder than of any other feature of his career.

He was born near St. Peters, Minn., 48 years ago, of Swedish parents. In his early days he had a very hard row to hoe, his father, who was a Swede, well connected, becoming a worthless drunkard, leaving the boy to help care for his hardworking mother and sisters. The governor was born in 1861.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Two horses fell into the Rideau Canal at Ottawa, and one of the animals kicked a hole in the steamer Bella Ritchie. The horses were rescued.

Officials made a raid on an illicit distillery at 1,437 Notre Dame street, Montreal, and seized an outfit and a quantity of whisky. Arthur Lapointe is under arrest.

Edward Gathony is being brought from Kingston Penitentiary to Chatham to give evidence against F. W. Dhieu in the charge of robbing a Sovereign Bank clerk of $15,000.

In order to stimulate interest in the afternoon meeting for men, Rev. Thomas W. Cook, rector of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church at Dayton, Ohio, announces that he will permit smoking during service.

According to London newspapers, the engagement of King Manual to Princess Alexandra, daughter of the Duke of Fife, and granddaughter of King Edward, will be officially announced at Windsor Castle on Nov. 9, the King's birthday.

A crowd of three hundred persons was thrown into a panic when a leopard, which was being exhibited at St. Paul, Minn., broke from its cage, attacked Martin Martinson, four years old, tore the boy's right arm almost from its socket and clawed off one of his ears.

HURRICANE IN THE SOUTHERN STATES

Washington, D.C., Sept. 22.—Central last night in Mississippi, and sweeping north at the rate of 300 miles a day, a hurricane which has devastated the gulf coast and left a trail of wreck and ruin through four states, continues on its course with unabated fury.

Of the ruin that it has wrought, no one can give an estimate. In New Orleans alone five are known to be dead and a million dollars will not repair the damage done to the beautiful crescent city. It is said that plate glass alone will cost $100,000 to replace.

From the little aristocratic summer colonies on the Louisiana and Mississippi gulf coast, come vague tales of devastation, and fears that many lives have been lost. The wealthy summer tourists who own pleasure craft are wont to spend much time on them, and it is possible that many have been lost.

THE GREATEST OF ALL STRUGGLES

About two years ago the Roman Catholic Church took its first step to oppose modernism—which may be defined to be the freedom of private inquiry and judgment—by the famous encyclical of the Pope, who delivered a very clear and very emphatic statement of the position of his church in relation to "modern" ideas and aspirations. It has proved to be what it was probably intended to be, a declaration of war against the theory that the people have a right to decide for themselves. The final decision in all cases of faith and morals—which includes, of course, everything affecting them—is claimed to be in the Roman Catholic hierarchy who, with His Holiness at their head, have alone the right to teach and to say what ought to be thought and practised. This is, we think, a fair statement of the situation. The modernist, however, believes that he has a right to think for himself, and to reject upon his own responsibility what he thinks fit to reject. His method is the critical method. He examines and says what he thinks. The church says that he must decide as it decides or take the consequences. These two contrasting situations have now come together like the climax of a gathering storm. It has been approaching for centuries. It reached the first stage in its climax when the Pope declared war against those who oppose the teachings of his church. Concomitantly with the issue of the declaration of war the forces of the church have moved forward. The clarion trumpet call to arms of the Holy Roman and Catholic Apostolic Church, into whose keeping Christ is claimed to have committed the faith and morals and, therefore, the present life and the ultimate destiny of mankind, has sounded throughout the world. One of its echoes is the great Plenary Council now being held at Quebec. The church is battling as never before in the whole history of the world for the overthrow of what she calls the infidelity and unbelief of those who oppose her. No man may say that he has decided except by permission of the church. He may think, but he must decide as the church says he shall. Against the church are arrayed ALL who propose to think and decide for themselves, and who leave to God alone in His mercy the final decision as to their fate. That this great world-conflict embraces in its outcome the liberty of the human race to do as it sees fit, apart from the Church's order in that respect is enough to show what the issue is. The end of the conflict must be the overthrow of the modernistic world and its subjection to the church, or the passing of the claim of the infallibility of the Pope. Such a conflict was never before seen on earth since the crucifixion. The church's skirmishers are already upon the heights at Quebec. From the far West and [illegible] come the responses to the challenge. Presbyteries, synods, conferences, universities, parliaments—all are taking counsel.

TARIFF REFORM THE ONLY REMEDY

(The Mail and Empire.)

British Liberals are struggling to make the next election a fight over the question of the continued existence of the House of Lords. Such certainly will be the issue unless the Unionists come out strongly for tariff reform. This they can readily do. The House of Lords, if it rejects the Lloyd-George budget, will be merely acting as a delaying body. Let it also be made clear that the Lloyd-George propositions will become law if the Liberals win, and that tariff reform will be given if the Unionists score a victory, and the tariff will be the dominating issue.

That tariff reform will triumph there are many reasons to suppose. At the outset the conditions in Great Britain are bad. A report on the pauperism of the United Kingdom has just been published, and it appears from that official announcement that there are no less than 835,068 paupers in the country. This is an increase of 40,000 over the figure of last year. It means that 23 out of every thousand people have to be supported at the expense of the public. The cost of sustaining the paupers is terrible. Last year the amount expended under this head was $71,540,000. Every man in London had to pay $3.75 for pauper relief, while every man in the rural districts had to pay $1.75. The figures are not large when viewed from the per capita standpoint. But in the mass they are vast. What could not be done with $71,540,000, if it was free to be employed in productive national enterprises! The cost of pauperism is unhappily increasing. While it was $71,540,000 in 1908, it was but $63,000,000 in 1904. Thus the burden is becoming heavier. But the payments for poor relief are not the only charges the British have to bear because of the unfortunate industrial conditions. The old-age pensions, and the insurance against unemployment, which call for millions and millions from the national exchequer, must be added to the amount of the total cost of poverty is to be known. Much of the money that is collected for the relief of the poor comes from people who are themselves not particularly well off. Thus the artisan whose income is so small that it would be regarded with contempt on this side of the ocean has to contribute to the poor rates, either directly, or by way of his rent. What good will Lloyd-George's propositions do in a situation such as this? So far as can be seen they will raise more money from both rich and poor for the relief of the poor, but they will not give one poor man a single hour's work, or save one candidate for the workhouse from his fate.

If, in this country, a political party were to propose to relieve an industrial depression by raising funds for charitable purposes, instead of by providing for an increased demand for labor, such party would not long remain in office. And public feeling is not very different in Britain to what it is here. The average man wants work, not charity, money for the use of his family while he is in the prime of life, not pensions in old age to save him from starving. Let the Unionists face the question frankly and unitedly, and there can be little doubt that the people in making their choice between heavier taxes for Englishmen, or moderate taxes levied upon the foreigner, will endorse the latter policy.—The Mail and Empire.

EDITORIAL NOTES

One person in every thirty-seven is a pauper in England.

When tariffs get so high as to be not protective, but prohibitive, they must be "revised." It is the case, also, when tariffs reach the stage of neutralizing each other.

The French and English-speaking Montrealers have united to clean the city of Montreal. Why can't they unite for similar purposes at all times. Then we should have a united Canada.

In the Arctic, colds are seldom, if ever, contracted. After twenty-four hours on a floating ice-pan, wet to the skin, I personally never got a "cold in the nose" even, whereas I have had many from stuffy, crowded rooms.—Dr. Grenfell.

The west killed the farms of New England just in the same way as over-haste to develop the lands of our west are killing our agriculture in Ontario. This mad policy cannot be changed too soon.

Why is it that with all our inventions and improvements it is just as hard as ever for the mass of the people to make a living? Because all privileges have been reserved for the financiers. Sir James Whitney is changing all this, and as a consequence the money journals are attacking him.

"The competition to secure the first news of Commander Peary's detailed story is unprecedented," says the New York Times correspondent. "It is impossible for newspaper correspondents to reach any telegraphic point in Labrador under three days, but all sorts of schemes are being devised to secure possession of the single telegraph wire from Red Harbour or Blanc Sablon to Quebec.

"One newspaper is reported to have telegraphed to the operator at Red Harbour to begin the transmission of the Book of Genesis and to follow on through the Old Testament until Commander Peary's story is available. It is realized, however, that this old trick will be futile. Commander Peary controls the situation, and the government will not permit such a use of its telegraph service to prevent the waiting world from receiving news of one of the greatest events in history."

Missouri's Forests.

Nature has bestowed upon the 70,000 square miles of Missouri rich and varied gifts, and they will not diminish if they are handled on the right economic system. On the other hand, they will certainly be destroyed if not protected by forethought and wise methods. When forests are slashed off wastefully something more than timber is wiped out. Floods are increased, and the climate itself is affected. A farmer whose soil washes away loses his working basis. Every desert place in the paths of civilization tells its story of a wanton waste of the forests. The mischief may be quickly done. Only ten years ago the wooded area in Missouri was estimated at 41,000 square miles, or 60 per cent. Now the forest area is stated to be 27,000 square miles, or 39 per cent. The lumber production in Missouri during the last decade has averaged at least 600,000,000 feet a year. At this rate comparatively little would cease to be reckoned in a large way. Yet, properly conserved, it would last forever.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Bad For the Game.

Joe Ryan, the Chicago story teller, met a coal operator who told him a story of two dealers at a gambling house who were invited to go out and shoot ducks. They had never shot anything, these dealers, but craps and patrons, and they were nervous and not exactly up to what they were to do.

They went to a hunting hut in the Illinois river and were told they were to rise early in the morning and go out after the ducks. They were so excited they couldn't sleep, and about midnight one of them went out in front of the hut and saw a large number of wooden decoy ducks floating in the water. He rushed back, got his gun and began firing at the decoys.

His companion, startled by the sound, came out, and took one look. Then he screamed: "Stop it! Stop it, you lunatic! You're shooting the boosters!"—Saturday Evening Post.

The President's Offices.

The wing of the White House, built in 1903 for the offices of the president, has proved to be too small, although it contains much more room than was available when the executive business was done in the main building. Congress has appropriated money for doubling the size of the new wing, and work on it will begin soon. The addition will extend over the ground used by President Roosevelt as a tennis court. The plans provide for a large oval room for the president overlooking the Potomac, flanked on the right by his secretary's office and on the left by a new cabinet room. An enlarged waiting room for the public and a special waiting room for members of congress will occupy part of the space vacated in the original building, and the president, separated from the public by a hall, will be able to do his work in greater privacy.—Youth's Companion.

It Leaves the Skin Tingling With Health

There is a wonderful difference in soaps. Have you ever noticed how one kind leaves the skin soft and white while another may leave it red and rough?

Both soaps looked alike, perhaps. But the difference was in the material. Let us tell you what we put into Infants' Delight, then decide if you can continue with common soap.

Ceylon is an island in the Indian Ocean, and from there we bring pure cocoanut oil 12,000 miles to our factory. Then we go to France for vegetable oil, and often pay double what we might pay. But our oil is pure enough for your table.

These oils are doubly boiled and then milled by our own special process, after which they fall like flakes of snow into enormous bins.

Then they are crushed under a weight of 30 tons to press out the moisture. Next they pass through granite rollers and come out in miles of silky ribbons. Finally they are dried eight times and then stamped into cakes.

Could you imagine a more delightful soap than this? It lathers into a rich, creamy foam. It wears as thin as a wafer. It leaves the skin as soft as velvet and as smooth as satin. It is the very utmost in perfect soap.

The perfume is the delicate scent of the roses. We pay $100 a pound for pure Otto of Roses, but it requires 3,000 pounds of rose leaves to make a single ounce. The fragrance is simply exquisite—it brings the breath of a million flowers. Use a single cake and learn how delightful it really is—it costs no more than the common, so why not have the best?

JOHN TAYLOR & CO., Limited, TORONTO, CANADA

How to Massage

Shave some Infants' Delight into a tub of hot water and let it dissolve. Then immerse your body and remain in the water several minutes. Lather the body thoroughly with Infants' Delight—rub it right into the skin, for it is so pure it will only nourish and soothe. Massage well with the finger tips and the palms of the hands and you will find a most pleasant sensation after the bath is finished.

SMALL CAST PLAYS ARE IN VOGUE AT PRESENT TIME

Mob Scenes and Stage Armies Things of Yesterday—Clear-Cut, Easily-Followed Productions Demanded by the Public—Many Small Cast Plays Successes.

Mob scenes, heavy productions with big casts, have become passe. Plays with small casts are in vogue at the present time. This is not because theatrical managers have a desire to economize, as is the general opinion, but it is because the playwrights are forming a clearer conception of the demand of the public. A producing manager seldom gives any attention to expense; whether his cast is a numerous one entailing a greater number of railway tickets and a greater salary role, is of secondary consideration in his mind. These are minor items if the attraction "makes good." A manager would rather listen to the demands of his audiences and supply them, the general opinion to the contrary, than curtail the people of his offerings. "The Music Master," "The Thief," "Paid in Full," "The Easiest Way," "The Wolf" and "The Climax," all big hits with small casts, were not so constructed because their managers wished to save railway fares; they were all constructed by their authors long ere they were given a production, or long ere they reached a manager's desk even. There is no longer a desire for the war drama and the drama of romance and costume plays, with their mob scenes and ensembles. And the playwright has awakened to the fact. The American nation is in the midst of peace; there is no hurrying to arms. "State affairs of the "family" have become the dominating note. To get his situation and episodes the writer must go into the family, the "small state" and consequently his characters are not so numerous. He finds enough war in the family; sufficient opposing forces to meet his demands; enough friction and fiction to meet his needs. Should the United States be thrown into war the stage would take on again the mob scenes and dramatis personae involving large numbers of people; for it behooves the playwright to depict the images of the day. With the coming of the small cast the theatre is coming into its own. An "audience" goes to a playhouse to "hear" a play; the spectator goes under canvass to "see" a circus. An audience is out to hear, to grasp with the mind rather than with the eye, the affairs of the stage. Plays enacted by a numerous cast appeal to the eye more than to the hearing and the mind; mob scenes and the spectacular should be left to the circus ring—where the spectators go to see. the "mind's eye" can follow all of the antics of a small number of characters. Such being the case an audience is more deeply in sympathy with a play with a few characters than with a play with a large number; it gets better acquainted with all of the characters. It is so in life. One is more in sympathy with his friends, the acquaintances with whom he is thrown in daily touch, than with the mobs of the streets. So few details are lost to an audience sitting at a play with a small cast. In a little bit each character becomes an acquaintance of the auditor, and direct sympathy is established between the two. A character may drop out of a play with a large cast and never be missed by the audience.

Accepting all this as a fact it is natural to see that a man who builds a play with a small cast must be a person with the bent of a genius. He must create his characters so that they must have something in common with their audiences. They must have the life and blood, the traits of their acquaintances; he must establish a strong sympathy between his character and auditor. Indeed he must "hold the mirror up to nature" more truly than the other fellow who comes forward with the numerous cast. He must be less artificial and ring true. More attention must be given to detail, and every actor in a small cast must be a star. As a play with a small cast appeals more directly to the mind of the audience than the play with the large cast, it is an easy matter to understand why the playwright who builds the former puts a more difficult task before him than the playwright who undertakes the construction of the latter.

There are five characters in "The Thief," and six in 'Paid in Full,' big hits of the last two seasons. They are successes because they have dipped right down into the core of the "small state" or family. There are only four characters in "The Climax." "The Climax" goes on record as having the smallest cast of any play ever offered to the public. Edward Locke, its author, a young American, undertook a big job when he sat down to write a four-character play. In a family of four there can be less friction than in two families of ten or more members. One would almost expect harmony in the company of three or four people, and one would hardly expect to find the opposing forces sufficiently developed for a drama. But in this dainty drama, peopled with but four characters, there are fiction and friction, heart interest and pathos, melody and humor. And as the audience quickly becomes acquainted with each one of the four, each one of the four must have something in common with the audience. The creative forces must ring true to get the sympathy.

TAKEN BY STORM.

The Man Who Was Always on Hand When Trouble Came.

By ALICE WHITE.

[Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

In her younger days Bertha had made fun of him.

When she was only sixteen—Ralph little more—she had caught her foot in a railroad bridge, and he had run bravely to her rescue and released her. Then when he had her safely in the siding, with the great yawning trestle below them and the engine, rocking, passed them, he had forgotten to release his hold of her. She had become angry at the smiling of the engineer and had jerked herself away impatiently without so much as a word of thanks.

Then there was the runaway horse and the mixing of reins and dashboards. Ralph was the first to come and pull her from the debris. When she told of a pain in her arm he hurried away for the doctor. Afterward he sat by her while her arm was healing and read from the book that interested her.

Even then Bertha smiled when Ralph's name was mentioned.

Always he was at her side when she encountered trouble of any kind, but she seemed not to notice him. A casual nod of thanks and an indifferent smile were all she ever gave him,

Years after that last incident the cyclone came. Bertha had shaken her head to two young men before that event. She had been away to school and had visited summer resorts and had been at the seaside and the winter hotels in the south.

These men were eligible, too, as men go. But somehow there seemed to be something lacking. It made little difference where the incompatibility was. Bertha gave her answer, and her mother was surprised when the ultimatum to the second one was given.

"I do not wish to influence you." Mrs. Ogden said, "but I fear you may make a mistake. There is something to recommend the latter. He is wealthy as well as good looking."

"But I do not feel toward him as I should. Some way there is something wrong with me, and I cannot tell what. I know he is wealthy, and all that, drives good horses and has servants to answer every beck and call. It would have been an easy life, with lots of society and all that sort of thing. Only the giving up of my ideals—it would be too much. I could not."

RALPH WAS AT HER SIDE AND CAUGHT HER ARM.

The mother sighed as she gazed on the closed door. "What can she want," she asked of the silence, "or whom?"

Time answered the mother, but it was two years later.

Bertha breathed the air of the western prairie in the early spring and saw the fields grow green and then pink and white, while the wind came over the hills with the freshness of a new summer on their wings. Alone she rode into the country and knew the roads that led to the town, where her brother was in business.

One day in May, when the fields were blue with blossoms, she rode slowly toward the hotel. On the hill beyond were the spires and roofs of the city, and across her path was a railroad with its glittering ribbon of steel winding into the distance.

But there was a peculiar cloud in the southwest, twisting and winding into the sky. Bertha met a farmer When he had passed there was a sound of horses' hoofs in the dusty road. The air, however, was still. Even the birds and bees were silent. The cloud grew darker and pushed nearer the ground. Faster and faster and blacker and blacker came the impending storm.

Bertha measured the distance to the town with her eye and glanced over her shoulder at the threatening cloud. Try her best, she could not reach the houses before the rain came. She urged her pony into a canter. She rode past hedges and fields that were open to the whole world. Birds flew close to the ground and darted into the hollow beyond. Bits of dust danced in the road and whipped away into nothingness. Stems of grass that had withstood the snows of winter loosened themselves from the fence and rolled past. Once a stray paper blundered along. Yet the girl could feel little if any wind.

Suddenly the sky grew dark, and the sun, which had been shining regardless of the things going on below, was shut out. The snakelike cloud shot into the sky above, and all was dark In the distance was the roaring of a cataract. And nearer and nearer it came, filling the universe with fear. The dust of the road swept back, and there was a contrary current in the air. Even the pony stopped and turned about. Neither did he mind the whip which fell on his flank, but backed and turned about until he faced the cloud in the distance and then stubbornly stood there. Bertha dismounted and tossed the useless rein over a post of the wire fence and whipped her own skirts as she gazed with fright at the cloud—the cloud twisting and roaring and the lightning flashing from the middle of its dark folds.

Bertha was alone.

The course of the cloud changed, and it seemed to hurry across the valley that stretched away between the girl and the houses and spires. A cloud of dust followed and the roaring, almost unbearable, of the thunder. In front was a farmhouse in the path of the cloud. Bertha clasped her hands as she saw the inmates hurry like wild quails into the orchard, saw the barns and the stacks melt, as it were, in the blast, and where they had stood there was naught of them when the cloud passed on. But the house was there, and in the mist of dust the family came from the trees of the orchard.

Then the wind reached Bertha, and the grass bent to the ground and seemed to hide under the sod below. The pony bent his neck and closed his eyes. The cloud hastened toward the girl, and she stepped back to await the crash of the elements—stepped into the path and was caught by a friendly hand.

Ralph Moore was there.

Why, Bertha could not inquire, for the roar of the cyclone was too loud and the play of the lightning and thunder too sharp. She understood when he motioned to a hollow beyond a hill, and like a deer she ran to safety. Ralph was at her side and caught her arm, pulling her down as the storm passed over their heads and left its cloud of dust and splinters and paper and straw and grass. Gradually the roaring died away, and even the cloud unwound its hold upon the sky and disappeared as a puff of smoke disappears.

Bertha then thought of the rescuer by her side. "Why are you here?" she asked, turning to her companion.

"Business," Ralph replied. "You see, my horse refused to go farther, and I tried to come here. Then I saw a woman in the road and brought her along. It was you. But I deserve no credit."

"Whenever I have been in trouble you have come to me. Do you remember?"

"Remember!" And Ralph told her of the things he had meant to say, and Bertha listened.

When she had found her horse and had returned to the village she wrote to her mother in the east, and the letter lay for many days unanswered. Then Mrs. Ogden said Ralph would be welcome. When the long days came there was a wedding, and Ralph took his place forever at Bertha's side.

Not Worth Shingling.

The late Thomas Bone, "the sailor's missionary," was the soul of kindliness, but he was seldom worsted in repartee. One of the many instances of this given in his published life is the following:

"His work was not without its humorous side. Among the new men there were always some who sought a little amusement at his expense, but they reckoned without their host. His kindly manner never changed. The smile never left his face. There was no venom in the retort, but it seldom failed to silence the interrupter. The laugh raised at his expense made it quite certain that no second attempt would be made.

"Seeing him approaching one day, one of a group of sailors announced his intention of having some fun. He stepped forward and removed his hat, revealing a perfectly smooth crown, and asked:

" 'Can you tell me why my head is so bald, while all my companions have plenty of hair?'

" 'I don't know,' was the smiling reply, 'unless the reason given me the other day by a farmer would apply—that an empty barn is not worth shingling.' "—Judge.

DOCTOR ADVISED OPERATION

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Canifton, Ont.—"I had been a great sufferer for five years. One doctor told me it was ulcers of the uterus, and another told me it was a fibroid tumor. No one knows what I suffered. I would always be worse at certain periods, and never was regular, and the bearing-down pains were terrible. I was very ill in bed, and the doctor told me I would have to have an operation, and that I might die during the operation. I wrote to my sister about it and she advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Through personal experience I have found it the best medicine in the world for female troubles, for it has cured me, and I did not have to have the operation after all. The Compound also helped me while passing through Change of Life."—Mrs. LETITIA BLAIR, Canifton, Ontario.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has proved to be the most successful remedy for curing the worst forms of female ills, including displacements, inflammation, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result has been worth millions to suffering women.

Etiquette.

The late George W. Harvey, Washington's noted caterer, was an admirable after dinner speaker. A Washington correspondent recalled the other day a press banquet that Mr. Harvey once attended.

"He gave," said the correspondent, "some funny advice to the woman's page editors present. He suggested that they brighten up their 'etiquette departments' by the introduction of really interesting rules of etiquette.

"Then he rattled off a lot of rules like this:

"Never wear automobile goggles when riding on an electric car. Our best people consider it pretentious.

"If some one accidentally treads on your heel and says, 'I beg your pardon,' make no reply. If you would be thought a true gentleman simply scowl and pass on.

"A gentleman should never allow a lady to pay for anything. This, of course, does not refer to the titled husbands of American heiresses.

"Never try to alight from a lady's train when in motion.

"If you are a golfer and have had bad luck say, 'Deary, deary me!' "

The Cholera in Russia

Cable messages from St. Petersburg telling of the spread of cholera are borne out by letters from Russian correspondents of the London papers. One writer says: "The habitual dirt and particularly the sullen indifference of the inhabitants of the outlying and Neva districts, however, make the situation desperate. Though the canals are infected with cholera bacilli, they drink unboiled water and refuse to employ disinfectants. They consider that the disease is heaven sent. Until the water is purified cholera will continue."

..STYLE IN GLASSES..

There is no reason why persons with defective vision need disfigure their faces by wearing glasses of unsightly shape, entirely out of harmony with the contour of their features. There is style in glasses just as there is style in everything else to wear. There is some style or mounting that is "just the thing for your face" if you can only find it, and we are in a position to tell you all about all the different mountings, for we make frequent visits to the leading factories, and keep pace with all the improvements in mountings and lens grinding. We will take pleasure in helping you select a mounting to carry your lenses, that will be becoming, comfortable and secure.

We are showing now one of the Newest ideas in mounts, and we are selling a lot of them. We can adapt these to suit any person. When you have tried all other eyeglass mounts without success, come to us, we will guarantee to fit you to your entire satisfaction.

The uncut lenses we use are from the AMERICAN OPTICAL CO., the largest Optical House in the world. We buy these only in "First" quality, and grind them any shape or size. All work guaranteed.

ABSENCE OF ANYTHING THAT MIGHT LEAD TO IDENTITY

Of Person Whose Skeleton Was Found in Woods East of Kendry Station---Inspector Miller Has Nothing Yet to Work On---Suicide Theory Seems a Probable One.

It is impossible to build a house without a foundation and it's impossible to establish anything about a mystery of a skeleton being found in the woods without the identity of the remains being established.

Provincial Inspector Miller, who is here working on the Springville mystery, has what looks like an almost impossible task to bring to light anything further concerning what lead up to the death of the man whose skeleton was discovered in Campbell's woods, about a quarter of a mile east of Kendrey Station, a week ago last Sunday. He is making a thorough investigation as far as the flimsy material he has now to work on will permit of. But with the body lying in the woods for over a year and all vestige of resemblance to any human being effaced by the long exposure to the weather and with no marks of identity on any of the wearing apparel, there is little opportunity for even the professional observer to make anything out of the case. Of course something may crop up that will be of service to the department, as things do some time, but the way everything is now, nothing but the most probable theory as to the cause of death can be taken as the explanation.

"Have you established anything?" Inspector Miller was asked by the Review.

"Nothing at all," he stated. "I have no theory of any kind. The essential thing in a case like this is to find something by which the remains may be identified. There is not a vestige of a clue to assist in the identification process."

Other than what is mentioned the inspector would not discuss the matter, and said there was nothing further that could be said anyway.

STRANGE IT WASN'T FOUND SOONER.

Yesterday afternoon a Review representative drove out to Springville and visited the spot where the skeleton was found. It seems rather strange that the body should have not been seen there in the spring, fall or winter, and it has apparently been there over a year on expert opinion.

It was found on the right hand side of the track, going west, and the trees between the place where it was discovered and the railway fence are only saplings about three inches or so in diameter on the average.

A good view of the fallen pine, against the bare end of which the remains were found in a sitting posture, is easily obtained from the track with the foliage as heavy as it is at the present time of the year. However, nobody had apparently looked into the woods of this particular place or had been attracted by any offensive odor, and the thick branches of the fallen tree perhaps formed a background against which the outline of the remains did not show up. This is only given as a probable reason why the discovery was not made at an earlier time, for there are quite a number of passersby on foot on the track opposite where the remains were.

HARD TO LEARN CAUSE OF DEATH.

The Review representative had a look at the body—or what was left of it—yesterday afternoon. It is buried in the old Springville cemetery, and to use a well-known expression there is "not enough left of it to hold an inquest on," but (as the result of Inspector Miller's investigation and inquiries the inquest opened will be continued, however, and the regular post-mortem performed on the remains.

Dr. Gray has been notified by the Attorney-General's department to proceed with the inquest, and the next session will be at Springville on Thursday afternoon at 5.30 o'clock.

There is very little flesh on the framework, the stomach, liver and all the other internal organs having entirely decayed, and there is no trace of them whatever. So it will be impossible to learn if the taking of poison was in anyway responsible for the death.

WAS IT SUICIDE?

Mr. Harold Baptie, one of the men who helped remove the remains, said the right leg had apparently been broken a short distance above the ankle, for when the body was lifted the piece of the leg from the break down fell off. This gives fairly substantial grounds to believe that the deceased committed suicide. A razor was found in the left hand, held in the manner a man would hold it when shaving. A theory is suggested that a man with a broken leg which he sustained while jumping from a freight, had managed to drag himself over the fence and into the woods, and had propped himself against the fallen pine, which was cut considerably over a year ago. As the nearest house is over half a mile away, it is judged, his cries for aid could not have been heard, and being unable to endure the suffering he cut his throat with the razor found in his hand. The can of Paris green found fifteen feet away from the skeleton may not have any bearing on the death whatever.

SEEMS TO BE A MAN'S BODY.

There has been doubt expressed as to whether the body was that of a man or woman. One thing certain is that if it was a woman she wore thoroughly masculine apparel. A pair of number six shoes, that showed so little signs of wear on the soles that the figure representing the size could be made out, were worn by their former owner. A man's hat—a black fedora—with no name any place inside the hat or on the hat-band, was also worn. The facing of the coat, the only part of it preserved, shows it to be a man's coat of apparently good navy blue material, and so little worn that the button holes and a small pocket are remarkably well preserved.

When Inspector Miller went out to Springvale on Monday the pocket knife and razor found on the man were so rusted he could distinguish no name of any makers or the brand of them, and he could not find a manufacturer's number on the shoes.

MINUTE EXAMINATION.

Yesterday afternoon, with the aid of a powerful glass the inspector was able to find out the name on the razor when the rust had been scraped away. The name "Bee" was on the shank of the blade. The examination of the knife was hopeless, it was so thickly coated with rust, and a scrutiny of the pocketbook showed no name on it.

The boots were also very closely examined, with the hopes the maker's trade number could be found on them with the name of the firm. If this were ascertained the store to which the lot including the number had been shipped could be traced and possibly the purchaser disclosed. For they were new boots, and taking it that the body had been in the woods for for a little over a year, the dealer might be able to recall a man, apparently of small stature and dressed in an English-cut navy blue suit and wearing a black fedora hat, who bought a pair of boots from that particular consignment. But all traces of the firm and number had been obliterated by the weather.

Inspector Miller is continuing his investigation, and will testify at the inquest to-morrow afternoon.

THE PASSING AWAY OF A WELL KNOWN PUBLIC SERVANT

This city lost a valued and respected citizen yesterday afternoon, when Mr. John Moloney passed away at his late residence, 270 Brock street, after an illness of several months. The late Mr. Moloney, who was 74 years of age, was born in Cashel in the county of Tipperary, Ireland, his parents being the late Michael and Mrs. Moloney. In the year 1859 he came to Canada and settled in Peterborough, where he conducted a lumber and mercantile business for twenty years. In 1868 he was married to Miss Maria Ambrose, daughter of the late John and Mrs. Ambrose, of Lindsay. During the earlier part of his life, the deceased took an interest in all matters pertaining to the betterment of the town, and was a member of the council in the year the Prince of Wales, now King Edward VII., visited here.

For the past thirty years he had held the office of clerk at the county and surrogate courts. As a government official and citizen the late Mr. Moloney was held in high esteem and to those who knew him as a friend or an acquaintance his many sterling qualities endeared him to all. He is survived by his wife, three sisters, Mrs. Wm. Tierney, New York; Mrs. Thos. Eagon and Mrs. J. B. Dunn, of this city; and one brother, Daniel Moloney, of Montreal.

In religion the deceased was a Roman Catholic, and a member of St. Peter's Cathedral. He was also identified with the Knights of Columbus.

The funeral will take place to-morrow morning at nine o'clock to St. Peter's Cathedral, and thence to St. Peter's cemetery.

SMITH STREET BRIDGE CONTRACT WILL BE TAKEN UP BY COUNCIL TO-NIGHT

The Smith street bridge contract is not yet settled. The increase in the price of cement since the tenders were put in has led to this hitch.

A meeting of the Board of Works was held last night, when the question came up again.

W. H. Moore, on behalf of Messrs. E. and F. Conroy, was heard, and said that since their tender was put in, and the tender of Begy & Co. was accepted, the price they had got for cement was lost, and the price had gone up 30 cents per barrel, and he would enter the contract by bearing one third of the sum.

No action was taken by the Board of Works, as a meeting of the City Council is being held to-night and it will come up then.

Mr. Walter Scott was heard and asked that he be given a part of the north end of Stewart street, and he would run a lane through to Lake street and build houses on Park street instead of on Lake street, with houses backing up in front of the church.

The matter was referred to the chairman and engineer, and the engineer is to prepare a sketch of the property.

WAS SKELETON FOUND IN THE WOODS THAT OF AN ENGLISHMAN?

From inquiries being made by Provincial Inspector Miller he is under the impression that the remains found near Kendrey Station may be those of an Englishman who may have suddenly disappeared from these parts about the time of his death.

As mentioned in another column of the Review, a "Bee" razor was found in the skeleton's hand. No razor of this make is manufacturer by Canadian or American manufacturers, but it is believed that a "Bee" brand is made in the Old Country. The shoes are so slightly worn that they might have been bought in Peterborough, for they show practically no evidences of having been used except for a very short time.

EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGN IN PETERBORO PRESBYTERY

The committee on evangelism met at the close of the session of the Presbytery of Peterborough last night and decided to follow out, as nearly as possible, in the approaching evangelistic campaign, the suggestions of Prof. Kilpatrick. Prof. Kilpatrick addressed the meeting in the afternoon on the evangelistic movement, and offered some most valuable suggestions.

The first half of the campaign will be held in the northern part of the Presbytery, which includes the three churches in Peterborough, and will commence on October 31. It will last for two weeks. It will then be taken up for two weeks in the southern part.

THE

Central Milling Company of Peterborough

Limited

AUTHORIZED CAPITAL - $100,000.00. - - In 4,000 Shares $25.00 each.

PROSPECTUS

This Company has applied to the Legislature for supplementary letters patent to increase their capital stock from $40,000 to $100,000. The new mill, which has been in the course of erection for some time, is about completed. The plans of the mill were made by Mr. John Fraser, of Milwaukee, one of the leading milling engineers of the United States. The Company has spared no expense to make it one of the most modern 400 barrel mills in Canada.

HISTORY OF THE COMPANY

The Company started business eight years ago last March. During that time they paid the stockholders 65% or an average of 8% yearly, and on the 21st of last month they gave the stockholders a bonus of 20%, making in all 85% or an average of 11% during the eight years. The cost of selling the stock and general promotion at the outset was about $4,000. Nearly all manufacturing companies add this expense to the cost of the building and machinery, but this expense has also been paid out of profits.

The money received from the sale of the new stock will be used to handle the increased business, as the cost of the new mill will be paid mostly from the reserve on hand.

PROSPECTS OF COMPANY

There is always more or less risk about buying the stock of any new company, no matter how rosy the prospects may appear, but the risk and uncertainity have been severely extracted from the business of the Central Milling Company during the time they have been in business, as the above statements plainly indicate, Only those who are in the manufacturing business can form any idea of the importance and advantages of an up to-bate plant. The new mill will have double the earning power of the old, on account of having double the capacity and the advantages of a modern equipment.

STOCK

The originally authorized stock of the Company, namely $40,000, was long since subscribed for, allotted, and is fully paid up. Of the $60,000 of additional stock which the Company will have when the supplementary letters patent are issued, $30,000 will be put upon the market at $1.10 (10 per cent. above par), and allottment will be proceeded with in the order in which subscriptions are received.

20% will be required to be paid with application for stock, and the remainder in two monthly payments of 40% each. Anyone wishing to subscribe may do so by calling at the office of the Company, or the Agent will be pleased to call at any address with the subscription sheets and give any further information required.

The Company's Auditor is Geo. K. Martin, 694 Water Street, Peterborough.

This Prospectus was filed with the Honourable the Provincial Secretary, 22nd day of September, 1909.

THAT WATCH OF YOURS

Is in many respects similar to a railway engine. Let an engine be run without oil or cleaning and before long it will stop dead. Upon examination it will be found that the friction and wear and tear has ruined the machinery, and it is fit only for the scrap iron heap. Likewise your watch. You put it in your pocket, and while there is a kick in it, you, in your mistaken economy, do not consult the watchmaker, and consequently rob your watch of years of good service and also much of its former accuracy. The time-keeping qualities of a good watch are maintained and often improved by timely and skilful attention. If you have been one of the neglectful ones call around and see us.

WHEN PARTIES MUST UNITE

The party which would take advantage of its customary opponents when the latter had co-operated in a "cleaning-up" would be wanting in patriotism, fine feeling and common honesty. It is only by such a co-operation that the process can ever be applied and to take a mean advantage of it would be to show at least one of the vices which it was proposed to correct.

Montreal has shown what can be done despite the feud of race and all other places might well take pattern where time has brought about a similar condition of affairs. Both parties have "the unfortunate element" as someone with fine scorn has called it therefore it requires a union of both parties to furnish the only possible means of retribution. It is in no sense a triumph of one party over another. It is the triumph of the decent men of both parties at a critical time. The advantage must therefore be mutual.

A REMARKABLE ARTICLE

The following is from La Patrie; "One reads in 'The Moniteur,' of Hawkesbury, Ont;—

We French-Canadians of Ontario are desirous of carrying to a successful conclusion a work which is to us particularly dear. We refer to the work of the Congress of Education of the French-Canadians of Ontario. The chief aim of this congress is to obtain schools in which the French language and religious teachings will occupy a place suitable to us, a place of honour. For the carrying-out of this design we must have bilingual primary schools, bilingual secondary schools, bilingual normal schools, and as a crown to it all a bilingual university.

It will be an exhausting effort perhaps to obtain them but it is beyond all doubt a work that merits our entire attention, all our efforts and also the assistance of our brothers in religion, the Irish. Let them leave us not merely a free scope for the attainment of our scholastic aims, of our national and religious destiny, but let them do more. We ask from them substantial aid and we will bear towards them eternal gratitude for it. We will then sign with both hands a true, lasting and solid alliance."

Orangemen and Protestants generally have been charged with many things by their religious opposites, but surely they never gave voice to such a straight bid for the disintegration of anything as Le Moniteur gives for the splitting up of Canada religiously, nationally and it is to be supposed every other way by an alliance. We venture to think the Moniteur is "unwise."

COMEDY DAY AT THE CRYSTAL

This is comedy day at the Crystal. The pictures, all new, are "The Seventh Day," a drama and two corking comedies, 1250 feet of comic film. The comedies are "Oh Uncle," and 'My Wife Has Gone to the Country." Come and have a hearty laugh.

Those of our citizens who are interested in and amused by good moving pictures, will be pleased to learn that Mr. Milton Bartleman, one of the most experienced operators and electricians in all Canada has returned to the city, and will hereafter reside in Peterborough.

Mr. Bartleman is the gentleman who installed the complicated and perfect electric system at the Crystal, Peterborough's leading place for cheap and clean amusement. He has been installing and operating moving picture places in Nova Scotia during the past few months. Mr. Edwards, proprietor of the Crystal, has been fortunate enough to secure the permanent services of this gentleman for the Crystal so that his patrons may now be sure that the pictures as well as the service there, will hereafter be the very best possible.

"RALLY DAY" AT CHARLOTTE ST

Efforts of the Management Were Crowned With Success

Charlotte street Methodist Sunday school observed Rally Day on September 19th. The efforts of the management were crowned with success. There was a large attendance of scholars and friends to hear Mr. Givens, who has recently come to the city, gave an excellent address on Sabbath School Work. Mr. R. F. Downey gave a short address also.

The music was of a very high order. The orchestra did good work. Misses Howell and Pringle sang solos which were very appropriate for the occasion, and Mr. Jas. Brown sang a very suitable solo.

MANY QUAINT CHARACTERS

In Delightful Presentation of "The Debtors" by Digby Bell and Distinguished Cast

There are many quaint characters in "The Debtors," which will be the attraction at the "Grand" next Monday, Sept. 27.

The pompous William Dorrit, as a central figure, portrayed by the well-known comedian, Digby Bell; the devoted, modest, but resourceful Amy, "The Child of the Prison," by Kathleen Clifford, on whom depends the greater part of her father's happiness, and eventually resulting in the restoring of his rights, causes many laughs and an occasional tear.

Love scenes with Arthur Clennam carry the love scenes of the piece. Her brother, the worldly-minded Tip, and his frivolous sister Fanny, cause little Miss Clifford no end of embarrassment, while she is trying to appear as a woman of dignity.

The balance of the cast is said to be one of great excellence. The plan opens Friday morning at 9 o'clock.

PASSED AWAY IN WINNIPEG

Death of William Quinn, Former Resident of Peterborough

The many friends of Mr. William Quinn, who nine years ago, was manager of the local branch of the Bell Telephone Co., will regret to learn of his death, which took place on Winnipeg a little over a week ago.

The deceased gentleman had been ill only two weeks, the cause of death being a hemorrhage. He leaves behind him to mourn his loss a wife and three children.

The late Mr. Quinn, before coming to Lindsay, was stationed in Peterborough, and at the time of his demise was local plant superintendent for Winnipeg of the Manitoba telephones.—Lindsay Post.

THE MODE FOR MEN

Carefully Compiled Fashion Book Illustrating the Style for the Season

A Style Book showing 36 authoritative Fall and Winter Styles for men has been published by the Semi-ready Company, and may be had free from any of the 200 Semi-ready stores and dealers selling Semi-ready Tailoring. The book is the work of designers who are acknowledged to be the makers of styles for men of the real sort. They are not the designs of theorists or artists, pictured in fashion plate style, but are the actual styles worn by men of refinement. The Style Book shows the clothes which mark the indefinable line between the men who know and wear good clothes and those who buy that which mocks good style and looks poorly after being worn for a few weeks. One can always pick out on the street the "country cousin" by his clothes, but after he has learned the wisdom and economy of the Semi-ready stores he may in appearance fully qualify as a citizen of any city. There is good profit in the knowledge that no good suit or overcoat can be well tailored for less than $15, and that suits at $25 or $30 cannot be reproduced for less money.

Most people think that the Semi-ready Company clothes have the largest sale in Canada. They have not in quantity, though they may have in monetary value. The Semi-ready will make up clothes which they can absolutely guarantee, by tests, for all wool, for color and for wear quality. They develop expert tailors, and there are not enough tailors in Canada who can reach their standard of workmanship to be had. They are training experts all the time.

Semi-ready clothes cost less than the commonplace retail tailoring, and infinitely less than ready-made clothing, if one gives a thought to the quality, service and satisfaction in well-bred tailoring like theirs.

TEACHERS AND OFFICERS WERE ENTERTAINED

On Tuesday evening of this week Mr. and Mrs. Henderson were At Home to the officers and teachers of the school. Mr. Boxall, of Lindsay, gave a splendid address on "The Teachers' Opportunities for Effective Work." Miss Pringle delighted all by her beautiful solo.

Mr. R. F. Downey rendered "He Knows" in his usual pleasing way. Light refreshments were served. Mr. H. J. Kidd made a good chairman.

WEDDING BELLS

SWEENEY—MULCAHY

A quiet wedding was celebrated yesterday morning in St. John's Roman Catholic church, Keene, when Miss Minnie Mulcahy, daughter of Mr. Timothy Mulcahy, was united in marriage to Mr. John Sweeney, son of Mr. John Sweeney, of Otonabee. The ceremony was performed at 10 o'clock in the presence of a number of friends of the contracting parties. Rev. Father Kelly was the officiating priest.

The bride was attended by Miss Florence Coughlin and Mr. Frank Fano supported the groom. The bride was dressed in blue voile over silk taffeta with hat to match. The bridesmaid wore blue silk mull and black hat. After the ceremony the bridal party drove to the home of the bride's parents, where a wedding breakfast was partaken of. Mr. and Mrs. Sweeney left on the four o'clock train for Winnipeg, where they will reside.

SPORTING NEWS

IT WILL BE A DOUBLE-HEADER AT RIVERSIDE ON SATURDAY

The rugby season will open in this city next Saturday afternoon at riverside park, when two junior city league games will be played. In the first contest the Rough Riders and T.A.S will meet and in the second the Collegiates will try conclusions with the Y.M.C.A. Their is keen rivalry amongst the four teams and the games are sure to be interesting although none of the teams expect to be in the best of shape for their first struggle. A little encouragement from the followers of the rugby game will help a whole lot and a good attendance at Riverside Saturday will be appreciated by the players and those who are working for the success of the league.

CRICKET

With the County Championship decided, the remaining cricket fixtures are of a holiday nature, except the Rest of England vs. Kent match, which, of course, will be serious enough. The Australian visitors had nothing in the way of advantage against Essex so far as the match progressed. Rain also curtailed the M.C.C. vs. Yorks match at Scarborough. The last stage of this was noteworthy for the efforts of Tarrant to reach his century, in which he just failed by 5 runs.

The early part of the football season is always noteworthy for a number of surprising results, the players not having had time to settle down. Dundee and Clyde defeated Glasgow Rangers and St. Mirren respectively, on Saturday, and now the only team in the Scottish League with the full number of points is Hibernians, with three clear wins. Morton heads the table with 7 points for 4 games, and these two, with Aberdeen, Airdrieonians and Heart of Midlothian, alone have avoided defeat so far.

Turning to English First League football, Aston Villa and Manchester United have commenced well and these teams look likely to do big things during the season. Tottenham Hotspur, the latest Southern Club to gain a place in the First League, has made a bad start, and so far Southern teams have not pleased their admirers. One outstanding performance last Saturday deserves mention. This was the 5 goals to 1 victory of Middlesborough over Sheffield Wednesday, and this, too, on the latter's ground.

SPORTING TALK

Fred Tenney, first sacker for New York Giants, is the latest to quit the game for good—and then start again.

Bugs Raymond, after the baseball season, will deliver "high balls" over a New York bar.

Detroit split even in a double header with Washington yesterday and Philadelphia lost to St. Louis.

Cy Young was beaten by his former team mates yesterday, it being the first time Boston succeeded in doing the trick, this season.

BASEBALL

A meeting of the secretaries and managers of the City League Baseball clubs will be held Friday evening at 7.15, in the Examiner Office. It is important that all interested be present as it is desirable that all business in connection with the league be settled at once.

RUNNING

Billy Parker, the Hiawatha Indian runner, came up to the city to-day and left for Toronto, where he intends competing in a ten mile race, one of the events in the athletic contests to be held at Scarboro Beach to-night. The Hiawatha runner is in fine shape and should make a good showing. He was accompanied by Mr. A. J. Johnston.

TO DISCUSS THE BUYING OF NEW FAIR GROUNDS

The Fair Directors expect to have a statement of the financial standing of the Fair Society this year ready in a short time, and when it is prepared they will call a meeting to which the public will be invited to discuss a proposal to get a permanent grounds for the exhibition.

Assessment Returns

The assessment returns for 1909 are being tabulated at the city hall and a summary will be published in the newspapers early next month.

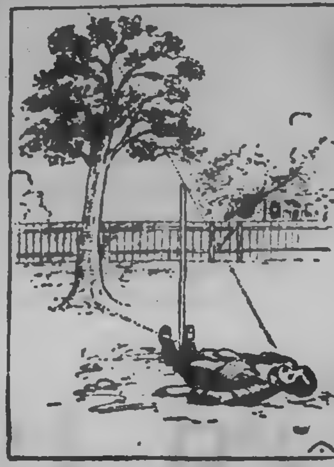
MEASURING A TREE.

How Height May Be Ascertained by the Triangle Method.

A clever boy who wanted to know the approximate height of a tree solved the problem in this manner:

He got a stick and planted it in the ground and then cut it off just at the level of his eyes. Then he went out and took a look at the tree and made a rough estimate of the tree's height in his mind, and, judging the same distance along the ground from the tree trunk, he planted his stick in the ground. Then he lay down on his back with his feet against the standing stick and looked at the top of the tree over the stick.

If he found the top of stick and tree did not agree he tried a new position and kept at it until he could just see the treetop over the end of the upright stick. Then all he had to do was to measure along the ground to where his eye had been when lying down, and that gave him the height of the tree.



APPLYING THE TRIANGLE MEASURE.

The point about this method is that the boy and stick made a right angled triangle with boy for base, stick for perpendicular, both of the same length, and the "line of sight" the hypotenuse or long line of the triangle. When he got into the position which enabled him to just see the treetop over the top of the stick he again had a right angled triangle with the tree as perpendicular, his eye's distance away from the trunk, the base, and the line of sight the hypotenuse. He could measure the base line along the ground and knew it must equal the vertical height, and he could do this without reference to the sun. It was an ingenious application of the well known properties of a right angled triangle.—Railway and Locomotive Engineering.

AN INTELLIGENT DOG.

What a Clever Collie Did With His Master's Plaid.

The shepherds who live among the hills and on the plains of Scotland have to travel many miles a day while looking after their flocks of sheep, but they would have to travel a great deal more if they had not with them some very clever collie dogs.

These little four footed friends are so wise and clever that their masters could not do without them. To show you how clever these doggies are the following story is told of one of them:

One day a Scotch shepherd was caught in a rain shower, and when he arrived home his plaid, which he wore over his back in place of an overcoat, was quite wet through.

But he just took it off and gave it to his collie dog, and doggie at once went into another room, carrying the plaid in his mouth.

And what do you think he did with it there? Why, to the astonishment of an English gentleman who had followed to watch, doggie went and sat on the hearth in front of a big fire, and there he held out the plaid over his paws.

And he turned it about and about in front of the fire until both sides of the plaid were quite dry. Then he took it back to his master.

May Be Read Both Ways.

Palindromes are words or sentences which read the same way, whether they are spelled backward or forward. Here are a number of good examples of this curious orthographical phenomenon:

Madam, I'm Adam (Adam introduces himself to Eve).

Able was I ere I saw Elba (Napoleon reflecting on his exile).

Name no one man.

Red root put up to order. (Sign for a drug store window. Reads the same from the inside as from the outside.)

Draw pupil's lip upward. (Direction to visiting school nurses.)

No, it is opposition.

No. It is opposed; art sees trade's opposition. (Sentence from a debate.)

Yreka bakery. (Sign over a baker's shop in Yreka, Cal.)

The Flying Hours.

Twelve little birds fly by in a row—
Bright little birds are they,
Shining and free and as blue as can be—
And these are the hours of the day.
The sun shines warmly across their wings
As they flutter their way along,
And now and again in their joy of things
They carol a daytime song.

Twelve little owls fly by in a row—
Silent and dark their flight—
Gray little things with shadowy wings,
And these are the hours of the night.
But the last of them all as he hovers low
Is flushed with a radiant pink.
This is the good little sunrise owl.
I like him the best, I think.

A NOVEL PASTIME.

The Modish Girl Weaves Her Rugs and Hangings.

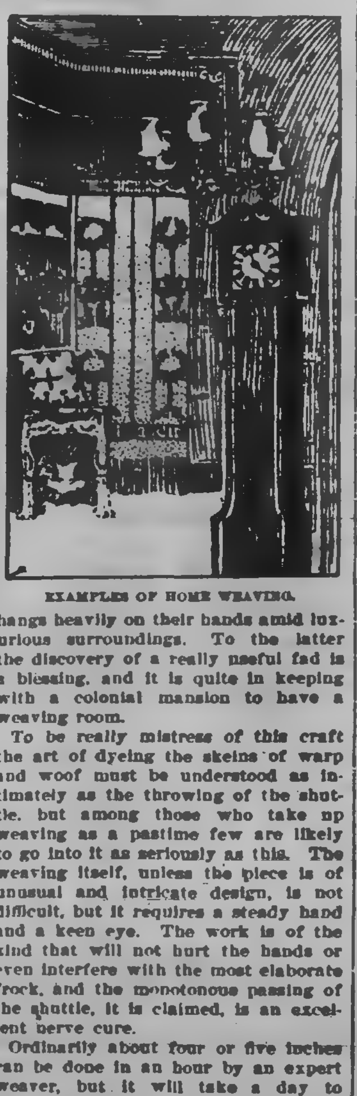
COLONIAL DESIGNS REVIVED.

To Run a Hand Loom Some Women Consider More Amusing Than Driving a Motorcar or Even Playing a Game of Bridge.

The "curtains of the twined linen and blue and purple and scarlet with cherubim of cunning work," referred to in the Old Testament, are now being wrought in spare moments by some of the younger women of society, who find that the delights of running a hand loom are superior to those of bridge and that the reputation gained thereby is far more novel and interesting. To exhibit a room in which all the visible furnishings are woven in the same design in colors to match the wall paper, and that by one's own hand, is a great delight, and more than one young matron is able to do it. A well known Massachusetts woman has copied the quaint designs of her own great-grandmother, and women who are interested in the welfare of the villagers in their various summer homes are learning hand weaving with the idea of teaching it in the girls' friendly societies.

This concerted movement means that all the eastern and some of the middle and southern states will have an old industry revived, and it is predicted that the various states will have definite designs, like hall marks, that will be always known as coming from a particular quarter. A pine tree, for instance, will mark the Massachusetts work, and so on.

Mrs. George Vanderbilt has already started a number of these looms among her Biltmore proteges, and they are turning out blue and white counterpanes that are copies of "old timers." These women are keeping to the more homely and larger sized articles for home use, leaving the smaller affairs for women who are taking weaving up merely to while away the time that hangs heavily on their hands amid luxurious surroundings. To the latter the discovery of a really useful fad is a blessing, and it is quite in keeping with a colonial mansion to have a weaving room.



EXAMPLES OF HOME WEAVING.

To be really mistress of this craft the art of dyeing the skeins of warp and woof must be understood as intimately as the throwing of the shuttle, but among those who take up weaving as a pastime few are likely to go into it as seriously as this. The weaving itself, unless the piece is of unusual and intricate design, is not difficult, but it requires a steady hand and a keen eye. The work is of the kind that will not hurt the hands or even interfere with the most elaborate frock, and the monotonous passing of the shuttle, it is claimed, is an excellent nerve cure.

Ordinarily about four or five inches can be done in an hour by an expert weaver, but it will take a day to thread a loom for fine weaving, and here is where the greatest care and patience are necessary.

The loom is a good sized affair and for weaving in comfort requires a room with a strong light that is used for no other purpose. Here the loom may be placed to get the best light, one or two wooden chests or old trunks can hold the skeins, and a long box also should be placed near by to hold the lose extra portions of the loom, such as duplicate shuttles or anything necessary for repairs.

Chamois Centerpiece.

Chamois is made by some nimble fingered women into very attractive table covers and other objects for which suede leather has been a favorite. A pretty centerpiece was made by one woman. The chamois was slashed at the edge to form a fringe. The center was left plain, but around this an odd border was formed of foreign postage stamps. The stamps were glued in place and firmly pressed down. The effect was not unlike colored stencil work.

IN A BARBER SHOP.

What Happened When Shadby Lost His Patience.

The barber had performed the operation with skill and dexterity, and as he was about to drop the foot rest and bolt Shadby upright he happened to think of his stereotyped list of questions and began:

"Face massage, sir?"

"No, not today."

"Hair singed?"

"No."

"Shampoo?"

"No."

"Electric scalp treatment?"

"No."

"Dipp's dandruff cure? Beg pardon, sir, but you need it."

"No, not today."

"Faker's skin food?"

"No."

"Manicure or shoe shine?" (Silence.)

"Hair and mustache dyed?"

By this time Shadby had lost all patience, and, whirling on the innocent talking machine, he shouted: "No, no, no! I don't want any of the things you rattled off, nor do I want a Turkish bath or to be measured for a suit. I don't want my teeth tiled nor a third leg grafted on. I don't want to be fitted to spectacles nor take a chance in a lottery. I came in to get a shave, and I asked for a shave. If I had wanted a glass eye put in I would have asked you. S-h-a-v-e, that's what I wanted. Now proceed with the comb and brush finale!"—Boston Globe.

His Greatest Happiness.

Four-year-old Lee's older brother was just convalescing from an attack of typhoid fever, and the fact that all solid food had been forbidden—not even much liquid could be given—had made a very strong impression on Lee's mind. The little fellow and his mother were invited out to dinner with a friend. Shortly after our arrival there the friend said: "Well, Lee, we haven't any playthings for little boys. What shall we do to amuse you?" And Lee replied, "Just let me eat."—Delineator.

THE FIELD CROPS AND LIVE STOCK

Report for August 31, 1909.

As a consequence of late sowing and summer drought cereal crops did not mature in the Maritime provinces, Quebec and the eastern and northern parts of Ontario until late in August. Elsewhere in Canada harvesting operations were practically concluded by the end of August, and in the western and southern parts of Ontario and southern Alberta cutting was well under way in July. In the Northwest provinces there was great call for harvest help, especially in Manitoba and Saskatchewan where hot and drying winds hastened the ripening of grain, but the continued fine weather helped out the situation there very satisfactorily.

For the whole of Canada the estimates of production based on the reports of a large staff of correspondents show for fall wheat a yield of 16,700,000 bushels and for spring wheat 151,686,000 bushels, being 25.22 and 21.39 bushels per acre respectively. The total yield is 168,386,000 bushels or 21.73 bushels per acre, as against 124,000,000 bushels at the same date last year. Oats with an average yield of 38.15 bushels per acre gives an aggregate of 354,919,000 bushels, and barley with an average of 30.55 bushels gives an aggregate of 56,975,000 bushels. At the same date last year the estimate was 269,944,000 bushels for oats and 49,488,000 bushels for barley. Other crops compared with last year show 8,184,000 bushels peas against 7,667,000, beans 1,311,000 against 1,282,000, buckwheat 7,794,000 against 7,727,000, mixed grains 19,524,000 against 19,380,000, rye 1,708,000 against 1,711,000 bushels, and hay and clover 10,246,300 tons against 11,128,000 tons. All field crops except hay and clover show higher averages per acre than at the same date last year.

Chapter 3

TO pick up once more and tighten and knot together the loosened threads which represented the unfinished record that his race had woven into the social fabric of the metropolis was merely an automatic matter for Selwyn.

His own people had always been among the makers of that fabric. Into part of its vast and intricate pattern they had woven an inconspicuously honorable record—chronicles of births and deaths and marriages, a plain memorandum of plain living and upright dealing with their fellow men.

Some public service of modest nature they had performed, not seeking it, not shirking, accomplishing it cleanly when it was intrusted to them.

His forefathers had been, as a rule, professional men—physicians and lawyers. His grandfather died under the walls of Chapultepec castle while twisting a tourniquet for a cursing dragoon; an uncle remained indefinitely at Malvern Hill; an only brother at Montauk Point sickened in the trenches before Santiago.

His father's services as division medical officer in Sheridan's cavalry had been perhaps no more devoted, no more loyal than the services of thousands of officers and troopers, and his reward was a pension offer, declined. He practiced until his wife died, then retired to his country home, from which house his daughter Nina was married to Austin Gerard.

Mr. Selwyn, Sr., continued to pay his taxes on his father's house in Tenth street, voted in that district, spent a month every year with the Gerards and judiciously enlarged the family reservation in Greenwood, whither he retired in due time.

The first gun off the Florida keys sent Selwyn's only brother from his law office in hot haste to San Antonio.

That same gun interrupted Selwyn's connection with Neergard & Co., operators in Long Island real estate, and a year later the captaincy offered him in a western volunteer regiment operating on the island of Leyte completed the rupture.

And now he was back again, a chance career ended, with option of picking up the severed threads—his inheritance at the loom—and of retying them, warp and weft, and continuing the pattern according to the designs of the tofted, tinted pile yarn knotted in by his ancestors before him.

Meanwhile he was looking for two things—an apartment and a job—the first energetically combated by his immediate family.

It was rather odd—the scarcity of jobs. Of course Austin offered him one, which Selwyn declined at once enraging his brother-in-law.

"But what do I know about the investment of trust funds?" demanded Selwyn. "You wouldn't take me if I were not your wife's brother, and that's nepotism."

Austin's harmless fury raged for nearly ten minutes, after which he cheered up, relighted his cigar and resumed his discussion with Selwyn concerning the merits of various boys' schools, the victim in prospective being Billy.

A little later, reverting to the subject of his own enforced idleness, Selwyn said, "I've been on the point of going to see Neergard, but somehow I can't quite bring myself to it—slinking into his office as a rank failure in one profession to ask him if he was any use for me again."

"Stuff and fancy!" growled Gerard. "It's all stuff and fancy about your being any kind of a failure. If you want to resume with that Dutchman, go to him and say so. If you want to invest anything in his Long Island schemes he'll take you in fast enough. He took in Gerald and some twenty thousand!"

"Isn't he very prosperous, Austin?"

"Very—on paper. Long Island farm lands and mortgages on Hampton hencoops are not fragrant propositions to me. But there's always one more way of making a living after you counted 'em all up on your fingers. If you've any capital to offer Neergard, he won't shriek for help."

"But isn't suburban property"—

"On the jump? Yes—both ways. Oh, I suppose that Neergard is all right. If he wasn't I wouldn't have permitted Gerald to go into it. Neergard sticks to his commissions and doesn't back his fancy in certified checks. I don't know exactly how he operates. I only know that we find nothing in that sort of thing for our own account. But Fane, Harmon & Co. do. That's their affair too. It's all a matter of taste, I tell you."

Selwyn reflected: "I believe I'd go and see Neergard if I were perfectly sure of my personal sentiments toward him. He's been civil enough to me, of course, but I have always had a curious feeling about Neergard—that he's forever on the edge of doing something—doubtful."

"His business reputation is all right. He shaves the dead line like a safety razor, but he's never yet cut through it. On principle, however, look out for an apple faced Dutchman with a thin nose and no lips. Neither Jew, Yankee nor American stands any chance in a deal with that type of financier. Personally my feeling is this: If I've got to play games with Julius Neergard, I'd prefer to be his partner. And so I told Gerald. By the way"—

Austin checked himself, looked down at his cigar, turned it over and over several times, then continued quietly:

"By the way, I suppose Gerald is like other young men of his age and times—immersed in his own affairs—thoughtless perhaps, perhaps a trifle selfish in the cross country gallop after pleasure. I was rather severe with him about his neglect of his sister. He ought to have come here to pay his respects to you too."

"Oh, don't put such notions into his head"—

"Yes, I will," insisted Austin. "However indifferent and thoughtless and selfish he is to other people, he's got to be considerate toward his own family, and I told him so. Have you seen him lately?"

"No-o," admitted Selwyn.

"Not since the first time when he came to do the civil by you?"

"No, but don't"—

"Yes, I will," repeated his brother-in-law, "and I'm going to have a thorough explanation with him and learn what he's up to. He's got to be decent to his sister. He ought to report to me occasionally. That's all there is to it. He has entirely too much liberty, with his bachelor quarters and his junior whippersnapper club and his house parties and his cruises on Neergard's boat!"

He got up, casting his cigar from him, and moved about bulkily, muttering of matters to be regulated, and firmly too. But Selwyn, looking out of the window across the park, knew perfectly well that young Erroll, now of age, with a small portion of his handsome income at his mercy, was past the regulating stage and beyond the authority of Austin. There was no harm in him. He was simply a joyous, pleasure loving cub, chock full of energetic instincts, good and bad, right and wrong, out of which, formed from the acts which become habits, character matures. This was his estimate of Gerald.

• • • • • • •

The next morning, riding in the park with Eileen, he found a chance to speak cordially of her brother.

"I've meant to look up Gerald," he said, as though the neglect were his own fault, "but every time something happens to switch me on to another track."

"I'm afraid that I do a great deal of the switching," she said, "don't I? But you've been so nice to me and to the children that"—

Miss Erroll's horse was behaving badly, and for a few moments she became too thoroughly occupied with her mount to finish her sentence.

The belted groom galloped up, prepared for emergencies, and he and Selwyn sat their saddles watching a pretty battle for mastery between a beautiful horse determined to be bad and a very determined young girl who had decided he was going to be good.

Once or twice the excitement of solicitude sent the color flying into Selwyn's temples. The bridle path was narrow and stiff with freezing sand, and the trees were too near for such lively maneuvers, but Miss Erroll had made up her mind, and Selwyn already had a humorous idea that this was no light matter. The horse found it serious enough, too, and suddenly concluded to be good. And the pretty scene ended so abruptly that Selwyn laughed aloud as he rejoined her.

"There was a man—Boots Lansing—in Bannard's command. One night on Samar the bolo men rushed us, and Lansing got into the six foot major's boots by mistake—seven leaguers, you know—and his horse bucked him clean out of them."

"Hence his Christian name, I suppose," said the girl. "But why such a story, Captain Selwyn? I believe I stuck to my saddle."

"With both hands," he said cordially, always alert to plague her, for she was adorable when teased, especially in the beginning of their acquaintance before she had found out that it was a habit of his, and her bright confusion always delighted him into further mischief.

"But I wasn't a bit worried," he continued. "You had him so firmly around the neck. Besides, what horse or man could resist such a pleading pair of arms around the neck?"

"What you saw," she said, flushing up, "is exactly the way I shall do any pleading with the two animals you mention."

Later she remarked, "It's just as Nina says, after all, isn't it?"

"I suppose so," he replied suspiciously. "What?"

"That Gerald isn't really very wicked, but he likes to have us think so. It's a sign of extreme self consciousness, isn't it," she added innocently, "when a man is afraid that a woman thinks he is very, very good?"

"That," he said, "is the limit. I'm going to ride by myself."

Her pleasure in Selwyn's society had gradually become such genuine pleasure, her confidence in his kindness so unaffectedly sincere, that insensibly she had fallen into something of his manner of badinage—especially since she realized how much amusement he found in her own smiling confusion when unexpectedly assailed. Also, to her surprise, she found that he could be plagued very easily, though she did not quite dare it at first, in view of his impressive years and experience.

But, once goaded to it, she was astonished to find how suddenly it seemed to readjust their personal relations—years and experience falling from his shoulders like a cloak which had concealed a man very nearly her own age, years and experience adding themselves to her, and at least an inch to her stature to redress the balance between them.

It had amused him immensely as he realized the subtle change, and it pleased him, too, because no man of thirty-five cares to be treated like a grandfather by a girl of nineteen, even if she has not yet worn the polish from her first pair of high heeled shoes.

"It's astonishing," he said, "how little respect infirmity and age command in these days."

"I do respect you," she insisted, "especially your infirmity of purpose. You said you were going to ride by yourself. But, do you know, I don't believe you are of a particularly solitary disposition. Are you?"

He laughed at first, then suddenly his face fell.

"Not from choice," he said under his breath. Her quick ear heard, and she turned, semi-serious, questioning him with raised eyebrows.

"Nothing. I was just muttering. I've a villainous habit of muttering mushy nothings"—

"You did say something!"

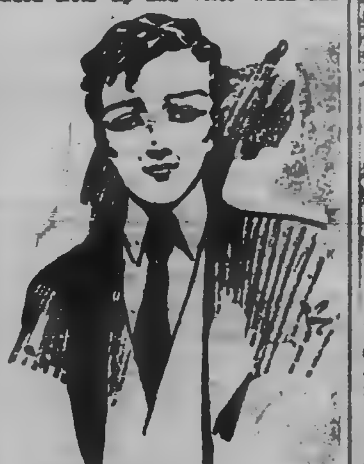
"No; only ghoulish gabble, the mere murky mouthings of a meager mind."

"You did. It's rude not to repeat it when I ask you."

"I didn't mean to be rude."

"Then repeat what you said to yourself."

"Do you wish me to?" he asked, raising his eyes so gravely that the smile faded from lip and voice when she answered: "I beg your pardon, Captain Selwyn. I did not know you were serious."



Gerald Erroll.

"Oh, I'm not," he returned lightly. "I'm never serious. No man who soliloquizes can be taken seriously. Don't you know, Miss Erroll, that the crowning absurdity of all tragedy is the soliloquy?"

Her smile became delightfully uncertain. She did not quite understand him, though her instinct warned her that for a second something had menaced their understanding.

Riding forward with him through the crisp sunshine of mid-December, the word "tragedy" still sounding in her ears, her thoughts reverted naturally to the only tragedy besides her own which had ever come very near to her—his own.

Could he have meant that? Did people mention such things after they had happened? Did they not rather conceal them, hide them deeper and deeper with the aid of time and the kindly years for a burial past all recollection?

Troubled, uncomfortably intent on evading every thought or train of ideas evoked, she put her mount to a gallop. But thought kept pace with her.

She was, of course, aware of the situation regarding Selwyn's domestic affairs. She could not very well have been kept long in ignorance of the facts, so Nina had told her carefully, leaving in the young girl's mind only a bewildered sympathy for man and wife whom a dreadful and incomprehensible catastrophe had overtaken, only an impression of something new and fearsome which she had hitherto been unaware of in the world and which was to be added to her small but unhappily growing list of sad and incredible things.

Returning from their gallop Miss Erroll had very little to say. Selwyn, too, was silent and absentminded. She thought of her brother, and the old hurt at his absence on that night throbbed again. Forgive? Yes. But how could she forget it?

"I wish you knew Gerald well," she said impulsively. "He is such a dear fellow, and I think you'd be good for him—and, besides," she hastened to add, with instinctive loyalty lest he misconstrue: "Gerald would be good for you. We were a great deal together—at one time."

He nodded, smilingly attentive.

"Of course when he went away to school it was different," she added. "And then he went to Yale. That was four more years, you see."

"Did he row—your brother Gerald?"

"No," she said. She did not add that he had broken training. That was her own sorrow, to be concealed even from Gerald. "No; he played polo sometimes. He rides beautifully, Captain Selwyn, and he is so clever when he cares to be—at the traps, for example—and—oh—anything. He once swam—oh, dear, I forget. Was it five or fifteen or fifty miles? Is that too far? Do people swim those distances?"

"Some of those distances," replied Selwyn.

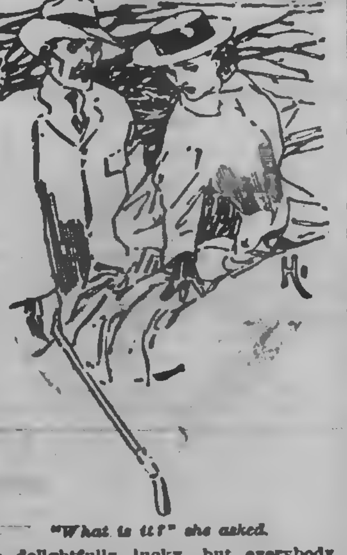
"Well, then, Gerald swam some of those distances, and everybody was amazed. I do wish you knew him well."

"I mean to," he said. "I must look him up at his rooms or his club or perhaps at Neergard & Co.'s."

"Will you do this?" she asked so earnestly that he glanced up surprised.

"Yes," he said, and after a moment, "I'll do it today, I think—this afternoon. Are you having a good time?" he asked condescendingly, but without intention.

"Heavenly! How can you ask that, with every day filled and a chance to decline something every day? If you'd only go to one—just one—of the dances and teas and dinners you'd be able to see for yourself what a good time I am having. I don't know why I should be so delightfully lucky, but everybody asks me to dance, and every man I meet is particularly nice, and nobody has been very horrid to me—perhaps because I like everybody."



"What is it?" she asked.

She rode on beside him. They were walking their horses now, and as her silken coated mount paced forward through the sunshine she sat at ease, straight as a slender amazon in her habit, ruddy hair glistening at the nape of her neck, the scarlet of her lips always a vivid contrast to that wonderful unblemished skin of snow.

He thought to himself quite impersonally: "She's a real beauty, that youngster. No wonder they ask her to dance and nobody is horrid. Men are likely enough to go quite mad about her, as Nina predicts. Probably some of 'em have already—that chucklehead youth who was there Tuesday gulping up the tea"— And, "What was his name?" he asked aloud.

"Whose name?" she inquired, roused by his voice from smiling retrospection.

"That chucklehead—the young man who continued to haunt you so persistently when you poured tea for Nina on Tuesday. Of course they all haunted you," he explained politely as she shook her head in sign of noncomprehension, "but there was one who—ah—gulped at his cup."

"Please—you are rather dreadful, aren't you?"

"Yes. So was he. I mean the infatuated chinless gentleman whose facial ensemble remotely resembled the features of a pleased and placid lizard of the reptilian period."

"Oh, George Fane! That is particularly disagreeable of you, Captain Selwyn, because his wife has been very nice to me—Rosamund Fane—and she spoke most cordially of you"—

"Which one was she?"

"The Dresden china one. She looks—she simply cannot look as though she were married. It's most amusing, for people always take her for somebody's youngest sister who will be out next winter. Don't you remember seeing her?"

"No, I don't. But there were dozens coming and going every minute whom I didn't know. Still, I behaved well, didn't I?"

"Pretty badly—to Kathleen Lawn, whom you cornered so that she couldn't escape until her mother made her go without any tea."

"Here comes Mr. Fane now with a strikingly pretty girl. How beautifully they are mounted," smilingly returning Fane's salute, "and she—oh, so you do know her, Captain Selwyn? Who is she?"

Crop raised mechanically in dazed salute, Selwyn's light touch on the bridle had tightened to a clutch, which brought his horse up sharply.

"What is it?" she asked, drawing bridle in her turn and looking back into his white, stupefied face.

"Pain," he said, unconscious that he spoke. At the same instant the stunned eyes found their focus and found her beside his stirrup, leaning wide from her seat in sweet concern, one gloved hand resting on the pommel of his saddle.

"Are you ill?" she asked. "Shall we dismount? If you feel dizzy, please lean against me."

"I am all right," he said coolly, and as she recovered her seat he set his horse in motion. His face had become very red now. He looked at her, then beyond her with all the deliberate concentration of aloof indifference.

Confused, conscious that something had happened which she did not comprehend and sensitively aware of the preoccupation which, if it did not ignore her, accepted her presence as of no consequence, she permitted her horse to set his own pace.

Neither self command nor self control was lacking now in Selwyn; he simply was too self absorbed to care what she thought—whether she thought at all. And into his consciousness, throbbing heavily under the rushing reaction from shock, crowded the crude fact that Alixe was no longer an apparition evoked in sleeplessness, in sunlit brooding, in the solitude of crowded avenues and swarming streets; she was an actual presence again in his life.

Chapter 4

SELWYN had truly enough expected to encounter Alixe again somewhere, though what he had been preparing to see heaven alone knew, but certainly not the supple, laughing girl he had known, that smooth, slender, dark eyed, dainty visitor who had played at marriage with him through a troubled and unreal dream and was gone when he awoke—so swift the brief two years had passed, as swift in sorrow as in happiness.

• • • • • • •

Luncheon had not been served when they returned. Without lingering on the landing, as usual, they exchanged a formal word or two. Then Eileen mounted to her own quarters and Selwyn walked nervously through the library, where he saw Nina evidently prepared for some midday festivity, for she wore hat and furs and the brougham was outside.

"Oh, Phil," she said, "Eileen probably forgot that I was going out. It's a directors' luncheon at the exchange. Please tell Eileen that I can't wait for her. Where is she?"

"Dressing, I suppose. Nina, I"—

"One moment, dear. I promised the children that you would lunch with them in the nursery. Do you mind? I did it to keep them quiet. I was weak enough to compromise between a fox hunt or fudge, so I said you'd lunch with them. Will you?"

"Certainly. And, Nina, what sort of a man is this George Fane?"

"Fane?"

"Yes—the chinless gentleman, with gentle brown and protruding eyes and the expression of a tame brontosaurus."

"Why—how do you mean, Phil? What sort of man? He's a banker. He isn't very pretty, but he's popular."

"Oh, popular!" he nodded, as close to a sneer as he could ever get.

"He has a very popular wife too. Haven't you met Rosamund? People like him. He's about everywhere; very useful, very devoted to pretty women. But I'm really in a hurry, Phil." Her voice dwindled and died away through the hall; the front door clanged.

He went to his quarters, drove out Austin's man, arranged his own fresh linen, took a sulky plunge and, an unlighted cigarette between his teeth, completed his dressing in sullen introspection.

When he had tied his scarf and bitten his cigarette to pieces he paced the room once or twice, squared his shoulders, breathed deeply and, unbending his eyebrows, walked off to the nursery.

"Hello, you kids!" he said, with an effort. "I've come to luncheon. Very nice of you to want me, Drina."

"I wanted you, too," said Billy. "I'm to sit beside you."

"So am I," observed Drina, pushing Winthrop out of the chair and sliding in close to Selwyn. She had the cat, Kit-Ki, in her arms. Kit-Ki, divining nourishment, was purring loudly.

Josephine and Clemence in pinafores and stick-out skirts sat wriggling, with Winthrop between them; the five dogs sat in a row behind. Katie and Bridget assumed the functions of Hibernian Hebes, and luncheon began with a clatter of spoons.

It being also the children's dinner, supper and bed occurring from 5 to 6, meat figured on the card, and Kit-Ki's purring increased to an ecstatic and wheezy squeal, and her rigid tail as she stood up on Drina's lap was constantly brushing Selwyn's features.

"The cat is shedding, too," he remarked as he dodged her caudal appendage for the twentieth time. "It will go in with the next spoonful of cranberry sauce, Drina, if you're not careful about opening your mouth."

After luncheon Selwyn and Miss Erroll met in the living room, a big square, sunny place, in golden greens and browns, where a bay window overlooked the park.

Kneeling on the cushions of the deep window seat, she flattened her delicate nose against the glass, peering out through the lace hangings.

"Everybody and his family are driving," she said over her shoulder. "The rich and great are cornering the fresh air supply."

For awhile she kneeled there, silently intent on the passing pageant with all the unconscious curiosity of a child. Presently, without turning: "They speak of the younger set—but what is its limit? So many, so many people! The hunting crowd—the silly crowd—the wealthy set—the dreadful yellow set—then all those others made out of metals—copper and coal and iron and"— She shrugged her youthful shoulders, still intent on the passing show.

"Then there are the intellectuals—the artistic, the illuminated, the musical sorts. I—I wish I knew more of them. They were my father's friends—some of them." She looked over her shoulder to see where Selwyn was and whether he was listening, smiled at him and turned, resting one hand on the window seat. "So many kinds of people," she said, with a shrug.

"You asked me," he said, "whether I know Sudbury Gray. I do slightly. What about him?" And he waited, remembering Nina's suggestion as to that wealthy young man's eligibility.

"He's one of the nicest men I know," she replied frankly.

"Yes, but you don't know Boots Lansing."

"The gentleman who was bucked out of his footwear? Is he attractive?"

"Rather. Shrieks rent the air when Boots left Manila."

"Feminine shrieks?"

"Exclusively. The men were glad enough. He has three months' leave this winter, so you'll see him soon."

She thanked him mockingly for the promise, watching him from amused eyes. After a moment she said:

"I ought to arise and go forth with timbrels and with dances; but, do you know, I am not inclined to revels? There has been a little—just a very little bit—too much festivity so far, not that I don't adore dinners and gossip and dances, not that I do not love to pervade bright and glittering places. Oh, no; only—I"—

She looked shyly a moment at Selwyn. "I sometimes feel a curious desire for other things. I have been feeling it all day."

"What things?"

To be continued.

To Produce Best Results
Flour Must Be Properly Aged

MILLS with insufficient storage capacity are forced to ship their flour before it is properly aged. Underaged flour requires expert handling in order to secure even fair results. In our big warehouses in six different cities we have storage capacity for 370,000 (98-pound) bags. We are thus able to store "Purity" Flour until it is properly aged.

You can never get underaged flour if you always specify "Purity."

Good results come easiest and surest with "Purity" Flour.

No Horse and Buggy Stole From This Exhibition Grounds Here

Chief Vincent received a communication from Peterborough, asking him to be on the lookout for a horse and buggy, the property of Mr. Tully, of Smith township, which had been taken from the fair grounds in that city. The outfit has since been found at Best's station and the buggy is said to have been badly damaged. Information later from Peterborough states that the thief has been arrested.—Lindsay Post.

The authorities here have not heard of any horse and buggy being stolen.

RESOLUTION OF BAR'S SYMPATHY

A largely attended meeting of the local bar was held to-day at 12.30 p. m., and the following resolution with respect to the death of Mr. John Moloney passed. A number of those present spoke of the excellent relations existing between Mr. Moloney and the bar and of their regret at his death.

"The members of the legal profession at Peterborough deplore the death of Mr. John Moloney, for so many years the Clerk of the County and Surrogate Courts, and Local Registrar of the High Court of Justice at Peterborough.

Mr. Moloney during his tenure of office was a careful, conscientious officer, ever aiming to act in conformity with established practice, always obliging and always scrupulously careful in the discharge of his official duties. In private life Mr. Moloney was the friend of everyone, honest, upright, and in his own quiet way, charitable and generously responsive to the appeal of the needy. In his death we lose one who was a good citizen and a personal friend of all who had the privilege of knowing the kindness of his heart the genuineness of his friendship and the simplicity of his life.

We condole with his bereaved wife and direct that a copy of this resolution be sent to her, and that it be inscribed in the minutes of the Local Law Association.

PETERBOROUGH PRESBYTERY HELD IMPORTANT SESSION

At St. Paul's Church Yesterday—Prof. Kilpatrick on Evangelism—Business of the Session.

The Presbytery of Peterborough held a very important meeting in St. Paul's church yesterday. There was a large attendance of ministers and elders, and the morning session was very successful. Rev. Mr. Skeene, of Baltimore, occupied the chair.

Probably the most important matter before the Presbytery was the receiving of reports from the members who had visited the various mission fields of the Church. The reports were all most gratifying. The students who were in charge of the fields in the summer months were certified to their respective colleges. Rev. S. S. Burns, of Lakefield, convenor of the Home Mission Committee, made a report on the excellent work accomplished through the missions of the Presbytery during the past summer, and he was authorized to make the appointments for the winter months.

There was considerable interest displayed in the evangelistic campaign which will be inaugurated by the church early in November. This is the first time the Presbyterian Church has undertaken such a scheme, and good results are anticipated.

In the afternoon a conference was held on evangelism by the members of the Peterborough Presbytery, in view of the simultaneous campaign in all the churches in the Presbytery during the month of November. Prof. Kilpatrick, of Knox college, Toronto, was invited to be present and meet with the members and explain the lines and methods to follow in the work.

The professor first dealt with the meaning of evangelism, stating that the Word of God has fallen somewhat in disrepute because of unwise methods. To him evangelism meant a Christianity, which implied a message or declaration of the Word of God to men. In other words the simple truth of the whole matter was that God saves through Christ. The apostles and preachers of all ages had declared that truth. This was the central, the fundamental and the ultimate truth. In order to have a permanent work, sane methods must be pursued. This would imply using all the best talent in song, in prayer, in personal dealing and in preaching.

In connection with this work the declaration of the one great central truth there would be the splendid inevitableness of the harvest, following seed sowing. He declared that it was the business of the church to undertake this evangelism just as the mother cares for her children.

A vote of thanks to Prof. Kilpatrick, moved by Rev. R. Pogue, and Rev. Mr. Beatty, was unanimously carried.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

The Exhibition Grounds

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—I noticed a letter in Monday's Examiner from James Peat, of Petrolea, that Peterborough should own her own Exhibition Grounds. I believe so, too, and have always been of the same opinion. I hope that the matter will be brought before the people and voted upon next January to buy our present Exhibition Grounds. If the city owned the grounds then there would be some encouragement to go ahead and put up suitable buildings and a first-class grand stand. I feel sure that we could run our exhibition for one week, and the merchants and the public know what that would mean to our city. It would be the means of bringing in a great many people to our beautiful city and they would certainly leave a good many dollars. We all know what the exhibition at Toronto means to that city generally. Well, our exhibition in Peterborough has been the best of all in every way, and I feel sure that the people have got confidence now that the president and directors are doing their best to make our exhibition the very best by providing good honest races and good clean attractions and getting the farmers and others to make their exhibits, and giving in return good large prizes as an inducement to get the very best. I feel sure that everyone who visited the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition this year went away pleased and satisfied and I feel sure that if the city will buy our present Exhibition Grounds htey will never have any cause to regret it. These grounds are the finest in this part of the country, with one of the very best half mile tracks all made. The stables are on the grounds and the grounds are all fenced and with a few hundred dollars spent on the building and grandstand, can be greatly improved, and it only requires the united efforts of the manufacturers, the merchants, the farmers, and the public generally to help make the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition one of the best in the Dominion.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space.

I remain,
Respectfully yours,
J. J. TURNER, sr.

Nothing Too Good

WE have had over ten years experience in supplying Toric Lenses to our most particular patrons. This form of lens is increasingly popular in all the large cities of America and especially in the United States, where the manufacturers have large capital and the best facilities for turning out accurate work. We are particular to have only the best, and judging from the increased number which we now supply, we deem our case in this regard is appreciated. There is nothing too good for the eye.

THREE WITNESSES TESTIFY THAT THEY HEARD BABY CRYING IN THE ROOM

Persons Are Found Who Heard the Sounds of Authers' Infant Being Choked—Police Informed That Wholesale Cases of Infanticide Have Taken Place.

Toronto, Sept. 23.—Three people who heard the Authers' baby being choked to death and ran to the room where the deed was being committed, is the latest and most startling feature of the evidence which the police have gleaned in the case of Mrs. Maud Turner, charged with the murder of the child.

Inspector Duncan says that he will produce three people who were in a house with Mrs. Turner Tuesday night and heard sounds as of a child choking. They rushed to her room, where the sounds seemed to be coming from, and entered the room. They found Mrs. Turner much agitated. She protested that the sound was coming from outside the window, but they insisted that it was not.

She, however, persuaded them to leave the room to go and look at the place where she said, and when they returned the sounds had ceased.

Dr. Dunlop, then believed to be "Dr. Turner," the woman's husband, said that the excitement had prostrated his wife and begged them to keep out, saying that he would give her something to quiet her, and they complied.

Information has also reached the police which may lead to the discovery of wholesale baby murders. They were informed from one source that a short time ago the woman had four babies in one house, and that all these have disappeared. Asked as to their disposal by those interested in them, she told of several places to which they had been taken, but when enquiries were prosecuted no trace of any of them could be had at the addresses indicated.

A further hint in this direction was given when application was made by a woman to adopt the child found at the Wood street house. This woman says that she knows the parents of the child and wants to adopt it, but she declares that it is not the King baby, as has been generally believed up to this time.

The question now arises, what has become of the King baby? It is also ascertained that Mrs. Turner took another child for adoption before either the King or the Authers' baby, and this, too, has disappeared. All of these clues are being followed by the police, and half a dozen of headquarters detectives are being kept busy on this case alone.

MUST HOUSE THE MILITIA COL. FAGES TELLS SYDNEY

Glace Bay, N.S., Sept. 23.—Colonel Fages, the officer commanding the troops here, has sent a communication to the town authorities advising them that unless the town takes steps to at once furnish winter quarters for the militia, he will proceed himself to build same, and in the latter event it will likely cost the town considerably more than if the town authorities did the work.

The Coal company has made an offer to the town to erect buildings at net cost of labor and material. The estimated cost is $7,900. The company also offers to supply a site without charging rent if the land selected belongs to the company, and will also give as many of its houses as the soldiers need without charging rent for these dwellings.

DAN McDOUGALL IS IN COURT

Montreal, Sept. 23.—Dan McDougall of the U.M.W.A., who is charged with libelling the Dominion Coal Co., in an advertisement in La Patrie, warning miners against taking employment from the company, was in court yesterday. John Lestrange swore that it was he who had translated the advertisement, and to the best of his knowledge McDougall had never seen it. Mr. Greenshield asked for an adjournment so as to get some papers from Sydney, and although Mr. Madden, M.P., objected to so many delays, the motion was granted, and the case will be resumed to-day.

CADET SOLDIERS FOR AUSTRALIA

London, Sept. 23.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—According to a Times' despatch regarding the Australian defence scheme, cadet training begins in 1911 and citizen training in 1912. When the scheme is in full working order it is estimated that it will provide 40,000 junior cadets, 75,000 senior cadets, and 56,000 citizen soldiers under 21. The militia, 25,000 strong, will henceforth be recruited only from the fully-trained men. It is hoped that after 1916 Australia will have a first line of 50,000 men ready to go anywhere, a second line of 50,000 ready to act as garrisons, and a third line of 140,000 composed partly of men who have had citizen training and partly of older-trained reservists.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Dr. Rupert Mitchell of Perth, Ont., who was with Shackleton, in his south pole dash, has returned home.

A 17-year-old Indian is in custody at Kenora charged with shooting and killing an aged squaw. He claims it was an accident.

News has reached Ottawa of the accidental drowning in Baskatong Rapids, near Bark Lake, Quebec, of Norman Taylor, aged 25.

Five minutes after his arrest at Jersey City depot for passing worthless cheques, J. Elmer White, of unknown address, shot himself.

Fred Mills got a bullet in his thigh and Bert Bell lost part of his thumb when a rifle accidentally discharged while they were hunting near Belleville.

The jury yesterday afternoon in the libel case brought by James Lowell, M.P.P. (Liberal), against Dr. Grey (Conservative), at St. John, N.B., rendered a verdict in favor of plaintiff, awarding him $1 damages.

An entire family of six persons were murdered and the bodies of all but one of the victims were burned with their home at Hurley, Buchanan County, Va., early yesterday. The motive was evidently robbery.

M. F. Ryan, of Kansas City, has been elected Grand Chief of the Brotherhood of Railway Car Men of America. Frank Paquin of Chicago was elected first vice-president, and Alfred Chartrand of Montreal, second vice-president.

THE NEWS AS TOLD IN DESPATCHES

Can See Over 'Phone Wire.

Mexico City, Sept. 23.—Alberto Sanches, an electrical engineer at present an inmate of Belem Prison, claims to have invented an apparatus whereby vision as well as voice may be transmitted over an ordinary telephone wire.

It is said the contrivance resembles short opera glasses attached to a battery.

Car-Tapper Fatally Hurt.

Brantford, Sept. 23.—Clarence Bridge, this city, wheel-tappper at the Grand Trunk, was fatally hurt in the railway yards at five o'clock yesterday morning. In walking in a sleepy condition from the fifth to the first track, he was struck by a shunting yard engine.

Russell Ready For Trial.

Lima, Ohio, Sept. 23.—Wm. Lockhart Russell surrendered himself yesterday in connection with the extradition proceedings instituted by the Ontario Government. Owing to illness of counsel, the hearing was adjourned, bail in $5,000 being accepted.

Hangs Himself at 79.

Auburn, Ont., Sept. 23.—John Holtzhaeur, aged 79, hanged himself. He had shown signs of derangement for some time.

Does One License Cover Both?

Stratford, Sept. 23.—Based on a technicality in the law an attempt is being made to force the proprietor of the opera house to pay a moving picture license in addition to his regular theatre license. During the summer the place has been run as a moving picture house.

Cobalt Typhoid Scare.

Cobalt, Sept. 23.—The typhoid situation is still serious, and so far as the cases entering the hospital from the mines is concerned, there appears to be no signs of improvement. Eighteen new cases have been admitted in two days.

More Fish for Muskoka Lakes.

Brantford, Sept. 23.—Some 20,000 young black bass were removed from the Government fish hatchery here yesterday, and will be placed in the Muskoka Lakes. The hatchery, which was in the nature of an experiment this year, will be enlarged next year.

Worth Seeing.

New York, Sept. 23.—A flight by the Glen Curtis from Governors' Island across the lower bay and around the Statue of Liberty probably will be the first aviation during the Hudson-Fulton celebration.

WERE ARMAMENT SECRETS SOLD?

Pekin, China, Sept. 23.—A report that closely guarded naval construction and artillery secrets have been sold to the Germans has precipitated anxious British official enquiries into the transactions and movements of a young man sporting a military title, who recently appeared in Pekin, bearing credentials from several foremost English manufacturers of warship arms and munitions, claiming to be a confidential instructor in the Chinese army.

Canadians on International.

Ottawa, Sept. 23.—Dr. J. C. Rutherford, the chief Dominion veterinarian, has returned from Chicago, where he attended the American Veterinary Association meeting. He has been chosen a member of the international board for the eradication of bovine tuberculosis. The other Canadians on the board are, Senator Edwards, Ottawa; Dr. Hodgetts and J. W. Flavelle, Toronto, and Prof. Torrance, Winnipeg.

Poisoned by Toadstools.

St. Catharines, Sept. 23.—Mrs. Theodore F. Swayze, wife of N. S. and T. R. Conductor Swayze, died very suddenly under peculiar circumstances. Some years ago she was poisoned by eating toadstools in mistake for mushrooms. When taken ill this time the effects of the poisoning came back and terminated fatally. She was in her fifty-second year.

Wholesalers Suffer From Dealing With a Bogus Buyer

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 23.—A remarkable series of frauds have been uncovered here in which Vancouver firms are interested, but in which eastern Canadian and American wholesale firms have also been victimized.

Robert Kelly, head of Kelly, Douglas & Co., wholesale groceries, received a letter a week ago from an Eastern supply house thanking them for a large order, and stating that the firm was very favorably impressed with Kelly's buyer, Mr. Blank. Kelly has no employe of that name, and investigation showed that a "confidence" operator has visited wholesalers in Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Battle Creek, Chicago and other cities, given large orders in the name of Kelly, Douglas & Co. and cashed a thousand dollars' worth of expense checks. These checks are specially forged with the photo of the Kelly C. Douglas building, and marked "accepted" with a fake stamp of the Bank of Montreal.

The names of other Vancouver firms and banks have similarly been used and it is thought that the swindler has probably clean up at least $10,000, while there is no telling how many carloads of goods are on the way west on his bogus orders.

SUFFRAGETTES ARE GIVEN HARD LABOR

London, Sept. 23.—Ordinary imprisonment having failed to check rioting on the part of the suffragettes, a magistrate at Birmingham, yesterday afternoon sentenced Mary Leigh and Charlotte Marsh, two of the ringleaders in the outbreak at the meeting in Birmingham the night of Sept. 17, when Premier Asquith delivered an address upon the budget, to two and three months respectively at hard labor. Another woman was given one month at hard labor and others various terms of simple imprisonment.

When the sentences were announced, a number of suffragettes in court picked up whatever they could lay their hands on in the form of missiles and broke the windows of the court room.

THREE MEN ARE GUILLOTINED

Valence Drome, France, Sept. 23.—A triple execution by guillotine took place in this city at daylight yesterday. Three men were decapitated for a series of atrocious crimes in the department of Drome, which created a reign of terror.

No less than 12 murders and 230 robberies are laid to the doors of these men. They often tortured their victims with red-hot irons.

A great crowd witnessed the executions and applauded wildly every time the knife fell.

CHAMBERLAIN IS IMPROVING

New York, Sept. 23.—The Herald's Liverpool correspondent cables that Mrs. Endicott, the mother-in-law of Joseph Chamberlain, who left Liverpool yesterday for Boston after her visit to Highbury, said that Mr. Chamberlain had greatly improved in health lately, though he is physically weak, which has been understood for a long time.

He is mentally quite clear, added Mrs. Endicott, taking an intense interest in political matters, and he follows the budget controversy every day very keenly, and the progress of the campaign for traiff reform gives him great pleasure.

CLOSE SECRECY AT PLENARY COUNCIL

Quebec, Sept. 23.—Close secrecy surrounds the business now being transacted by the Plenary Council of the Roman Catholic Church. Those in attendance have been strictly enjoined to maintain silence.

The deliberations of the council will last for a month. Then a certain number of decrees will be drawn up to be submitted to Rome to be sanctioned by the Pope. When that is done some idea of what the council has been doing will be gained. It will be a very meagre idea, however.

MANUFACTURERS ARE NOT A UNIT

Montreal, Sept. 23.—John Hendry, of Vancouver, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, arrived last night and says the matter of asking the Dominion Government to take the tariff completely out of politics and hand the question over to a commission, has not yet been completely threshed out.

Some, he stated, were in favor of the project, while others believed it would not be beneficial to the country; hence the necessity of going slowly.

Mr. Hendry believed, however, that if the association arrived at the conclusion that the change would be beneficial, the Government would carry out their wishes.

Major Nutt Dead.

Boston, Sept. 23.—Rodina Nutt, the last male survivor of the late P. T. Barnum's famous midget troupe, died at his home in Dorchester yesterday, at the age of 69 years. Since retiring, 19 years ago, "Major" Nutt, as he was known, conducted a successful real estate business.

Asphyxiated on Honeymoon.

Albany, N.Y., Sept. 23.—En route from Farmington, Conn., to Ballstone, N.Y., Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Petchard were found dead yesterday in a room of a boarding-house, having been asphyxiated, after a four days' honeymoon.

HAS PROVINCIAL LICENSE BOARD

Edmonton, Alta., Sept. 23.—By an order-in-council of the Alberta Government, an innovation has been made in the method by which liquor licenses are to be granted in the province.

A central license board, composed of three commissioners will adjudicate on applicants for liquor licenses throughout the province. The commissioners are, Dr. O. F. Strong, dentist, Edmonton; David C. Bayne, general merchant, Bankhead, and Ald. Thomas McKercher, a lumber dealer and merchant of Olds. There have been twelve boards of commissioners.

MILITARY MOTOR CORPS FOR OTTAWA

Ottawa, Sept. 23.—Ottawa is to have a motor car military corps. It will be attached to the 43rd Rifles and will consist of owners of cars who agree to their use in the event of an emergency. The name probably will be the Motor Association and the officers will be: Hon. president, the Prince of Wales; hon. vice-president, Major-Gen. Sir Percy Lake; president, Lieut.-Col. Rogers, 43rd; vice-president, Capt. Harry Ketchum; lieutenant and adjutant, Percy Harris.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW.

BALFOUR SHARPLY CRITICIZES THE LLOYD-GEORGE BUDGET

He Says it Does Not Meet Even Quarter Way the Offers of the Colonial Governments—It is a Choice Now Between Socialism and Tariff Reform.

London, Sept. 23.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Mr. Balfour, speaking at Birmingham last night, said that the old fiscal system had broken down, and the choice now lay between socialism and tariff reform.

It was intolerable that, while other empires were forging weapons by which they were going to withdraw from our sphere of commercial influence, our own colonies, we should sit by with folded arms and hiding ourselves under some antiquated formulae, refuse to look the facts in the face.

He complained strenuously because the budget did not meet half way, or even quarter way, the offers of the colonies to make with Britain a commercial and industrial system which should not be hostile to, but which should, in some respects, counterbalance the other great commercial systems which were growing up before our eyes.

Joseph Chamberlain wrote hoping that the Lords would see their way to force a general election. He did not doubt what the answer of the country would be.

While the Ministerial press points out that Balfour answered Asquith's challenge to say whether he would tax food, and failed to follow the House of Lords lead, the Unionist press expresses great delight with what is generally described as a great fighting speech. The Mail says it marks the turning point in the tariff reform campaign, and that upon Balfour has descended the mantle of Chamberlain.

Chamberlain, who heard it by electro phone, declared after Balfour's speech that the Lords were sure to act.

SAILORS ON THE EARL GREY TELL STORY OF HARD TRIP

St. John's, Nfld., Sept. 23.—A tale of suffering and danger was related yesterday by the crew of a boat which left the new Canadian ice-breaker Earl Grey, to attempt to obtain coal and provisions on the bleak Newfoundland coast, when the vessel's supply was nearly exhausted.

A number of the crew manned a boat and rowed fifteen miles to Bay Deverde, where they obtained two and a half tons of coal in sacks and some provisions, and after telegraphing to St. John's a report of their vessel's plight, they started to return.

Meanwhile a severe storm had arisen and the seas became so high that the boat nearly swamped. Finally, it became necessary for the men to jettison the coal to escape foundering. The mast and sail of the boat next went by the board.

The men were adrift all night and at daylight were picked up by a passing schooner. In boarding the schooner one of the seamen was badly crushed, while another had his arm broken. The men were landed at Carbonear, whence they were conveyed here. Tugs were sent out from this city and brought in the disabled steamer Sunday night.

SIR WM. WHITE AT MONTREAL

Montreal, Sept. 23.—Sir Wm. White, the famous naval architect, was the guest of honor at the first luncheon of the season under the auspices of the Canadian Club of Montreal.

Don Walter presided and was supported at the head of the table by Sir William White, Sir Augustin Baker, Col. Walker, Dr. Bovey, Dean Adams, Col. George Starke, Prof. Porter, R. C. Holden, E. E. Howard, Senator Dandurand, R. W. Reford, and R. S. Brierley.

Sir William said: "I have always preached and shall always preach the doctrine that the British Empire shall remain supreme at sea, and you can understand how happy one feels in the knowledge that throughout the Empire there is a determination that that supremacy shall never disappear."

CARPENTER WAS KILLED BY FALL

Toronto, Sept. 23.—While working on a building on Linwood avenue yesterday morning, Charles Everson, 65 years, 75 1-2 Wickson avenue, fell four feet from a scaffolding to a roof, and rolling to the edge of this dropped over and struck upon his head upon the sidewalk, breaking his neck. The owner of the building, who was with him, also fell, but struck upon the turf instead of upon the boards, and beyond a slight shaking up was uninjured.

CHICAGO HAS A BLACKMAIL CASE

Chicago, Sept. 23.—On bench warrants issued here yesterday, J. G. Haselton, jr., an attorney, and L. Scott Kempner, an actor, both of New York, were arrested Tuesday night. The complainants are Mr. and Mrs. James H. Channon, who declare the men have plotted to extort $100,000 from them. They had threatened to make public charges that Channon, while guardian of the estate of Mabel Arey, a relative by marriage, had been guilty of alleged irregularities.

Express Tariffs Are Filed.

Ottawa, Sept. 23.—The Express Association of Canada yesterday morning filed with the Railway Commission their tariff rates between United States and Canada and between United States and points through Canada. Judge Mabee, in sanctioning the tariffs, observed that it would be without prejudice to the general enquiry into the rates charged in Canada which will take place shortly.

REV CANON DIXON THE PREACHER

The annual harvest thanksgiving service will be held at All Saints' church this evening. The special preacher for the occasion is Rev. Canon Dixon of Trinity church, Toronto, who is well known here. There will be special music by the choir. The church has been beautifully decorated.

A meeting of the congregation will be held after the service, to take action regarding the new Hymnal.

LATE NEWS FROM MANY LOCALITIES

"Insanity" Saved Him From Chair.

Utica, N.Y., Sept. 23.—Peter Grimalgi, 21 years old, pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree and received an indeterminate sentence of 20 years. After a row with a street car conductor over change, he stabbed to death a passenger on the car. Grimalgi's defence was insanity, but he dropped all pretence of insanity after sentence.

Burglars at Stevensville.

Stevensville, Ont., Sept. 23.—Robbers early yesterday morning broke into the postoffice, M.C.D. depot, Detenbeck's store and in Robinson's store. They secured nothing from the stores, but at the depot four dollars were taken from the till. A letter torn and a few packages missing is the extent of the loss at the postoffice.

Duel With Sabres.

Havana, Sept. 23.—A desperate duel with cavalry sabres was fought yesterday afternoon in the parlor of a private residence in Havana, between Major-General Enrique Loynaz del Castillo, a former Congressman, and Wilfride Fernandez, editor of El Commercio. The general was seriously wounded in the sword arm.

Arrested on Nasty Charge.

Ogdensburg, N.Y., Sept. 23.—Leo Pulford, alias John Dowling of Montreal and Steve Nolan of Ottawa, Ont., were arrested here yesterday charged with selling girls from Canada into white slavery. Two girls from Ottawa, Emma Kerwind and Agnes Mannion, were held as witnesses.

Kingston License Reduction.

Kingston, Sept. 23.—The Civic Reform League will ask the City Council to have the ratepayers vote Jan. 1 on the reduction of tavern licenses from 28 to 20, or to one for every thousand of the population. This will mean a loss of revenue of $4,000, of which half goes to the city. Two years ago three licenses were cut off.

Made Big Profit?

Montreal, Sept. 23.—Some weeks ago M. J. O'Brien, contractor, and owner of the famous Cobalt property, made a new purchase from amongst the Gillies' limits for $10,500, and it has been known ever since as the Young and O'Brien mine.

It is reported here that they have sold out for $400,000.

Bomb for Taft.

El Paso, Texas, Sept. 23.—A bomb was found last night in the rear of the customs house at Jaurez, Mexico, a few feet from the platform which has been erected for the meeting between President Taft and President Diaz, on Oct. 16. More than 20 arrests were made. Jaurez is across the Mexican border.

PROBABILITIES.

Fresh winds, occasional showers today. Friday fair and cool.

An Anglican mission is proposed for West Hamilton.

Archdeacon Harding was consecrated coadjutor bishop of Qu'Appelle at Regina.

READS AND SEWS AT 98.

Winsted, Conn.—Her mind still bright and eyesight unimpaired, Mrs. Emeline Kellogg recently celebrated her ninety-eighth birthday. Aside from being a little deaf, Mrs. Kellogg is as well as she was half a century ago. Most of her time is spent in reading and sewing.

Old age should be a happy, healthy age. We all could grow old gracefully and probably live to be a hundred, did we jealously guard our most valuable possession—our health—in youth and middle age.

At the first sign of Constipation, Biliousness, Indigestion, Kidney, Stomach or Skin Trouble, "Fruit-a-tives" should be taken. "Fruit-a-tives", or fruit juice tablets, not only cure the specific trouble, but also so strengthen and invigorate the entire system that there is a marked improvement in the general health.

A little care and "Fruit-a-tives", taken regularly, are all that is needed to bring most of us to a ripe old age.

CAN THIS BE THE GLOBE?

The Regina Leader has the following pointed remarks in reference to the methods adopted by papers outside the province to secure circulation in Saskatchewan. The Toronto Daily Globe is sold in the west for $2 per year, the Winnipeg Free Press for $1.50, while in their home province the subscription price for those dailies by mail is $4 per annum.—Prince Albert News.

The Globe has told the world-at-large some thousands of times that the cure of protectionism is that the bloated industries sell abroad for less than they sell at home. This then is a plain case of the thing complained of unless the Globe is palming off on the people of the west the old copies it has been unable to sell.

THE RACES CAN UNITE

"I am proud of my French-Canadian fellow-citizens," said Ald. Larivière, discussing the vote. "After such a vote as we have seen to-day for the betterment of the city the cry of nationality should disappear forever. In future I hope to see all citizens working hand in hand for civic advancement. The way the French-Canadians voted to-day proves that they realize their duty as keenly as any other citizens, and that they are prepared to back up their opinions. I am specially proud of the way in which the people of St. Mary's Ward turned out to give a big majority for the Board of Control and the reduction in the number of aldermen.

"The citizens," continued Ald. Larivière, "will, I hope, continue this good work, and next February I hope that they will secure the choice of five good men to administer the affairs of Montreal on the Board of Control. I feel sure that when this is done that classes will be represented, but we do not care about nationality, so long as we secure good men for the coming board."—The Gazette.

In like manner the English-speaking citizens of Montreal are congratulating themselves upon the at least pro tem fusion of the two races. But one thing should not be lost sight of. While French-Canadian aldermen were plundering the city, English-speaking citizens were quietly bearing the burden of taxation, and they should be given some credit for that. It should count, and no doubt did count with the French-Canadian electors. After all, there is no excuse for a feud. A man who keeps showing his nationality, his religion (sic), his ancestry or his money under another's nose day after day deserves a trimming, or at least, severe criticism. It is a folly that should be left to the weakminded. It is absurd that the descendants of perhaps the most [illegible] in modern history should feel that it is necessary for them to fight for racial recognition. Not only that. In Canada it is a misconception. In public all of us should be Canadians. In private life it is open to all to speak everything from la belle francaise to bad grammar, and isn't that privilege enough! The disturbing flow of rival currents means simply confusion, not nationality. If the French, however, will not agree that the national representative language shall be in a British empire, the same language as used elsewhere in that empire, then let us, as a nation, adopt some other, but for Heaven's sake let us agree upon something if we are ever to be a nation at all.

A "FAMILY COMPACT" SURVIVAL

(The Montreal Star)

The Toronto Globe has been taking another "shy" at the naval question. We have been watching it for some time to see when it would again venture to pick up this "live wire." The last time it ventured, it let go with a rapidity observed in those whom "live wires" buffet but do not kill. No one—not even a "live wire"—could possibly mean any real injury to the Globe. It is "an amusin' little cuss"; and Canadian journalism would be much the duller for its demise. Its attitude towards the Ottawa Ministers is especially entertaining. It is always on the qui vive to show its independence by kicking a fallen Minister before the outside world know he has stumbled; and this eagerness to be first in putting its "thumb down," sometimes leads it to invite a Minister's resignation when he is not going to resign, and then—well, apply to Hon. Mr. Pugsley for further particulars.

Its last venture with the "live wire" of the naval problem was when it passionately broke its silence, after we had been prodding it for months over its Dreadnought gymnastics, by roundly accusing us of fassifying the record. To this we reply by giving space to its own Dreadnought articles; and, from that day to this, the Globe—so far as we have observed—has not uttered a whisper. In the face of its own record, it fell dumb. It had been mighty bold in its accusation; and now it became quite as cowardly when called upon for substantiation.

However, it cannot keep away from the question; and so discusses it in a recent article under the title "Tribute or Self-Government." There is fair and moderate discussion for you! If we decide to go to the help of the Motherland in the only way that can be effective "within the next two years"—the Globe's own date—we will, according to the Globe's violent way of thinking, be subjected to the humiliation of "paying tribute" and we will be imperilling our priceless boon of "self-government." We might retort that if we permit the British Empire to crumble to pieces under a blow delivered in the North Sea, we will soon lose our "self-government" to the big Republic to the south and will be paying "tribute" to Uncle Sam's navy.

The Globe begins by attacking a section of the Conservative press — for which we hold no "brief"—because it seems to favor the policy of "tribute." "The unvarying policy of that section of the press," it continues, "is in every case to await Government action and then take the other side." This sounds like a policy of singularly lacking in principle; but what would the great and good Globe think of a newspaper which did not await Government action, but rushed with a stout declaration in favor of joining with the other colonies in placing "three Dreadnoughts at the disposal of the Motherland . . . within the next two years;" and then, when Government action came and did not contain a syllable about Dreadnoughts, this same paper dropped its Dreadnought talk, like a hot potato and rallied to the quite different policy of the Government? The Globe will observe that such a paper might occupy a more dignified attitude before the country if it did on occasion "await Government action" before announcing its own unalterable principles.

However, the Globe enjoys nothing so much as emphasis, and so is quite as emphatic in support of its new policy—its policy adopted after "Government action" had blown its "Dreadnoughts" out of the water. It has now no word for helping Britain with her fleet but "tribute" and insists that to take such a course would be tantamount to admitting that "the struggle for self-government was a mistake." Such action it compares to the time when it was "the accepted doctrine that Colonials could not be wholly trusted with the management of any branch of their public service," and "when even the post office was manned in its higher offices by civil servants appointed by the Home Government." Of course, we would accept no such humiliating position to-day; and "the proposal that with respect to one national service we should go back to the ancient regime could only be made by some belated survivals of the Family Compact days."

These be brave words! But where, we wonder, does the Globe intend to get the naval officers to man the third class cruisers that rumor says we intend to borrow as a forward naval policy, or even the ships we are eventually to build or get built for us to form the nucleus of our very own navy. We have precious few experienced naval officers ready to supply such a service; nor will we have when the ships are ready, unless the Globe proposes to postpone that proud day until Armageddon has passed far into history. But if it be difficult to get such home-grown officers for our dauntless fleet of borrowed cruisers, what would have been our position had the Globe's first policy been adopted? If we had put a Canadian Dreadnought in the Imperial Navy "within two years"—as the Globe frantically demanded last March — where would the equipment of officers and crew, gunners and marines, have come from to work it?

Obviously they must have been borrowed from Britain. Now if this is the fair inference as to the meaning of the Globe's first proposal, then the Globe will not have to look very far from home to find "that belated survival of the Family Compact days" which proposed "such a piece of reactionary old-fogyism." The Globe should really take something for this chronic tendency to suffer from a rush of words to the head. If it can only manage to say things with a swing, it does not seem to care very much what they mean or into what ridiculous position they may land a paper which George Brown, at all events made respected.

MAGISTRATE'S SKIN DISEASE CURED

Magistrate F. Rasmussen, of 211, Marquette Street, Montreal, writes to the Zam-Buk Co. as follows:—

"Gentlemen,—For many years I was troubled with a serious eruption of the skin, which was not only unsightly, but at times very painful. I first tried various household remedies, but all these proved altogether useless.

"I then took medical advice. Not one, but several doctors in turn were consulted, but I was unable to get any permanent relief. Some time back I noticed a report from a Justice of the Peace who had been cured of a chronic skin-disease by Zam-Buk, and I determined to give this balm a trial.

"After a thoroughly fair test, I can say I am delighted with it. I have the best reasons for this conclusion; because, while everything else I tried—salves, embrocations, washes, soaps, and doctors' preparations failed absolutely to relieve my pain and rid me of my trouble, three boxes of Zam-Buk have worked a complete cure.

"In my opinion Zam-Buk should be even more widely known than it is, and I have no objection to you publishing this letter."

For eczema, eruptions, rashes, tetter, itch, ringworm, and similar skin diseases, Zam-Buk is without equal. It also cures cuts, burns, scalds, piles, abscesses, chronic sores, blood-poisoning, etc. All druggists and stores at 50 cents a box, or post free for price from the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The proposal to introduce Oriental labor for the building of the mountain section of the Transcontinental should not be so much as considered. If the Orientals come to build railways they will take for other purposes after the work is completed. The experience of the south ought to be sufficient to prevent a race question such as exists there from being even so much as introduced in any other part of the continent.—Weekly Sun.

A portion of the Gillies limit has been sold by the Government for about a quarter of a million dollars. The price does not seem high in view of certain figures recently mentioned in connection with the property But it must be remembered that for all time the purchasers are to turn 10 per cent of the output into the provincial treasury. The first price is a comparatively minor matter; the imposition of a permanent royalty on the wealth produced is the important thing. In insisting on a royalty the Government has done well."—The Weekly Sun.

The Toronto Telegram says;—

"Does the law compel Hon. Charles Murphy to issue a charter to every applicant who complies with certain legal forms?

If not the law should be changed.

Clothe a department of state with the right to discriminate between applicants for corporate powers and charters will soon become patronage.

Permit officials or Cabinet Ministers to pick and choose between applicants for the right to a corporate existence and soon nobody will be able to get a charter in this country but a supporter of the Government."

So that if legal forms are complied with any sort of a company may be formed, may it? Our imagination is staggered with what might be chartered with the Telegram's idea rampant in a charter-giving office. Does the Telegram not know that "Fraud vitiates everything" is a maxim of the law? According to the Telegram gambling-hells might be incorporated under the name of an S.P.G.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—London cables for cattle are higher, at 13c to 14c per lb. for Canadian steers, dressed weight. refrigerator beef is quoted at 11¼c to 11½c per lb.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Sept. 22.—(Special.)—At the Canadian Pacific Live Stock Market this morning the offerings consisted of 1300 cattle, 850 sheep, 850 lambs, 650 hogs and 300 calves. Owing to the continued liberal supplies of cattle coming forward, an easy feeling prevails in the market and prices have a downward tendency, they being ¼c per pound lower than on Monday. Owing to the fine weather there was a large gathering of buyers and as they all wanted a few cattle, an active trade was done. A feature of the day's trading was the very good demand from packers and canners, and about 500 head were bought for this purpose, $2.50 to $2.80 for bulls and $1.40 to $1.65 for cows per cwt. Choice steers sold at 5c; good, at 4½c to 4¾c; fair, at 3¾c to 4c; good cows, at 4c to 4½c; common, at 3¼c to 3½c, and bulls, at 2¼c to 3¼c per lb.

Supplies of sheep and lambs were very large and in consequence the undertone to the market was easier, but prices showed no actual change, as compared with Monday's figures. A feature of the trade was the demand from American buyers for lambs, and several car loads were bought for shipment to New York. The impression is that if this demand continues for any length of time prices will very soon be affected. There was also a good demand from local buyers and on the whole an active trade was done. Sheep sold at 3¾c and lambs at 5¾c per lb. Calves were in good demand, of which the offerings were small and prices ruled high at from $3 to $15 each, as to size and quality. There was no change in the condition of the market for hogs, prices being steady under a good demand and sales of selected lots were made at $9 to $9.25 and mixed lots at $8.50 per cwt., weighed off cars.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Sept. 22.—Cattle, steady; prime steers, $6.65 to $7.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 2400 head; active; sheep, steady; lambs, 10c higher; lambs, $5 to $7.40; a few $7.60; yearlings, $5.25 to $5.50; wethers, $5 to $5.15; ewes, $4.25 to $4.75; sheep, mixed, $2 to $4.75; Canada lambs, 7.25 to $7.50.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—Beeves—Receipts, 1914; good to choice heavy steers, heavy; others slow to unevenly lower; calves and cows, steady to a shade higher; steers, $4.80 to $6.80; oxen and stags, $4 to $5.50; bulls, $3 to $4.25. cows and heifers, $1.50 to $4.25. Exports, 2250 quarters of beef.

Calves—Receipts, 1827. Veals, firm to 25c higher; grassers, firm; westerns, easy; veals, $5.50 to $10.25; throwouts, $4.50 to $5; grassers, $3.50 to $4.25; yearlings, $3 to $3.25; western, $6.10.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 10,210; sheep, steady; lambs, slow, but gradually steady. Sheep, $2.50 to $5; culls, $1.75 to $2.25; lambs, $5.25 to $7.75; culls, $4 to $5.00.

Hogs—Receipts, 2200; market, 10c to 15c off, at $8.25 to $8.50; pigs, $8.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—Cattle—Receipts, estimated, 14,000; market, steady to strong; steers, $5.60 to $8.10; cows, $3.50 to $5.25; heifers, $3.50 to $6.75; bulls, $3 to $4.85; calves, $3 to $9; stockers and feeders, $3.25 to $5.50.

Hogs Receipts, estimated 18,000; market steady to strong; choice heavy, $8.25 to $8.35; butchers, $8.25 to $8.40; light mixed, $7.80 to $8; choice light, $8 to $8.25; packing, $7.75 to $8.10; pigs, $5.50 to $7; bulk of sales, $8 to $8.20.

Sheep—Receipts, estimated 35,000; market for lambs, 10c to 15c lower; others, steady; sheep, $4 to $5; lambs, $6 to $7.25; yearlings, $5 to $5.40.

End of Universe To-morrow.

Providence, R.I., Sept. 23.—True to their belief that a great upheaval is about to occur, whereby the top crust of the earth will peel off, carrying the wicked to destruction and leaving the "elect" in undisputed possession of the world, several Rhode Island families belonging to the sect known as the Latter Reign of the Apostolic Church, have gone to Duxbury, Mass., an appointed place, to wait for the cataclysm on Friday at 10 a.m.

Railway Officials Summoned.

Cincinnati, Sept. 23.—Subpoenaes commanding the presence of about 20 leading officials of several railroads, before the Federal grand jury here, the first week in October, have been issued. Those ordered to appear are ordered to bring with them certain papers.

Former Official Sentenced.

Buffalo, N.Y., Sept. 23.—Jared C. Wood, former cashier in the county treasurer's office, who pleaded guilty to grand larceny in the second degree, was sentenced to not less than two and a half years nor more than five years in Auburn Prison.

Mrs. Peter Marette, of Utica, N.Y., is accused of having poisoned her husband.

A CLEVER RECTOR.

How He Got All the Young Men to Church on Sunday.

"Many interesting stories are told of Bishop Wilmer of Alabama, who was noted for his wit and sharp repartee," said a clergyman. "A story which is considered characteristic of the man was told by a Virginia minister:

"'When Bishop Wilmer was rector of the little Protestant Episcopal church at Upperville, Va., he was much worried by the nonattendance at service on Sundays of the majority of the young men of the community. On inquiry he found that instead of going to church they were in the habit of playing marbles for stakes. Marbles in those days, it must be remembered, was a much more serious game than it is now, occupying much the same position in the realm of sports as do billiards and pool in these days.

"'Bishop Wilmer, then a parson not well known, determined to break up this practice. He himself had been an expert marble player in his boyhood. Accordingly one Saturday he came across a number of the young men engaged in a game. The good bishop asked several questions and finally challenged the lot to play him for "keeps." They readily consented.

"'Much to their astonishment, the young minister won steadily, and soon they had to go to the stores to replenish their stock. Toward the close of the afternoon Mr. Wilmer had won every marble in the town of Upperville. Putting his "winnings" in a bag, he remarked as he walked away, "Now, gentlemen, since you can't play marbles tomorrow I hope to see you all at church." And he did.'"—Washington Herald.

SERVED THE TERRAPIN.

Crossed the Ocean to Supervise One Course of a Dinner.

George W. Harvey, the inventor of steamed oysters and a famous restaurant keeper, was once the hero of an incident that in some respects made the exploits of Lucullus and other noted gourmets of ancient Rome look cheap and commonplace. He made a 6,000 mile journey to cook or supervise the cooking of a single course of a dinner.

A wealthy Englishman noted for his love of good living while on a visit to Washington was given a dinner at Harvey's, at which terrapin formed the piece de resistance. It was the first time the Englishman had encountered the famous Maryland delicacy, and it made an instantaneous and profound hit with him. He decided that he would introduce the dish to his London friends and at once entered into negotiations with Harvey to come to London and do the cooking.

Harvey named his price, and it was accepted without a murmur, although it was a stiff one, as he was a very portly man and did not like to travel. At the appointed time he engaged his passage for England, took a sufficient number of live terrapin along with him and sailed for London. He supervised the preparation of the turtles in the kitchen of his generous employer, saw that they were cooked and served properly, collected his £200 honorarium and his expenses and took the next steamer back to New York.—Exchange.

The New Kind.

Among the passengers in a parlor car attached to a southern train leaving Washington were a reticent individual desirous of reading his paper and a talkative person equally desirous of engaging the reserved one in conversation. At first the reticent man took the questions of his neighbor in good part, returning short but polite answers. Finally, however, he grew somewhat irritated at the persistence of the other.

"The grass is quite green, eh?" was the idle query that next came from the garrulous one as he gazed through the window.

"Quite!" said the bored one, with a smothered growl. "But, then, consider what a change it is from the pink and mauve grass we've been having lately!"—Harper's Weekly.

Encouraging.

It was Bilkin's wedding day, and he was teasing his young brother-in-law.

"Well, Johnnie," he said solemnly, "I'm going to take your sister a long way off and have her all to myself, where you won't see her any more."

"No; really, are you?" said the lad curiously.

"Yes, I am. What do you think of it?"

"Nothin'. I can stand it if you can."—Pearson's Weekly.

Generous.

"What's your fare?" asked old Flintskin of his cabby the other day and was met with the stereotyped reply:

"Well, sir, I will leave that to you."

"Thank you; you're very kind," said old F., buttoning up his pockets and walking off. "You're the first person who ever left me anything yet."—London Fun.

Not at First.

"When you first saw Niagara falls did you feel that almost irresistible impulse to throw yourself over the precipice that so many experience?"

"No. I hadn't seen my hotel bill yet."—Cleveland Leader.

Quite Simple.

"What will you do with your money when you die?"

"I shall leave it to my children."

"But suppose you have no children?"

"Then it will go to my grandchildren!"

Peace is not mere tranquillity, for tranquillity may be indifference.—Duffield.

The Cultured Cuisine.

"So your daughter has been to cooking school?"

"Yes," answered Mrs. McGindley.

"I suppose she has helped along the household economies?"

"Not exactly. She has made us appreciate our regular cook so much that we have to raise her wages every time she threatens to leave."

Educational Department of Peterborough Y.M.C.A.

In a booklet issued by the local Y. M. C. A., the following prospectus is given of the winter's work:

NOW IS THE TIME for young men to decide how they will spend the long evenings of the fall and winter and early spring. There are many ways in which the time between the hours of work and bed time may be filled. The wise young man will not spend all that time in pleasure seeking, but will make some of those hours profit producing by fitting himself for larger usefulness in whatever occupation he is engaged.

The Young Men's Christian Association in the Educational Department is offering to the boys and men of Peterborough means of self-improvement as hereinafter specified.

A Literary and Debating Club will be organized early in October. Mr. W. S. Davidson has consented to assist in the direction of the organization and conduct of this club. All those interested should leave their names at the Association office, so that they may be notified of the organization meeting.

Checkers and Chess While these games are more or less of a social feature, yet there is an element of mind training in them that is valuable. Provision is made for these games and it is expected that a club will be formed.

Matriculation Class Last year an experiment was tried by the Association in the matter of conducting a class in the study of Matriculation subjects. The experiment proved gratifying in results so that it was decided to continue the class this year and the enrollment promises to be larger than last year. Class sessions begin September 14th. Terms may be had on application to the General Secretary. The best teachers in the city are secured for this class.

School of Salesmanship Every man has something to sell — ABILITY. The Association has secured the control in Peterborough of the text books of the National School of Salesmanship of Minneapolis. With these books as a basis for study, and meeting one night a week to be directed in that study by a capable man, will help a young man to increase his earning power, no matter what his occupation, and to improve his personality.

Mr. D. H. Moore has been secured as leader of this class.

TERMS:—Text books cost $10 for the set containing twenty to twenty-five lessons and thirty printed lectures. Tuition: $3.00 for the course. Each student must provide himself with a set of the books.

Sign Painting and Show Card Writing To-day a great many signs and show cards are used and in many cases it is a decided asset to a young man to be able to make a neat sign or show card.

Mr. Henry Harell will give twenty lessons in this subject that will be most practicable.

TERMS: — $2.00 for the course of twenty lessons.

First Aid to the Injured Every man should know how to render "First Aid" before the doctor arrives. The lectures of the St. John's Ambulance Association will be given and those passing the prescribed examinations may secure the medallion and have their names enrolled in the St. John's Ambulance Association in London, England.

The course consists of five lectures in "First Aid" and five in "Nursing." Lecturer: Dr. A. W. McPherson.

TERMS:—Two text books, 40c each. $1 fee for the ten lectures and two examinations.

Employed Boys' Class Mr. R. F. Downey, Principal of the Central School, will conduct a class for employed boys in Arithmetic, Spelling and Writing. There will be twenty lessons, one each week. TERMS:—$2 for the course.

Penmanship Some people consider it a mark of a high type of intellect to write an illegible hand. Anybody can do that. Every person can learn with care and proper instruction to write a neat, legible hand.

Mr. J. A. McKone, Principal of the Peterborough Business College and Instructor in Penmanship at the Normal School, will conduct a class in this subject.

TERMS:—$1.50 for the fifteen lessons. A suitable medal will be presented to the student making the most improvement during the term, judged by a competent committee.

The Association Orchestra under the leadership of Mr. Roland Common, meets in the parlor on Tuesday evenings at 8 o'clock. For information in reference to becoming a member of the orchestra, apply at the office or see the leader on the night of meeting.

Male Chorus If sufficient members desire it, a chorus will be organized under the leadership of a competent director.

The Educational Committee of the Association reserves the right to withdraw any of the classes advertised.

Only members of the Association admitted to the Classes.

Class fees are payable in advance.

For further information apply at the Association office.

F. G. HASSARD,

Dandruff Cured in Two Weeks or Money Back

The above is the guarantee W. Madill, the druggist, is offering for Parisian Sage, the greatest of all hair restorers.

If you have dandruff, take advantage of this offer and kill the little dandruff germs that will surely steal your hair from you if allowed to continue to persistently burrow into the hair roots.

Parisian Sage is also guaranteed to stop falling hair and itching of the scalp.

Don't accept any substitute from any druggist. Parisian Sage is the original prescription of one of the world's greatest scientists, and is manufactured only in America by Giroux Mfg. Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Fort Erie, Ont.

Parisian Sage is an exhilarating and pleasant hair dressing; it is not sticky or greasy, and it makes the hair soft, beautiful and luxuriant.

Price is 50 cents a bottle from W. Madill, druggist, Peterborough, or by express all charges prepaid, by Giroux Mfg. Co., Fort Erie, Ont.

In moving and settling down, the family had subsisted on short rations, and one morning Mrs. Drew found herself facing an unknown deficit.

"Nora," she said to the maid of all work, "what is there in the storeroom?"

"Every blessed thing is given out but the tea an' coffee," Nora informed her, "and sure they will, if they last long enough."

The Only Crash.

Beekon Strete—Yes, in order to escape the noise and the confusion of the city we went to our country place out Worcester way.

Dorr Chester—And you found it quiet there?

Beekon Strete—Quite so. The delightful calm was broken but once.

"And how was that?"

"Our caretaker split an infinitive."

RATEPAYERS WILL PRONOUNCE ON AGREEMENT IN JANUARY

Council Deals With Proposed Thirty Year Agreement With Light and Power Company—Objections to One or Two Clauses.

The ratepayers of Peterborough will at the municipal elections in January vote on the proposition to enter into a thirty-year agreement with the Peterborough Light and Power Company.

This decision was reached at a meeting of the City Council last night when the final details of the agreement were threshed out. It took over two hours to settle the question finally, the clause referring to small power users causing most of the trouble. The Light and Power Company wanted the by-law submitted at once and offered to bear the expense of sending a post-card to each ratepayer notifying him where he voted, but the offer was not accepted by the Council.

Acording to the agreement, those using motors up to 4-horse power had the option of taking a flat at $40 per horse power or using the meter at 7c per k.h. Ald. Duffus objected to this claiming that the meter rate was too high. Ald. Hicks assisted him but the Council stood by the agreement.

Aldermen Morgan and Duncan took exception to the clause stating that the company shall sell the power that is developed in the city for manufacturing purposes at $30 per h.p. They wanted all power developed within a radius of 25 miles, but were defeated, the vote standing 6—4.

The clause was afterwards amended to read that the company must reserve 2,000 h. p. for manufacturing purposes other than what is used by the Quaker Oats Co.

Aldermen Morgan and Duncan moved that all matters in dispute between the city and company in future be submitted to the Hydro Electric Commission or the Municipal and Railway Board at the city's option. They put up a fight for this. The company refused to consider the Hydro-Electric Commission on the grounds that that body was prejudiced against power companies. They agreed to allow disputes to be settled by the Municipal and Railway Board or by an arbitration board appointed under the Arbitration Act. This was accepted after a long debate.

At the suggestion of Alderman Hicks a clause was inserted to the effect that the company must sign the agreement before it is submitted to the people. Mr. Larmonth said the company had intended doing so.

Then followed the final struggle on the time of submitting the by-law. Those favoring January were successful, so that the matter is now practically settled.

NO INCREASE IN TENDER SAYS THE CITY COUNCIL

Although the price of cement has gone up the City Council refused last night to grant an increase in the contract price of E. & F. Conroy.

Mr. Ed. Conroy addressed the Council in connection with the Smith street bridge contract. He maintained he should be allowed something in face of the increase in the price of cement since he put in his tender. The increase is at least 30 cents per barrel. It is a matter beyond his control and he is willing to bear one-third of the loss and the city put in two-thirds. The increase will amount to $780 so that the city's share would be $520.

The Council however, could not see its way clear to grant an increase in Mr. Conroy's tender.

It is understood that the Conroys are going ahead with the contract and that work on the bridge will be started this week.

Ald. Duffus succeeded in having a motion passed instructing the Board of Works to fix up Argyle and Caddy streets.

ANOTHER OLD RESIDENT PASSED AWAY THIS MORNING

After a lingering illness John Kincaid, an old and respected resident of this city, passed away this morning at his late residence, 558 Harvey street. The late Mr. Kincaid, who was 74 years of age, was born in Drumholm, Donegal, Ireland, and came to this country when quite young, finally settling in Peterborough. For some time he carried on a contracting business and later held the office of town assessor. The last position he held was that of inspector of the new Collegiate Institute during its construction. The deceased was well known and highly respected by the large number of friends and acquaintances with whom he came in contact during his long residence in this city. His brother, Dr. Kincaid, predeceased him a number of years ago. He is survived by his widow, one son, W. A. Kincaid, of Butte, Montana, and two daughters, Mrs. T. H. Hamston, of Toronto, and Miss Clara Kincaid, at home.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, on Saturday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, to Little Lake cemetery.

Amusements at the Grand

KATHLEEN CLIFFORD in "The Debtors."

Picturing the old days of England, when imprisonment for debt was a common punishment, has offered a theme which Maragaret Mayo has dramatized, "The Debtors," which will be the attraction at the "Grand" next Monday evening, Sept. 27. The cast, headed by that well-known comedian, Digby Bell, portrays the character of William Dorrit, and it is believed, fits him better than anything else he has yet done. Miss Kathleen Clifford, who is starring with Digby Bell, in "The Debtors," under the direction of Allison and Ziegler, will be remembered as the child in "The Top o' the World," plays the part of Amy, and to quote Miss Clifford, "I just love Amy, and try to model my everyday life after this bright, vivacious, good daughter." The cast is a large one. "The Debtors," after a short tour will return to New York, where it is expected it will have a long run, as it has been before the public continually in Germany for two years.

The Gay Musician

The large audience at the Grand last night gave every evidence of its appreciation of "The Gay Musician" as a highly acceptable offering. The applause was frequent and enthusiastic, and the singing of the majority of the musical numbers called forth several cordial encores. The settings of the piece are excellent, and the company is a capable one. The pony girls are an active and winning contingent of singers and dancers, and did neat and captivating work. In the score are several rather good melodies, although the music is bright, rather than strikingly tuneful. "Lovelight" is quite a whistable number however, and "What a Dry Word This Would Be," has a pleasing air. The biggest recall winner of the night was "A Bad, Bad Man," in which Roger Gray, as Samuel Lyons, did some clever comedy singing. The lyrics of the song were decidedly original. Jacqueline Du Barry (Marie Dubois) displayed a soprano of quality and culture in her two songs "The Saucy Sparrow," and "Not as Simple as I Look," and Harry Benham as Eugene Dubois, also sang with considerable expression. Frances Lee was very acceptable in the role of Maude Granville, the prima donna. Richard Karl as Capt. Geo. Fish, gave a well-drawn character interpretation, and Margaret Crawford, who played the part of Marie's back-talking mother-in-law was amusing with her Dutch dialect.

FAIR MEETING ON WEDNESDAY

Directors Will Wind up the Business for the Year

The next meeting of the directors of the Peterborough Fair will be held in the City Council chamber on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. The winding up of the business for the year will take place, and the first arrangements for next year's exhibition will be made.

It was announced in yesterday's Review that a public meeting would be held for the discussion of the purchasing of permanent grounds. Wednesday's meeting will not be for this purpose, however, and will not be a public meeting.

CAMPBELLFORD HAS POWER NOW

Town Flooded With Lights These Nights, Says the Herald

Campbellford is flooded with light these nights. On Saturday afternoon last, on the invitation of the mayor and council, a large number of citizens visited the power house and saw the plant in active operation. There are many things to be done yet before everything will be complete, but the machinery and walls are being put to the test and seem to be satisfactory. The council were fortunate in securing the services of Messrs. Francis & Gillespie, who have spared no pains to make the concrete work substantial. They were also fortunate in the contractors, Messrs. Brown & Aymer, whose work is a credit to themselves and the town.

The town is now ready to supply power to industries requiring it, and should be able to compete favorably as to price with any company or corporation that has electric energy to dispose of.—Campbellford Herald.

BIBLE SOCIETY'S ANNUAL MEETING

Was Held Last Night at Charlotte St. Church With Large Attendance

The seventy-second annual meeting of the local branch of the Bible Society was held at Charlotte street church last night, and the attendance was unusually large.

The gathering was a very interesting one, and the choir contributed much to the brightness and success of the meeting. Sheriff Hall, president of the society, took the chair and called upon Rev. E. A. Pearson, who gave a most interesting address on the value of the Scriptures. There were many difficulties and problems confronting those who disseminated the word of God, but there was triumph everywhere.

Canon Davidson dealt with the practical use of the Bible, the reading and study of the Bible. The speaker depricated the tendency in many quarters to be satisfied with the possession of the Bible without the study of it.

Rev. R. Pogue spoke of the Bible under three heads:

1. The estimate men have of the Bible.
2. What the Bible has done for those who have accepted them.
3. We ought to read the Bible more than we do. The contents of the Bible ought to be known more and more.

Rev. J. R. Webb spoke of the duty of the hour. The great call is to do more than ever has been done. He had been told by an official of this city, of a man whose wife had died and in going to the west took his wife's Bible. Because he loved his wife and loved her Bible he kept it bound up with tape and for a whole year never looked within its pages. He returned to Peterborough not long ago because there fell from the covers of that Bible his wife's bank book containing the fact that there was a deposit of $1,900.

FIREMAN WAS KILLED

Special to the Review.

Montreal, Que., Sept. 23.—While the Canadian Express from Ottawa for Montreal was running between St. Augustine and St. Scholastique last night a plug blew out in the engine and instantly the cab was filled with scalding steam. Edward Edwards, the fireman, jumped to save his life, but was killed. Engineer Wilson, with great presence of mind, shut off the steam and ran out on the running board. The engine stopped after running a mile. Edwards belonged to Ottawa.

Two Boys Each Fined $2.00 at Police Court-Must Stay in Cell Until Fine is Paid

Robert Ross and Charles Egleson were each fined $2 at police court this morning and as neither of the boys had the necessary amount, they were locked up in the cells and will remain there until the fine is paid. The boys appear to be the ringleaders in a gang who have been a source of annoyance to Mr. Cunningham, who resides at the corner of Hock street and Gladstone avenue. Last Sunday morning the gang were stealing apples from the lady's garden, and were using sticks with which to bring the fruit to the ground.

The complainant stated that the boys had caused considerable trouble to her in this and other years, and she wanted it stopped.

THAT WATCH OF YOURS

Is in many respects similar to a railway engine. Let an engine be run without oil or cleaning and before long it will stop dead. Upon examination it will be found that the friction and wear and tear has ruined the machinery, and it is fit only for the scrap iron heap. Likewise your watch. You put it in your pocket and while there is a kick in it, you, in your mistaken economy, do not consult the watchmaker, and consequently rob your watch of years of good service and also much of its former accuracy. The time-keeping qualities of a good watch are maintained and often improved by timely and skilful attention. If you have been one of the neglectful ones call around and see us.

FIREMEN HAD EARLY MORNING CALL

The fire department were called out this morning at four o'clock to a blaze at the city's rubbish piles, which are located at the east end of Charlotte street, on the old river bed. A long lines of hose had to be laid, and considerable trouble was experienced in extinguishing the fire. A second trip was found necessary some hours later.

Arrangements are being made for establishing the first electric smelter plant in Canada in connection with the Soo works.

THE CENTRAL MILLING CO.

When the Central Milling Co. started business eight years ago the prophecy was made that it would do well. These mutual affairs always do. Where patrons are interested a business is sure to prosper. The Central Milling Co. has paid splendid dividends from the start. It is as safe a business as any business can be. It is very well managed and there is probably no better investment in the city than its stock.

A GOOD NIGHT'S WORK

The Council did a good deal of work last evening of a conclusive and definite character. The most important matter dealt with beyond all doubt was the acceptance of Burleigh Falls power at $11.60 per h.p. This, if carried out, will be a great asset for Peterborough.

The isolation hospital is an imperative necessity. Quarantine is practically ruination in the majority of cases. With a hospital the people need not dread isolation themselves and the excessive expense. It will prove a great boon to those not too well-off.

While there is nothing in the 30-year agreement favoring the Hydraulic Company over any other company we had hoped that for lighting purposes the old flat rate would be retained. The mass of the people are entitled to it.

We used to think that the ward system was a back number, but the battle for the Smith street bridge convinced us to the contrary. Some wards would starve on what they would get from a generally-elected Council.

That the people should be consulted in all important matters goes without saying. That is the people's idea and it will certainly prevail. Ignoring the voting public as a parcel of know-nothings, etc., is an antiquated idea. The public will hardly bear the stigma patiently.

It is difficult to see on what principle of justice the Conroys are to be compelled to take the Smith street bridge contract after another had been chosen and the contract awarded. It is very doubtful if this could be made to hold in any court of justice. The lowest tenderer was awarded the contract. He was allowed to withdraw without a penalty and now it is proposed to hold the first tenderer the Council brings up against. If this is law it should be changed.

REVOLVER CONFISCATED

Havelock Resident Alarmed His Wife by His Actions—Was Fined

Yesterday Magistrate Edmison presided at a case in Havelock, in which a loaded revolver, and a resident of that town, who held, as it afterwards turned out, ungrounded suspicions of his better half, played prominent parts. His wife claimed that one night he had fired, at what he thought to be a man in the room, and on the other occasion had subjected her to indignities as a result of his seeing things.

The Magistrate confiscated the revolver and imposed a nominal fine on the husband, after which he advised the two to try and live more peaceably together, and this they promised to do.

FUNERAL OF LATE JOHN MOLONEY

The remains of the late John Moloney were laid at rest in St. Peter's cemetery this morning, amidst many expressions of regret by those who felt the loss of a friend, and sympathy to the bereaved members of the family. The Knights of Columbus were largely represented at the obsequies, and the members of the Peterborough Law Association attended in a body. A large number of beautiful floral tributes were received, amongst them being a large wreath from the Peterborough Law Association, a large cross on a pedestal from the Knights of Columbus, and a sheaf from St. Peter's Ladies Aid. The pallbearers were Messrs. L. M. Hayes, J. R. Stratton, J. C. Sullivan, B. Morrow, William Johnston and Dr. McGrath.

Requiem mass was sung at St. Peter's Cathedral by Rev. Father McColl, and the services at the grave were conducted by Fathers Meagher and Kelly.

PRELIMINARY HEARING

Of Fred and Harry Jopling Will be Proceeded With To-morrow Morning

To-morrow morning at ten o'clock, the preliminary hearing of Fred and Harry Jopling, charged with manslaughter, will be proceeded with at the county court rooms. Magistrate Edmison will preside. The crown will be represented by County Crown Attorney Wood, and Mr. D. O'Connell will look after the interests of the Joplings. Both young men, who have been out on bail since their arrest, will be present at the hearing.

OBSTACLES IN THE WAY

Of the Solution of the Springville Skeleton Mystery Two Serious Ones.

"What success is attending your efforts in connection with your investigation in the skeleton mystery at Springville?" Inspector Miller was asked by the Review to-day.

"There are two very great obstacles in the way of a solution of the affair. In the first place, with the body in the condition it is it is impossible to identify it. The only possible chance of identity apparent, in case someone comes forward and identifies some of the articles found on the body.

"It will also be impossible to learn how the deceased came to death unless the post mortem reveals a bullet wound or some other source of injury that would have proved fatal. In the condition the body is in this may prove impossible, but the post mortem will show whether there is any finding in this respect or not."

May Return To Ward System

At the municipal elections in January the ratepayers of Peterborough will have an opportunity of expressing themselves on the question.

"Do you favor a return to the ward system for the election of aldermen?"

The City Council was petitioned last fall by two hundred ratepayers to submit this question last January, but it was rather late when the petition came in, and no action was taken.

Ald. Morgan introduced the matter to the Council after the hour of midnight last night. He only had to remind the aldermen that the question was given a three months' hoist last year because the request was made too late in the season. He, therefore, brought it up this year in lots of time. His motion was seconded by Ald. Duncan and was carried.

WEDDING BELLS

DORMER—STEVENSON.

A very pretty, though quiet wedding, was solemnized yesterday afternoon at four o'clock at the bride's home in Campbellford, when Miss Isabella Florence Stevenson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Stevenson, of Campbellford, became the bride of Mr. Evelyn J. Dormer, one of Peterborough's popular young men. The young couple were unattended, and the bride entered the drawing room on the arm of her father, while her sister, Miss Berta played Mendelssohn's wedding march. The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. A. Brown, of St. Andrew's church, Campbellford, and was witnessed by a number of friends and relatives of the contracting parties. The bride was very becomingly dressed in a gown of amethyst travers cloth and carried a beautiful bouquet of bride's roses. After the ceremony the bridal party partook of a dainty wedding supper, following which the happy young young couple left for their future home in Peterborough, to which place they will carry the well wishes of a host of friends.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts, and a few nights ago the young people of St. Andrew's church gave her a kitchen shower.

Upon arrival at their new home at 563 Gilmour street, Mr. and Mrs. Dormer were received by a number of friends, and a reception was tendered by Mrs. P. Fuller, sister of the groom. After refreshments an hour or so was very pleasantly spent by the guests present.

THE INQUEST WAS RESUMED

At Springville This Afternoon—Post-Mortem is Performed

The inquest at Springville into the cause of the death of the skeleton found in the woods near there was resumed this afternoon. The jury empanelled by Coroner Grey in the first sitting was called together and it was decided that a postmortem examination should be performed on the body.
